PAYMASTER OF DEMOCRATS IS UNDER INQUIRY

Cummings' $90,000 Stirs Senate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Reports that Walter J. Cummings of Chicago, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, receives salaries of more than $90,000 a year from Reconstruction Finance corporation jobs he holds are expected to result in senate attacks on Monday when a bill, recommended by the RFC, comes up for consideration. That measure would exempt shares of preferred stock owned by the RFC from state taxation.

Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] said he had requested the RFC and the interstate commerce commission for information concerning Cummings' salaries in order to determine his position on the bill to exempt the RFC stock from taxation.

Cash from Several Sources.

Cummings' salaries, it has been reported to Senator Couzens, include $75,000 a year as chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, in which the RFC has $50,000,000 invested; $15,000 as trustee of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, which is being reorganized with RFC support, and an undisclosed amount as director of the Maryland Casualty company, in which the RFC has $37,500,000 invested.

Couzens Pledges Inquiry.

It was reported today that several senators, including Couzens, were prepared to argue that if the RFC can afford to assist institutions paying such large salaries, it can afford to pay taxes to the states on the bank, railroad and other shares it holds. Senator Couzens declined to comment other than to say he was making an investigation.

Senator Couzens took the position before the banking and currency committee while it was considering the bill to exempt RFC shares from state taxation, that the banks or holders of preferred stock ought to pay the tax out of earnings. However, Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, contended the earnings were too small to justify the payment of state taxes. The committee reported the bill favorably. Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson said Senator Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Ala.], chairman of the banking and currency committee, would call up the RFC tax bill on Monday.

RFC Asks for Law.

The bill is demanded by the RFC to meet the situation brought about by a recent decision of the United States Supreme court. The court held that preferred shares of the Baltimore National bank, owned by the RFC, were subject to taxation by the state of Maryland.

"Your committee feels that the bill does no more than to reaffirm a previous congressional intent, and to indorse an immunity that generally has been believed to exist," the committee report states. "It is a curative statute, designed to close an unintentional gap in legislation and to withdraw from the privilege of taxation bank shares, capital notes, and debentures while owned by a governmental institution."

Trusted to Exemption.

The report states that section 10 of the RFC act provides that "the corporation, including its franchise, its capital, reserves and surplus, and its income, shall be exempt from all taxation." This was deemed sufficient to exempt preferred shares from taxation, the report adds, but the Supreme court "has held that the shares of preferred stock of national banks owned by the corporation are subject to state taxation," under the general consent to such taxation contained in a previous statute.

The salaries received by Mr. Cummings, the Democratic national committee's treasurer, are expected to cause the New Dealers some embarrassment because of the bitter attacks they have made on private corporations paying large salaries to officials and larger fees to counsel. Cummings was selected for the

EXTRADITION OF HAUPTMANN IN LEGAL SHADOW

Hoffman Questions Key Witness.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The testimony on which Bruno Richard Hauptmann was extradited from the Bronx to New Jersey was attacked this afternoon by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, with a strong hint that contradictions unfolded in the story of Millard Whited, eye-witness who placed Hauptmann on the Lindbergh kidnap-murder scene, might be used in an attempt to invalidate the German carpenter's Flemington trial and conviction.

The governor's declaration was made after Whited, a picturesque, usually jobless Sourland Mountains logger, was grilled for almost two hours in the executive chamber of the Capitol building. The governor, Hauptmann's chief counsel, Lloyd Fisher, and Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, Jr., of Hunterdon county, took turns questioning the belligerent witness.

Fisher Foresees Perjury Charges.

"Perjury charges unquestionably will be made against Whited," Fisher declared as he left the stormy session in the governor's office.

The governor then talked to reporters. In staccato sentences he sketched the results of the meeting.

"Really, Hauptmann's extradition from New York was based on Whited's testimony," he said. "It is especially important to know if Whited perjured himself, for Hauptmann was extradited on his evidence."

The governor said he would seek legal opinion as to the exact application of the new Whited evidence in connection with the Bronx extradition proceedings. He said that since the logger was the only witness who placed Hauptmann near the scene of the Sourland Mountains crime about March 1, 1932, the entire extradition evidence was at stake.

Two Stories Compared.

The governor said he regarded as "highly significant" the fact that in April, 1932, Whited told state police that he had seen no one, or nothing suspicious, near the Lindbergh estate.

The governor referred to the following question and answer in the statement:

Q.—Had you noticed any person walking through the woods in the vicinity of the Lindbergh home before March 1, 1932, that acted in a suspicious manner?

A.—No, I had not.

It was almost two years later, during the extradition hearing on October 6, 1934, that the next statement was taken from Whited, when he took the stand to make identification necessary to bring Hauptmann across the state line to face the charge of murdering Charles August Lindbergh, Jr.

Places Hauptmann on Scene.

In that trial Whited said that he saw Hauptmann stepping out of the bushes on the left side of the road leading to Wertzville and that at 4 or 5 p. m., four days later, he again saw the same man in the vicinity of the Lindbergh house. The latter date, he testified, was one or two days before the crime of March 1, 1932.

"In the light of these statements," Hoffman added, "it would be interesting to know the thing that

THE CROWN THAT WASHINGTON REFUSED

Roosevelt Kin, Cabinet Aid, Is Dead at Age 56

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Col. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, a relative of President Roosevelt and acting secretary of the navy during the illness of Secretary Swanson, died suddenly late today of an acute heart attack. He was 56 years old. Admitted to naval hospital only last Thursday for treatment for intestinal influenza, Mr. Roosevelt's death was unexpected.

Word was telephoned immediately to President Roosevelt, who was attending a dinner at Harvard university's Fly club at Cambridge, Mass., that his distant cousin had passed away. The chief executive arranged to leave almost immediately for his Hyde Park, N. Y., home. He and Mrs. Roosevelt will return to the capital Tuesday morning to attend the funeral services. Interment will be in Arlington National cemetery.

Flags At Half Staf.

News of the death of the assistant naval secretary was flashed to all naval shore stations and to all ships of the United States fleet. All flags were ordered to hal staf.

Col. Roosevelt died at 5:15 p. m., despite a determined effort to save him. An announcement from the White House by one of the president's secretaries disclosed that a navy airplane dashed to Philadelphia during the day and returned with a specialist, Dr. C. F. Mitchell of that city.

Other specialists from Baltimore and Washington were called into consultation, and were at Col. Roosevelt's bedside when he died.

Important Post in Department.

Col. Roosevelt in recent months had played an increasingly important part in navy department affairs, being frequently in contact with the White House and acting as secretary during illnesses of Secretary Swanson.

Less than a month ago he was the center of a national "incident" arising from withdrawal of the Marine band from a scheduled concert appearance before the women's patriotic conference on national defense.

Col. Roosevelt was born in Morristown, N. J., on Oct. 5, 1879. The son of Nicholas Roosevelt, he entered the naval academy with the class of 1900, but left before graduation to become a second lieutenant in the marine corps for service aboard the U. S. S. Mayflower in the war with Spain.

Married in 1902 to Miss Eleanor Morrow of San Francisco, the assistant secretary remained in the marine corps until 1920, when he resigned to enter private business. His marine career found him assistant naval attaché at the outbreak of the world war, but he soon was transferred to Washington headquarters.

After leaving the service, Col. Roosevelt joined the Radio Corporation of America in 1923, serving as European manager from 1925 to 1930.

In addition to his widow, two sons and a daughter survive him.

CARNIVAL 'FOOL' LOOKS LIKE HITLER; GERMANY SENDS EIGHT TO JAIL

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN, Germany, Feb. 22.—The prince of the carnival of the Rhineland town of Heddenheim is accused of having taken in vain Chancellor Adolf Hitler's appearance and eight organizers of the carnival have been jailed.

The town has an old carnival tradition and a proudly preserved talent for foolishness. Each year a carnival journal is published, when the prince of the carnival, "his lunatic majesty," begins his reign. This year the journal appeared with the two customary fools' heads in three-peaked hats on the cover. It began to be whispered about that one of the fools' heads displayed the well known drooping lock familiarly associated with the Fuehrer, and for good measure the portrayed figure had a small black mustache. Worse yet, his companion fool had an obviously "non-Aryan" cast of countenance.

It took nearly a week for these rumors to seep through to local Nazi party functionaries. Heddenheim's carnival was abruptly banned. All dances and parties of any sort in the town were prohibited for two days. The offending journal was confiscated wherever copies could be discovered by diligent policemen and Storm Troopers.

Policeman Directs Foot Trafic on Niagara River

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A policeman was doing trafic duty in the middle of the Niagara river above the dry American falls today because of the hundreds of sightseers who insisted on walking on ice from the American shore to Goat island.

Dionne Quints Periled by Near-Epidemic of Measles

CALLANDER, Ont., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A mild form of measles is sweeping this northern Ontario district, home of the Dionne quintuplets. Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician to the quints, said the measles had reached the near-epidemic stage, though the carefully guarded babies have not been touched.

Mother Crawls for Aid as Girl Dies in Flames

The rear half of her frame cottage at 5220 Nashville avenue was in flames late last night as Mrs. Rose Nawman, 62 years old, for months a bedridden invalid, crawled on her hands and knees from the front door and into the snow of her yard.

"Fire!" she screamed. "Fire! Help! My daughter is trapped."

There was none to hear her cry. Nashville avenue, a short street at 6600 west on the south side, is sparsely settled and trafic at the moment was nonexistant.

Swiftly Mrs. Nawman realized this. Then she set out on a heroic journey to the home of the nearest neighbor, Berndt Peterson, 5308 Nashville avenue. Her weak hands clawed at the snowdrifts as she dragged herself along.

Screams Repeatedly in Vain.

Occasionally she lay still, panting and half fainting as exhaustion overtook her. She looked back to see the blaze leaping higher. She screamed again for help. Time and again. But no one heard, and the terrible trip ended only when she had slithered across the Peterson porch and aroused the family with her cries.

Peterson summoned firemen, who hurried to the house. When they had extinguished the flames, they found the body of the unfortunate daughter, Miss Velora Nawman, 30 years old, in a rear bedroom. She had been burned to death.

With difficulty Mrs. Nawman related the story of the outbreak of the fire and of her tremendous effort to save the younger woman to Police Sergeant Joseph E. Leonard of the Chicago Lawn station.

Daughter Discovers Flames.

"My daughter aided me in getting ready for bed," she said. "Then she said she would go back and look at the fire in the kitchen stove. In a few seconds she ran back to me. 'The kitchen's on fire, mamma,' she said. 'We must get out.' I told her to get some clothes on—she was in her nightgown—and she went to the rear bedroom.

"She never came back. Pretty soon I knew she wouldn't come back. I could hear the flames crackling louder and louder. I haven't been out of my bedroom since my husband died a year ago. But something had to be done. I wanted to get help for Velora. And so I went out into the snow."

Miss Nawman was a secretary for the Practical School Supply company, 1315 South Michigan avenue. She has a younger sister, Beatrice, who was visiting friends when the fire started.

Dollar Thrown Across River by Johnson

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Walter Johnson, the "Big Train" of baseball, today threw a silver dollar across the partly frozen Rappahannock river as part of a celebration of the 204th birthday anniversary of George Washington.

He threw two silver dollars in three attempts, but the first piece to span the 272 foot channel did not "count." It was the third dollar he hurled, a dollar engraved for the occasion for which a premium was offered, that had been selected for the "official test."

Legend Becomes Fact.

Thus the legend and fable of the father of his country and the silver dollar was enacted into fact. But it left in its wake a dispute as heated as past controversies about the original legend, for there are those who still contend that the river, at the time that Washington threw a stone or dollar, was more than 1,300 feet from bank to bank.

Surveyors who measured the width of the river at the point where Johnson stood today found it was 272 feet. Chamber of commerce officials said the disk traveled 286 feet and 6 inches from Johnson's hand to the opposite bank.

Thousands See Toss.

Surrounded by about 1,000 spectators, cameramen and newspaper men, and encouraged by the cheering shouts of about 3,000 others who waited on the opposite bank in the hope of "catching" the silver disk, Johnson took his time in preparing for the event. Slush was ankle deep.

The publicity stunt was planned as a part of commemoration exercises today, when the feature event was to be the acceptance and planting of cherry trees along the new boulevard from the city to the Fevry farm.

Heaves Dollar 450 Feet.

[illegible] cial.]—Al Wieland, former Drake university athlete, today claimed a world record for dollar throwing, and challenged historians to prove that George Washington ever did better.

As 1,000 persons lined bridges spanning the Des Moines river here this afternoon Wieland threw five silver dollars across the stream in five attempts. His longest effort, a herculean heave, dropped into the snow on the opposite bank 450 feet from the thrower. The river measures 365 feet from bank to bank at the point where the tosses were made.

First George Better Thrower.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 22.—(AP)—George Washington, Omaha salesman, failed today in an attempt to throw a silver dollar across the Missouri river. The river is 580 feet wide at the point where Washington made his attempt. Washington hurled the dollar high into the air. It traveled approximately 216 feet.

Measured with Tapes.

Norman, Okla., Feb. 22.—[U. P.]—Gordon Clark, University of Oklahoma baseball player from Okmulgee, Okla., today threw a silver dollar 441 feet across the Canadian river here.

CHEER AND 'BOO' PRESIDENT AT OLD HARVARD

He Laughs with Foes of New Deal.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt came back to scenes of his college days at Harvard tonight to participate in his son John's initiation into the century old, aristocratic Fly club.

It was an interesting experience to the President, whose arrival at the club was greeted by mingled cheers and boos, the latter predominating. Whether boos indicated disapproval of the New Deal or were a student prank was not clear. Anyhow the President sat at the dinner among foes of his policies. There was a broad smile on his face while he dined.

Throng Mills About Car.

When Mr. Roosevelt arrived at the door of the car a large throng milled about the presidential motor car. Sporadic cheers were heard from the undergraduates and citizens, but these were speedily drowned by an increasing volume of boos.

It was the first time President Roosevelt had come face to face with a preponderently hostile crowd. Secret service men, ever alert, hastily gathered about the presidential car. The President made his way into the Fly club, where he sat at a table as politically hostile as a banquet of the American Liberty league.

Speaks at Philadelphia.

The demonstration at his old college club was unexpected. The President's arrival at Beacon yards, a mile and a half from the univer- [illegible] ant incident. His way over streets to the club doors was also uneventful.

Mr. Roosevelt left his special train, which brought him from Philadelphia, where, in an address at Temple university earlier in the day he had defined true education as "Freedom in the Pursuit of Truth," after receiving the honorary degree of doctor of jurisprudence. The pause at the university was an interlude in his paternal pilgrimage to the Harvard undergraduate club.

His Address at Temple.

The Philadelphia address was in the nature of a Washington birthday address, but the President barely mentioned the "Father of His Country." The speech included a mild defense of educational boondoggling.

"True education depends upon freedom in the pursuit of truth," he told 3,000 persons celebrating the founding of the university by Russell H. Conwell, Baptist divine, famed for his lecture "Acres of Diamonds." "No group and no government can properly prescribe precisely what should constitute the body of knowledge with which true education is concerned. The truth is found when men are free to pursue it.

"It is this belief in the freedom of the mind, written into our fundamental law and observed in our every day dealings with the problems of life, that distinguishes us as a nation."

Refuses to Quote Washington.

In his one reference to Washington, Mr. Roosevelt said the first president deeply appreciated the importance of education in the republic and the responsibility of the government to promote it. He refused to quote from Washington, saying "some captious critic might search the library of congress to prove by other quotations that George Washington was in favor of just the opposite."

In this statement Mr. Roosevelt was seen as hurling a dart at Stephan Royce of Crystal Falls, Mich., son of Josiah Royce, Harvard philosopher, at whose feet the President once sat and whom he quoted in his annual message to congress. The son verbally chastized Mr. Roosevelt for use of the quotation, asserting his father, if alive, would never support the New Deal's radical political philosophy.

Defends Easy Money Outlays.

In defense of easy money outlays for education the President said he was "proud to be the head of a government that has sought to make a substantial contribution to the cause of education, even in a period of financial stress." He took note of efforts including ladling out more than 400 million dollars to local communities for schools, colleges and libraries as well as adult education and other purposes, stressing the fact that the projects tended to relieve unemployment.

The President was introduced by Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania, who formed a new trilogy of national heroes—Washington, Lincoln, and Roosevelt. In his soaring introduction the governor came near giving Mr. Roosevelt the preferred position.

Earle's thesis was that every crisis has brought forth a man to save the nation. He concluded with: "In the history of the American democracy we find three great crises when the principles of freedom and liberty hung in the balance. The third—and pray God the last—was that bleak March day in 1933 when a great President took the helm of a floundering ship of state."

Mr. Roosevelt arrived in Philadelphia shortly before 11 o'clock, having left Washington at 8:15 a. m. Chicago time. He was met at the station by the First City troop, an organization similar to Chicago's Black Horse troop, dating back to revolutionary days.

Sabres Drawn in Salute.

In resplendent scarlet and blue uniforms topped by plumet steel helmets a uniform Lafayette helped to design, the troop drew sabres in a salute.

Mr. Roosevelt journeyed through lined streets to and from the university. Back on his special he reached into his vest pocket to toy with a symbol of John's election to the Fly club which he passed on to his son at the initiation. The symbol is a lion watch charm designed after the lion crest of the royal family of Belgium.

More than 300 persons attended the club banquet marking its 100th anniversary. The club was founded by James Russell Lowell and numbers another President in its membership—Theodore Roosevelt.

In participating in the initiation, the President stood by John and cheered him on as John was required to drain the traditional Bumper of Champagne, a rite required of every initiate. John came through the ordeal splendidly, according to reports. The feat is considered no mean one, as the champagne followed other convivial tilting during the evening.

Gets Word of Cousin's Death.

The President hurried away from the Fly club festivities when he received word of the death in Washington of his cousin, Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy. Mr. Roosevelt returned to his special train to await announcement of funeral plans.

On receiving word the funeral will be held in Arlington cemetery Tuesday, the President canceled his plans to remain in Hyde Park, N. Y., until the middle of the week. He will leave his family home Monday evening to attend the funeral.

Late tonight his train started for Hyde Park. Tomorrow he will make a brief radio address in celebration of Brotherhood day sponsored by the national conference of Jews and Christians.

FALL FROM TRUCK FATAL TO GIRL ON TRIP WITH FIANCE

Tragedy in City After Michigan Journey.

Miss Bertha Troost, 23 years old, of Holland, Mich., was fatally hurt yesterday when she fell to the pavement at Harrison and Jefferson streets from the cab of a truck driven by her fiancè, Garrett Kienstra, 27 years old, also of Holland. Kienstra said the young woman fell out when the cab door flew open as he was turning the corner into Jefferson street. She died shortly after Kienstra took her to St. Luke's hospital.

Kienstra said he and Miss Troost were soon to be married and that he brought her from Holland early yesterday to visit her uncle, Edward Johnson, 5024 Cullom avenue. He was held for the inquest tomorrow.

Auto Kills Girl, Speeds On.

Miss Mary Anson, 19 years old, 6559 Minerva avenue, was instantly killed early today when struck by a Checker taxicab in front of 1024 East 67th street. The driver did not stop, and Woodlawn police started a search for him.

John Fialkowski, 31 years old, 8303 Brandon avenue, an employé of the city bureau of streets, died in South Chicago hospital early today of injuries he suffered yesterday when he fell under the wheels of a truck trailer on which he was working. The accident occurred at 95th street and Commercial avenue. The driver of the truck, Ben Foglio, 3003 Princeton avenue, was not held.

Physician Hurt in Crash.

Dr. William Whitaker, 60 years old, 2135 South Michigan avenue, attending surgeon at the People's hospital, was injured yesterday when the automobile in which he was a passenger skidded on the icy pavement at Fullerton avenue and Lake Shore drive and crashed against a safety island.

Mrs. Whitaker and George Dempsey, 60 years old, the driver, both of the Michigan avenue address, were slightly injured.

The body of a man who died Friday in St. Luke's hospital from injuries incurred when he was struck by a hit-and-run truck in front of 702 South Clark street was identified yesterday at the county morgue as that of David Keagy, 55 years old, 1844 West Adams street.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 140 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. During the same period 120 were killed and 2,009 were injured in the city limits of Chicago.

DIAMOND STARS GIVEN 65 SAFE COACH DRIVERS

Sixty-five drivers employed for more than ten years by the Chicago Motor Coach company without having a chargeable accident were honored last night at the annual buffet supper of the company's employés' fraternity at the Palmer house.

Each of the drivers was given a diamond studded gold star at the top of which was the figure "10," indicating the number of years of safe driving. George W. Fleming, chairman of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, made the presentations. The rewarded drivers have driven 18,654,820 miles over boulevards and streets.

FARLEY DEPICTS ROOSEVELT AS 'SAVIOR OF U. S.'

Talks in Topeka; Lashes Back at Hoover.

Topeka, Kas., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley hailed President Roosevelt tonight as the savior of America and challenged "any political party to meet us on that record."

Speaking over a national radio network on the same platform from which Gov. Alf M. Landon, mentioned as a possible Republican presidential nominee, criticized Roosevelt policies Jan. 29, Farley made no specific mention in his prepared address of the Kansas executive.

He centered fire against New Deal critics, particularly upon former President Herbert Hoover and upon the American Liberty league.

Hits at Kansas School Policies.

However, referring apparently to Kansas Republican statements regarding state governmental economies—a point emphasized by Landon boosters—Farley said:

"I was sorry to learn that it was necessary here in Kansas to cut the salaries of school teachers and of professors in the colleges and universities. Perhaps it was necessary, but the policy of the Roosevelt administration has been to serve the schools of the nation wherever possible."

Reviewing three years of the New Deal, Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, addressed the Washington day banquet of the Kansas Democratic club. He said:

"Franklin D. Roosevelt did more than save America. He vindicated democracy at a time when all over the world its enemies were ready to declare the death of the finest system of government ever devised."

Asserts Hoover Is "Confused."

Replying to Mr. Hoover's recent Portland, Ore., speech, in which the former President said the "state of the Union is a state of confusion," Farley said:

"I passed through Topeka in 1931. Mr. Hoover was in the White House. Wheat was selling at less than 30 cents a bushel and cotton was around 5 cents a pound. There was confusion then and there was despair. Today wheat is selling above 90 cents and cotton at around 11. Let me remind Mr. Hoover that the only confusion is in his own mind."

Of the "miscalled American Liberty league" he said:

"A brilliant editorial writer said it ought to be called the American Cellophane league, and he gave two good reasons. He said, first, it's a du Pont product, and, second, you can see right through it."

People Fearful in 1933, He Says.

The postmaster general asserted that after having "slipped further and further into the grip of economic depression" the national situation at the beginning of 1933 "could only be described as appalling."

There was talk of the possible need of a dictatorship then among the "financial giants," he asserted, adding:

"Almost with an air of resignation the people patiently waited until the end of the Hoover régime, fearful that a terrible tornado of social forces was about to uproot the land.

"Well, my friends, the tornado never happened, and you and I know why. While the rest faltered and fumed and fussed, a new leader took over the reins of office on March 4, 1933, and his accomplishments were soon echoing like a thunderclap.

"From the day Mr. Roosevelt seized the banner of American leadership from the faltering hands of Herbert Hoover the United States has marched steadily forward toward the goal of economic security and social justice."

Bids for Republican Votes.

Farley made a bid for Republican votes in the coming campaign. Recalling that "millions enlisted . . . under the Democratic banner," in 1932, he said: "We want their sympathy, their help and their suffrage again." Then he said:

"Although the election is months away, the political woods are full of earnest and sincere young men who want to move their belongings into the White House. When you see one of these fine young men, give him a word of friendly advice. Drop a hand on his shoulder and say:

"'Little man, where were you in the great crisis? What did you propose then?

"'I remember only one man, and the American people remember only one man in the great crisis. His name is Franklin D. Roosevelt.'"

Committee for Roosevelt.

Lauding President Roosevelt as "that sincere friend of agriculture and the midwest," the Democratic state committee meanwhile declared the national administration had fulfilled "every promise and every pledge made to the middle west."

The committee's action was interpreted by party leaders to assure instruction of the state's 18 votes in the national convention to the renomination of President Roosevelt.

None of the resolutions made any reference to talk of Gov. Landon for the Republican presidential nomination or to the Republican state administration of Kansas.

JOHNS HOPKINS CHIEF CALLS FREE RESEARCH THE BASIS OF PROGRESS

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president of the Johns Hopkins university, today defended the right of scholars "to think, to discover, and to report" without government interference. Dr. Bowman decreed the displacement of scholarship by propaganda in some countries. It was his first presidential address. The occasion was the culmination of the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the university founding.

"When government tries to do our thinking for us," he said, "not only are our liberties lost but our thinking ceases. Politics never has trained a creative writer, or a great physician, or a painter, or an engineer.

"Freedom to think, to discover, and to report is more important than either government or society itself, for it was out of that freedom or its winning that there came ultimately the builders of our civilization, these United States, and the house of freedom we now inhabit."

During the exercises the honorary degree of doctor of laws was awarded to Dr. Irving Langmuir, associate director of the research laboratory of the General Electric company.

KILLED BY FROZEN SAND.

Sterling, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Albert Sheler, 50, died today after a block of frozen sand weighing several hundred pounds fell on him as he was tunneling beneath a ledge in a local pit.

CAPTAIN UPHOLDS POLICE SLAYING OF SUSPECT, 22

An inquest will be held tomorrow into the death of Daniel McNamara, 22 years old, 6204 South Racine avenue, who was slain early yesterday by Detective Daniel Donahue when McNamara resisted arrest at 61st and Halsted streets. After an investigation of the shooting Capt. Eugene Barry of the Englewood police station said he was convinced the policeman was justified. McNamara, he added, had served two jail sentences and was known as a troublesome youth.

McNamara and his brother, John, were accompanied by Miss Helen McHendricks, 24 years old, 6544 South Carpenter street, when they were stopped for questioning by Donahue and Detective James Hagen.

"John McNamara kicked Donahue, and Miss McHendricks, who I understand was formerly the wife of a man now serving a prison sentence, tried to scratch Hagen," Capt. Barry said. "The policemen were justified in drawing their revolvers, and Donahue did right in shooting Daniel."

Miss McHendricks and the brother are being held for the inquest.

HEART ATTACK KILLS MOTORMAN.

Charles Anderson, 58 years old, 5468 North Marmora avenue, a motorman for the surface lines, died of a heart attack yesterday while sitting in a pool room at 6450 North Clark street, next to the Devon avenue car barns.

I. C. C. WILL HEAR CITY TOMORROW ON TIME CHANGE

Only Railroad Schedules Will Be Affected.

BY LLOYD WENDT.

The interstate commerce commission will hold a hearing tomorrow on the city of Chicago's petition for an extension of the eastern standard time zone to include Chicago. The decision of the commission will determine whether the railroads entering the city will be permitted to change to eastern time, the time standard of Chicago after March 1.

The only issue at the hearing will be the time standard used by the railroads. The merits of Chicago's decision to adopt eastern time will not be debated.

Show Aid to Commerce.

The city will plead for the extension of the railroad time zone on the ground that it would make for the greater convenience of commerce, and that, conversely, denial of the petition would cause confusion and inconvenience to the carriers and the public alike.

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes will support the petition by a mass of maps, data and statistics, and a series of witnesses. It is expected that he will be supported by the states of Michigan and Ohio, which have already put into the record their prayer for an extension of the eastern zone.

Wisconsin and farm groups downstate are expected to appear in opposition, holding that an extension of the eastern zone will force them to change time, with consequent disadvantage. Indiana, which would be more largely affected, is remaining neutral, but will send observers to the hearing.

Labor Federation Opposed.

Chicago opposition to the petition is expected to come largely from counsel for the Chicago Federation of Labor and an evening newspaper. They will contend, it is indicated, that the interstate commerce commission lacks power to revise the time boundaries. In addition they will attack the merits of the change. The federation will meet today to plan the circulation of petitions seeking a referendum on the time question. A total of 375,000 names will be needed.

The hearing will climax an eastern time movement which has been in progress since the association of commerce first proposed the plan in 1915 This movement has given Chicago summer daylight time for 17 years, and on Nov. 4 it led the city council to adopt the eastern time ordinance offered by Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th].

Probably no council action has more intimate affect on each individual citizen, and few actions have precipitated more discussion. In cities where the eastern time change has been given a test, however, opinion is that the change is far less drastic than most persons suppose.

Many Benefits Found.

These cities recite numerous definite benefits from fast time, chief among them the reduction in trafic accidents, better health and added recreation opportunity from extra hours of sun, lower light and fuel bills, and elimination of difficulties which obtained under the change to summer daylight time every year.

Those cities failed to produce evidence for the opposing arguments that eastern time will work a hardship on early rising labor and on the farmer. Labor in every city which was tried fast time now supports the measure, and the legislatures of both Michigan and Ohio, farmer controlled, have adopted eastern time for the entire states.

The time hearing tomorrow is based on the city's petition for the reopening of the Michigan case of 1931, in which the state of Michigan asked that the railroads be permitted to change time.

The Michigan petition was denied, partly because it was opposed by cities on the western shore of Lake Michigan, partly because such a change would upset rail schedules into Chicago. Now, however, all of the Michigan communities have adopted eastern time. Holland, chief foe of the change in 1931, now supports it with the others. Chicago has adopted the new time, removing that objection.

System Begun by Railroads.

There has always been much confusion concerning the measurement or division of time in the United States. The present system was set up by the railroads in 1883, although not in the present form, and approved by congress in 1918. The Supreme court has held that the interstate commerce commission can modify the zones, and it has done so on several occasions.

In 1883 the western limits of the first, or eastern zone, were Buffalo, N. Y., and Pittsburgh in the north. Now they are Detroit, Toledo, and Cincinnati, and actually the zone reaches to Lake Michigan.

The relation of farmers to the city time system is largely in the field of milk shipments. If the trains change to eastern time they must ship an hour earlier than before, and this they regard as a great hardship, although in Michigan and Ohio there is no complaint on that score.

Still unsettled was the width of the river in Washington's day and the size and origin of Washington's dollar.*

Seven Marriage Licenses Issued Despite Holiday

Unaware that Washington's birthday is a legal holiday and that county offices were closed, seven couples appeared yesterday at County Clerk Michael J. Flynn's office for marriage licenses. Chief Deputy James W. Ryan, who chanced to be on hand at work, was sympathetic and issued licenses. The first of the couples, Anthony Colucci, 21, 1019 South Hermitage avenue, and Carmelle M. Freda, 21, of 839 South Bishop street, said they were taking advantage of the holiday.

KNOCKOUT DROPS ROBBERY VICTIMS TO VIEW SUSPECT

Desplaines street station police last night were holding James Alexander, 32 years old, 1630 South Washtenaw avenue, as the suspected leader of a band of robbers preying on men rendered helpless by "knockout drops" in saloons.

Alexander was arrested Friday at Halsted and Congress streets. When the police searched him they found a bottle of chloral hydrate—technical name for the drops—and five pistol cartridges in his pockets.

Yesterday a note which he attempted to smuggle out to his wife was intercepted. In it Alexander instructed his wife to tell Mrs. Grace Grimes, 27 years old, 1630 Warren boulevard, to deny any knowledge of such a drug if she were questioned. Mrs. Grimes was also arrested. The police said that she had been seen in taverns with Alexander. Both will be viewed by chloral hydrate victims at the detective bureau showup tonight.

ONTARIO PROBES ART MYSTERY IN HALL OF FAME

Is Painting of Premier or of Woman War Hero?

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Ontario's legislators and Toronto's art critics today considered whether a painting in the Queen's Park hall of fame is a portrait of Laura Secord or of Sir George Ross.

Laura Secord, an Ontario woman farmer, gained fame during the war of 1812 when she chased a cow through 20 miles of woodland tc warn the British of an impending American attack. The cow was the best she could do in the way of a red herring. Sir George Ross was Liberal premier of Ontario from 1899 to 1905.

Ready to Probe Purchase.

The painting purports to be a picture of Laura but the legislative art committee is ready to investigate full circumstances of its purchase 30 years or so ago.

Premier Hepburn today related a story told him by the late Victor Ross, oil company executive and former reporter, who interviewed Premier Ross nightly.

"Three or four nights in succession Victor Ross missed the premier, and on investigating found him posing for a picture," Hepburn said. "When it was completed the artist wanted a lot of money and the cabinet refused to foot the bill. Some one suggested that if the picture was of historical interest the cabinet would pay. Somebody else thought of Laura Secord.

Says Whiskers Painted Out.

"The story as I had it from Victor Ross was that they called in the fellow who used to paint the Orange lodge banners and had him paint Laura Secord over the picture. 'The artist painted off the Ross whiskers and put on a hood."

The picture of the premier is said to have been painted in 1905 by Mildred Peel, sister of the celebrated artist, Paul Peel, for a fee of $500. Miss Peel later became Sir George Ross' wife.

Frank Worrel, Toronto picture restorer, plans to X-ray the canvas. He says there is obviously another portrait beneath the one which school teachers for years have pointed out to their pupils as the likeness of the heroine of Beaver Dam.

CAPONE ATTACK REPORT FICTION, ASSERTS WARDEN

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—"One hundred per cent fiction," that was the terse description given today by Warden James B. Johnston concerning sensational reports of an attempt to kill Al Capone, former Chicago racketeer, in Alcatraz penitentiary.

Substantiating that was the declaration of Sanford Bates, director of federal prisons, that he had received no report of the supposed incident. "Had it occurred I would have been informed," he explained.

Bates similarly said he knew nothing of the reported effort to have Capone moved to McNeil Island penitentiary for the racketeer's safety.

Johnston was angry. "There isn't a word of truth in all these rumors that have been circulated about Capone and Alcatraz," he said.

The rumors said another convict had thrown a heavy window weight at Capone, who had been saved by the alertness of Roy Gardner, train robber.

FALLS 3 STORIES AND LIVES.

Gust Beckman, 42 years old, 730 Barry avenue, suffered a possible fractured right leg and lacerations about his body yesterday when he fell from a third floor window of his home.

GERMANY ESTABLISHES QUOTA FOR NUMBER OF JEWISH DOCTORS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The issue of diplomas to Jewish medical students henceforth will be refused, thus preventing them from practice if, at the time of their qualifications, the proportion of Jewish doctors to Aryan doctors in Germany exceeds the proportion of the Jewish population as compared to the entire population. This was decreed today by Dr. Wagner, national medical leader.

It was further decreed that henceforth doctors will be divided into two classes, "Jewish" and "non-Jewish," and that the designation "Aryan" and "non-Aryan" shall be abolished. Jewish doctors are to be considered those of full or three-quarter Jewish blood and also those with two Jewish grandparents and who were of Jewish religion on Sept. 16, 1935, or who at that time were married to Jewesses, or since have married Jewesses.

Aryan doctors may call in only Aryan specialists to attend Aryan patients and vice versa. Jewish doctors are permitted to employ only a Jewish doctor as an assistant. Aryan doctors, however, may treat Aryan patients sent by Jewish doctors to hospitals.

VATICAN CHARGES GERMANY CHOKES RELIGIOUS PRESS

Catholic Organs Urged to Defy Threats.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Osservatore Romano, organ of the Vatican, declared today the German press law was throttling religious organs in Germany.

Its article was interpreted as meaning the religious press in Germany should be militant rather than docile, in the face of legal obstacles.

The newspaper said it was necessary for the Catholic press in Germany "to offend rather than to defend silence."

Silence Is Criticized.

"The religious press," the article stated, "precisely because of its name and responsibilities, cannot tolerate that those who profit by the silence of the dead should do so also through the silence of the living."

The newspaper cited the zeal of Catholic clergymen in Germany who, it said, perform their sacred offices in the face of threats, as an example worthy of emulation by Catholic newspapers.

Revolt Goes On: Protestants.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Protestant Confessional synod decided tonight to fight through its battle against Naziism, after five days of heated debate at Oeynhausen.

Left wing pastors led by the Rev. Martin Niemoeller and the Rev. Gerhard Jacobi won the synod over to their views, and as a result the entire provisional church government, which has ruled the synod, resigned.

This government was composed mostly of moderates, headed by Bishop August Maharens, who favored collaboration with the church committees of Hans Kerrl, Nazi minister for church affairs.

Plan New Governing Body.

A new governing body for the Confessional synod will be named.

More than three-fourths of the membership of the synod finally rallied to the stubborn left wing demand that no quarter be given Kerrl, because his central committees "embody Nazi methods."

Peace in the Protestant church, which some had thought might be effected at Oeynhausen, thus failed to appear, and Kerrl is still faced with rebellion within the church.

TELLS HITLER'S 'SECRET LOVES'; PAPER IS SEIZED

Paris Le Journal Avers First Was Jewess.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The Sunday magazine section of the morning newspaper Le Journal was seized by police tonight because it contained a front page article headlined "Hitler's Secret Love." A protest by the German embassy resulted in the police action.

The piece described a series of love affairs in which it alleged the German Nazi leader was involved. One of these, perhaps the most damaging, was said to involve Hitler's niece, and it ended, according to Le Journal, in her official suicide, though the article hinted she was really murdered by some of Hitler's colleagues.

Hitler, according to Le Journal's account, when in Munich as chief of the rising Nazi movement, asked his sister to come from Austria to keep house for him.

A Solicitous Uncle.

She took along her daughter, to whom Hitler at first was a solicitous uncle, then an earnest mentor and finally an engrossed lover, the article asserted. After Hitlerism became the protagonist of severe morals, his aids began to whisper he would have to abandon the affair with his niece, Le Journal said, especially since it was on everybody's tongue. Hitler refused, according to the article.

One day the niece was found dead in bed. The official verdict of suicide was unsatisfactory to Hitler, and later, in the Nazi "blood purge," Le Journal alleges that he got revenge on those he believed responsible.

Hitler's firse love, according to the Journal article, was for a Jewess in Austria. Her father put a stop to this affair, the newspaper asserted, because Hitler, then a house painter, did not have good enough financial prospects.

Other Alleged Affairs.

Le Journal's story reported that in Munich in 1922 Hitler was widely rumored to be engaged to Jenny Hang, a sister of his chauffeur. Jenny was said to be 23 years old, and charming, with green eyes and a reddish, Valkerian complexion. The article went on to say, however, that she had two faults. She talked too much and was jealous. She left Hitler, the article said, because of his friendship with other women.

Other alleged loves mentioned by the newspaper were Erna, sister of Ernst Hanfstaengl, Harvard graduate who is now Hitler's foreign press chief; Winifred Wagner, relative of the composer, and Margaret Zlezak, daughter of a Viennese singer.

Gas from Presser Kills Head of Dress Company

Benjamin Gaber, 51 years old, 3835 Congress street, head of a dress manufacturing company, died of gas poisoning last night soon after he was found unconscious in the rooms occupied by the company at 325 West Jackson boulevard. Gas was flowing from a hose connection to a clothes pressing appliance. The Central police summoned an inhalator squad, which was unable to revive him.

HINTS PERJURY PUT HAUPTMANN IN DEATH HOUSE

Extradition Evidence Is Hit by Gov. Hoffman.

prompted him to identify Hauptmann."

Further, the governor emphasized, Whited disclosed that he was told by state troopers that if he went to the Bronx as a witness he would be paid for his time and he would also be entitled to a one-third share in the heavy rewards offered for the capture of the Lindbergh kidnapers.

Whited Wants Reward Cash.

During the conference the governor said he asked Whited if he still thought he was entitled to a share of the reward, and that Whited took the position that he was as eligible to part of the reward "as the rest of 'em."

Hoffman said he learned that Whited had been paid $160 by the state police to cover his expenses and that these payments were contingent on successful prosecution of Hauptmann.

Whited, who earns from $18 to $21 a week when he works, also told the governor that he was promised $35 a day for the period during which he testified in the Hauptmann trial. The governor refused to state whether he regarded these facts as indications that bribes had been offered, but declared they should be investigated.

At one point in the questioning, Whited refused to answer any further questions by Fisher unless he could be represented by counsel. He also said he would answer no further questions until Attorney General David T. Wilentz returned.

Will Seek Legal Opinion.

The governor asked Mr. Hauck if he would protect Whited's interests and Hauck refused. He said that as a prosecuting officer he could not.

The governor indicated that he would seek legal advice on what procedure to follow should Whited be accused and convicted of perjury.

One possibility, he said, might be the turning back of the entire case to authorities of Bronx county [New York City], since Hauptmann was extradited from there on Whited's testimony.

Indictment and trial of the picturesque Sourland Mountain logger would necessarily postpone, perhaps for months, Hauptmann's execution, now set for the week of March 30. In the event of Whited's ultimate conviction, Bruno's lawyers could appeal to the United States Supreme court to reverse the carpenter's extradition to New Jersey in October, 1934.

Persistent reports around the state capitol tonight were that Amandus Hochmuth, octogenarian Franco-Prussian war veteran, who testified he saw Hauptmann in an automobile with a ladder strapped on it not far from the Lindbergh home, also would be "invited" for a recheck of his story.

The defense has charged that Hochmuth swore in applying for an old age pension months before the kidnaping that his eyesight had been impaired by cataracts in both eyes.

Wants to Question "Jafsie."

Although Gov. Hoffman refused to discuss the report, it was said today that he had agreed to take steps to bring Dr. John F. Condon back to this country from Panama. The governor, it was reported, will write to Dr. Condon, inviting "Jafsie" to return to New Jersey for questioning about alleged discrepancies between his testimony and subsequent statements about the case.

Hoffman said he did not consider that the developments today warranted a second reprieve for Hauptmann, who is scheduled to die in the electric chair the week of March 30.

ROBBED OF $32 AND NEW CAR.

Edward Veratthi, 715 South Kostner avenue, was robbed of $32 and his new automobile by two men with revolvers in the rear of 1300 North La Salle street yesterday.

CAPITAL LEADS NATION'S HONOR TO WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The capital named in his honor led the nation today in traditional and reverent observance of the 204th anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

While the first President's "farewell address" was read in congress, officials and citizens paid tribute by placing wreaths on Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon in nearby Virginia.

Government offices were closed. The capital's citizenry—joined by thousands of visitors—made pilgrimages to Mount Vernon or Fredericksburg, where Washington spent his boyhood, or climbed to the top of the lofty monument that bears his name.

$25,000 LINDBERGH REWARD UNPAID; THREE CLAIM IT

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The $25,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the kidnaper or kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., in which Gov. Harold G. Hoffman said today Millard Whited expected a share, is still unpaid.

The claims have not been judged, pending final disposition of the case.

WILENTZ CASTS DOUBT ON STORY OF REWARD PACT

Miami, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Attorney General David T. Wilentz of New Jersey said tonight he did not believe Millard Whited, Sourland lumberjack, told Gov. Harold G. Hoffman he had been promised a part of the reward for the arrest and conviction of the Lindbergh baby kidnaper.

"I am reliably informed that Whited said no such thing," Wilentz declared when asked to comment on Gov. Hoffman's statement after he questioned Whited at Trenton, N. J., today.

Wilentz, who has been vacationing here for three weeks, plans to return to Trenton Monday.

SPEAKERS POINT NATION TO IDEALS OF WASHINGTON

Same Issues Are Found to Face U. S. Today.

A return to those principles for which George Washington fought was urged yesterday in Chicago ceremonies marking the 204th anniversary of Washington's birth.

Anniversary meetings were held in virtually every loop hotel yesterday as a general holiday was observed by banks and public offices. Speakers stressed the enduring quality of the American ideals for which Washington led his armies in the field, and which he helped to safeguard by constitutional law.

'Symbol of Constitution.'

"The name of Washington is a symbol," said Col. George T. Buckingham, addressing the annual Washington's birthday luncheon of the Chicago chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution, in the Stevens hotel, "a symbol of the constitution and the American form of government.

"There is no evidence that George Washington wrote a line in the constitution, or that he ever made a speech on it, but there is plenty of evidence that when that galaxy of prima donna statesmen came to a dead halt, the man who knocked their heads together and pulled the constitution through was George Washington."

Some issues facing the country today parallel those of Washington's time, John F. Voight, vice president of the Illinois Bar association, told the German club at a Washington's birthday luncheon in the Morrison hotel.

"In the early days," Voight said, "we had taxation across the ocean by a parliament that we could not control. Now we are having taxation to support a growing burocracy which is becoming so excessive that it is a burden to business and industry.

"The never ending fight for freedom of the press is continuing, and I take off my hat to those publishers who are carrying on so valiant a battle to preserve one of the fundamental principles."

Brooks at Scout Program.

Wayland Brooks, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, was guest of honor on a Washington birthday broadcast of the Chicago council, Boy Scouts of America.

Speaking on the youthful Washington's adventurous life as a surveyor, he compared what Washington learned from his surveying experiences to what modern boys learn through the Boy Scout movement.

Brooks also attended a patriotic ceremony of the Scouts at the Art Institute. Standing between an American flag and the flag of the Chicago Scout council, each Scout repeated the pledge of allegiance. The boys placed a commemorative wreath before the Washington statue in the institute.

Demands "Clean Politics."

Bishop George Craig Stewart told a group of several hundred men and boys gathered at St. James Episcopal church, Wabash avenue and Huron street, for corporate communion, that George Washington would stand "squarely for freedom of the press and clean politics."

In urging young men to enter politics, the bishop declared: "It makes one sick to see some of those engaged in the great game of politics. We need to encourage our ablest young men to go into politics as a profession."

The fourteenth annual George Washington declamation contest sponsored by the Union League club was won by Sam Zimmerman, 18 years old, 7348 Prairie avenue, a student at Hirsch high school. Jerome Stein, 918 Sheridan road, Wilmette, a student at New Trier High school, won second place.

Raymond Gaedke, 5339 Wilson avenue, a student at Lake View High school, won first place in the league's annual George Washington poster contest. He received a $130 scholarship to the American Academy of Art. Richard Carlucci, 2448 Addison street, of Lake View High school, won a $100 scholarship.

FIND NEWSPAPER NOT GUILTY OF LIBEL CHARGES

Editor and Manager Also Acquitted.

Washington, Pa., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A jury acquitted the Philadelphia Inquirer tonight of a criminal libel charge brought by Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, but placed the costs of the trial on the defendant.

The five housewives and seven men gave their verdict 28 hours and 14 minutes after receiving the case last night.

The Inquirer in its article, published Sept 29, during a mayoralty campaign in Philadelphia, said Margiottis' law partners and associates were planning a "big tax fee grab."

Holds Article True.

The Inquirer's defense was the article was true, printed in the interest of "public welfare" and justified by the provision in the constitution guaranteeing "freedom of the press."

Judge William S. McLean, appointed by the Supreme court, presided at the trial and received the verdict.

The jury, as it entered the courtroom, filed in front of the judge.

The foreman handed his report to the court and the judge said:

"If you place the costs upon the defendant, you must name the three defendants, the Inquirer, Tyler, and Custis."

Handed to Clerk.

The verdict was then handed to a clerk, who addressed the jury:

"Yes," they answered in unison.

After they left the jury box the jurors shook hand with the Inquirer's counsel, Ralph B. Evans of Philadelphia.

Margiotti, 44 years old, left the Republican party to campaign for the New Deal and became attorney general in the Democratic administration of Gov. George H. Earle. The trial recessed for two days because of the death of his 89 year old mother.

The Inquirer is a Republican newspaper.

Foreman H. H. Fetherlin of the jury disclosed that on the first ballot the jury stood 8 to 4 for acquittal.

GRACE SAID AT NAZI MEAL FOR FIRST TIME; HONOR WASHINGTON

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—(AP)—For probably the first time at any official Nazi meal, a Christian grace was said today at a luncheon in honor of George Washington. The luncheon was given by Ernst F. S. Hanfstaengl, Hitler lieutenant, for Ambassador William E. Dodd of the United States and a group of distinguished German officials.

The grace was invoked by the Rev. Stewart W. Herman, acting pastor of the American church of Berlin. The Rev. Mr. Herman prayed: "May God bring these two great peoples ever closer together in brotherly love."

Among those present were Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, minister of finance; Dr. Hugo Eckener of Zeppelin fame, and Prince Louis Ferdinand, grandson of former Kaiser Wilhelm.

U. S. Envoy Straus Leads Washington Rites in Paris

PARIS, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Jesse Isidor Straus, American ambassador to France, led observances of the birthday of George Washington in the French capital today. Accompanied by naval and military attachés of the United States embassy, he placed a wreath at the foot of the statue of Washington in Place des Etats Unis.

SEN. W. E. KING, POWER IN G. O. P., BACKS BROOKS

Deneen Decides to Stay Out of Senate Race.

Brooks governorship headquarters announced yesterday that State Senator William E. King had joined their Cook county forces. King is the Republican committeeman for the Second ward which casts a larger Republican vote than any other ward in Chicago. The total party vote there in the last election was 18,276. Only two other wards in the city cast more than 10,000 votes.

One of these other two is the Third where Wayland Brooks candidacy already has the support of Oscar DePriest, former congressman and ward committeeman. As King's senatorial district includes this ward and he has his own organization there, Brooks headquarters say that this most recent addition to their ranks means that their candidate will have the strongest possible organization in the south side colored section.

Strength Grows Over State.

The addition of King to the lineup gives Brooks a publicly declared total of thirty-four members of the Cook county committee. Coupled with this fact was the assertion of the Brooks managers that within a short time their county organization will represent two-thirds of the county committee and that it is supplemented by strong leadership in wards that have been committed to some other candidate.

Political observers said that this growth of strength in Cook county coupled with steady increases in strength downstate give Brooks such a substantial leadership over all other candidates that there is no method of calculating which of his several opponents is running in second place.

Deneen to Stay Out.

Another important development in the state situation was an announcement from Charles S. Deneen that he will not seek nomination for the United States senate. Predictions that he would remain silent in reference to others who have announced themselves for that office and also concerning the candidates for governor were fulfilled.

The Deneen statement follows:

"The great problems which will come before the next congress should require the undivided attention of the senator during the sessions of the senate and between sessions. My professional work is such that I could not in justice to the clients of my law firm or to my partners and associates give my entire attention to the duties of the office were I fortunate enough to be elected.

Willing to Aid in Campaign.

"I feel that a grave crisis confronts the country and, I may add, that I am willing to devote time outside of office hours to promoting the campaigns of the Republican candidates in the coming elections. I shall not, however, become a candidate."

Jacob D. Allen, executive head of the Deneen minority group, said there would be no indorsements of senate and state candidates before the last day for withdrawals which is next Saturday.

As a candidate for the senate, William E. Hull of Peoria, former congressman, announced he had resigned from the vice-presidency of Hiram Walker & Sons, Inc., distillers.

BOY SCOUTS HONOR BROOKS

BRITAIN WARNED BY DUCE AGAINST PUSHING OIL BAN

Row Rages in London Over Ethiopian War Policy.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—European diplomatic observers are awaiting with anxiety the outcome of Monday's parliamentary debate on foreign policy for the indication it will give as to whether the British government is going to abandon its sanctions policy against Italy or apply oil sanctions and other drastic measures with added vigor.

Either policy is possible. The sanctionists are asking their adherents to write the government, demanding that Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, take a stiff attitude when the league of nations' sanctions committee of 18 meets in Geneva on March 2. The sanctionists demand not only that Premier Mussolini be deprived of oil for his armies, but also that the league of nations states be lined up to forbid the entrance of Italian ships in their ports.

Anti-Sanctionists Cite Cost.

On the other hand, anti-sanctionist agitation, exemplified by last week's debate in the house of lords, in which the government was called on to extricate itself from the embroilment with Il Duce and start peace negotiations at Brussels, is continuing with equal strength.

The anti-sanctionists point with indignation to the addition of $500,000 to the already announced $35,000,000 expenditure on special measures in connection with the Ethiopian dispute.

The situation, therefore, as the opposing forces marshal their strength over this week-end, is uncertain.

Duce's Envoy Sees Eden.

Dino Grandi, the Italian ambassador, evidently is anxious about the situation despite the recent Italian victories in East Africa. Grandi had an hour's talk today with Capt. Eden. Grandi told Eden what steps Mussolini is prepared to take in case Great Britain goes in for a more rigid policy.

These steps might be anything from sending bombing planes after the British fleet in the Mediterranean to backing up Reichsfuehrer Hitler in his feared threat to refortify the Rhineland.

Grandi's visit was also concerned with Il Duce's anger over the statement of Earl Stanhope, British undersecretary for foreign affairs, in the house of lords this week. Stanhope suggested that the Italians, as a result of sanctions, were no longer supporting Mussolini, were sick of Fascism, and were grumbling about conditions and the prolongation of the war.

Cites Baldwin's Promise.

Grandi said this was contrary to the promise made by Prime Minister Baldwin and Sir Samuel Hoare, former foreign secretary, that the British would not make any distinction between the Italian people and the Fascist régime and its totalitarian nature.

Capt. Eden, in Monday's debate, will explain how the Italian press obtained and published last Wednesday the secret report of the commission headed by Sir John Maffey "to study British interests in Ethiopia."

Belief is now expressed in some circles that the British government, in a Machiavellian maneuver, voluntarily let the document fall into the hands of Sig. Vitelli, councilor of the Italian embassy here, and that he rushed off to Rome with it.

Published by Italy.

Italy published the document and that is just what was wanted, according to this version, since it showed that the British policy toward Ethiopia is not egotistical, concluding that the fate of the African kingdom was a matter of indifference to England so far as empire interests were concerned.

Whether such an act of supreme cleverness in getting its own document stolen explains the incident or not, several cabinet members known to be opposed to sanctions are held to blame for its publication at a moment when Italian military success risks making Mussolini more uncompromising.

It is suggested that the document might even lead to provoking direct negotiations between Addis Ababa and Rome, in which case the British would be left holding the bag.

Publication of the report, therefore, appeases a section of the Conservatives who feared the Italian war imperiled imperial interests and reinforces the position against sanctions. At the same time it prepares the public for accepting a compromise peace, according to Sir Samuel Hoare's thesis.

POLICEMAN OFF DUTY STAGES THRILLER FOR 2 SONS AND A ROBBER

Policeman Michael Hoban of the Town Hall station was off duty last night, but he treated his sons, William, 13 years old, and Michael Jr., 7 years old, to an exciting half hour of robber chasing.

The Hobans were driving past Isidore Klein's dress shop at 3316 Lincoln avenue when a man ran out closely pursued by Klein, who was shouting, "Stop thief."

Policeman Hoban took up the pursuit, and was close behind when the robber, who had taken $40 from the Klein cash register, ran into the Lincoln-Paulina elevated station and up the stairs to the platform. Leaving his sons in the automobile, Hoban also climbed to the platform. The robber leaped down to the tracks, but agreed to come back after the policeman fired a couple of shots at him.

All might have been well if a train hadn't come along just at that moment, getting between the policeman and the robber, who leaped to the platform on the other side of the tracks, ran back downstairs and into the street. He forced a passing motorist to accept him as a passenger. Hoban and the excited boys resumed the chase in his car, but were soon distanced.

Military Academy Barn Burned; 60 Horses Saved

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Sixty horses were saved from flames when a $50,000 fire destroyed a three-story brick and wood stable on the reservation of the United States Military academy at West Point tonight. The fire was discovered by a watchman and was fought for more than an hour by the academy fire force and equipment from nearby Highland Falls.

REPORT BRITISH MOVE TO BLOCK 5 POWER ENTENTE

Envoy Leaves for Vienna to "Have Teeth Fixed."

ROME, Feb. 22.—(AP)—A report ran through diplomatic circles tonight that Great Britain is seeking to block the rumored efforts to establish an alliance of Italy with Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Poland.

No diplomat was willing to assert this report as a fact, but several pointed to the departure for Vienna of Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador to Rome, as giving substance to the suggestion of a British maneuver. Sir Eric let it be known he was going to Vienna for dental work.

Diplomats who saw more behind his trip said they remembered that when Sir Eric was secretary of the league of nations he was instrumental in getting financial aid for Austria.

Peace Rumors Denied.

Another report which ran the gamut of speculation was that Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia was asking for peace through negotiations at Geneva.

[League of nations' and Ethiopian officials denied there had been such a move.]

The purported peace proposal was said by informed sources to have been caused by a steady advance of the Italian army in northern Ethiopia.

The capture of Amba Alaji seemed imminent tonight. The government controled press was preparing to give great prominence to the announcement generally expected tomorrow.

Unconfirmed but persistent reports circulated in reliable quarters that another 100,000 men will be sent to East Africa soon to consolidate every position held by Italy in Ethiopia.

Air Forces Unified.

Unification of the aviation forces in Eritrea and Italian Somaliland into one corps was announced. Many new tri-motored bombing planes have been sent to Africa.

Division General Mario Aimone-Cat assumed command of the combined air forces. Gen. Ferruchio Ranza was ordered to take control of the Somaliland aerial force.

See New International Tension.

In political circles the opinion was expressed that international tension might be accentuated in the next ten days. The Geneva sanctions committee of 18 will meet on March 2, and in some Rome quarters it was felt that the British attitude on sanctions would be strengthened before then.

Premier Mussolini and the French ambassador, Count Charles de Chambrun met today. Unofficial sources believed de Chambrun's visit was inspired by the publication here of the secret Maffey report to the British foreign office, in which a secret Franco-Italian understanding regarding Ethiopia was mentioned.

Emperor Hops Off for Front.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie left the capital by airplane today to confer with his military leaders on the northern front.

BULGARIAN LEADER CONDEMNED TO HANG IN PLOT TO KILL KING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Feb. 22.—Col. Damyan Velcheff, one of the most powerful influences in Bulgarian politics, was sentenced at Sofia today to be hanged March 7 for plotting to assassinate King Boris last Oct. 3. Maj. Cyril Stantseff was also sentenced to death and Col. Ignatz Illieff, former commander of the Sliven garrison, was given a ten year prison term.

Great excitement over the sentence, which came after a secret court martial lasting two months, was reported from Bulgaria. As a subaltern Velcheff was many times decorated for bravery in facing enemy fire. He achieved a degree of fame, too, with his remark that the way to win the army to your side is to "control the captains, don't worry about the generals."

Velcheff has been known as the "power behind the throne" in several Bulgarian governments.

WIFE'S SCREAMS ROUSE HUSBAND; BURGLAR FLEES

A burglar who entered the home of George W. Pearson, 2702 Sheridan road, Evanston, early yesterday was routed when Mrs. Pearson, awakened by the light of a flashlight shining in her face, screamed and aroused her husband. Mr. Pearson, president of the Stifel Nicolau Investment company at 105 West Adams street, chased the prowler out of the house. The burglar was believed by the Evanston police to be the same one who a few hours earlier entered the home of Dr. B. C. Corbus, 2746 Euclid Park place, Evanston, and, without waking either the physician or his wife, took Mrs. Corbus' engagement ring, valued at $1,225, and $600 worth of other loot.

Burglars Fire on Woman As She Screams Alarm

Miss Ethel Rentz discovered two burglars last night ransacking the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cristie of 1845 North Sawyer avenue. She screamed. The burglars, frightened, dropped all their loot but two toy banks belonging to the Cristie children, and fled to the street. When Miss Rentz followed, still screaming for help, one of the pair fired a pistol at her but missed. They escaped and Miss Rentz, who resides in an apartment on the second floor above her relatives, notified the police.

Police Chief Will Read His Night Reports After This

Paducah, Ky., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Failing to break out of the city jail last night because officers caught him in the act, Thomas Jones, 18 years old, left for parts unknown today after Chief of Police W. E. Bryant, ignorant of his attempt to escape, made him a trusty this morning. Jones was doing 30 days for petit larceny.

GAS ODOR STIRS FEAR; BUNDESEN DOUBTS DANGER

City and Utility Employes Busy on South Side.

A number of reports that clouds of evil smelling gas were annoying residents in south side areas last night were investigated by employés of the board of health and of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company.

Nearly all those who made complaints reside near 63d street and Cottage Grove avenue or along Greenwood avenue from 56th street to 70th street. Investigators who visited these sections were unable to determine the source of the odors, and gas company officials hazarded the guess that they came from industrial processes in the Calumet district and were borne north by light winds.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, said he did not believe there was any cause for alarm, but that all such reports were being given close attention.

"No one is likely to be harmed by gas that can be noticed in the streets," he said. "There may be gas at some spots imprisoned by the deeply frozen ground, but everybody should keep a window open. This gas is much more likely to enter homes by backing up through plumbing than by blowing in."

One guess was that the fumes might be coming from decaying matter in the sewers, released by the higher temperatures of yesterday.

Newark, O., Periled.

Newark, O., Feb. 23 [Sunday].—(AP)—Escaping natural gas, liberated when large underground mains cracked with a sudden thaw, early this morning threatened downtown Newark and every available fireman and policeman was placed on duty to guard against the danger of explosion. The leaks were so far underground that they could not be reached immediately. Fire Chief Stanley Shaw ordere the affected area roped off.

Seeping Gas Kills Woman.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Cold weather was blamed for the death today of Mrs. Lillian McEvey, 60 years old, who was killed by gas that seeped into her home here. Five other persons were overcome.

Mrs. McEvey, a widow, was ill with pneumonia. Her death was the seventh attributed to seeping gas this week in the Detroit area.

King Thanks Michigan Man for Poem About George V.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—James G. MacDonald, radio announcer, has received a letter from the private secretary of King Edward VIII. of England, expressing appreciation for a poem MacDonald wrote after the death of King George V. and sent to the new king.

THRIL-L-ING

THE THRILL OF THE SUPERCHARGER
. . . makes everything else seem tame

● Magic of the Supercharger! It does everything you ask of it with such effortless ease that you forget there's an engine in the car. The sensation is like flying—or like that breathless moment when, on skis, you're soaring swift and smooth above eyes upturned in envy.

And, to match the superb thrill brought by a new kind of performance, Graham has created striking designs that set an entirely new note in grace and distinction; a new conception of what a motor car can be.

You must see this car itself to appreciate its beauty. You must drive it yourself, for the keenest imagination cannot picture the thrill. Call us and the Supercharger—or any of the other new Grahams—will be placed at your disposal.

STUDENTS AT N.U. SWINGING BACK TO U. S. HISTORY

Study of Social Sciences Responsible for Trend.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

At Northwestern university the renaissance of American history has grown apace until the enrollment figure now indicates that each student on the Evanston campus, on an average, takes two courses in this field during college days. This is an average based on a college generation of four years—some students do not go in for history—and the revival of interest in the history of America and its institutions has been a sequence of the great swing to the social sciences, especially in the period since the depression started in 1929.

"This growth in the social sciences," says Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, "is not confined to American colleges; it is a world-wide tendency. It has meant the teaching of more history ramifying into the social sciences—never before has there been as great student interest in the background and foreground of America."

University Plans Expansion.

President Scott has announced that part of the recent $7,000,000 bequest in the will of Roger Deering will be used for expansion of instruction and research in the social sciences at Northwestern.

In response to a question whether American history has increased or decreased in campus popularity, figures were compiled by Northwestern statisticians covering the last four years—1931-1932 to 1934-1935—a college generation. These are college of liberal arts figures. College enrollment last year was 2,299 as compared with 2,526 in 1931-1932.

Making allowance for this drop in attendance the figures show that in ratio to entire college enrollment the classes in specific American history courses increased 45 per cent during the four years. In American history from the viewpoint of political science, which includes government, political issues, legislatures, constitutional law and foreign policy, the growth was 25 per cent.

Other Courses Show Gains.

Instruction in American history in the field of economics increased 13 per cent. These courses include economic history, labor problems, tax problems, foreign trade principles and business and government, a large course with an average enrollment of 175 students each year.

Two courses in American literature, which impinge on American history because they contain much historical and biographical matter, gained 41 per cent.

The following tabulation shows the enrollment in the American history field on the Evanston campus by years in a period when college attendance fell off nearly one-tenth:

| | '31-'32. | '32-'33. | '33-'34. | '34-'35. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Specific ....... | 201 | 258 | 189 | 269 |
| Political ...... | 230 | 277 | 329 | 271 |
| Economic ..... | 339 | 349 | 354 | 347 |
| Literary ........ | 433 | 330 | 288 | 349 |
| | 1,203 | 1,214 | 1,160 | 1,236 |

This gives a total of 4,813 student enrollments in this general field. The Northwestern professors say that with an average enrollment of 2,400 in the college the figuers show every student, on the average, takes two courses in the American history field during his stay in college. This rates high among colleges. Northwestern always has stressed its history group.

Other Courses Touch History.

Faculty members assert that other courses in art, economics, geology, philosophy, political science and sociology also touch American history at various points, while courses in contemporary thought, under Baker Brownell, professor of that subject, are designed to give the student a unified idea of the world in which he lives.

One new course announced by Prof. Isaac J. Cox, chairman of the history department, is the history of American life and culture. It is to be given during the coming year by Prof. Tracy E. Strevey, who says conditions are right for such a course "at a time when interest of students is aroused in regard to our present order of society with its complex social, economic, and cultural problems."

Dr. Cox said the offerings in American history at Northwestern are designed to accomplished a threefold purpose.

"In the first place," he declared, "we aim to give to all who take such courses an objective view of the development of our country and of the environment in which the students find themselves. For this purpose we attempt to link past events with present happenings and to explain the latter by showing the relationship between past trends in our history and contemporary problems.

On Points of Contact.

"Because of our offerings in the Hispanic American field, it is possible to present a picture of the development of South America and of Canada and of the points of contact between these countries and the United States. In this American presentation we seek to give the individual students an appreciation of American institutions and the leading Americans of former generations.

"To students who plan to become high school teachers we try to give an adequate background in history as a whole with courses in the European as well as American fields.

"A third group of students is preparing for college teaching of history or for research work. These are given more specific training in the ordinary historical tools, such as historiography, bibliography, and advanced criticism."

Long Fight for U. S. History.

Years ago Northwestern's history department began battling for more teaching of American history and improved technique in the grade and high schools. Dr. James A. James, who has written a life of George Rogers Clark and for years was head of the Illinois state park commission, which marked historical spots, has been at Northwestern for almost 40 years. He was chairman of the committee of eight in 1905, which after three years of study made a report on progressive teaching of American history in the public schools. This later led Chicago high schools to devote an entire year instead of six months to American history, a practice now almost universal in the secondary schools of the United States.

Some years back Dr. James told the League of Women Voters: "We Americans know less of our own history than do natives of any other country." He believes in putting more weight on the subject, especially since the growth of social sciences is directing student interest to the social and economic phenomena of the day and the place America's institutions occupy in civilization.

Tribune chart showing daily low temperatures of the three coldest 32-day periods in Chicago weather history. The period from Jan. 20 to Feb. 20 of this year broke all records. The mean temperature during the period was 5.6 degrees. Zero temperatures or lower were prevalent on 22 days. The mean temperature for the period of Dec. 20, 1892, to Jan. 20, 1893, was 8.9 degrees. Zero or lower was recorded on 13 days. A mean temperature of 9.9 degrees prevailed during the period of Jan. 22 to Feb. 22, 1895. Zero or below was recorded on 13 days.

URGES SPECIAL CARE TO BRING OUT DEFECTIVES

Less than 250,000 of 3,000,000 handicapped school children in the country are being given special care, treatment and training to develop their possibilities, according to Dr. Charles S. Berry of Ohio State university, who spoke yesterday at the closing session of the International Council for Exceptional Children in the Stevens hotel.

"In other words," he said, "after 35 years of agitation we are actually providing special classes for less than 10 per cent of the handicapped children who require special education."

Prof. John J. B. Morgan of Northwestern university urged that teachers gain and respect the confidence of problem children in order to aid in their adjustments.

"Keep your mouth shut and let the child talk," he advised. "If a child tells you something in confidence, keep the confidence.'

Rescue Victims of Flood from Trees in Portugal

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The rising waters of the Tagus river tonight submerged one of the richest agricultural areas in Portugal. Some inhabitants took refuge in tree tops, from which they were rescued in boats. Hundreds of cattle drowned. The residents of one village were compelled to share a refuge on high ground with a herd of fighting bulls.

$25,000 Gift for Library at St. Mary's College

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 22.—Announcement was made today at St. Mary's college of a gift of $25,000 from Mrs. George H. Rempe Sr. of Chicago, Ill., for a new library building. Mrs. Rempe is the mother of seven daughters, all of whom attended St. Mary's college or academy.

FLOODS IMPEND AS ICE GORGES CRACK IN SUN

Mild Days Likely Now, Says Forecaster.

Threats of serious floods along the ice-jammed tributaries of the Mississippi river from a quick thaw grew last night, and fear of recurrent zero spells dwindled as the temperature in Chicago and the central states rose to normal.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel declared there is no danger of floods simply from the melting snow unless a heavy rain occurs, or the temperature rises abnormally high under a hot sun. Nevertheless, such warmer weather and sunshine as he expects for Chicagoland within the next few days might dislodge the ice gorges in the Ohio, Fox, Pecatonica and other rivers and send their raging waters over lowlands.

Evansville Region in Peril.

The gravest danger impended on the Ohio river near Evansville, Ind., where ice lay piled up last night 10 to 20 feet high and where the waters already stood at 2.6 feet above flood stage.

Several small breaks occurred in the ice wall on Friday and the Coast Guard Cutter Kankakee was obliged to rescue five children, two women and five men who were marooned on two farms near Spottsville, Ky. Charles W. Carr, national Red Cross relief representative, last night urged 2,500 families, living in the lowlands of southern Indiana and northern Kentucky, to flee.

Last night in one area which the bureau chief declared was more dangerous than no man's land, only 25 of the 150 resident families had taken to higher ground.

Coast Guard Here Is Ready.

Chicago officers of the United States coast guard sent emergency orders to all stations yesterday in accordance with a plan adopted in connection with the Red Cross headquarters at Washington to cope with any serious floods in the middlewest. Forty motor surfboats in the Chicago division and 9 from Cleveland are available for relief purposes.

By this afternoon Mr. Donnel predicted the mercury here would approximate 40 degrees, the highest reading in more than a month. Yesterday after a steady ascent from a minimum of 11 degrees above at 5:30 a. m., the quicksilver registered 29 degrees [unofficial] at midnight.

"We are in for at least several days of moderate weather," Mr. Donnel said. "Out in the southwest, around New Mexico, eastern Colorado, Texas, Oklahoma, and western Kansas it was 70 today. The temperature was up to 76 in western Kansas.

"This warmth should keep our own temperature from dropping despite the cold air which still prevails in western Canada."

If the temperature is merely normal until March 1, according to Mr. Donnel, this month will become the coldest February in history, exceeding the record of 14.7 degrees average set in 1875. So far the temperature this month has averaged 8.2 degrees.

EX-TIN KING ENTERS BRITISH PRISON FOR SWINDLE IN PEPPER

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—John Howeson, until last year the "world's tin king," spent his first day today behind the bars of grim Wormwood Scrubs prison, where Lord Kylsant, owner of the Royal Mail Shipping fleet, served a twelve months' sentence for fraud in 1931. Howeson, Garabed Birhirgian, naturalized Armenian, and Louis Hardy were convicted yesterday of issuing a false corporation prospectus in the "great pepper-shellac" gamble. The first two were sentenced to prison for one year while Hardy received a sentence of nine months.

Lawyers for Howeson and his convicted conspirators made a frantic effort to get the prisoners released on bail pending an appeal. But the effort failed. The court simply referred the application to the full Court of Criminal Appeal which does not meet until Monday.

So whatever the result of the application may be and whatever the outcome of the appeal Howeson was an ordinary prisoner for the week-end—condemned to clean out his own cell and share all usual prison tasks except hard labor. It was a tragic end to a career which has brought him to a position of dazzling wealth and power and has made him the undisputed leader of the world's tin industry.

While Howeson brooded in his cell he was still a director in eleven tin companies with a total capital of about $46,000,000. The London Nigerian Tin Mines, Ltd., had reëlected him chairman only last month. He also remained a member of the tin producers' committee and probably will keep his position until the result of his appeal has been decided.

COAST FLOODS AND SNOWSLIDE BRING DEATH TO 6

Bus and Trucks Trapped in Mountain Pass.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Three drownings, three deaths in a snowslide and more than 50 homeless marked the path of storm and flood today on the Pacific coast.

An avalanche roared down a mountainside in the Cascades and trapped a passenger bus and several trucks and cars on the Snoqualmie pass highway, Washington. Three men were killed in a buried truck.

An earthslide in the Broadway low level tunnel at Oakland, Cal., injured two workers. Nearly 30 others fled to safety.

Two men were drowned in the mother lode country near Jackson, Cal., when their automobile stalled in the center of a stream.

Driver Drowns with Team.

A 40 foot section of roadbed was carried away on the central Oregon highway between Bend and Burns.

Occupants of a two story house on Mt. Davidson, San Francisco, abandoned it today as it slowly collapsed, pushed by slow earth slides.

At Astoria, Ore., a two story house being moved on a barge to South Bend, Wash., broke from its moorings and was tossing somewhere on the Pacific.

4 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE; FATHER BADLY BURNED

Hackensack, N. J., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Four children died in a flame swept bungalow tonight while their parents fought desperately to save them.

The youngsters, ranging in age from 40 days to 8 years, perished from smoke and flames when they were trapped in the second floor bedroom of the frame structure.

The victims, children of Thomas and Antonette Zetri, were Barbara, 40 days; Rose Marie, 2 years; Louis, 3 years, and John, 8 years old.

Zetri was reported dying in a Hackensack hospital. Mrs. Zetri, who became hysterical and collapsed when she learned her children were dead, was taken to the hospital.

Capt. Frank Walsh of the fire department said an overheated coal stove started the fire.

Invalid Burns to Death.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 23 [Sunday].—(AP)—Mrs. Stella Lewis, an elderly invalid, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Blackstone apartments here early this morning. At least seven other persons were rushed to hospitals to be treated for burns.

FIRE ROUTS 10 FAMILIES.

Greenwich, Conn., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—A stubborn blaze raged for five hours today in a business block on Greenwich avenue destroying four frame buildings containing stores and flats and routing ten families.

KEEP HANDS OFF EUROPE'S ROWS, IS BORAH'S PLEA

Hits Britain as Source of Propaganda.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Addressing the country with Washington's valedictory as his text, Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] tonight uttered a solemn warning against the attempts to entangle the United States in the political broils of Europe in the name of neutrality and promotion of peace.

Great Britain, having an ax to grind, is the source of the propaganda to align America with the league of nations in the adoption of coercive measures against Italy in the Italo-Ethiopian war, according to the senator. The league's policy, he holds, makes for war, not peace.

The British government, said Mr. Borah, refused, because of national interest, to help Messrs. Hoover and Stimson when they were trying to stop Japan's aggression on China in Manchuria, but Britain, because of no less impelling national interest, now is seeking to range the United States against Italy as an aggressor.

Don't Want Europe's Troubles.

"We do not want the racial antipathies or national antagonisms of the old world transplanted to this continent, as they will be should we become a part of European politics," said the senator. "The people of this country are overwhelmingly for a policy of neutrality. And we cannot be neutral and unneutral at the same time."

Indirectly the Roosevelt administration was also the target of Senator Borah's attack, for it was the President who shaped his neutrality policy and sought unsuccessfully to obtain further power from congress to coöperate with the league in cracking down on Italy.

Also aimed at the President's suggestion that there is a means of expanding federal power at the expense of the states without amending the constitution was the senator's quotation of Washington's dictum that "the constitution which at any time exists, until changed by an explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon all."

People Only Given Power.

"In these words," said Senator Borah, "are found about all there is to constitutional government. Boiled down, it is this: the unquestionable right of the people to make and alter their charter of freedom and the sacred obligation of public officials from the highest to the lowest, and the people themselves to observe it. That is constitutional government. Let those who are dissatisfied with the constitution in any respect carry their problems to the sole tribunal which has power to declare a change, the people, and then let all who believe in constitutional government abide by the decree.

Saw Growth of Order.

"Washington later witnessed the establishment of order, the reign of law, the growth of confidence, the coming of prosperity, the republic winning the support and confidence of the people. Truly, he might say: 'This constitution, as it at any time exists, as the people made it, or make it, from time to time, is sacredly obligatory upon all.'

"Can we with confidence say as much tonight? Has cynicism, as some seem to feel, poisoned a people's faith? I do not think so."

Evidently with the President's "horse and buggy" fling at the Supreme court and the arguments of the internationalists in mind, Senator Borah commented on the disregard of Washington's counsels and the talk "about a changed world and about obsolete policies and the outgrown institutions."

"It is remarkable, when measured either by the problems of government or of human conduct, the short distance we as a people have traveled since Washington turned his face toward his beloved Mount Vernon," the senator continued.

Problems Much the Same.

"Our problems are about the same and we will likely find after some futile experiments that, if we deal wisely with our problems, the treatment will be about the same. Each generation is prone to accentuate the newness and the seriousness of problems near at hand.

"National credit, a sound and sufficient currency, economy of government, constitutional integrity, neutrality, our policy toward foreign powers, and last, the experiment of popular government—can it succeed?

"These were the question which engaged the attention of Washington and his compeers and they are the questions which press for attention still."

Insisted on Aloofness.

Washington, said Mr. Borah, always held unwaveringly to the opinion that "aloofness from the political affairs and controversies of the old world was as much a part of our adventure in free government, as necessary to our independence and to the success of our scheme of ordered liberty, as the federal constitution itself." But Washington's policy has become the subject of assault at home and abroad.

The senator paused to quote Washington's words:

"Against the insidious wiles of foreign influences [I conjure you to believe, my fellow citizens] the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake; since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most powerful foes of a republican government."

The senator dwelt on Washington's lofty conception of the term "American" which meant peace, friendship, but also honor.

"It was his belief," said Mr. Borah, "that a foreign policy which scrupulously respects the rights of other nations but as scrupulously protects its own, both upon land and sea, is the best guarantee of a nation's security and the best guarantee of peace.

Question Never More Apropos.

"I give precedence to Washington's foreign policy tonight because the question of whether we shall preserve and successfuly maintain it or whether we shall become a part of the political life of Europe was never more acute than at this time.

"We have a right, it seems to me, to inquire, when we are charged with pursuing a selfish and unmoral course, to look beneath the charges and see whether it is devotion to world peace or the advancement of purely national interests which inspires the charge.

"There are a few people in this country—and, of course, many other countries—who are fond of instituting comparisons between the policies of other countries and our own, all with the purpose of disparaging the policy of the United States.

"In determining the justice and wisdom of our own course, the safety and security of our own people, the wisdom and morality ofour own foreign policy, we must be governed by what nations do and not by what they profess to be willing to do.

"When the war between Italy and Ethiopia broke forth, the people of the United States instantly and with great national accord, evidenced a desire to remain neutral, to remain free of the controversy, to take sides with neither of the belligerents.

Recalled Earlier Lessons.

"The lessons of the world war had cut deep into the hearts and minds of the American people.

"Public opinion was insistent that the government in no way imperil the peace of the United States or involve us in this controversy. In response to this demand, the government set about to carry out the will of the people. While neutrality has its problems and also its risks and responsibilities, nevertheless, as the people understood it, it meant that we should neither directly or indirectly take sides as between the belligerent forces. The principle was at least clear to the public.

"A statement was put out from Geneva to the effect that a world war was probable and that by reason of our adhering to a policy of neutrality, the moral responsibility for such event must rest upon the United States. The logic of the contention being that we must cease to be neutral and become a party to another European war, another war to end war.

"It is hardly necessary to say that if a tribunal of which we are not a member can, for reasons either wise or unwise, just or unjust, denounce a nation as an aggressor and then call upon the United States in the name of peace and humanity to assist in punishing the aggressor, once we yield to the demand, we shall have forfeited the last vestige of control over our foreign policy and will necessarily become a party to every controversy or war in Europe.

"This program was openly or covertly supported by all who favored our joining the league.

Recalls Manchurian Fiasco.

"When Japan invaded Manchuria our able secretary of state, sincere in the cause which he espoused, appealed to the nations dominant in the league for coöperation in the interests of treaty and territorial integrity. Great Britain, through her accredited spokesman, declared with some degree of bluntness that Great Britain would remain neutral.

"Japan was a member of the league and the World court. It is also true that Great Britain was a member of the league and the World court. Thus both nations, in disregard of the terms of the covenant, sought a higher and more controling covenant, and that was what was deemed national interests.

"It was not in the interest of Japan, as she viewed it, to follow the terms of the covenant. It was not in the interest of Great Britain to invoke the terms of the covenant against Japan. The whole proposition was decided precisely upon the principles which would be controling if no league of nations existed. It was determined not in the interest of world peace but in the interest of the nations concerned.

Navy's Moves Fit Policy.

"It has been the established policy of Great Britain through the centuries to move the British navy to that point on the globe where disturbance seemed to menace British interests. Without that policy Great Britain would not be Great Britain and that vast empire would break in pieces overnight. It also has been her policy, when her interests were not affected, to remain neutral.

"For myself, I do not criticize her policy. It is Great Britain's policy, determined and sustained by the people of Great Britain. I would not send special writers, or lecturers, or beloved dignitaries of the church over to Great Britain to tell her that she should change her policy, that by remaining neutral while Japan was in Manchuria she was standing in the way of world peace and betraying the cause of humanity, that if war ensued the responsibility must rest with Great Britain.

Now It's Different.

"Now the scene changes because national interests change. Italy, no doubt somewhat advised but apparently not sufficiently advised by the Manchurian incident, invaded Ethiopia. Here British interests were directly affected. The British navy moves to the scene of danger. There is no longer neutrality because it is not to the interests of the British empire to have neutrality. There is an aggressor in this instance because the interests of Great Britain are vitally affected.

"Again, I say, that Great Britain had a right to, ar, whether she did or not, she did act in accordance with what she believed to be her national interest. Neutral in one instance; unneutral in another. Both for the same reason—national interest.

Japan Gets Bad Impression.

"Furthermore, the impression was left with Japan, which still strongly obtains, that the United States was not so much interested in treaty integrity as she was in thwarting the ambition of Japan while Great Britain was her friend.

"Our first effort to sustain the principle upon which the league is supposed to rest, the integrity of treaties, ran athwart the neutrality policy of the power without whose navy the league exists only in name. And if the United States and Japan should have a serious controversy—which I do not anticipate—is there a person credulous enough to believe that we would not have a further exhibition of the morality of neutrality?

"On the other hand, when conditions arose closer home which seemed to threaten the interests of Great Britain, she moved with her usual celerity and courage, and, clothing her strategy in the habiliments of humanity and peace, demanded that the world, including the United States, should move with her.

No Right to Brand U. S.

"Now, do not misunderstand me. I am conceding her right to be neutral in the Manchurian affair and unneutral in the Ethiopian affair. But I deny her right, or the right of any group of nations, to brand the United States as favoring war or as pursuing a course selfish or immoral in adopting a policy of neutrality as against the Italian and Ethiopian controversy, or any other controversy in Europe.

"When the people of the United States determined to remain neutral in the Italian-Ethiopian war and when they determine, as they will, to remain neutral in all European controversies, they will be acting in harmony with what they believe to be our national interests—that which determined the policy of Great Britain in Manchuria and Ethiopia and which has determined her policy through the centuries.

"In staying out of this controversy and in remaining neutral we were consulting exactly the same interests from our viewpoint that Great Britain was consulting when she determined to take part in the controversy, that is, national interests.

Detecting Aggressor Nation.

"Something could be said, and perhaps should be said, about the plan of rendering judgment against a nation supposed to be an aggressor. Edmund Burke declared he knew of no way by which to draw an indictment against an entire people. A way has now been found, not only to indict but to try and convict an entire people. This procedure does not concern us except in so far as it may be used as an inducement in a new guise to our mixing in the political affairs of Europe.

"When we see the plan applied to one nation and not to another and realize that in both instances the controlling forces were political, that national interests and national ambitions directed the course in each instance, we must readily perceive that an aggressor is not one who has broken a covenant or attacked a small nation but one which has transgressed the zone of interests of some other nation.

"Collective Action Brings War."

"While I do not propose to discuss the subject in detail tonight, I can not subscribe to theory that collective action against the supposed aggressor means peace. It inevitably means war unless the nation is too weak to resist, and then it means oppression. It is confusion worse confounded to talk about employing force against a sovereign state as a state employs it against a citizen or subject.

"When the framers of the federal constitution were discussing the question of employing force against a sovereign state in the execution of a judgment of the federal court, it was Hamilton, as I remember, who declared it was madness.

"We should be neutral. We should remain free from European controversies. We have our own problems. They are distinct from the problems abroad.

"Democracy Must Stay Home."

"A democracy must remain at home in all matters which affect the nature of her institutions. They are of a nature to call for the undivided energy and devotion of the entire nation.

"I doubt not the time will come, and for the sake of constitutional government—the sole hope of that civilization whose corner stone is the sovereignty and whose top stone is the liberty of the citizen, I trust it will come soon—that the American people will again stand united behind the admonitions of the man who at Valley Forge and Yorktown led the revolutionary forces on to victory."

Ends Martial Law

E. LOPEZ CONTRERAS.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The government of Provisional President Lopez Contreras announced today that civil guarantees were reestablished, ending the state of martial law established with the death in December of former President Juan Vicente Gomez.

SUPREME COURT ELECTION ISSUE, SAYS DICKINSON

Declares Law Regarded with Nonchalance.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Who shall select the next justices of the Supreme court was called a vital issue of the coming Presidential campaign tonight by Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, a candidate for the Republican nomination.

Dickinson said in his address before the sons and daughters of the American revolution that at a time when the New Deal was seeking "to palm off under the guise of great humanitarian sympathy an alien social and political philosophy" six of the nine justices had passed the age of 70.

"The Supreme court in nine historic decisions has repudiated the New Deal's basic philosophy," he said. "It has been held not only repugnant to the constitution but to the spirit of American institutions.

Burden on Court.

"Congress and the executive have shown plainly their nonchalant regard for this fundamental law, thus placing upon the Supreme court not only the entire burden of enforcement of the constitution, but what is even more important, of observing the spirit that underlies it.

Six of the nine justices have passed the age of seventy. It is probable, therefore, that the next administration will name a majority of the court. Those new justices will be selected—as the members of the federal reserve board were selected—on the basis of their personal adherance to the President and his philosophy.

Misery Is "Exploited."

"We are witnessing an inexcusable exploitation of human misery and distress," he said.

"This growing paternalism, of course, not only insidiously undermines democracy, but strikes at the existence of the states. There can be no reconciliation of principles between two such antagonistic philosophies as states' rights and a planned national economy. We must choose one or the other."

DEMOCRATS SPLIT IN CALIFORNIA OVER 'END POVERTY' LINES

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22.—(AP)—California Democracy split today along End Poverty league lines, with liberal members of the national convention delegation named by President Roosevelt bolting and announcing plans to put their own ticket in the field.

The bolters, headed by Culbert L. Olson, state Democratic central committee chairman and "EPIC" leader, declared themselves still supporters of the President, but charged the proposed slate of delegates was controlled by Senator William G. McAdoo. They called for a showdown against McAdoo.

The Roosevelt slate was announced in Washington yesterday. Only 17 of the 48 members were regarded as liberals.

Olson and nine others rejected their places on the slate. Olson sharply criticized the makeup of the slate.

ALFRED M. BAILEY TO QUIT POST AT SCIENCE MUSEUM

Alfred M. Bailey, director of the Chicago Academy of Sciences in Lincoln park, will resign to accept appointment as director of the Colorado Museum of Natural History in Denver, it was announced yesterday by Charles H. Hanington, president of the Colorado museum.

Mr. Bailey has been director of the museum here since 1927. He was associated with the Colorado museum from 1921 to 1926, leading an arctic expedition in 1921 and later serving as curator of birds and mammals.

After his graduation from the University of Iowa in 1916 Mr. Bailey was a curator at the Louisiana State museum and a representative of the United States biological survey in Alaska for several years. His home here is at 411 North Park road, La Grange Park.

GLENN TO SEEK SENATE SEAT AS NEW DEAL FOE

Campaign Is Opened in Murphysboro.

Murphysboro, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Before the friends of his home town here tonight, Otis F. Glenn charted the course of statesmanship he proposes to follow if sent to Washington for a second term in the United States senate.

Former Senator Glenn opened his Republican campaign on Washington's birthday by enumerating a thirty plank platform after he had dissected the New Deal and found it worthless, harmful, tax-eating, and distinctly un-American.

As a substitute he proposed such major changes as sound money, drastic federal economy, return of relief activities to the communities, unemployment insurance and old age pensions with the burden shared between employers and employés, abandonment of inquisitorial tactics, nonparticipation in the league of nations or the world court, upbuilding of domestic commerce, improvement in labor conditions, adherence to the constitution and the bill of rights and the continued exercise, without limitation, of the authority of the Supreme court.

Activity to Increase.

Mr. Glenn will continue his campaign through the southern part of the state this week and expects to be increasingly active until primary day, April 14.

In opening his address tonight the candidate told his neighbors that, after his four year term in the senate—he was elected to fill the Frank L. Smith vacancy in 1928 and was defeated for reëlection in 1932—"it seems that it is not only proper but that it is entirely fitting that I should report to the people and submit to them my record for the time I served and my program in case I should be reëlected to the senate for approval or disapproval to the voters.

"I think that those among whom I have lived the greater part of my life will not charge me with egotism or vainglory in so doing."

Against Jones Law.

Starting then with one of the first important questions which he met upon his election, Mr. Glenn told how he had been one of five Republicans in the senate to vote against the Jones law, the severe piece of legislation making possible a five year prison sentence and fine of $10,000 for a person convicted of violating the prohibition law. It was "unwise and extreme legislation" and Senator Glenn not only voted against it but spoke against it in debate.

In considering laws affecting this country's foreign relations, Glenn reported that he had consistently followed the doctrine of George Washington by refusing to vote for adherence to the world court, or entry to the league of nations. Continuing, he said he "opposed, in the foreign relations committee and upon the floor of the senate, the ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, which would have given Canada a voice in the control of the waters of Lake Michigan, which lake lies entirely within the confines of the United States.

Against Debt Cancellation.

He was consistently opposed to cancellation of the war debts owing the United States by foreign nations, Glenn added. Concerning labor legislation, Glenn said:

"I opposed laws discriminating against labor, and voted for the law which prohibited the so-called 'yellow dog' contracts, which are the contracts of corporations preventing their employés from joining unions. I voted against the confirmation as justice of the Supreme court a judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals because of the position he took sustaining the validity of such laws and because of what I believe to be his unreasonable attitude against the colored people of our country.

"My position was consistently against the destruction of the prerogatives of the various states, and to the continued concentration of power in Washington.

"Early in my career in the senate I was impressed with the great importance of the need of federal economy and I consistently advocated drastic retrenchments in governmental expenditures.

Farm Measures Backed.

"Coming from a great agricultural state, I advocated and supported measures which I believed to be sound and in the interests of agriculture. The solution was not found, nor has it been found, but I at least studied the problem seriously and voted consistently in an honest and sincere effort to be of aid to the farmers of this state and nation.

"I believe that I was a member of the first committee of the congress which dealt seriously with the matter of unemployment insurance.

"I am glad to know that since that time further study and progress has been made which I trust eventually will make the benefits applicable throughout the country.

"We have heard throughout the country within recent months the cry go up from many people, 'Thank God for the Supreme court of the United States.' It is generally recognized that that great body, by its courageous and intelligent exercise of its constitutional duty and authority, has preserved our form of government against most insidious efforts to undermine it.

Constitution Is Issue.

"And so we are faced with the question whether the constitution shall be preserved or abandoned.

"The first step proposed by the New Dealers is to take from the states and give to the federal government the authority to completely control and regulate manufacturing, agriculture, transportation, finance, construction, and mining, thus destroying state authority and vesting every important activity in this nation in the federal government.

"And so, I say the Republican party is needed now because strange voices and strange theories occupy the national capitol, dreamers, theorists, impractical planners, inexperienced economists sit in high places in the government invested with much power, constantly reaching out for more, constantly seeking to influence the highest power in the government to wholly abandon the processes which have made America great and free and to substitute therefor the wild experiments which have failed in every country where they have been tried and have subtracted from, rather than added to, the liberties, the privileges, the freedom of the people of such countries.

"I say it is because under the present announced program of the present regime that individuality is submerged by mass planning; initiative is replaced by regimentation; thrift yields to relief giving and alms taking; production kneels to destruction; independence wears the chains of despotic burocracy, and capital is scourged with constant investigations and penalized with burdensome and paralyzing taxation.

"Governmental extravagance replaces governmental economy. Division of governmental authority, the primary purpose of the writers of the constitution, is set aside and held for naught. The rights, powers, and duties of the respective states are steadily overcome and concentrated in Washington.

"The freedom of the press is threatened and only after most determined and desperate resistance is a provision for its sanctity permitted in the publishers' code.

"Reckless expenditures increase the national debt by many billions of dollars yearly and costly experiments pile up the burdens to be borne by the present and future generations. Budget balancing is despaired of as a hopeless task.

"Radicals become encouraged—alien communists multiply and steadily go about their way, sowing the seeds of disloyalty, of class hatred, of revolution, and none is deported. Soviet Russia is recognized and communists parade the streets of our great cities proudly bearing the red flag and singing the 'Internationale.

Standards Leveled.

"The old ideas that in America thrift, energy, perseverance, industry should and would be rewarded by security gives way to the new thought that there should be a leveling down, that property should be confiscated by extreme income and inheritance and gift taxes, that the industrious should toil to support in idleness those who do not desire to work.

"The maxim that the people should support the government yields to the thought that the government should support the people and the saying 'that the people is best governed which is least governed' is changed to 'that people is best governed which is most governed.'

"'Human rights' are looked upon as separate from and incompatible with 'property rights' as though the right to earn and own and hold property was not among the first things humans desire and deserve.

"I have now given you some of the reasons why I am opposed to the program of the so-called New Deal, and it is because I am thoroughly convinced that it is injurious to the country that I am a candidate for the United States senate in order that I may do what I can to prevent further advancement of that program."

Leads in Ohio Poll

Columbus, O., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Ed D. Schorr, chairman of the Republican state executive committee tonight said the group's statewide poll of G. O. P. presidential candidates placed Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas in the lead.

Schorr declined to quote figures, but said there had been little change in returns since this poll started more than a week ago. He said Landon was leading then.

Unofficial but reliable reports tonight placed Landon's margin as commanding in a field of six potential candidates for the Ohio delegation's support at the national convention. Approximately 7,500 replies, about half of the ballots mailed, have been received, said Schorr.

SAYS PRESIDENT WAVERS; CITES G. WASHINGTON

J. M. Beck Says Latter Stuck to Promises.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States, speaking tonight at the Washington banquet of the Crève Cœur club, said the Nov. 3 election would be among the more fateful in the history of this republic.

"It will not be a contest between two candidates or two historic parties," he said, "or even between conflicting constitutional theories, in respect to the mere machinery of government, but it is a mortal conflict between two philosophies of government, the one favoring the ordered freedom of our government, as created by Washington; the other favoring the totalitarian socialistic state. No electoral pretenses or disclaimers by any candidate can obscure this fact.

Cites President's Speech.

"It is significant that President Roosevelt this morning in his address at Temple college, Philadelphia, confessedly broke another precedent by refusing to quote any statement of George Washington. This is to be deeply regretted. Mr. Roosevelt could learn much by studying the sound reasoning, the lofty conceptions of liberty, and the fundamental ideas of morality which illuminate the sayings of Washington. He could do even better if he not only quoted Washington but followed his wise precepts, for he would have avoided many pitfalls of error.

"The President declined to quote Washington for fear that some student of history would find, somewhere in Washington's writings, a quotation of precisely an opposite character. The President need not have had that fear. The writings of Washington, voluminous as they are, are a consistent whole, and, moreover, he squared his action by his beliefs, and in this respect President Roosevelt could profitably follow the example of his illustrious predecessor.

Says Washington Kept Word.

"It never would have occurred to President Washington that it accorded with sound morality to ask the suffrages of his citizens upon distinct pledges of social conduct if elected, and then when elected, ignore nearly all of those promises. It would never have occurred to Washington to state, as Candidate Roosevelt did, many sound views of public policy, and then follow policies which were diametrically opposite.

"Washington was not an egocentric man, but a concentric man. No character in public history presents a more harmonious whole. His words and action went together.

Among the leaders in history, his public record is the freest from any inconsistency. It sadly must be said that in all the history of America there never has been a political leader who so boldly violated his own promises and repudiated his own beliefs as President Roosevelt. It would be impossible in all our history to find two characters more different in this respect.

"The experience of our republic from the beginning has confirmed Washington's wisdom at every point; even today it has been proved that Washington might have thrown a silver dollar across the Rappahannock, as tradition tells us, although I doubt whether Washington would have foolishly thrown away a single dollar, in which respect there is again a marked dissimilarity from his successor, for President Roosevelt has thrown some billions of dollars across the river and into an abyss of useless extravagance.

"However, President Roosevelt did pay a real tribute in his Temple college address by not quoting Washington, for he thus avoided the incongruity of quoting the writings of one with whose wise policies he seems to be in complete conflict."

ZION PASSION PLAY TO BE STAGED FROM APRIL 9 TO MAY 24

The Zion Passion Play, patterned after its famous predecessor of Oberamergau, will be staged again this year from April 9 to May 24 in Shiloh tabernacle at Zion, Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of the Christian Catholic church announced yesterday. Last year the play drew an attendance of 65,000. Since then Jabez Taylor, an elder of the church, and author and director of the play, has returned from a visit to Palestine where he spent several months studying. This year's production will have a cast of 200 and 21 scenes. It will be presented in 21 performances on Thursday evening and Sunday matinée and evening.

FOUR MISSING AS BLAST RIPS TANKER AT SEA

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—With four of the crew of 32 missing in an explosion and fire which ripped open her forward decks, the oil tanker Albert Hill limped slowly toward Charleston, S. C., tonight under the convoy of the coast guard cutter Modoc.

Another cutter, the Yamacraw, sped northward from Savannah to join the two ships as a convoy, the coast guard control station here reported.

The tanker was proceeding under her own power, the coast guard said. A terrific blast tore apart the fore part of the Albert Hill, owned by the Atlantic Refining company, while she was about 200 miles off Charleston today, bound from Texas to Philadelphia.

Fire swept out of control for two hours after the blast.

Thousand Blasts Reported.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—More than 1,000 explosions have occurred aboard the burning Norwegian freighter Giala since fire broke out yesterday aboard the craft in port here. Today one fireman was dead, drowned in a pool of water where he was thrown face down by an explosion, and 21 were injured.

Ship Explodes; Crew Saved.

San Pedro, Cal., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Rescue of the captain and crew of the motorship Yellowtail after it exploded, pitching them into the sea, was reported tonight by Mackay radio. The motorship burned and sank. The ship exploded five miles off Morro Hermosa point, Mexico.

28 Year Old Family Bus Withstands Train Assault

Cleveland, O., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Grace E. Kieser, 70 years old, and her cousin, Mrs. William Keyerleber, 70, escaped with minor injuries today when the aged electric automobile they occupied was struck by a Nickel Plate freight train. They have driven the car for 28 years.

EPIDEMIC IS CHECKED AFTER 2,000 BECOME ILL IN COSHOCTON, OHIO

Coshocton, O., Feb. 22.—[U. P.]—An epidemic of intestinal influenza which spread illness among approximately 2,000 of this town's 10,000 citizens was believed checked today.

Plans for innoculation of every man, woman, and child in the city were halted when the state health department at Columbus reported that specimens of the city water supply contained no traces of tphoid fever bacilli.

All schools were closed, many businesses were closed, public meetings of all descriptions had been banned—even a high school basketball game was canceled.

Urban League to Launch Fund Campaign Tuesday

The Chicago Urban league, which works for the betterment of the colored population, will launch a week's campaign Tuesday to raise $20,000 to finance this year's activities, Dr. M. O. Bousfield, president, announced yesterday. Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, will speak at a twentieth anniversary dinner in the Steuben club on Wednesday. Eighty per cent of the money raised will be for local use, and the remainder will be given to the National Urban league, parent organization, with headquarters in New York City.

Infant Weighing 29 Ounces Is Born to Toledo Couple

Toledo, O., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Forrest Letson, of nearby Trilby, gave birth today to an infant daughter weighing 29 ounces. Hospital attendants said the child's condition is very favorable. Her father is a 48 year old factory worker.

TOWNSEND PLAN RACKET CHARGE WILL BE PROBED

House Committee May Start Tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Speaker Joseph W. Byrns of the house of representatives today appointed a committee of eight members, including two Townsendites, to investigate charges that the organization has assumed the proportions of a stupendous racket.

John Steven McGroarty [Dem.], California's "poet laureate" and author of the bill to pay all persons 60 or more years of age $200 a month, expressed himself as "eminently satisfied" with the committee, particularly with the two Townsendites, but said it was unfortunate that Representative C. Jasper Bell [Dem., Mo.] was designated chairman.

Members of Committee.

"Mr. Bell has certainly disqualified himself by his vicious attacks as chairman of a supposedly impartial committee," McGroarty said. The other members include: Joseph A. Gavagan [Dem., N. Y.], Scott W. Lucas [Dem., Ill.], John H. Tolan [Dem., Cal.], a Townsendite; John B. Hollister [Rep., O.], J. William Ditter [Rep., Pa.], Samuel L. Collins [Rep., Cal.], a Townsendite, and Clare E. Hoffman [Rep., Mich.].

Mr. Bell said he might begin hearings Monday if this plan met with convenience of the other members. One of the first questions to be considered is expected to be salaries received by Dr. Francis E. Townsend, author of the scheme, and R. E. Clements, former California real estate operator, co-founder and general manager.

Clements has revealed to newspaper reporters here that he and Dr. Townsend receive salaries of $100 a week each from OARP—the old age revolving pension organization—and $50 a week each from the Townsend national weekly, which claims a circulation of 250,000. It has been charged on the floor of the house that this newspaper, privately owned by Townsend and Clements, has a reserve fund of at least $200,000.

Labor Salaries Higher.

"I suppose they will make a great fuss over those salaries," McGroarty declared. "Much smaller organizations than OARP, such as the American Federation of Labor and the United Mine Workers, which recently voted John L. Lewis $20,000 a year, pay far larger salaries. Why, any other organization as large as OARP would pay Dr. Townsend and Mr. Clements $50,000 or $100,000 a year, and they would be worth it.

"They have built up the largest political organization in the history of America, with 10 million enrolled members. If you include those who have signed petitions favoring the Townsend plan the number is increased to 30 million. By November it will be twice this large. This investigation will vastly strengthen the Townsend movement and anybody that knows anything knows that. The American people like fair play and they know that this investigation is just dirty politics."

McGroarty, who boasts that the Townsendites will control the house of representatives at the next session, said many members had come to him seeking advice, complaining that constituents were watching their record.

"Interested in One Thing."

"I tell them," McGroarty said, "that the constituents are interested in only one thing in their record—their position on the Townsend plan."

McGroarty said he would be glad to testify if requested to do so by the committee, but that his testimony would be of no value since the investigation was not concerned with the merits of the Townsend plan.

"I have no connection with the business management and have never received a penny from it," he said, "and if I have made one speech I must have made 500 or so."

GROCERY MANAGER ROBBED.

TEACHERS' OATH LAW ASSAILED BY ANGELL OF YALE

Termed 'Ridiculous' in 'Alumni Day Speech.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A vigorous attack against a "recently naturalized foreign priest," "so-called teachers' oath bills," "allegedly patriotic organizations," and a warning against taxing endowed institutions were made today by President James Rowland Angell of Yale.

The Yale head was applauded frequently during his address by the more than 2,500 graduates, including Gov. Wilbur L. Cross and former Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who gathered for the annual alumni day ceremonies.

Applause Halts Speech.

The talk was interrupted by applause of several minutes when President Angell, while assailing the teachers' oath bills, said:

"Consider the utterly ridiculous condition which compels President Conant of Harvard, under the Massachusetts law as it now stands, to take an [teachers' loyalty] oath, while at the same time it allows a recently naturalized foreign priest to escape such an oath and pour out weekly over the radio, under the blessed name of social justice, the most poisonous and inflammatory economic and social nonsense!"

Dr. Angell did not identify the priest.

Wants Line Defined.

The Yale head also was applauded when he asserted that the "so-called teachers' oath bills," which he described as "innocuous appearing acts," are mainly the spawn of "allegedly patriotic organizations and are nominally aimed at the extermination of the so-called 'Red' influences in our schools and colleges."

"Who is to decide just where the dividing line falls between loyalty and disloyalty in a casual utterance, or even in certain lines of conduct?" he asked.

"If one may trust the political spellbinders, the two recognized leaders of our great political parties are both traitors, the one to the oath to support the constitution, the other to his duty to safeguard the welfare of the people."

Pup Missing for 3 Days Is Rescued from Well

Joseph Schwery heard a yail yesterday in the back yard of his home at 502 Belvidere street, Waukegan, and at the bottom of a 25 foot well found his 8 months old water spaniel puppy, "Kaiser," who had been missing for three days. Fireman William Worth descended a ladder and brought up the dog, uninjured, but very hungry.

12 OFFICIALS UNDER LIGGETT INQUIRY AS WIDOW SELLS PAPER

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Twelve city and county officials today are believed to be under investigation by the Hennepin county grand jury that was called following the murder of Walter Liggett, militant editor of a weekly newspaper. It was reported today that on Tuesday the jury will return indictments against two police captains, William Forby and Frank Brunskill. The charges are said to involve permitting of bootlegging and other violation of the liquor laws.

It was announced today Mrs. Edith Liggett will leave late next week for New York, having sold The Mid-West American, her late husband's paper to an unnamed purchaser. She expects to do newspaper work in the east.

She has decided to leave Minneapolis following the recent acquittal of the man she identified in court as the killer of her husband. Liggett was slain with a machine gun. He was to have appeared before a legislative investigating committee to rush charges against and to urge impeachment of Gov. Floyd Olson.

NEW DEALERS CALLED DANGERS TO CONSTITUTION

H. W. Taft Sees Rise of Burocrats.

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The "restless spirit of experimenters with our constitution is threatening to convert our government permanently into a huge burocratic centralized autocracy, obliterating the state lines and removing those checks upon power by which alone the liberty of the individual citizen may be secured," so Henry W. Taft asserted today in his Washington's birthday address in Carnegie hall, under the auspices of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Mr. Taft, a brother of the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft, said Washington believed two features of the constitution to be pivotal.

"He formulated them in a letter to Lafayette," Mr. Taft said, "thus:

"'. . . my creed is simply:

"'1. That the general government is not invested with more powers than are indispensably necessary to perform the functions of a good government; and consequently, that no objection ought to be made against the quantity of power delegated to it.

"'2. That these powers . . . are so distributed among the legislative, executive, and judicial branches into which the general government is arranged that it can never be in danger of degenerating into a monarchy, an oligarchy, an aristocracy, or any other despotic or oppressive form so long as there shall remain any virtue in the body of the people.

"'It will at least be a recommendation to the proposed constitution, that it is provided with more checks and barriers against the introduction of tyranny and those of a nature less liable to be surmounted than any government hitherto instituted among mortals hath possessed.'

"For 150 years," Mr. Taft continued, "our federal form of government has rested firmly upon the fundamental organic provisions I have referred to, and has proved adequate to secure a just and firm balance of the powers of the government, and to avoid the collapse which has overcome in a far shorter period every other democracy of which we have a record."

RAIDS ON BORDER ENDANGER PEACE! RUSSIA TO JAPAN

New Attack on Mongolia Feared by Moscow.

MOSCOW, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Ambassador Tamekichi Ota of Japan was officially informed today that the soviet government views the frequent clashes on the frontier between outer Mongolia and Manchukuo "with serious concern."

Coincidentally, reports from Ulan Bator, outer Mongolia, distributed by the Tass [official soviet] News agency, said additional Japanese troops were being moved to the Lake Buir region on the border, with the purpose of launching attacks against Mongolia.

Russia Sounds Warning.

The vice commissar for foreign affairs, B. S. Stomoniakoff, told Ambassador Ota that in the opinion of the soviet government the increasing frequency of the alleged "raids" on Mongolian border posts was endangering peace in the far east.

Stomoniakoff pointed out that the soviet government has maintained "unalterably friendly relations" with outer Mongolia since 1921 and suggested the appointment of a mixed commission to study means of preventing incidents there.

Ota said he would wire Tokio for further instructions. He advised the Russian official that the Japanese government was not able to accept the soviet suggestion for inclusion of neutrals in a mixed commission which has been planned to probe a clash of Jan. 30 on the soviet Manchukuo border.

Agrees to Jap Request.

Agreeing to Ota's request that the soviets should not insist on that point, Stomoniakoff said the Russians would participate in a commission made up only of Japanese, Russians, and Manchukuans, but declared the soviet delegation's size must equal that of the combined Japanese and Manchukuan representations.

Ota expressed agreement with this idea and said he would consult Manchukuo.

Klementi E. Voroshiloff, commissar of war, in a message to the Red army on the eve of the 18th anniversary of its founding, called tonight "for increasing vigilance" at the soviet borders.

Urges Army Strengthened.

The Red defense forces, which in the last year have been brought to 1,300,000 men, must be strengthened still more, he said, in view of "increased activity of war machinery in capitalistic countries." Government spokesmen have been accusing Japan and Germany of preparing for war against the soviet union.

Millions of workers will join with soldiers tomorrow in celebrating the army's anniversary, participating in gas mask drills, ski runs, and shooting contests.

SENATE QUIZZING UNDER NEW DEAL COSTS $796,369

But Taxpayers Learn About Midgets, Bankers

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Senate investigations—those star spangled extravaganzas that set midgets upon bankers' knees and send some utility men to playing hide and seek with subpena servers—have cost $796,369 since the New Deal came in.

Months of digging by sleuths who make interviews and study over musty papers precede the unrolling of testimony in open hearings.

A survey of official sources today set the cost of the stock market investigation by the banking committee at $160,000.

$132,369 to Study Munitions.

It was the biggest authorization of all that have been made since March 4, 1933. The investigation brought a midget onto J. P. Morgan's lap and helped along the securities and exchange act.

Next on the list of big authorizations was that for the munitions committee—$132,369. Morgan again was a headline witness.

The lobby committee, which H. C. Hopson, the utility man gave such a merry chase before he finally appeared, has been allowed $50,000.

Other Expenditures Authorized.

Here is a tabulation of principal congressional committee investigation expenditures authorized:

| | |
|---|---|
| Banking and currency [stock market] | $160,000 |
| Indian affairs and conditions | 15,000 |
| Wild animal life | 20,000 |
| Munitions industry | 132,369 |
| Receiverships and bankruptcies | 30,000 |
| Air mail contracts | 50,000 |
| Decline in prices of cotton on the exchange | 72,500 |
| Morro Castle disaster | 25,000 |
| Racketeering in the U. S. | 35,000 |
| Government of Virgin Islands | 22,000 |
| "Kick back" racket | 15,000 |
| Campaign expenditures, 1932 | 5,000 |
| Campaign expenditures, 1934 | 25,000 |
| Land and water policies of the executive departments | 5,000 |
| Airplane disasters | 10,000 |
| Railroad financing | 25,000 |
| Lobbying activities | 50,000 |
| Transportation and marketing of wool | 10,000 |
| Proposed additional national parks and enlargement of Yellowstone | 5,000 |
| Effects of silver purchase act of 1934 | 10,000 |
| Navy yards and stations | 5,000 |
| Cotton coöperatives | 1,500 |
| Investigating national economic council | 5,000 |
| Investigating failure to prosecute officials of Harriman National bank | 1,000 |
| Investigating wreck of dirigible Akron | 2,500 |

The lobby committee has not completed the utility investigation. The hearing is scheduled to open up again soon, with Chairman Black [Dem., Ala.] in action.

bank chairmanship at the instance of RFC Chairman Jones, in February, 1934. At that time his salary was fixed at $50,000 a year. Since then, however, the salary has been increased to $75,000, the records show.

The Rise of Cummings.

Cummings, former president of the Cummings Car and Coach company, in liquidation since 1932, came into contact with state and municipal politicians through his efforts to sell transportation equipment. He eventually entered into direct participation in politics. Shortly after the Roosevelt administration took office he was brought to Washington. He was given a job in the treasury in charge of the reorganization of closed national banks. From that berth he was placed in charge of the Continental Illinois bank to serve the interests of the RFC. A month later he became treasurer of the Democratic national committee.

Cummings' appointment as trustee of the Milwaukee road was opposed by counsel for a railroad bondholders' protective committee, the lawyers arguing that his bank job was too big to permit giving any time to the railroad's affairs. This committee was said to represent four holders of a total of $55,000 bonds.

Fear Patronage Machine.

In the course of that argument counsel warned Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson that "in the control of the reorganized St. Paul they [the trustees] will have one of the most powerful patronage machines in America; they will distribute the big plums of jobs paying as high as $60,000 a year."

The other trustees appointed by Judge Wilkerson were Henry A. Scandrett, president of the road before it was put into reorganization, and George I. Haight.

DR. MORDOFF DENIES SISTER-IN-LAW'S STORY IN SONNY BOY FIGHT

Dr. Gordon Mordoff of 1721 Highland avenue, Wilmette, expressed confidence again yesterday that a 3 year old boy known as Gordon Mordoff III. [also as "Sonny Boy" and Reginald Arthur Mann] will be adjudged his son and placed in his custody. His claim and that of Miss Margaret Mann, who contends that she is the mother of the child, will be passed on by Judge Rudolph Desort of the Superior court, who has already heard extensive testimony in the matter.

"A great many strange reports are current about Sonny Boy," said the doctor. "One, attributed to Mrs. Mary Fairchild, who was a sister of Mrs. Mordoff, is that Mrs. Mordoff was too old to bear a child when Gordon was born. At the time of her death, early this month, Mrs. Mordoff was either 52 or 53 years old. She was not only capable of bearing a child in September, 1932, but she did bear one—the boy there."

Dr. Mordoff said he had delayed a trip to Minneapolis, where he hopes to find official records of the boy's birth, because he was suffering from a cold. Sonny Boy also has a cold. He is staying, by court order, in the Mordoff home, but Miss Mann is allowed to visit him there. Dr. Mordoff's attorney, Harry X. Cole, was questioning witnesses in New Orleans yesterday.

The subjects will be: "The Hardy Perennial Garden," "Growing Plants from Seeds," "Trees, Shrubs and Vines for the Chicago Region," "Uses of Annuals in the Garden," and "Making and Maintaining a Lawn."

JAP GOVERNMENT WINS BIG VICTORY IN GENERAL VOTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 23.—[Sunday.]—Latest returns from the general election in Japan show that the Minseito, pro-government, party has won 210 of the 466 seats in the house of representatives. The Seiyukai have won 176, permitting the Proletarian and Independent parties to hold the balance of power.

It is believed, however, the Premier Keisuke Okada will remain in power for some time despite the fact that the Minseito will be able to cause him trouble by insisting that he give more cabinet posts to Minseito members.

The election indicates beyond any doubt that the nation is solidly behind the policies of the present government and is satisfied with present conditions.

GIRL REGRETS FATHER IS ILL; MOTHER TARGET

Hamlin, W. Va., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Gladys Dillon, 14, charged with poisoning eight members of her family sat in a jail cell tonight. She worried about her father.

Prosecutor W. F. Damron, quoted her as saying: "I only meant to kill mama. She was mean to me."

Edgar Dillon, 40, her father, a relief worker, may die. Other members of the family have recovered.

Damron said the girl, angered by her mother's refusal to let her visit a sweetheart, mixed poison in flour used to bake bread.

The prosecutor said he will charge the girl with murder if her father dies.

JEAN SCHWEPPE IS MARRIED TO A. W. ARMOUR III.

Simple Ceremony Is Read at Home of Bride.

BY JUDITH CASS.

In a simple ceremony yesterday afternoon Miss Jean Schweppe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, became the bride of A. Watson Armour III.

The Rev. Herbert W. Prince read the service at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the living room of the Schweppe home on North Mayflower road, Lake Forest, in the presence of the relatives and close friends. An altar had been improvised at the south end of the room which was decorated with yellow mimoso trees as was the hall through which the bride and her father and her only attendant, Mrs. John Peale Bent, walked to reach the altar, where they met the bridegroom and his brother, Charles, his best man.

The background of the altar was a dull gold altar cloth, purchased by Mrs. Schweppe abroad many years ago. It was surrounded by a framework of gardenias. On the altar were lilies of the valley. The centerpiece of the table in the dining room was most unusual. It was very large, with a center of white orchids, encircled by lilies of the valley. On the sideboard were two tall trees of gardenias, with an elaborate floral piece between them.

Bride Carries Orchids.

The bride never was lovelier looking than she was yesterday in her bridal gown of ivory white satin, close fitting and simple, with a very long train over which billowed a voluminous tulle veil that was held in her dark curls by a narrow band of pearl leaves. The same pearl embroidered leaves finished the high round neck and girdled her waist. The sleeves were long and tight. The bride carried an exquisite bouquet of tiny white spray orchids. Also in her hands was an old lace handkerchief that Joan Pinkerton carried fifty-six years ago when she and William J. Chalmers were married. They were among the guests yesterday.

Mrs. Bent, the former Mary Reed, who is the bride's cousin, was charming in gold and white brocade made with a draped skirt and loose sleeves, sable trimmed. She wore a small brown velvet hat and a perky gold veil and carried yellow orchids. Miss Schweppe was Miss Reed's only attendant at her wedding last May at the Lake Forest residence of her mother, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed.

Bridal Couple Receive Alone.

Following the ceremony, Mr. Armour and his bride received alone. Mr. and Mrs. Schweppe and Mr. and Mrs. Armour had greeted the guests in an informal way when they entered. Mrs. Schweppe wore raspberry crepe with a brown straw hat and a sable scarf.

Ushering were the bride's brother, John Shedd Schweppe, who had come from Harvard for the occasion, and nine of the bridegroom's Chicago friends. They were Mr. Bent, Gordon Kelley, John M. Simpson, Donald R. McLennan Jr., Dustin Grannis, W. Irving Osborne Jr., Robert S. Pirie, Potter Palmer III., and Hoyt Smith.

Those present from Chicago included Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Laurance Armour, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, the bride's aunt; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., and her daughter, Mrs. William A. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevenson, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, Mrs. Albert B. Dick, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pike, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Brewer.

Mr. Armour and his bride departed for a trip to Honolulu and upon their return in about six weeks they will be at home in Lake Forest.

Stevens-Brown Wedding.

At noon yesterday in the Church of the Ascension Miss Ruth Margaret Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jewell F. Stevens, became the bride of Wilson Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Brown of Shortsville, N. Y. The Rev. William B. Stoskopf, rector, officiated, assisted by the Rev. A. M. McLaughlin of St. Timothy's church, and a reception followed at the Pearson hotel.

The bride wore a lovely gown of ivory satin and carried a shower bouquet of white roses, gardenias, and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Alice Brown, sister of the bridegroom, wore peach colored lace, and the matron of honor, Mrs. Rannie Neville, wore aqua blue lace. Both carried spring flowers.

John Ferris served Mr. Brown as best man, and ushering were Mr. Neville and Henry C. L. Johnson. Mrs. Stevens, standing at the head of the receiving line, wore a brown and beige ensemble and a corsage of orchids and freesias. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Brown will make their home in Chicago.

PICKETS ARE ORDERED AWAY FROM GATES OF GOODYEAR PLANT

Akron, O., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Picket lines remained intact before Goodyear Tire and Rubber company gates tonight despite a Common Pleas court injunction, effective immediately, restraining striking union and nonunion employes from interfering with plant operations.

Sherif James T. Flower indicated he would not attempt to enforce the injunction until Monday. He said he planned to confer tomorrow with rubber workers' union officials, municipal authorities, nonstriking employes and company executives.

Lyle Carruthers, spokesman for nonstrikers, said his group would remain away from the factories voluntarily until the company announces resumption of operations.

S. H. Dalrymple, president of the United Rubber Workers of America, and John House, Goodyear local president, said: "As law abiding citizens we will urge pickets to abide by the court's decision." Dalrymple had said: "If attempts are made to enforce an injunction, there will be industrial paralysis of the city."

400 Reported Dead in India Smallpox Epidemic

CALCUTTA, India, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Four hundred persons were reported today to have died here in the last fortnight during a smallpox epidemic. An undetermined number of deaths also were caused at Dacca, India, where the schools were closed.

188 PASSENGERS 'MAROONED' ON DISABLED LINER

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The tender Castle Harbour today was unable to make transfer of the 188 passengers of the disabled Furness liner Nova Scotia, which remained at anchor eight miles off St. George's, Bermuda.

The first attempt to get a tow rope fastened to the liner was unsuccessful owing to heavy seas and high winds. With the weather gradually moderating it was expected that it would be possible to get the Nova Scotia to Murray's anchorage, where the Queen of Bermuda, another Furness liner, will wait until tomorrow morning if necessary.

The Nova Scotia ran into difficulties 300 miles south of Bermuda on Wednesday night and was towed here by the steamship Eastern Prince.

HEY, SKINNEY! HERE'S THE TOWN FOR US; NO BATHS

Springfield, Ky., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Saturday night bath was "out" in Morganfield tonight as this coal mining town, its water supply cut off for three days by an ice gorge in the Ohio river, went on a water dole.

Beer and pop became favorite thirst quenchers for the 2,500 inhabitants as the only available water, pumped from a mine, was coal colored and unpalatable. Treated with chlorine it was termed fit for consumption, but the majority was skeptical.

Consumers are limited to two turns of their faucets daily, for an hour at a time.

U. of C. Alumni to Quiz Hutchins at Banquet

The sixth annual midwinter banquet of the University of Chicago Alumni association will be held Wednesday evening in the red lacker room of the Palmer house. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the university, will conduct an open forum and will answer questions on the policies, conditions, and future of the institution.

HONEST BALLOT FRIENDS APPEAL TO LEGISLATORS

Be in Seats on Tuesday, Members Urged.

Urgent appeals were sent to members of the Illinois house yesterday by several civic organizations, asking the legislators to be in their assembly seats on Tuesday when two sets of bills providing for a modern system of registration for voters will be called up for passage as a special order of business.

Letters were sent to each house member by the Illinois League of Women Voters, which has been campaigning for years for the honest elections proposal, and the City Club of Chicago. Other organizations, including the Chicago Association of Commerce, the board of managers of the Chicago Bar association, the Legislative Voters' league, and the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, have endorsed the measures.

Favor Schnackenberg Plan.

These organizations favor house bills No. 7 and 8, introduced by Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago], which would install the permanent registration plan in Chicago and eight other cities which have election boards. A state-wide application of the system is proposed in house bills No. 1 and 2, introduced by Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago]. The latter bills, it has been charged, were submitted as a scheme to arouse rural legislators to defeat both sets of bills.

The backers of the Schnackenberg bills, to which have been added the names of two Horner Democrats, Nicholas L. Hubbard of Mount Pulaski and A. A. Brands, Prairie du Rocher, are confident that the bills will pass if all the Republicans and Horner Democrats friendly to them are present Tuesday. Cook county Democrats last week showed some of the opposition they exhibited last spring when the bills were defeated in the regular session.

Horner Strongly for Plan.

Gov. Horner came out strongly for the Hubbard-Brands-Schnackenberg bills in a statement he gave to the Illinois League of Women Voters. He said in part:

"Unless elections are honestly conducted to prevent frauds, the will of one person or a few is substituted for the will of the majority. Enactment of these measures into law will not only discourage illegal voting, but it also will encourage qualified electors to cast their votes for the candidates and principles of their choice."

"The honest votes of many thousands of citizens are nullified under the present system when fraudulent votes are cast," added Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, vice president of the league. "The proposed permanent registration system for cities operating under the election board act will prevent a greater part of the frauds now being perpetrated."

Election experts say the enactment of the system would eliminate the voting of "floaters," save taxpayers of Chicago and other cities under the election board system between $600,000 and $1,000,000 a year, and give conveniences and safeguards to honest voters, some of whom, when they go to vote now, find their names have been expunged from the registry lists through the "suspect" system, thus disfranchising them.

Identifications Required.

Under the permanent registration system a voter to get on the registry list must sign two cards and give information as to age and residence and other data the election board may deem proper to require for identification.

On asking for a ballot the applicant signs his name, which is compared with his original signature on one of the cards, which is sent to the precinct polling place for election day. Those who cannot sign are questioned about identification data given by them previously. Each registration card is marked "voted" when the ballot is deposited.

TOO DEMOCRATIC FOR LIBERTY?

In the early days of the republic Fisher Ames, Massachusetts Federalist, in a gloomy moment remarked: "We are too big for union, too sordid for patriotism, and too democratic for liberty." The fight between the Jeffersonians and the Federalists was at its height. The conflict of persons and ideas seemed to be one of extinction and neither faction unchecked could have been trusted to bring an infant nation through its childhood.

Ames' remark is a shrewd observation packed with significance even for the present day. It would appear that he was wrong, but we haven't finished the third chapter. That the people were too sordid for patriotism was a pessimistic conclusion based upon observation of the least admirable characteristics of profiteers. There was selfishness in high and low places and a man in a gloomy mood might conclude that these grasping natures would never subordinate their self-interest to the requirements of patriotism and of loyalty to a nation which seemed to come fresh from the tools of the carpenter and mason. Time proved that fealty would prevail and men would be imbued with patriotic devotion to a nation although composed of antagonistic states.

The prophecy that the country even in its then limited extent would be too big for union came dangerously near fulfillment. Four years of war were needed to prove that Ames was wrong. It was touch and go and he might have been proved right. The third chapter puts the question whether democracy will destroy liberty. We cannot confidently show that it has yet been answered.

It may seem that the question refers to an impossibility. Democracy and liberty may be thought synonymous. The truth is that they may be contradictory. Liberties affect the individual. Democracy is a matter of majorities. Majorities even more easily than autocracy may destroy liberties. Unless a code of privileges and immunities protects minorities freedom ceases to exist.

It must be remembered that Hitler went into power in Germany by way of the ballot box. A sufficient number of the German people yielded to his appeals to destroy the German constitution and popular representative government and place themselves under the control of the Nazi dictatorship. Thereupon the privileges and immunities which should have protected people regardless of race, religion, and opinion were wiped out. Democracy, misled by excess of enthusiasm and credulity, animated by envy, a sense of injury, or a desire to possess, may destroy the liberty for which this political order is established.

We cannot think that the third element in Ames' prophecy has been proved untrue. We hope it will be, but it would be unwise to assume that democracy in itself is an ever vigilant protecter of the liberties of the people who compose it. There is security only so long as restraints are put upon the moods of a moment.

MORE MONEY FOR SOCIAL SCIENCE.

President Scott of Northwestern university announces that the 7 million dollars received under the will of Roger Deering will be devoted in large part to expanding the university's work in the social sciences. Mr. Scott explains that the control of nature which has come through study of the natural sciences has not been paralleled by a control of society through study of the social sciences. He intimates that the next great forward step will come as a consequence of social studies.

Maybe so; but the analogy is a loose one. Progress in the natural sciences has been more rapid not so much because more money has been spent on them as because they are also the experimental sciences. Pasteur's discoveries cost the French government almost nothing. His laboratory was an ill-equipped and uncomfortable garret, but out of that garret came a revolution in medicine and industry. No matter how much money is made available for studies in social behavior, the men working in the field will still be deprived of the opportunity to employ the experimental technique which enabled Pasteur to evolve and more especially to check his theories.

The laboratory and the observatory have been of assistance to the natural sciences in two ways. They have helped in the formulation of so-called natural laws and they have helped no less in discovering the flaws in previous formulations. The social scientists have been able to formulate plenty of theories without the aid of the laboratory, but precisely because these theories have not been subject to the rigorous test of controled experiment or any other rigorous test the validity of the conclusions is always open to the gravest question.

The consequence has been that the social sciences have been the happy hunting ground of wishful thinkers, each with his private collection of dogmas. Washington is full of such scientists and such science today. The trouble is not that insufficient sums have been placed at the disposal of the practitioners, but that reliable techniques for discovering the "laws of society" are still to be discovered. From this it does not follow that nothing that any of the social scientists assert is valid or that improved techniques will not, in time, be discovered. These lines are intended merely to suggest that increasing the cash outlay for studies and instruction in politics, economics, sociology, etc., is not, of itself, certain or even likely to produce a proportionate return in human knowledge and human betterment.

EFFICIENCY IN LEASH.

Evolution has outmoded the railways. The bus, the truck, and the private automobile are the vehicles of the future.

The railways offer the most economical form of overland transportation for both passengers and freight.

Waterways are basically the cheapest form of transportation. On their development depends the future of our commercial progress.

Inland waterways are not economical. Any saving they offer is derived from a free right of way furnished by a gullible public.

Railway freight rates and passenger fares are so high that they are stifling commerce and discouraging travel.

Railway freight rates and passenger fares are so low that the railways are going broke.

Of such conflicting statements is our transportation quandary composed, and further to complicate matters every one of these premises can be proved by a speaker or writer—given his choice of locality and commodity. It might be observed that in each instance the standard of transportation cost is that of the railway, and as congress has usurped the rate making power of the railways it may be responsible for the phenomenon. Let us see.

The first effort to befuddle the situation appeared in the form of a hazy law—the interstate commerce act of 1887. All rates were to be "just and reasonable," a phrase which nobody was able to define. Hence the Hepburn act was passed in 1906, which empowered the interstate commerce commission to fix these undefinable just and reasonable rates. Regulation was substituted for management. The result, which could have been foreseen, was the absolute elimination of business principles from railroading and a consequent undermining of the whole revenue producing structure.

After the inevitable crash, hastened by wartime stress, the government tried its own hand at railway operation for a period of twenty-six months at a cost of two billion dollars to the taxpayers. Thus brought to the brink of public ownership, congress could see the dire consequences and changed its course. The owners were persuaded to take back the properties under the terms of the Transportation act of 1920 with its provision for devising freight rates that would assure a fair return for the investors. The scheme failed to work and within three years quacks were back on the job with a new theory that all freight rates were "archaic and should be revised." A fantastic nostrum called "scientific rate making" was foisted upon the railways.

By this time railroad rate making had wandered so far from its original purpose of moving traffic that shippers had turned their attention to the development of competition—trucks, buses, barges, pipe lines—and, most important of all, to the decentralization of production to eliminate transportation.

That was the condition that faced the New Deal, which could think of nothing better than a grand scheme of coördination through regulation of the newcomers. The pyramided result, in so far as the railways are concerned, is regulation, plus management, plus scientific rate making theories, plus coördination; the whole structure resting on the sophistry of just and reasonable rates which no one has yet been able to define. The phrase means nothing, so the rates derived from its mandate can mean no more. The public will be deprived of the full efficiency of this, the world's greatest transportation machine, until legislation is overhauled to permit a restoration of railway management to railway officials.

Editorial of the Day

FOR THE GENERAL WELFARE.

[Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News.]

One of the difficult problems of government is its administration in the interest of the whole people. Tarif making illustrates this in a most emphatic manner.

The producer wants his product protected against foreign competition, and long custom has made him think that he has a right to stand at the customs house and say to the consumer: "You must buy my product or else pay a heavy penalty on the foreign article in the shape of a tax to the government."

Of course the producer does not stand at the border and say this. The government does it for him.

The general interest of the country is apt to suffer in the face of specific demands. The producer can see that he is losing some business when a foreign article is imported. He is in the position of the man who is thrown out of a job by a machine. He can see no good in the imported article and is impatient about looking beyond to a later gain in his own business because of increased foreign exchange of goods.

The man thrown out of job by a machine is not comforted by being told that the machine makes products more numerous, cheaper, and available to a greater number of people. Nor does he see that all this increases business to an extent that will give him a job later.

The protected man and the jobless one don't care for the necessary readjustment and the consequent loss.

It is a difficult task for a government to withstand the pleadings and demands of any powerful group, even though they may be contrary to the welfare of the country as a whole.

What the group demands may be at the expense of the whole country, but the whole does not make its wants heard. The cost individually is too small to be realized, or not sufficient to create an organization through which to work upon the government.

It is not easy for congress or an administration to stand up for the inarticulate general welfare against loud clamors by special interests.

STATE SELF-DEFENSE AGAINST NATIONAL ENCROACHMENTS

BY WALTER F. DODD.

Our national constitution contemplates two governments exercising authority over the same territory. In order that the two governments may so operate it is necessary to determine the respective powers of the two and to provide an arbiter in case of dispute. The powers of the national government are granted in broad terms and are supplemented by authority "to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper" to carry the granted powers into execution. The "necessary and proper" clause is incapable of delimitation and the scope of several of the specified powers is also indefinite. By the tenth amendment all powers not granted to the national government in this uncertain and indefinite manner "are reserved to the states respectively or to the people." Within the scope of its authority national power is superior to that of the state. While uncertain in terms the distribution of power between nation and state possesses a desirable flexibility, although it places upon the United States Supreme court as arbiter the heavy responsibility of applying indefinite standards to new issues as they present themselves.

The problems of today are not those of the framers of the constitution. The power to regulate interstate commerce was thought of in 1789 as a means of preventing the establishment of state barriers against free commercial relations. Today it involves detailed federal regulation of the numerous instrumentalities of such commerce. With the change in conditions this expansion is justified and it has been uniformly sustained by the United States Supreme court. In Pensacola Telegraph Co. v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 96 U. S., 1 [1878], Mr. Chief Justice Waite properly said:

> The powers thus granted are not confined to the instrumentalities of commerce, or the postal service known or in use when the constitution was adopted, but they keep pace with the progress of the country, and adapt themselves to the new developments of time and circumstances. They extend from the horse with its rider to the stage coach, from the sailing vessel to the steamboat, from the coach and the steamboat to the railroad, and from the railroad to the telegraph, as these new agencies are successively brought into use to meet the demands of increasing population and wealth. They were intended for the government of the business to which they relate, at all times and under all circumstances.

Our constitutional law is not in the stage coach era, but has adapted itself to the new developments of the telegraph, the telephone, and the radio, and of the railroad, the motor vehicle, and the airplane.

Many problems which were local in character have now become national, and with changes in industrial organization and in the means of transportation and communication the national government has of necessity increasingly come to exercise the powers vested in it by the constitution. No function national in character will remain permanently under the control of state and local authority, nor should it so remain; but the effort to control all industry from Washington is dangerous both to state and nation, as well as to industry itself.

The efforts to exceed the bounds of national authority in this respect have been curbed by decisions of the United States Supreme court holding invalid the National Industrial Recovery act [Schechter Poultry Corporation v. United States, 295 U. S., 495] and the Agricultural Adjustment act [United States v. Butler, decided Jan. 6, 1936]. And similar adverse decisions may perhaps be expected with respect to the Guffey-Snyder Bituminous Coal Conservation act and other recent congressional enactments. Where there is an obvious excess of national power the court can be relied upon to defeat improper action, and we need not fear threats to pack the court or to limit its authority by legislation. And proposals of constitutional amendment that would materially alter our form of government will fall of their own weight.

The danger lies elsewhere. The taxing and spending powers of the national government may be used to accomplish ends otherwise beyond the powers of that government. It is true that the opinion of the court in the recent Agricultural Adjustment act case imposes a restriction upon the method of exercising these powers, but other methods may be devised and the opinion in this case may be remembered in the future, not as one imposing restrictions, but rather for the announcement that "the power of congress to authorize expenditure of public moneys for public purposes is not limited by the direct grants of legislative power found in the constitution."

Almost irresistible pressures will constantly be brought upon congress to undertake measures that may more properly be left to state and local governments, and federal action will be taken, through one device or another, unless state and local governments aequdately perform the functions for which they have been created. Inefficiency and inaction in state and local government lay the foundation for the expansion of federal power. In a large portion of governmental activity the court has no power to curb federal action. The remedy lies in political rather than judicial action.

The problem is permanent, not temporary, although it has been rendered more acute by the fact that we now have a President who has the courage to gamble with other people's money. But costly experiments, either national or state, are not limited to the present. Our history shows that it is the province of each generation to make its own mistakes and the duty of the succeeding generation to pay for them.

But it is the present duty of each state to preserve the powers of state and local government by means of more efficient organization. We have in Illinois today systems of state and local finance, if they may be called systems, which impose an undue burden upon the taxpayer for the mere expense of collecting and paying out each tax dollar, irrespective of what is acquired by the expenditure itself. Our small one room schools and our unimproved highways cost the local taxpayer proportionately more than if he had adequate facilities. Politics should control the policy of government, but through the use of patronage in public offices it controls as well and largely renders inefficient the conduct of the work of government. Under Gov. Frank O. Lowden Illinois led in 1917 in the establishment of a more efficient organization of state administrative offices under the control of the governor. But much more remains to be done. Both state and local governmental organizations are inefficient and expensive. By a more efficient organization we may reduce taxes and return to the taxpayer an equivalent for the taxes he pays. And perhaps most important of all is the development of election machinery that can and will register the will of the people as to governmental policy.

The problems of better state and local government are common to both urban and rural communities. The loss from inefficient administration in the larger communities is greater in amount and perhaps smaller in proportion to the total expenditure. The state is a single governing unit and may have to equalize the costs of essential governmental services by state action. One of the immediate essentials is to bring better schools to the farmer and to develop secondary highways so that this may be done.

The chief protection of state and local governments against national encroachment is better state and local government. Illinois led other states in 1917 and may lead them again in a program of more efficient administration. With the adoption of such a program in this and other states we may perhaps restore the alphabet of the nation to its normal use.

DANGEROUS HEALTH FRAUDS.

THE appetite of the general public for magic in medicine is insatiable and may be ascribed to the latent germ of superstition possessed by most of us. There is a huge mass urge for cure-alls and the damage that results cannot be expressed in figures. The more widely a remedy or method of cure is exploited the greater the number of individuals "taken in." The cruelest frauds are those that deal with health.

It is difficult to explain how an alert housewife who cannot be deceived in the selection of dress goods or household articles will take the word of the veriest amateur when it comes to health. No one would intrust his watch to other than a skilled watchmaker.

Nevertheless, a loquacious quack can draw multitudes around him. His audience will not be made up entirely of the ignorant, but will contain people of learning who somehow or other have surrendered judgment and who unquestioningly follow his lead.

Some patients have been disappointed in physicians, as the medical profession is not free from the few who are careless or inconsiderate. However, with all their faults and imperfections, they have an honest desire to help their patients. One may well wonder if one of the shortcomings of medical science is that it has not shared its problems with the public. There are undoubtedly medical men who oscillate between the laboratory and the disease regardless of the personal equation, and physicians must recall that they are concerned with human beings who are ill and not just patient No. so-and-so.

The medical quack is a public enemy. By promises direct or indirect he seeks to gain confidence, sell his wares, and gather gold. He is neither by training, experience, nor education capable of treating disease. Yet all too many health seekers who are looking for the supernatural, the twist of the wrist, as it were, become willing victims.

Years ago in one of the principal cities of France there arose a healer who described her method as "taking into her own body the ailments of her patients." One can easily imagine that after seeing a hundred patients a day she must have had quite a serious time of it shaking herself loose from the numerous human ills which she had absorbed. It was this power of ridding herself of the accumulated ills that fascinated the public. How could she do it? Here was something miraculous and thousands flocked to her banner.

There are so many healing cults today that the average person is bewildered: Mechanical healers, life-vibration healers, nature healers, etc.—all center upon some one all-curing power which they claim to possess.

The career of Albert Abrams is typical. His plan of diagnosis and treatment was fantastic to the nth degree. The diagnosis was made apparently from a drop of the patient's blood which was placed in an apparatus called the dynamizer. This in turn was connected with the forehead of a supposedly healthy subject who faced west in a dim light. According to Abrams, vibrations from the blood brought into bold relief in the well subject symptoms of the disease. He even went so far as to state that he could diagnose disease from handwriting. Millions of dollars were taken from the pockets of the gullible.

We must realize that functional disturbances will vanish under the influence of a sufficiently powerful suggestion and, as a result, physicians are increasing their respect for the value of psychotherapy. We have learned that many neuroses can and should be managed by a proper form of mental reëducation. Only the trained physician can distinguish between disease that has caused tissue damage and that which is purely functional. But charlatanism is folly.

METABOLIC RATE.

B. E. writes:

I have a basal metabolic rate of plus 18. I am losing weight right along. What does a rate such as this mean?

REPLY.

The metabolic rate is an index of the speed at which you are burning your tissues. For clinical purposes a rate between minus 10 and plus 10 is considered normal. Rates above 15 per cent indicate that the thyroid gland is not functioning normally. Plus 18 probably means an overactive gland. Loss of weight is a common symptom of too much thyroid.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE.

C. R. L. writes: I suffer from high blood pressure. Do you think taking garlic will reduce the pressure?

REPLY.

Garlic is reputed to dilate the blood vessels to a slight extent, but not enough to lower the blood pressure appreciably. It would take a quart of garlic to produce much effect. Neighbors beware!

GERMS DIE QUICKLY.

G. E. writes: I have been informed that tuberculosis bacilli remain in a house for months or even years. Is this true? If not, how long will this germ live? Is there any danger in handling books and magazines after some one who has had tuberculosis?

REPLY.

Tuberculosis germs are quickly killed by exposure to sunlight. Books and magazines are safe after exposure to fresh air for a few hours.

PERNICIOUS ANEMIA.

L. M. W. writes:

1. Is there a cure for pernicious anemia?

2. What is good for floating cartilage in the knee?

REPLY.

1. Excellent results have been obtained by the use of liver. The treatment must be continuous, the patient using about a half pound of raw or cooked liver daily. Liver extract may be substituted.

2. Floating cartilages do not always cause disability. If they cause pain surgical removal is advised.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO.—Japan's course of empire may lie to the west, but it is to the south that her trade is definitly turning today. Just as the eyes of Nippon's empire builders are focused on China and Mongolia, her business men and industrialists are concentrating more and more of their attention on the markets in the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, Siam, India, the Malay settlements, and Australia.

Already they have made tremendous inroads into the business of other countries, mainly Great Britain. But they are far from satisfied with their accomplishments to date and are preparing to launch a great offensive battle in these regions.

There is a large amount of accumulated capital lying idle in Osaka, second largest city in the far east, as a result of the munitions boom and the inflation of the last three years. The government, as well as some of the empire builders, have urged that this money be invested in North China and Manchukuo. The capitalists in Osaka sent investigators to these regions to look into the possibility of developing prosperous trade relations. These investigators have recently returned with gloomy reports. The situation in the west, they report, will remain unstable for some time.

During the last few weeks, and particularly following establishment of the Philippines commonwealth, the capitalists and merchants of Osaka have had their attention drawn southward. The Furukawa Development company, one of the leading concerns in southern Japan, has established a branch in Davao, investing $3,000,000 in this venture.

The Nomura interests, which already have a $4,000,000 investment in Borneo and Sumatra, are conducting inquiries into the political and economic condition in Siam and the Philippines and have definitly decided on entering the Philippines. They will start activities in the new commonwealth by growing hemp, investing about a million dollars in this venture to start with.

It is pointed out that despite the fact that the Philippines, Siam, and the Dutch East Indies are rich in natural resources compared with North China, they have been neglected because Nippon's attention has been focused by the military on China and Manchuria.

How interested the business men of the country are in the southward advance of Japanese trade may be understood when it is pointed out that Yunosuke Yasukawa, former managing director of the Mitsui interests, most powerful in Japan, has been delegated as a national envoy to Siam and the Dutch East Indies "to observe" the economic condition in this part of the world. Yasukawa has already accepted the government's request to make the trip and is expected to leave late this month.

HEIRS TO PROPERTY.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A piece of property was left to be divided between four heirs. There is a mortgage on this property and at the time of the owner's death there was nine months' interest due. 1. The executive of the estate collected the rent since the death and added some of her own money and paid the interest to stop legal proceedings from the mortgage holder. This property must go to probate and the executor hasn't the money to put it in. The rest of the heirs refuse to give her any help or money to put it in probate. 2. Did she do right in paying the interest? 3. Can the other heirs cause any trouble because the property is not in probate? The property doesn't pay enough rent to take care of the bills. The death occurred six months ago.

L. J.

1. We assume that you mean the executrix.

2. We would consider it somewhat contrary to her self-interest to tie up her funds in this way.

3. Sec. 2. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

COMPETITIVE EXAMINATIONS OPEN.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Do the senators or congressmen from this state have competitive examinations to determine who shall receive appointments to West Point or Annapolis? 2. I have tried unsuccessfully to get an appointment of this nature, and know that I am as capable if not more so than some of the men who got appointed. Any information you may have in this regard will be appreciated.

H. E. N.

1. We have heard of no such practice. Ordinarily they give the appointments to political friends.

2. There are other appointments that are determined by competitive examination. For further information write to the officials at West Point.

STATUTE OF DESCENT.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am one of seven heirs to my uncle's estate, whose will has just been filed for probate. In case of my death [1] who would be entitled to my share? Would it go to [2] my husband, [3] my children, or [4] be divided equally among the other six surviving heirs?

A. G.

1. If the will is so worded as to give you a vested interest, that interest would descend to your heirs.

2 and 3. These would be included in your heirs.

4. Not unless the will is so worded that the gift would lapse upon your death.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ESTATE TAX.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Would you kindly advise me as to what amount of money in a savings account left upon death to an only child is not taxable by the federal government? Also, in an accident case, as a witness in the case, [2] is it absolutely compulsory to state one's age when there is no doubt as to whether one is fully of age?

H. S.

1. Estates smaller than $50,000 are not subject to the federal estate tax, if that is what you mean to ask.

2. In our opinion the court ought to be satisfied with the answer that you are of legal age, if that is the only issue involved.

FRIGHTENED HORSES.

Belvidere, Ill., Feb. 16.—The picture "Frightened Horses" may be, and I hope is, a praiseworthy work of art. I know nothing about art, but I do know about horses, and calling this painting "Frightened Horses" is the world's best example of misnomer.

A frightened horse never droops its head, but keeps it up and back; it never throws its ears down, but up and out; its nostrils are never compressed, but distended; it never stands on four feet, but most always on two and never more than three; it never remains near a fence or barrier, but keeps away and faces from it; it's never flaccid and supine, but is the sum total of tenseness and alertness, with eyes not half closed, but wide and glaring.

The horses in this picture have a woebegone, disgusted and nauseated look, but it is not fright. JAMES M. HUFF.

BLACK AND HEFLIN.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 10.—I have read with interest Arthur Evans' article in regard to Hugo Black, senator from Alabama.

As stated by Mr. Evans, it is common knowledge that Senator Black was the candidate of the Ku Klux Klan in 1926.

Furthermore, it might be interesting to your readers to know that ex-Senator J. Thomas Heflin, who denounced 15,000,000 men and women for voting for Gov. Alfred E. Smith in 1928, is now on the New Deal pay roll, and at the taxpayers' expense is going around in the various southern states lauding the Roosevelt administration.

I am perfectly willing for Heflin to join up with any political organization he desires, but what nettles me is the fact that I, along with millions of other Al Smith Democrats, am compelled to support through taxation such New Deal political rangers as Tom Heflin.

R. C. WILSON.

A FIRE.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—The writer was a passenger on a Ravenswood "L" train last week during the early morning hours when a fire broke out beneath the seats. One-half of the car was enveloped by the flames and it was only by the quick thinking of the passengers that the fire was immediately extinguished. Fortunately the train was not overly crowded and the good spirits of the passengers were instrumental in subduing any tendencies to stampede.

The Rapid Transit Lines has recently haled into service a number of antiquated and out of date wooden cars. It has occurred to the writer that the recurrence of the accident described above during one of our early morning rush hours, when the trains are crowded beyond actual capacity, would result in a horrible catastrophe. J. I. S.

RADIO REPAIRS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—A man of middle age, wearing glasses, medium dark, about 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighing about 140, is working from house to house claiming to be a radio repair man.

Having a slight hum in my radio, I let him look at it. I turned on several stations so he could hear the hum. He pulled out wires, cut them, and then he was unable to get it together. He wanted to take it along, as he said he could fix it better at home.

He left, promising to return at once with parts. He never came back and it cost me $6 to repair the damage he did.

E. W.

HOPE.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—The TVA decision is good news for the users of the elevated lines. There is some hope now that the management may be given to the government. The overcrowded trains, whether it is at 6 a. m. or 12 midnight, the excessive fare and old equipment show the attitude of the "L" management toward the public.

A. W. SCHULZ.

COUGHLIN VS. O'CONNOR.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Representative John J. O'Connor is quoted in this morning's TRIBUNE as saying that "every decent Catholic in America is ashamed of Coughlin."

Considering myself a good citizen and Catholic, I beg to say he is the one we are ashamed of, not Father Coughlin.

MARIE BURNS.

A FARMER ON EASTERN TIME.

Lake Villa, Ill., Feb. 16.—How you can twist your mind to the place where you can believe that eastern standard time is best for Chicago and its surrounding territory is beyond me. Daylight saving in the summer time is not so bad, but to extend it to the winter time is going to be very bad for our business. You can't kid a duck into the belief that it is 7 a. m. when the sun isn't up even if you can kid a lot of otherwise intelligent editors on your staf. You always preach practical farm relief in your paper. Do you honestly think this is going to help or hinder the farmer? Why not admit that all you are looking at is a little more time to play golf after your working hours while the farm folks are still riding the farm implements in the field with the chores still ahead of them and an extra hour of really needed sleep lost to them because they had to conform to Chicago's time in marketing their produce in the morning.

Also they are faced with the prospect of losing out on all entertainments, since all public functions, including radio programs, will be over before they can finish their work.

You know a farmer has to work by the sun, not from choice, but by necessity, and for your paper to sponsor a movement to cause the farm folks all of this unnecessary trouble just for the sake of the city people's pleasure is very unfair and unworthy of THE TRIBUNE.

WM. M. WEBER,
The Weber Duck Farm.

A VANDAL.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—This morning about 4 o'clock my husband looked out of the window to see an automobile, as though stalled, across the road [107th street]. The driver was having difficulty getting the back wheels to hold on the slippery street. After watching for some time my husband was minded to dress and offer assistance, but before he could do so the automobile started on its way. Daylight showed that the driver of this automobile had deliberately broken a shrub on our parkway in order to scatter the twigs and branches on the street so the rear wheels of his automobile would grip. Nothing short of vandalism. Instead of destroying the property of others, would it not be far better and more effective if autoists, in weather such as we are having, would carry a box of sand or of ashes for use in just such emergencies? MRS. F. H.

SLOW.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—I am employed in Chicago's loop, and at 5 o'clock it takes me one hour and a half on the Milwaukee avenue street car to go to Milwaukee and Peterson avenues. As it takes only one hour and forty minutes to go from Chicago's loop to Milwaukee, a distance of 85 miles, we might as well be living in Milwaukee. The elevated transfer system has not solved the problem, as the little saving is offset by delay in transferring.

If our aldermen really want to solve the transportation problem in Chicago they ought to get busy immediately. The ordinance for the extension of the Logan Square elevated lines was passed many years ago, and it seems nothing definite has as yet been done. ROLAND SARTINA.

THE DICTIONARY UPHOLDS US.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—I have noticed many times the words "veterinary" and "veterinarian" used incorrectly in THE TRIBUNE. This morning the word "veterinary" is used as a noun. Please be informed that the word "veterinary" is an adjective and is used in such instances: Veterinary medicine, veterinary instruments, veterinary college. The word "veterinarian" is a noun and is used as follows: Dr. John Jones, veterinarian. MRS. MAURICE SOKOLOFF.

FOR FINGER CROSSERS.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Much has been written of the lie detector in proving the veracity of the suspect in important criminal cases. While I do not consider political aspirants as criminals, the thought has occurred to me that all candidates for public office have attached to them, while making campaign speeches, one of these devices.

SPAIN REJOICES AND RIOTS AS ITS 'REBELS' GO FREE

Fiestas Are Mingled with Attacks on Churches.

MADRID, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The common people, who overthrew a conservative government with ballots, tonight began to welcome home from jails the 34,000 who failed to shake the government with bullets in October, 1934.

They staged parades and fiestas of honor—but these festivities were not peaceful everywhere. They rioted in southern Seville province, where they centered their attacks on churches.

Following radical ringleaders, they stormed chapels at Saucejo, Fuentes, and Penaflor, smashing images and furniture. Civil guards, the semi-military police of Spain, reëstablished order after sharp fights.

These excesses were the exception, however, and the new government under Premier Manuel Azana breathed easier, although it maintained the nation under the "state of alarm" which was established shortly after last Sunday's parliamentary election, won overwhelmingly by the leftists.

Women Prisoners Riot.

MADRID, Feb. 22.—[U. P.]—Wild scenes accompanied the opening of jail doors and the liberation of thousands of political prisoners in Spain today.

The chief disturbance of the day was in the Madrid women's jail where the prisoners rioted and clamored for their release. Few of them are political offenders. The warden was unable to quiet the women and additional guards were sent to the jail to restore order.

In Mieres, heart of the revolutionary coal mining district of Asturias province, the prisoners surged from the jail into the arms of their mothers, wives and sweethearts, all weeping with joy. They marched home through the streets, cheering the new premier, Manuel Azana, Sunday's leftist victory at the polls, and the republic.

Reinstate Socialist Council.

Prisoners in Oviedo, marching home through the streets, raised shouts of "Down with Fascism" and "Long live Russia." They reinstated the deposed Socialist city council and placed wreaths on the graves of those killed in the 1934 socialist revolution.

All the 6,000 residents of the town of Barruelo de Santullon in Palencia province waited at the town limits for the arrival by automobile of 300 fellow townsmen from Burgos prison. They wildly cheered the prisoners, Azana, socialism, and the republic.

In Granada, the prisoners were released without advance notice and sent home quietly in taxicabs. The entire town of Trubia, where the Asturias rebels looted the arms factory in 1934 to get rifles, machine guns, and field pieces, turned out in an uproarious welcome to the prisoners from Oviedo and Gijon. A band accompanied the demonstrators, playing the Red "International."

OKLA. GOVERNOR OPPOSES DEATH IN LOVE KILLING

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—"Insanity prompts love killings," Gov. E. W. Marland said today, and indicated few, if any, "love slayers" will be executed during his remaining three years in office. Marland today became a candidate for the senate seat of Thomas P. Gore as a New Deal backer.

Explaining his convictions on the death penalty, Marland declared he will be more inclined to commute sentences of murderers who kill because of love than for any other cause.

"I'm not making any hard and fast rule," he said "I'm not saying that I'll commute sentences of all persons who kill in the passion of love. Each case will be considered separately. But that is my general attitude.

"The man who kills in a robbery or kills for the lust of killing is a different kind of person altogether. In such cases I believe in the death penalty and I won't be inclined to stop the executions."

Arrested in Plot

[Acme Photo.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Police held Serdo Ech, Croat laborer, for questioning today in connection with the disappearance of a striking blond long sought as a conspirator in the assassination at Marseilles, France, of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia.

Authorities said Ech went to Europe shortly before the Jugo-Slavian monarch and foreign minister Louis Barthou of France were killed in October, 1934. On his return early in 1935, he was given a banquet by his compatriots, officials said.

A long search for the mysterious blond led to the detention of Ech. The activities of the woman among Croat Separatist societies at Sao Paulo, Brazil, had drawn official attention several years ago. Last January the Jugo-Slavian legation here wrote Capt. Filinto Mueller, federal district chief of police, that it had reason to believe the woman was connected with the assassination plot.

TINY CHIMPANZEE THRIVES UNDER CARE OF MOTHER

Adam, the 13 day old chimpanzee at the Chicago Zoological park in Brookfield, continues to thrive under the sole care of his mother, Director Edward Bean reported yesterday. The few other chimpanzees born in captivity in this country have required bottle feeding and only one lived beyond the first year, but Sally proudly nurses Adam about every 45 minutes. Mike, the 150 pound father, hammers excitedly at his cage in his desire to join his family, but he is barred as dangerous.

"KISS SLAYER" CONVICTED.

HOW WOMAN FIRE VICTIM BLOCKED RESCUE IS TOLD

A coroner's jury was told yesterday that Mrs. Minnie Roberts, 70 years old and a widow, resisted all efforts of rescuers to save her from the fire in which she was burned to death and which destroyed her home at 4538 North Mobile avenue Friday. The fire was the fourth to attack the home since 1929.

Stanley Patras, 4577 North Mobile avenue, a world war veteran, testified that he broke through a locked door and attempted to rescue Mrs. Roberts, but that she resisted and he was finally forced to leave the house to save his own life. Mrs. Daisey Crawford, a neighbor, said Mrs. Roberts was known as an eccentric who had lived alone in the house since the death of her husband 14 years ago. The inquest was continued to March 3.

Roy Barthels, an unemployed gardener, told a coroner's jury yesterday how he built the "depression cottage" in which his six months old son, Donald, was burned to death Friday in the suburb of Chicago Ridge. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

Barthel said he had started building the cottage seven years ago, doing all the labor on it himself. He had no money to plaster the walls so he used a red resin insulating paper instead. A kerosene stove furnished the only heat, he said, and when this stove exploded Friday the inflammable paper caused the cottage to burn rapidly. His wife, Mrs. Glayds Barthel, was severely burned in her efforts to save the baby.

Says Woman Killed Her Father, 80; Poisoned Self

Indianola, Ia., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Sheriff Frank Houghtaling reported this afternoon that Mrs. Ora Forman, 50, strangled her father, Oborn Loper, 80, at their snow-drift isolated farm home near here this morning, attempted to kill her son Fred, 15, and than drank poison. He said the woman's condition is critical.

SLUMP IN PRISON SENTENCES LAID TO CRIME DECLINE

Conviction Percentage Hits 90 Pct. Average.

Penitentiary sentences for criminals in Cook county are on the decrease, not because of a lower percentage of convictions, but because of a decline in crime. This was disclosed yesterday by First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley in a statistical report to Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle of the Criminal court. The report shows that speedy justice, trial within 30 days, has increased the chance of convictions until it reached a 90 per cent average for the months of November, December, and January.

"Crime is definitly on the decrease due to the large number of convictions in the last three years," said Mr. Crowley. "We have reached a point now where the business of the Criminal court is being handled at least for the present by only four regular judges. In former years we kept ten to fourteen judges busy."

Indictments Show Decrease.

In 1934, according to Mr. Crowley, grand jury returned 938 indictments during November, December, and January. During the corresponding period, a year later, the number decreased to 588, while the last year shows only 413 indictments. The number of pending indictments dropped from a high of 1,013 in November, 1934, to 180 on last Friday.

The stringent enforcement of the habitual criminal act has done much to put a crimp in crime by repeaters, said the prosecutor.

A comparative table follows showing the Criminal court situation for three month periods in the winters of 1933, 1934, and 1935 periods when crime is usually rampant:

| | Per cent convictions. | Per cent probations. | Sentenced to prison. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1933-34— | | | |
| Nov. | 70 | 16 | 191 |
| Dec. | 70 | 11 | 161 |
| Jan. | 80 | 19 | 221 |
| 1934-35— | | | |
| Nov. | 81 | 20 | 109 |
| Dec. | 87 | 20 | 170 |
| Jan. | 84 | 10 | 163 |
| 1935-36— | | | |
| Nov. | 92 | 13 | 114 |
| Dec. | 87 | 13 | 56 |
| Jan. | 92 | 13 | 106 |

Prosecutor Crowley pointed out also that the statistics show judges have tightened up on probations.

The Criminal court is at present being handled by Judges Normoyle, John J. Lupe, John C. Lewe, and Joseph Burke. Judge Cornelius Harrington, who worked throughout the summer as acting chief justice, is taking a delayed vacation. Other vacationers are Judges Joseph B. David, Robert C. O'Connell, and Peter Schwaba.

POLICE GUARD ACTRESS

Leaves Today

Mae West, motion picture star, was convinced last night that she is a better judge of men than of horses. She arrived in Chicago yesterday—several hours before the running of the Santa Anita handicap in California—and said she had bet $1,000 on Top Row at trackside odds [which turned out to be 7 to 1].

"I looked over the jockys and the boy riding Top Row seemed to me to be in the best condition," she explained.

A few hours later Miss West was $7,000 richer—Top Row and his jocky had won the race.

Miss West was guarded by a detail of police from the state's attorney's office, the explanation being that she didn't want to be bothered by crowds. She is to leave for New York today.

'UNCLE TICKTOCK,' 65, MUST DIE FOR SLAYING 12 BOYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SCHWERIN, Germany, Feb. 22.—Twelve sentences of death were passed by a Schwerin court today upon Adolf Seefeld, 65 year old itinerant watchmaker, who has spent 23 years of his life in jail. Seefeld, who was known as "Uncle Ticktock," was convicted of the murder of 12 boys. The murders were committed over a period of years in the course of his wanderings in the countryside. "Uncle Ticktock" is believed also to have committed several other murders of youths who were found dead or are missing.

Seefeld's conviction was based entirely on circumstantial evidence. It was established that he was present in the neighborhood whenever a boy disappeared. The bodies of most of the victims were found concealed in woods.

A curious feature of the trial was the inability of medical experts in any case to determine the cause of the death.

ROB APARTMENT MANAGER.

William Doerries, night manager of the Shore View apartments, 1209 Sherwin avenue, was robbed of $15.50 yesterday by three gunmen who entered the apartment building and forced him to tell where the money was kept.

Samuel Bartilotta Art Exhibit to Open Today

An exhibition of thirteen paintings by Samuel Bartilotta, Chicago artist, will open today at the Boston Store, where he is employed in the display department. Mr. Bartilotta, who was born in Italy, has had numerous exhibitions in cities in the United States and has won prizes at shows in the Chicago Art institute.

SPEEDIER DEATH CHAIR BUILT FOR EXECUTIONS HERE

Will Shorten Agonizing Last Moments.

In a basement workroom of the Cook county jail, Charles Johnson, jail locksmith and master mechanist, is putting the finishing touches on a grim, sturdy piece of furniture, an electric chair.

Mechanical devices and improvements—all his own ideas—are being added in what Johnson describes as an effort to "humanize" the chair.

"It is my idea to improve the chair so that there will be as little delay as possible in the execution," said Johnson. "My main idea is to shorten the last few agonizing moments before the current is turned on.

Improvements Speed Operation.

Johnson together with Sherif John Toman and Warden Frank Sain gave a demonstration yesterday which proved that with Johnson's devices a man can be strapped in the chair in from ten to twelve seconds, while with the old buckle system it required a minute or more.

Johnson replaced the crude buckling with self adjusting straps which operate by pressing a button or pulling a lever.

"In the past it was necessary for the guards to pull the straps tight and then buckle them," Johnson explained. "Often the straps were pulled too tight or were buckled incorrectly, inflicting injuries. It was almost like torture."

27 Sent to Chair Here.

The present chair, built at the Indiana state prison at Michigan City, was installed in the jail on Aug. 9, 1927, a few months after the Illinois legislature had passed a law providing that electrocutions instead of hangings be the method of inflicting the death penalty in Illinois. Since that time, 27 persons have been electrocuted in the chair.

At present there is only one prisoner in the County jail who faces the death penalty. He is Joseph Rappaport, 30 years old, 3430 Douglas boulevard, who was sentenced for the murder last Oct. 8 of Max Dent, an informer who was to have testified against Rappaport in a federal narcotics case. Recently, however, the Illinois Supreme court granted a supersedeas and a writ of error permitting an appeal from the sentence.

MERCHANT PREDICTS PRICES WILL RISE IN IMMEDIATE FUTURE

Widespread economic changes, influenced possibly by fear of inflation, will soon be reflected in rising prices of merchandise, in the opinion of Irving Netcher, vice president of the Boston Store. One of the last opportunities to take advantage of present price levels, Mr. Netcher declared, is the Netcher Day sale at the Boston Store tomorrow.

"Our buyers have anticipated a rising market," he stated, "and have bought heavily on all spring lines. In many instances we believe we are avoiding rises of from 10 to 30 per cent in wholesale prices."

Expecting a large volume of business, Mr. Netcher declared the sale will provide jobs for an extra large sales personnel. Most of these people will be employed a full week, he said, in order to fill orders after the sales rush.

POLICE INSIST STETTLER STORY OF KILLING FITS

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Police tonight discounted a new story by which Fred Stettler, Swiss chauffeur, sought to shift blame in the "clock deaths" of an aged couple here. Capt. Bert Wallis quoted Stettler as saying last night he crushed the skulls of 66 year old Carl Barbour and Mrs. Barbour, then set an intricately-devised watch mechanism attached to an electric heater to fire their home and destroy the bodies an hour after he left.

Stettler later declared, according to detectives:

"I made the machine for a used car dealer. I delivered it to the man near the Barbour house, and that is all I know about it."

Police said there was "no such place as the address Stettler gave." The dealer denied seeing Stettler more than once when he came to sell the old car.

A waitress, friend of Stettler, said he told her he had to get money pretty quick.

NYA School of Girls' Work Displayed at 'County Fair'

The 99 pupils of the resident school for girls maintained at 5120 South Park way by the National Youth administration yesterday staged a mid-semester exhibition of their handicraft and other school activities in the form of a county fair. The girls in the school were chosen to take a three months' course in community leadership, after which they will return to their home towns to act as assistants in NYA recreational projects, according to William J. Campbell, state director of the NYA.

CENTRAL WEST SHORT CHANGED ON EASY MONEY

Other Districts Are Given Lion's Share.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Illinois and her sister states in the central west have been short changed by hundreds of millions of dollars in the New Deal's spending operations under the 4 billion 880 million dollar made work appropriation.

This was disclosed unmistakably in a report by President Roosevelt to congress on how the world's largest appropriation was divided up among the 48 states. The report made an unobtrusive appearance on Capitol hill recently and was promptly shelved without comment in senate and house file rooms.

Millions Poured Into West.

Constituting the only accounting of how the huge fund has been administered, the 217 page report revealed that millions of easy money were poured into the west while Illinois and adjoining states were relegated to the rôle of federal stepchildren.

The billions were to be spent, the President promised in his message to congress on March 3, 1935, to give employment to the relief population of the nation.

The way this pledge has been carried out was disclosed in the stewardship report wherein it was shown, for example, that the state of Nevada received $1,179 for every man, woman and child on relief within its borders while Illinois was granted only $210 on this per capita relief basis.

Based on May Figures.

Figures on the relief load are those officially given out by the Federal Emergency Relief administration for last May, the month theoretically but not practically taken as a base for divvying up Works Progress administration funds.

New York, home state of the President, has received $228 for each of its relief clients. The Empire state was given the largest Presidential allotment, a chunk of $460,187,957, while Illinois' Cinderella share was $222,211,900. New York's slice was more than twice that of Illinois, but her relief load was less than twice as much. The Illinois relief population was 1,057,506 and New York's 2,011,031.

Another comparison that throws light upon the cutting up of the easy money is that of California, which plumped her votes to nominate Roosevelt at Chicago in 1932, and Illinois, which jumped on the band wagon after the victory was won.

President Roosevelt earmarked $275,646,883 for California, or $53,434,983 more than for Illinois. But California's relief load was 777,588, or 279,918 less than the number in Illinois. California's allotment amounted to $354 on a per capita relief basis.

Breaking down the total allocation by states, the Presidential report showed that the Public Works administration headed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes, "Honest Harold," earmarked $38,607,811 for the motion picture state while the total PWA allotment for Illinois was $33,074,071.

Same Case with Hopkins.

With Harry L. Hopkins' WPA it was practically the same story. California was allocated $72,817,522 by this agency while Illinois came out on the short end with $67,637,536. The well known story of how Hopkins, as relief czar, cracked down on Illinois and forced the state to raise the sales tax does not need to be retold.

In all there are eight governmental department and 15 bureaus and alphabetical agencies consuming the money and Illinois was shorted by the others as well as by the biggest spending twins, WPA and PWA.

Thus far the President has appropriated for use 4 billion, 400 million of the 4 billion, 880 million dollars authorization and has the power to take an additional 480 million dollars from the treasury to spend as he sees fit.

Status of Funds.

The status of funds under the "emergency relief appropriation act of 1935" on the basis of the most recent figures is as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Allocated to states | $3,891,541,676 |
| Allocated to territories | 61,878,209 |
| Not allocated to specific states | 283,561,757 |
| Recent advance by RFC | 100,000,000 |
| Unallocated | 55,195,951 |
| Warrants pending approval | 7,822,407 |
| Additional authority | 480,000,000 |
| Total | $4,880,000,000 |

A further study of tax collections by states in 1935 shows that Illinois and adjoining states will foot the bill for the New Deal experiments in the far west. Illinois in 1935 paid a total of $288,472,221 into the federal treasury, or 8.6 per cent of the total tax bill of the states.

Although second among the states in payment of taxes, Illinois was twenty-first in allotments under the emergency relief appropriation.

The President's report revealed that $132,339,245 was allocated for administrative expenses.

Belgium Sets Up Body to Govern Jewish Refugees

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

BRUSSELS, Feb. 22.—A decree was published today creating a committee to supervise control of foreign refugees in Belgium. It chiefly affects Jewish refugees from Germany. Regulations will be instituted governing their sojourn in the country. It was stated that all refugees must make a declaration to the Belgian authorities within eight days after entry. Jewish refugees without resources have been entering the country in increasing numbers.

Moynihan and Colorado Warden at Dwight Prison

DENIES RETRIAL TO ZIONCHECK; FINE IMPOSED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The District of Columbia police court refused today to grant Representative Zioncheck [Dem., Wash.] a new trial on charges of being drunk and disorderly at an apartment house on New Year's day. Zioncheck will appeal.

Police Judge Walter Casey upheld his previous judgment convicting Zioncheck.

He assessed fines of $10 on the drunkenness charge and $5 on the disorderly conduct count.

Zioncheck's lawyer, Arthur G. Brode, informed the court he would petition the District of Columbia Supreme court for a writ of error.

DEDICATION DATE FOR COAST GUARD STATION IS SET

A formal dedication of the rebuilt central coast guard station will be held as soon as is feasible after the breakup of the ice field which now maroons the station, Capt. Leroy Reinburg, division commander, announced yesterday. Construction of the new station, replacing the one which burned in the summer of 1933, will be completed this week.

Capt. Reinburg said the dedication date has been tentatively set for April 19. Arthur and Nelson St. Peter, sons of Tleaford St. Peter, who in 1878 was officer in charge of the city's first life saving station at the foot of South Water street, will be guests at the dedication.

Indianapolis Team Leads for Bridge Championship

Lawrence Welch and F. Roland Buck of Indianapolis, Ind., were in the lead last night at the halfway mark in the contest to determine the Illinois state championship for contract bridge pairs. Twenty-eight teams are left in the contest, which is being held in the Morrison hotel. Edward Hart Jr. and J. K. Howe, Albert Weiss and M. H. Besser, and Mrs. Edwin Goldsmith and Mrs. Harold W. Sax were the pairs whose scores were nearest that of the leading team. The contest will be finished this afternoon.

Waukegan's Last G. A. R. Member Marks Birthday

Silas Nichols, sole survivor of the Waukegan post of the G. A. R., yesterday celebrated his 88th birthday in his home at 506 Poplar street in the suburb. Mr. Nichols has lived in Waukegan for 44 years. He enlisted in the 103d Ohio infantry, as a boy of 16, and recalls the time in 1864 when he shook hands with President Lincoln in the White House. On March 2 Nichols and his wife, Elizabeth, will observe their 63d wedding anniversary.

LARGEST LOOP DEAL OF KIND IN LAST DECADE

Entire Building Will Be Modernized.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

One of the largest building leases negotiated during the last decade was signed yesterday when the Palmer House company rented for a term of years the entire 25 story garage property at 20-40 Quincy street. The lessor is the Quincy Parking Garage, Inc., controled by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The length of time and terms of the lease were not disclosed but it is on a minimum guarantee basis, plus a percentage of gross profits, including sale of storage space, gasoline, oil, repairs and accessories.

The Palmer House company took possession of the property, which comprises Chicago's largest garage. The hotel will operate it as a public garage, with direct and improved facilities for parking service to guests and patrons of the Palmer house, its shops, and restaurants.

Plan Modernization.

According to Robert B. Witwer, real estate agent of the Palmer house, who negotiated the lease, a considerable expenditure will be made immediately to rehabilitate the premises and improve the mechanical equipment.

The building, which has a frontage of 145 feet on Quincy street, with a depth of 75 feet, was designed by Walter W. Ahlschlager and erected in 1930, at a reported cost of $2,200,000, by the National Parking Garages, Inc., composed of a syndicate of New Yorkers. It was to be one of a nation-wide chain of similar skyscraping garages, all to be operated by mechanical devices and without ramps.

One million dollars was borrowed from the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, predecessor of the City National Bank and Trust company, and a $1,000,000 mortgage was placed on the property.

Foreclosed After Default.

When the Quincy Parking Unit, Inc., the mortgagor, defaulted in August, 1932, the Central Republic instituted foreclosure proceedings. The property was bid in at a master's sale for $631,632 by B. A. Mattingly.

At the conclusion of the period of redemption the property was conveyed by master's certificate to Mattingly, who then reconveyed it to the newly formed corporation known as the Quincy Parking Garages, Inc. All of the $690,000 stock of the latter corporation was owned by the bank.

As this property later was one of the real estate units pledged against the $90,000,000 loan made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to the bank, title eventually was obtained by the RFC.

Figures in $90,000,000 Loan.

The Illinois Maintenance company, supplying steam service to downtown buildings, occupies the sub-basement of the building with one of its substation steam plants. The Illinois Maintenance lease, extending for a period of fifty years, originally was made with National Parking Garages, Inc. The plant was installed during the construction of the building at a cost reported to be in excess of $250,000. Steam for heating will be furnished to the new lessee through the Illinois Maintenance company.

The building is used by several loop hotels for the parking of guests' cars, as well as by the general public. According to Witwer, this class of business will be continued by the new proprietors, in addition to caring for all of the Palmer house automobile trafic.

DRAPER, KRAMER MADE LOAN CORRESPONDENT FOR AETNA LIFE CO.

S. F. Westbrook, vice president of the Ætna Life Insurance company of Hartford, Conn., yesterday announced the appointment of Draper & Kramer, Inc., as mortgage loan correspondent for Chicago and suburbs. For the present the servicing of the company's existing mortgage loans in the Chicago area will be handled as heretofore.

Draper & Kramer, it was said, will handle the applications for and the closing of new loans and as promptly as possible will assume management of the company's real estate.

News of Architects

Laurence V. Teesdale, senior engineer of the Forest Products laboratory at Madison, Wis., will describe the current activities of that institution at the next meeting of the Illinois Society of Architects, Tuesday evening, Feb. 25, at the Architects' club.

DU PAGE COUNTY BUILDING IMPROVEMENT

E. Norman Brydges, Elmhurst architect, designed the above addition to the Elmhurst public library in Wilder park, which is expected to be completed in time for the Elmhurst centennial celebration in June. The $20,000 improvement will double the present 15,000 shelf capacity, according to Mrs. H. A. Berens, president of the library board. Allen M. Weary made this perspective. Details are given in another column of this page.

Zurich Rents New Quarters in Field Bldg.

One of the largest leases ever made for air conditioned space downtown was closed yesterday by Robert Carpenter, manager of the Field building. More than 75,000 square feet in that structure have been rented since the start of the year, he said.

Yesterday's lease to the Zurich General Accident and Liability Insurance Company, Ltd., calls for 28,000 square feet on the fourth floor for ten years beginning May 1. This will be the fourteenth prominent insurance company to establish offices in the building, Carpenter said.

The Zurich company, of which Neville Pilling is United States manager, has its home offices in Zurich, Switzerland. The American headquarters, in which there are now more than 300 employés, have been in the Insurance Exchange building for the last 25 years.

"That business conditions are steadily improving throughout the central west is evidenced by the increasing interest shown by prominent out of town firms in establishing representation in this city's financial district," said Carpenter.

"Indicative of this trend, 26 concerns, including leading investment banking and brokerage firms whose headquarters are located in other metropolitan centers, and newly organized companies in this city recently have opened offices in the Field building."

REPORTS DEMAND FOR BETTER TYPE OF RESIDENCES

Sales for the first seven weeks of 1936 were only $20,000 less than the entire year of 1934, according to Robert S. Crane, general sales manager for Quinlan & Tyson, Inc. The majority of the firm's sales this year have been in the more expensive homes, he said.

"There is a very definite demand for the better residences, and the purchasers are showing an entirely different spirit than was manifest two years ago," said Crane. "In two instances the sales were made at the full price asked by the seller, and two other properties were sold to the first and only prospect. This is indicative of a very much better demand and is one of the most encouraging aspects of this year's market."

Among recent sales by Quinlan & Tyson were the residence of Craig B. Hazelwood at 16 Canterbury court, Wilmette, containing 14 rooms and 6 baths, and the purchase of Maj. Lenox R. Lohr's home at 2344 Sheridan road, Evanston, by Northwestern university. There were several others at prices ranging from $17,000 to $87,500.

Rents Chicago's Biggest Garage

The above twenty-five story garage building at 20-40 Quincy street was leased yesterday by the Palmer House company from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a term of years, for use by its patrons as well as the general public. Robert B. Witwer, real estate agent of the hotel, said that an extensive modernization program is contemplated.

Announce 50 Homes for Walsh "Little Farms" Subdivision

Construction of 50 individually owned homes, costing from $2,500 to $4,000, will start about March 15 at 159th street and Kedzie avenue on the "Little Farm" subdivision, according to Fred J. Walsh, president of the Fred J. Walsh company, real estate developers of the project.

This contemplated building program has been made possible by the Federal Housing administration agreeing to insure mortgages providing that 50 homes, all meeting FHA requirements, are under construction within the next 60 days.

Expect 150 by Summer.

Walsh stated that he expected a total closer to 75 to be actually started by the middle of March and that at least 150 will be well under way by midsummer.

"Little Farms" is owned by the Markham Home Owners' association, composed of approximately 1,000 individual families who purchased the homesites after their development by the Walsh organization. The houses will be built on tracts measuring 132 by 178 feet each.

Certain restrictions as to underground service, street lighting, transportation, and zoning have been stipulated by the FHA. These will be compiled with, according to Walsh.

$5 Per Room Per Month.

"When our minimum of 50 homes has been started and FHA insurance provided on the loans partly to cover construction cost, the owner will be able to purchase his home on terms as low as $5 per room per month," Walsh said.

In connection with the Little Farms development John R. O'Connor, FHA district director for northern Illinois, stated that officials of the administration are anxious to secure a volume of business from low cost housing.

"It is the desire of the administration," he said, "that FHA operations be extended into the low cost housing field in order that those in the lower salary and wage brackets may benefit from the program."

Bostonian Shoe Company to Move Its Loop Store

The Bostonian Shoe company, which has been on Monroe street for two decades, will move on or about March 1 from its present location in the Palmer house to 20 West Monroe, in the Majestic Theater building, once occupied by one of Chicago's famous bars. A new store front and modernized interior are contemplated. Pioso & Peterson are architects. The new location was leased through Howard L. Storch of Ross & Browne.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of Feb. 14 to 20, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 17, with a combined cost of $1,214,159. For the corresponding week of last year there were 21 contracts, totaling $692,600. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $3,446,392, compared with $1,879,300 last year.

Low Mortgage Rate Arouses Local Interest

Announcement by Quinlan & Tyson, Inc., on Thursday that the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Milwaukee has reduced interest rates on residential and construction loans to 4½ per cent brought nearly a hundred inquiries from practically every suburb and from various parts of Chicago, according to Howell N. Tyson Jr., treasurer.

"Notwithstanding that we specifically stated these loans would only be made in Evanston, the north shore towns and in Park Ridge, we received calls from just about every western, northwestern, and southern suburb, and even one from Iowa," said Tyson.

These 4½ per cent mortgage loans will be for ten years. There is no commission or service charge for the residential or refinancing loans, which will be made up to 50 per cent of the property value. There will be a 1 per cent commission on construction loans. Quinlan & Tyson are the exclusive representatives of the Northwestern Mutual in the territory specified.

BAIRD & WARNER JANUARY SALES INCREASE 200%

Despite the cold weather during the latter part of January, the real estate sales of Baird & Warner, Inc., for last month increased more than 200 per cent in number and dollar volume over January, 1935, according to Stewart B. Matthews, vice president in charge of sales.

"January, of course, as a rule is a very slow month in the real estate business," said Matthews. "Therefore we feel that the unusual activity at this time is the forerunner of an especially good real estate season this spring and possibly the whole year of 1936."

Commonwealth Edison Co. to Move Logan Sq. Store

The Commonwealth Edison company will move its present Logan square store, at 2618 Milwaukee avenue, to the 42 by 125 foot premises at 2731-33 Milwaukee avenue. It has leased the store from the 2733 Spaulding corporation for five years from May 1, with an option on five years more. Extensive alterations, including a new store front, and possibly air conditioning later, are contemplated. The Realty and Mortgage company represented the lessor and Ward T. Huston & Co. the lessee.

ELMHURST PLANS $20,000 ANNEX TO ITS LIBRARY

Will Be Contribution to Centennial.

A $20,000 modernization program, which will include an addition, is contemplated by the Elmhurst public library board as its contribution to the 1936 Elmhurst centennial and in celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the establishment of the library. The present building in Wilder park has been used since 1922 and growth has made the addition necessary, according to Mrs. H. A. Berens, president of the library board.

E. Norman Brydges, Elmhurst architect, who has designed many Du Page county schools and other public buildings, has completed plans which he says are in keeping with the informal, hospitable style of the old building, erected in 1868.

Will Double Shelf Space.

He said that the changes will double the present shelf space without sacrificing any of the present individual charm of the old rooms. All the old windows will be retained, as will chandeliers and other old fashioned fittings when possible. The exterior walls will be of common brick painted white. The architectural motif is southern colonial.

Work is scheduled to start as soon as frost is out of the ground with the expectation of having it completed by June 6, the opening date of the Elmhurst centennial celebration.

The present building in Wilder park was erected 68 years ago by Seth Wadhams. Later it was owned by H. King of Browning, King & Co., a noted old Chicago clothing concern, who enlarged it to its present size.

Becomes Wilder's Home.

Still later it became the home of F. E. Wilder and at his death the entire estate came to the city through the generosity of Mrs. Wilder and the coöperation of Alben Bates and Otto Balgeman. After the creation of the Elmhurst park district the building on the Wilder estate was turned into a public library in 1922.

According to Mrs. Berens the library has 15,000 books on its shelves with 7,000 registered borrowers. Miss Grace Murray has been librarian for the last ten years. The library board is composed of Mrs. Berens, Mrs. Paul McGary, N. H. Kendall, P. N. Crusius, W. F. Entorf, H. C. Schumacher, H. L. Olsson, A. J. Strand, and L. E. Eaton.

Head of Keeshin Lines Buys River Forest Home

J. L. Keeshin, president of the Transcontinental Freight Lines, Inc., yesterday purchased the residence at the northeast corner of Bonnie Brae and Augusta, in River Forest, from the Ætna Life Insurance company for an undisclosed consideration. The Sharon Mortgage company, correspondents for the Ætna, represented the seller, and William J. Klibanow & Co. the buyer.

TAX RECORDING BY MACHINE TO BEGIN THIS WEEK

System to Be Tried First on Delinquent Accounts.

Installation of the simplified system of recording current realty tax delinquencies and assessments will begin this week when ten specially designed accounting machines are put into use by the county treasurer's office. The new system of mechanical ledger posting is expected to do away with much of the delay and confusion which now faces a taxpayer when he seeks information concerning his delinquent taxes. The treasurer's office expects to extend the system this summer to cover all new tax records and eventually to replace entirely the cumbersome old book ledgers now in use.

Until the efficiency of the new system has been demonstrated, however, and until the legislature has legalized records kept by this method, the old system will continue to operate as the official record. Nevertheless, the new system is expected to give the county treasurer's office a grasp of the delinquent tax payment situation which it lacks at the present time, according to Joseph L. Gill, county treasurer.

Skilled Operators to Start System.

Preparations for receiving the new equipment, for which the county board recently appropriated $190,000, have been going on for several weeks on the tenth floor of the county building, where temporary quarters will be established until remodeling of offices on the fifth floor is completed. With the ten new machines will arrive skilled operators so the machines may be put to immediate use.

Under the present system, as explained by Lee J. Howard, county auditor, the tax warant ledgers are first mechanically prepared under the direction of the county clerk's office after the year's tax assessments have been made. A fresh set of books is prepared each year.

The books then are bound and sent to the county treasurer, to whom the amounts as shown in the books are charged for tax collection. As taxes are paid into the treasurer's office the payment is hand recorded in the ledgers. Howard pointed out that posting is now three months behind the collections, which is one reason why taxpayers find difficulty in learning anything about their accounts.

Books Returned to Clerk.

At the expiration of the second penalty date for the year's taxes the books are closed and returned to the county clerk's office, with an accounting of the funds collected and disbursed, to the taxing bodies of the county.

Then if a delinquent taxpayer wishes to ascertain his bill a clerk from the treasurer's office must go to the clerk's office and search through each volume of past years until the total delinquency is computed. It usually takes about three hours for such a computation. Under the new system it is expected this computation will not require more than fifteen minutes.

Under the present system it is impossible for the county treasurer to keep a check on the delinquent payments, either in total or by land lots. Howard pointed out that this makes possible the falsification of records with a consequent loss of revenue.

METHODIST CHIEF DISOWNS STORY OF BAN IN POLAND

Expects Education Unit to Renew Activity.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Feb. 22.—Following a three hour conference with officials, the Polish foreign office tonight forced Winston Cram of Nashville, Tenn., director of activities of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Poland, to deny statements he had previously made that the Polish government ordered his organization to liquidate its activities in Poland.

The Methodist Society of Education and Culture recently was suspended after Polish authorities announced they had discovered "certain irregularities," including the transfer of funds to the United States without "sufficient explanation."

Sends Message to U. S.

Under pressure of the foreign office, Cram sent the following cable to the headquarters of the Methodist Episcopal church in Nashville:

"Regret to state that inaccurate news concerning liquidation of Methodist activities in Poland has been spread in the United States and affirm that this news is false and the Polish government has never hindered our religious activities. Our educational activities were suspended by local authorities who promise that upon furnishing proof that our activities are legal the suspension order will be withdrawn."

The dispatch concerning the Polish decision to liquidate the Methodist organization here was shown to Cram before being sent to Chicago. The original story contained a statement that the Methodist Society of Education and Culture was publishing an English newspaper known as the Warsaw Weekly which received support from the foreign office in return for publishing government propaganda. Cram, who is editor of the paper, requested that this sentence be deleted, but placed his approval on the remainder of the dispatch.

Promises Investigation.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent also visited the Polish foreign office and sought to ascertain the government's reason for its action. The foreign office was informed that the Methodist Episcopal church was the largest Protestant church in America and that suspending its work in Poland would result in protests. The foreign office promised to investigate.

Following the dispatch of Cram's message to the headquarters of the Methodist church, he announced that the "outlook for Methodists in Poland appears to be better."

Cram also said that "if certain formal irregularities have appeared," the Methodist Education society, "will be glad to remove them by changing the system of administrations."

It was officially announced the organization's property had never been confiscated.

HORNER CHOOSES STATE EMPLOYE, 26, FOR AUDITOR

Gov. Horner's office in Springfield announced yesterday that Homer Mat Adams of Urbana had been chosen to run on the Horner ticket for state auditor. Adams is 26 years old and is chief investigator for the sales tax division. He has been organizing Horner clubs.

Regular Democratic headquarters in Chicago pointed out that the Horner candidate for state treasurer, Joseph T. Spiker, has been a candidate for public office before. In 1914 he ran as a Republican for alderman of the Ninth ward. He received 1,189 votes out of a total 12,231. He ran fourth in a field of five candidates, the winner, Eugene Block, receiving 5,322 votes. In 1930 Spiker ran for Democratic ward committeeman of the same ward and was defeated by Sheldon W. Govier, 3,277 to 2,416.

James H. Kirby of Petersburg, a former state representative, announced he had dropped his plans to run for governor. He indorsed Herman N. Bundesen, regular organization candidate, because, he said, "Gov. Horner never is and never will be a Democrat."

LIQUOR DEALER ROBBED.

Benjamin Eisenberg, 6801 Sheridan road, was robbed of $50 and a quart of wine yesterday by two bandits who forced him into the washroom of the Howard Liquor store, 1537 Howard street, of which he is proprietor.

SENATE REJECTS HOUSE CHANGE IN FARM MEASURE

Bill Sent to Conference; Stirs Angry Protests.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Angry protests from senators today greeted the house's version of the administration farm bill which was approved by that body yesterday. In its latest form the measure gives Secretary of Agriculture Wallace even broader powers to adjust farm output than he had under the invalidated Agricultural Adjustment act.

The senate sent the bill to conference after disagreeing with the house amendments. Vice President Garner appointed Senators Ellison D. Smith [Dem., S. C.], Louis Murphy [Dem., Ia.], James P. Pope [Dem., Idaho], Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.], and Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.] as conferees. McNary refused the appointment on the ground that he had opposed the bill. Another Republican senator will be selected to take his place.

Fight Over Taxes Foreseen.

Meanwhile, a series of tax proposals, each capable of arousing sharp debate and perhaps delaying adjournment of congress, developed in the senate. The $500,000,000 cost of the new farm program must be met as well as the cost of huge relief expenditures for which funds have not yet been requested by President Roosevelt.

The senate tax proposals were:

1. The program of higher income taxes "all up and down the line" advanced by Senator Robert M. La Follette.

2. An excess profit tax on percentages of profit above 7 per cent, proposed by Senator James Couzens.

3. The "billion dollar tax bill" advocated by Senator Harry F. Byrd.

The administration tax program has not yet been submitted.

Assails Inclusion of Tenants.

Senator Smith, chairman of the senate agriculture committee, voiced indignant opposition to a house amendment providing that tenant farmers and sharecroppers shall be included in cash benefits paid landowners for conserving soil and thus controlling production.

"What kind of fool thing is this they have adopted?" Smith roared. "Let's use a little common sense.

"The tenant and the sharecropper get it all now. They are given their part of the crop with no strings on it. The landowner has to pay taxes and the costs of production, housing, implements and repairs. It's not fair that he should give away what he gets for good land practices which make more money for his workers."

The amendment had been proposed by Representative Malcolm C. Tarver, [Dem., Ga.] who declared that tenants and sharecroppers constituted more than 50 per cent of the south's farmers and should be compensated for any loss suffered when the land furnishing their livelihood is entered into a conservation program.

NEW DEALERS LOSE, WIN BY RULINGS OF COURT

Beaten in Securities Suit; Victors on WPA.

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The Fourth United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in two far-reaching cases today. It held the federal public utility act of 1935 could not be applied to organizations involved only in intrastate activities. The court upheld the right of WPA to advance funds for construction of a publicly owned power plant that will compete with private industry.

The ruling concerning the public utility holding company act was given in the case of Burco, Inc., of Baltimore, which was trying to force trustees of its debtor, the insolvent American States Public Service company, to register with the securities and exchange commission.

Features of Decision.

Judge Morris A. Soper of Baltimore gave the opinion which upheld Judge William C. Coleman of the District Court of Baltimore in his ruling that the public service company need not so register.

The appeals court, however, overruled Judge Coleman's reason for his decision. He held the federal utility act itself was unconstitutional. It was pointed out by the appeals court that its decision applied only to the American States case and that the overruling of the District court on its constitutionality aspect specifically set the case apart as one in which the higher court did not attempt to settle that issue.

The Appeals court explained that it had not ruled on the arguments of counsel, including John W. Davis, former Democratic presidential nominee, that the act is unconstitutional, because that issue was not properly involved in this case.

Basis of WPA Ruling.

In the ruling concerning the WPA, the Appeals court upheld the power of congress to enact the public works law. It held the Works Progress administration was acting within the powers conferred by the act in making such a power loan. The higher court ruled that the Duke Power company had not produced sufficient equity in the lower court to warrant the granting of an injunction, which it had obtained against a 3 million dollar plant to be constructed by Greenwood county with WPA funds, at Buzzards Roost, S. C.

Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, took a personal interest in the Duke company's suit against the WPA project. He testified in the United States court in South Carolina.

The United States Appeals court, in that case, reversed Judge H. H. Watkins, who sat in the United States Court for the Western District of South Carolina. He granted the Duke company's petition for an injunction Dec. 31, 1935.

Dr. Len Broughton Dies in Atlanta; Baptist Leader

MRS. MARTIN COUNEY, OPERATOR OF FAIR BABY INCUBATOR, DIES

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Martin A. Couney, 58, who with her husband operated the "baby incubator" exhibit at A Century of Progress in Chicago in 1933 and 1934, died here today after an illness lasting three weeks.

Mrs. Couney was born at Lafayette, Ind. She received her early training as a registered nurse at the old Maurice Porter hospital in Chicago. She and Dr. Couney lived in Chicago for several years. During the last 30 years they have demonstrated the use of infant incubators at expositions in America and abroad.

Mrs. Couney is survived by her husband and a daughter, Hildegarde. A brother, Charles A. Segner, lives in Chicago at 1612 West Wilson avenue.

MRS. R. B. ENNIS, EVANSTON CLUB LEADER, IS DEAD

Mrs. Robert Berry Ennis, who was well known in the civic and club activities of Evanston, died Friday in her winter home at Daytona Beach, Fla., according to word received here yesterday by her friends. Mrs. Ennis, whose home is at 1817 Chicago avenue, Evanston, was president of the Woman's club of Evanston from 1921 until 1923 and was a member of the school board of district No. 77 for a number of years. Her husband was connected with the business department of Northwestern university until his death eight years ago. Mrs. Ennis is survived by two daughters, Mrs. O. H. Breidert, 234 East Pearson street, and Miss June, both of whom were with her when she died. Funeral services will be held today in Daytona Beach.

CLARK MATSON, LAWYER IN CITY 45 YEARS, DIES

A. P. Clark Matson, who had been engaged in the practice of law in Chicago for 45 years, died Friday night in Pleasant Lake, Ind., his boyhood home where he was on a vacation, according to word received here yesterday by his friends. Mr. Matson, who was 69 years old, lived at 1513 Sherwin avenue. He became connected with the firm of Lincoln, Isham & Beale in 1891, shortly after his graduation from the Kent College of Law, and remained with them several years before entering practice for himself. He was survived by his widow, Meta. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in Pleasant Lake.

Lennox Pawle, Actor, Is Dead in Hollywood

GEN. MITCHELL IS LAID TO REST IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The body of Brig. Gen. William E. Mitchell, commander of America's air force in France during the world war, was buried here today beside those of his father and grandfather.

Simplicity marked the services. The only military touch was the sounding of "Taps" and three volleys, fired by an American Legion guard of honor, at the grave.

The flag draped casket was borne into St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church by three of the general's nephews, a friend, and two of his army companions. Thirty-two altar boys and the Rev. Holmes Whitemore preceded the body into the church.

The rites there closed with singing of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

In accordance with the general's own wish, burial was in the family lot here instead of at Arlington National cemetery near Washington, where many of his comrades rest.

Interred in the same lot with the general, who won the sobriquet of "stormy petrel" of military aviation by his outspoken criticism of national air policies, are his father, the late John Ledrum Mitchell, once a United States senator from Wisconsin, and his grandfather, Alexander Mitchell, founder and former president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad.

Gen. Mitchell died in New York Thursday of a heart ailment. He was 57 years old.

C. S. BABCOCK'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD TUESDAY

Funeral services for Charles Samuel Babcock, member of a pioneer Chicago family, and former general attorney for the Chicago Railways company [north and west side street car lines], will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the chapel at 63d street and Harvard avenue. Interment will be at Oak Woods cemetery.

Mr. Babcock, who was 72 years old, died Friday at St. Luke's hospital. He lived at his country home in West Chicago with his wife, the former Hattie Orr of Kenton, O.

Mr. Babcock was born here Dec. 8, 1863, the son of Charles Ferdinand Babcock, whose home was then at Michigan avenue and 27th street. The elder Babcock was principal of the old Holden school on Halsted street.

Mr. Babcock graduated from Harvard university and Northwestern University Law school. He practiced law in Chicago for 48 years as the senior member of the firm of Babcock, Gilruth, Beck, and McConnell. At the time of his death Mr. Babcock was special counsel for the surface lines. At Harvard he was awarded a fellowship in chemistry and maintained an interest in scientific advancement all his life.

GOLDEN GLOVES ARMY MARCHES INTO CHICAGO

BIDS TOMORROW AT STADIUM FOR BERTH IN FINAL

364 Survive Field of 17,000.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The world's greatest amateur boxing show opens tomorrow evening in the world's largest stadium. For three nights a gigantic Golden Gloves army, marshaled from 42 cities in 16 states, joined by Chicago's champions, will strive for 32 qualifying positions in the climax of this tournament, the semi-finals and finals of which will be held March 6.

Forty-two champion teams—from West Virginia to Nebraska, from Minnesota to Tennessee and Oklahoma—yesterday began the march on Chicago and will continue to pour into the city today and tomorrow. These out of town boys will be arrayed against champions of Chicago's Catholic Youth Organization and the 32 sectional champions from Chicago's three tournaments, which this year established an all-time record of more than 4,800 entries.

From Original Field of 17,000.

These 364 boys, a select group from a total list of more than 17,000 contestants which originally sought the right to fight in the Tournament of Champions, are amateur boxing's finest.

Eight of them will become champions of champions. They will receive the high award of a diamond studded golden glove. They will meet New York's Golden Gloves champions in Madison Square Garden on March 23. And they also will be eligible for the American Olympic trials which will be held in Chicago to determine the United States team to compete against two score of nations in Berlin next August.

Four Weights Fight Each Night.

Tomorrow night four weight classes, 112, 118, 126, and 135 pounds, will meet in first and second round battles. Tuesday night the remaining four weight classes, 147, 160, 175 pounds and heavyweights, will have the stage to themselves. Then, on Wednesday night, all winning contestants in all weights will complete round three and the quarter-finals. Each boy will box twice on Wednesday evening.

In addition Chicago's novice tournament qualifiers, 32 boys from the west, south, and north side meets completed last week, will meet in 16 semi-final bouts tomorrow night. The novice champions will be determined Wednesday night.

Forty-two out of town teams will appear at the Stadium. Last year these cities won six of the eight titles. Here is the roster of the invaders, each of which was a center of competition for other towns and cities which blanketed the central states:

ILLINOIS—Bloomington, Centralia, Danville, Joliet, Peoria, Quincy, Rockford, Springfield, and Streator.

INDIANA—Evansville, Fort Wayne, Gary, Indianapolis, Kokomo, Lafayette, Michigan City, South Bend, Terre Haute, and Vincennes.

MICHIGAN—Detroit and Grand Rapids.

MISSOURI—Kansas City and St. Louis.

OHIO—Cincinnati, Cleveland, and Dayton.

IOWA—Burlington, Cedar Rapids, Davenport, Iowa City, and Sioux City.

WISCONSIN—Eau Claire, Green Bay, Kenosha, Milwaukee, and Wisconsin Rapids.

KENTUCKY—Louisville.

MINNESOTA—Minneapolis.

TENNESSEE—Nashville.

NEBRASKA—Omaha.

OKLAHOMA—Oklahoma City.

WEST VIRGINIA—Huntington.

For these teams there is a trophy emblematic of the tournament championship, a silver trophy, which has been won for the last two years by Cleveland. Another silver trophy will

A map of the vast territory that is sending its best amateur fighters to The Chicago Tribune's Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions, which will be held tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday at the Chicago Stadium. Golden Glovesland extends from the Canadian line on the north to the gulf on the south and from the Allegheny mountains on the east almost to the Rockies on the west. Double circles indicate qualifying centers in the various states and the arrows mark subsidiary tournament sites, sponsored by the qualifying centers.

It You Are in Mood for a Fight—Curb That Impulse

BY FRENCH LANE.

The whole thing is likely to cause a lot of complications.

Just for instance, if a fellow should get himself into a little argument with a stranger in the loop today. Chances are it might unconsciously land him in the very thick of the Golden Gloves battles for championships—and we use the word "unconsciously," advisedly.

The town, particularly the loop, is full of winners from the 42 out-of-town Golden Gloves sectional tournaments which have been held simultaneously with the Chicago tournaments.

They're Looking for a Fight.

These boys have come to Chicago looking for a fight. If you have licked all the way from 20 to 50 boys in the last two weeks there might be a chance that the scrap would come out in your favor. But there again the law of averages may be against you.

To escape a black eye it might be well to follow these few general rules:

1. Don't get into an argument with with an Indian. There are about a dozen of them here on the war

WILDCATS HAND PURDUE FIRST DEFEAT, 45-40

Purdue slipped from the lead in the Big Ten basketball race last night as a result of a surprising 45 to 40 defeat at the hands of Northwestern in Patten gymnasium before a capacity crowd of 5,800.

It was the first defeat for the Boilermakers, who had set the pace with eight straight victories. Indiana, by virtue of its victory over Wisconsin, moved into first place in the race with a record of nine victories and one defeat.

Except for a brief period midway in the first half the Wildcats were the masters of the situation. They relinquished the lead during this stage of the battle, but soon recovered their poise and went ahead again to hold a 30 to 22 advantage at half time. They remained ahead, although Purdue pulled up to within two points of tying the score early in the second half.

Kessler Is Stopped.

Northwestern played a superb game offensively and defensively. Bob Kessler, Purdue's scoring ace, was held to two field goals. He made good, however, on nine out of twelve free throws to run his point total to 13 points.

Individual scoring honors went to Glen Downey, Purdue guard, who made six field goals and two free throws for 14 points. Four of his baskets came in the second half and were responsible for the scoring flurry that almost brought a tie.

The Wildcats opened the game with an altered lineup that sent Guy Mercer, junior guard, into the starting array in place of Capt. Duke Vance. As in the past, it was Northwestern's three sophomores who set the scoring pace and provided the winning punch.

Purple Takes Lead.

Mike McMichaels and Fred Trenkle collected five field goals apiece. McMichaels made two out of five free throws, while Trenkle made one out of two. Jean Smith, center, the other sophomore, contributed two field goals and five out of five free throws.

Cub Pitchers Put On Steam at 1st Drill

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 22.—The Chicago Cubs observed Washington's birthday without any reference to cherry trees or veracity. They, the battery men, launched their 1936 training program at 11 o'clock this morning with unprecedented zeal.

Being the class of the National league and eager to repeat last year's pennant accomplishment, most of the pitchers show evidence of having trained all winter. For some reason pitchers always claim they haven't thrown a baseball the entire winter. But on the first day of the formal spring training one always can spot the lads who have been keeping in shape during the off season.

French Starts Curving 'Em.

Larry French, who wintered in southern California, Bill Lee, who passed the off season in Louisiana, and Clay Bryant, who must have done his stuff in a Zanesville, O., gymnasium, were the boys who showed the greatest willingness to cut loose. French even went so far as to cast some curves, an undertaking generally reserved for the third or fourth day of spring training.

All the pitchers took a turn at tossing from the regular diamond mound for twenty or thirty shots while Manager Charley Grimm carefully studied their stuff.

Among those who cut loose to

Venzke Cracks World 1,500 Meter Record

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Gene Venzke, brilliant University of Pennsylvania runner, continued his spectacular winning streak tonight by coming from behind in the stretch to whip Glenn Cunningham by two yards in the 1500 meters race, feature of the national A. A. U. indoor track and field meet. Venzke not only took away Cunningham's title but wiped out his world indoor record by breaking the tape in 3 minutes 49.9 seconds.

A crowd of 15,000, nearly filling the Garden, went wild as the Penn flier scored his third straight triumph of the indoor season over the holder of all world records for the mile. A shower of programs, newspaper, and hats deluged the track as Venzke swept to his first record smashing triumph of the boards since he ran his famous 4:10 mile in the Garden four years ago.

Cunningham Breaks Mark.

Venzke's time eclipsed the world indoor record of 3:50.5 seconds which Cunningham set last year in winning the event for the second straight time. Glenn also was inside the old record as he was clocked tonight in 3:50.1. The world outdoor record, 3:48.8, was set two years ago at Milwaukee by Princeton's Bill Bonthron.

Cunningham was the seventh national indoor champion to meet defeat in the most sensational track and field

TIME SUPPLY 2D BY HALF LENGTH; ROSEMONT NEXT

Santa Anita Crowd Bets $1,246,428.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Arcadia, Cal., Feb. 22.—Top Row, 5 year old brown horse which was worth $3,500 when A. A. Baroni of Reno, Nev., claimed him less than two years ago, brought $112,100 to that canny horseman this afternoon when Top Row ran around his field on the last run and plunged through to the rail in the stretch of the Santa Anita handicap, America's richest stake. His time was 2:04 1-5. Time Supply ran second.

Top Row paid $14.80 to win, $5.40 to place, and $4.80 to show. Top Row's victory under the driving ride of Wayne Wright, yellow haired southpaw jocky, was protested by Jocky Morry Peters, who brought Rosemont in third. Peters claimed Rosemont was bumped in the fight for the pole as the field rounded the last turn of the 1¼ mile race. The protest was disallowed.

Wins by Half a Length.

Top Row, carrying 116 pounds, finished half a length ahead of Frank Carreaud's Time Supply, which in turn held the same margin over the fast coming Rosemont. Fred Alger Jr.'s Azucar, winner of the initial Santa Anita handicap in 1935, finished fourth. Time Supply paid off at $4.20 to place and $4 to show, while Rosemont's backers collected $9.40 to show.

Discovery, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's 3 to 2 favorite, finished seventh, never at any time furnished contention for the leaders, and burnt up $91,191 bet on him to win, place, and show. The great Equipoise, favorite last year, also wound up seventh.

Crowd Exceeds 50,000.

A crowd in excess of 50,000, a goodly percentage of them familiar from newspaper photographs in society, the movies, politics, and industry, saw the race, which was run off just after the weather conditions changed from smiling blue skies to a mist shrouded, drippy, chilly gray.

With the $350,083 pari-mutuel handle for the handicap added in, the day's take for eight races was $1,246,428, the biggest day's betting ever recorded in the history of California racing.

Race Is Worth $135,700.

The race, richest in the United States, was worth a total of $135,700, including bonuses. Baroni, by reason of drawing the $7,500 for winning trainer, in addition to the $104,600 for winning horse, left the track with a fortune—$112,100—larger than that of Alger, the Detroit sportsman whose Azucar won $108,700 last year. Azucar took down $2,500 for his fourth place today.

Like the three horses which finished ahead of him, Azucar made his bid in the stretch after the Hal Price Headley couple of Preëminent and Whopper took an early lead and held it past the three-quarter mile mark where He Did, Mrs. Silas Mason's fast footed brown 3 year old, made his temporary bid and then faded as the distance proved too much for him.

Azucar gathered his speed slowly, and was badly outrun for most of the race, but ended with a characteristic sweep in the stretch. Bumped at the start, Discovery never had a chance to figure in the race, and the opinion volunteered at the stables was that the big red horse has suffered from hard training added to a full year of racing.

Luther Protests, Too.

After whooping it up for Top Row's battle with Time Supply until the echoes reverberated from the Sierra Madra mountains, a few miles to the north, the crowd fell silent while the judges debated a two pronged protest that might have affected the disposition of the $350,083 bet on the race. Jocky Peters protested that Top Row had come over on him early in the stretch. Jocky Tommy Luther, on Time Supply, also lodged a protest. He asserted Rosemont had come over on him. The judges disallowed both protests with the explanation that the boys on all the leaders had been trying to dodge wet spots left on the track by the intermittent rains of the last two weeks.

Another howl went up as the red flag flashed the verdict that the finish was official.

What Might Have Been.

Either Time Supply or Rosemont might have won had it not been for the interference in the stretch. Whopper also suffered in the bumping which brought the protests from Peters and Luther.

Mrs. Anita Baldwin, daughter of the late great turfman, E. J. [Lucky] Baldwin, part of whose ranch, as well as the name for it, were taken over to install the Santa Anita track, made the presentation of the victory floral horseshoe to Top Row, after sharing in the impatience of the 50,000 others to learn which of the pawing, blanketed mounts she was expected to adorn.

The race boosted Top Row's turf earnings to $200,075, sending the side. The advantage was short lived, however, as Seward's free throw and Young's basket, a neat left handed shot, put the Boilermakers ahead 3 to 2. McMichaels dropped in a free throw to tie the score at 3 to 3, but Purdue took the lead again on Young's free throw and a basket by Malaska.

The Boilermakers held this advantage for the next 10 minutes, Northwestern finally assuming the lead at 13 to 12 as a result of a spirited rally in which McMichaels made two long baskets and Trenkle added another. The count was tied a moment later at 15 to 15 on a field goal by Smith followed by a basket and free throw by Kessler.

Purple Step Out.

At this juncture, the Purple opened a drive that netted six points in quick succession as a result of field goals by Bender and Trenkle and two free throws by Smith. They never surrendered this lead.

Jewell Young started the drive early in the final half on which Purdue came with in two points of drawing even. Downey followed with two in a row. Kessler hooked in one from the side and followed it up with a free throw to narrow the gap to 33 to 31.

Northwestern, however, responded to the occasion, cutting loose with a scoring spree that netted seven straight points. This workable lead proved sufficient an enabled the Wildcets to stave off a belated Purdue attack that accounted for five points.

INDIANA WINS, 54-21

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Hitting its fastest pace of the season, Indiana university's basketball team recovered the Big Ten lead tonight by crushing Wisconsin, 54 to 21, while Purdue was losing to Northwestern. The victory was Indiana's ninth in ten games.

Chief factors in the Hoosier attack were Forward Ken Gunning and Fred Fechtman, tall center. Gunning scored 17 points on seven field goals and three free throws, while Fechtman connected five times from the field and three times on free throws for 13 points.

After running up a 25 to 9 lead at half time the Hoosiers scored 12 points before Wisconsin counted on De Mark's free throw.

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Michigan scored its second victory of the season over Iowa tonight, 31 to 25, before the season's record crowd of 8,000.

Capt. Sid Rosenthal managed to stay in the conference scoring race by registering 13 points for top honors.

George Rudness, Wolverine guard, led his mates with 8 points, and established himself as the evening's outstanding defensive star.

After Iowa had jumped into an early lead, a barrage of baskets by John Townsend, Earl Townsend, and Rudness gave Michigan a 19 to 17 lead at the half.

VENZKE BREAKS WORLD RECORD AT 1,500 METERS

Whips Cunningham by 2 Yards in A. A. U. Meet.

show of the season, marked also by the return of Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette to sprint heights as the 50 meter champion, and the third successive setback for Jack Torrance, 300 pound Louisiana holder of all world shot putting records. Torrance lost to his indoor nemesis, Dimmy Zaitz of Boston.

Bright Takes 5,000 Meters Title.

Running the distance faster than any American citizen has ever done on the boards Norman Bright of the Olympic club, San Francisco, romped off with the 5,000 meters title. He set a new meet record of 15 minutes flat, beating Tom Ottey of the Penn A. C., Philadelphia, by ten yards, and Paul Rekers of the New York A. C. by 15 yards.

Bright's time wiped out the former meet mark of 15:01.5, set by John Follows of the New York A. C. in 1924. The world indoor record of 14:32.2 was made by Willie Ritola in 1925.

O'Brien Wins 600 Meter Race.

Continuing his winning streak, Eddie O'Brien of Syracuse, the national outdoor 400 meter champion, added the 600 meter championship to his rapidly growing list of laurels and at the same time notched a new world indoor record of 1 minute 21 seconds flat. O'Brien beat his nearest rival, Fred Kiger of the New York Curb Exchange A. A., by ten yards.

Four world records were knocked off and championship marks set in two other events on the title program. Besides the standards lowered by Venzke and O'Brien, world marks were set by Irving Folwartshny of Rhode Island State, with a toss of 58 feet ½ inch, in the 35 pounds weight throw, and by New York university's quartet in winning the 1,000 meter sprint relay in 2:00.4.

Bright, the 5,000 meters winner, and Manhattan college's 1,600 meter relay team, clocked in 3:19.7, accounted for the additional new meet records.

Joe McCluskey, New York A. C., was the only champion to repeat in the track events. He scored in his specialty, the 3,000 meters steeplechase, and ran in the 1,500 meters event.

Osterhout announced today. A. Barr Snively, also a former Princetonian, has renewed his line coaching contract for three more years.

OFFER KIWANIS ICE CARNIVAL AGAIN TONIGHT

Two Day Show Benefits Crippled Children.

The two day Kiwanis Ice Carnival which opened at the Coliseum last night will be repeated tonight at 8:15 o'clock.

Twenty eight numbers were presented last night and will be repeated tonight. Among the presentations which drew applause were the four Nelson sisters of Minneapolis in quartet events in which teamwork excels. These girls also appear in the ballet numbers with Gladys Lamb, who with Norval Baptie, appears in two exhibitions of original pair skating. Baptie shows some of his old time speed which brought him skating titles 15 years ago.

Proceeds will go to crippled children and blind Boy Scouts organizations.

ATCHESON BEATS PLATAK; KEEPS HANDBALL TITLE

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Sam Atcheson, Memphis, Tenn., retained his national Y. M. C. A. handball singles title by defeating Joe Platak, Chicago, 7-21, 21-11, 21-12, in tournament finals today.

Atcheson, 33 year old paper salesman had to come from behind after being outplayed in the first game of the match.

Platak took the offense at the start of the match. With the score 6 to 5 in Platak's favor, in the opening match, the Chicagoan ran 14 points before Atcheson counted again.

Platak changed his strategy in the third game in an effort to win. He began returning his defensive shots down the left court, but Atcheson met his with a drive that the Chicagoan could not overcome.

NOTRE DAME WINS OVER PITTSBURGH QUINTET, 43 TO 27

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—John Moir, Notre Dame sophomore forward, broke two Notre Dame scoring records and led the Irish to a 43 to 27 victory over the Pitt Panthers tonight. Moir scored 25 points to break the single game scoring record established in 1934 by Ed Krause against Minnesota. Moir's total also gave him 219 points for the season, seven more than Krause scored in 1932-'33. Notre Dame led at the half, 16 to 10.

The Irish took the game in stride without the pyrotechnics that marked their last two victories over Kentucky and N. Y. U. Late in the game, as Moir approached the single game record, his mates, particularly Co-Capt. Johnny Ford, concentrated on feeding him the ball.

BREVITY SCORES EASY VICTORY IN RACE AT HIALEAH

Widener Star Pays $3.00 in Washington Stake.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hialeah, Fla., Feb. 22.—Joseph E. Widener sent his Florida and Kentucky Derby candidate, Brevity, to the post for the first time this season in the George Washington stakes at a mile this afternoon.

Before the largest crowd of the Hialeah season, the handsome bay fellow outdistanced five others of his age to win by three lengths in 1:36, only four-fifths of a second off the track record set three weeks ago by Steel Cutter with only 93 pounds up. Brevity in this trial appearance carried 119 pounds with Jocky Don Meade in the saddle. Mutuels paid $3.00 for $2.00.

Brevity Sets Pace.

Starting out of the chute Flag Cadet broke on top but in a few strides Brevity was in front and set the pace down the back stretch with Dnieper, stablemate in attendance. The Widener colt was running easily, justifying the odds of 1 to 2. He opened a margin at one time of a half dozen lengths but Meade eased him up a bit, and let the colt follow his own liking without urging through the stretch.

Columbiana closed fast to take second money from Dnieper by two lengths, the latter a half length before Bright Plumage, a highly regarded Derby prospect from the C. V. Whitney barn. Bright Plumage was in the second flight, following Brevity and moved up in the general challenge at the far turn, but hung at the end. Flag Cadet and Gallant Gay were fifth and sixth.

Sablin Wins Handicap.

Brevity's performance establishes him definitly as one of the choices for the Derby two weeks from today. His chances also are enhanced by the unofficial declaration today of Tintagel, Marshall Field's Belmont Futurity winner of last year. Tintagel was kicked yesterday by Stand Pat while the two were on the track waiting word for a public trial. Trainer George Odom said the injury did not appear serious, but necessitates a let up of four or five days in training, so it was deemed inexpedient to send the colt over the Derby route not fully prepped.

Sablin from E. F. Seagram's Canadian stable triumphed in the third running of the Joseph McLennan Memorial handicap at a mile and one furlong. The event was named in honor of the former racing secretary of Arlington Park and Hialeah. Sablin paid $5.30 to win, but this favoritism was due to his stablemate Stand Pat, which won the event last year.

Corinto Runs Second.

Corinto and Nectarine from the stable of Mrs. Emil Denemark, Chicago sportswoman whose horses have won more frequently here than those from any other barn, finished one-two behind Sablin with Chance Ray in fourth place.

Chance Ray was pacemaker with the field closely bunched a length behind. Corinto tried to squeeze through on the rail at the head of the stretch but Sablin, two notches farther out, was running strong in a bunch of five, which included Montagna, Stand Pat, and Nectarine.

With a possible blanket finish impending, Jocky Longden struck Sablin with the whip. Sablin broke away from his company to win by two lengths, Corinto being a head before Nectarine, and the latter a nose in front of Chance Ray. Stand Pat finished next to last.

Sablin Named for Cup Race.

Following his stake victory, Sablin was named as a supplementary entry for the Widener challenge cup handicap next Saturday. This was the last day for making supplementary entries at a fee of $150 compared to the original nomination fee of $25.

Helen Moody Drawn for Place on Coast Jury

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Helen Wills Moody, tennis star, arrived home today from a three weeks stay in the east to be informed her name had been drawn for jury duty. She thought the experience would be interesting. Mrs. Moody again said she would participate in major tournament play this year.

TOP ROW MAKES SURE OF YEAR'S HAY SUPPLY

Top Row (No. 9) flashes across the finish line first in the Santa Anita handicap yesterday at the California track—a victory that meant just $104,600 to Owner A. A. Baroni of Reno, Nev. Baroni also collected $7,500 as the winner trainer. Photograph shows Time Supply (No. 8) coming home second, half a length behind, with Rosemont third and Azucar (No. 1), the 1935 winner, in fourth place.

Top Row Beats Time Supply in Rich Handicap

brown son of Peanuts-Too High well along on the road toward Sun Beau's all time record of $376,744.

The race was run much as Top Row's strategy board had wished and willed. The Headley team of Preëminent and Whopper, and then He Did and Singing Wood furnished the early burst of speed that swung them past the quarter in :22 3-5, the half in :46 and the three-quarters mark in 1:10 4-5. Around the far turn, staying power began to tell against early speed. Luther sent Time Supply down on the rail. Top Row moved up on the outside as He Did, leader for a moment, fell back. Discovery tried to press through also, but the big Vanderbilt ace had left his fire along the training routes in prior weeks, and was unable to threaten.

As they wheeled around the bend and into the stretch for the final quarter, Top Row was bowling along in front and had gained the pole position. Time Supply was crowding his flying heels. Rosemont was third. Azucar was fourth. Discovery, never until then better than ninth in the field of fifteen, couldn't move forward far because of the wall of hoofs in front of him.

Preëminent, which was first for much of the 1¼ miles, placed in last position among the fifteen horses. He Did, which also led for a moment, ended up fourteenth.

Back of Top Row, Time Supply, Rosemont, and Azucar, the order of finish was Whopper [Preëminent's stablemate], Howard, Discovery, Pompey's Pillar, Thursday, Tick On, Ariel Cross, Singing Wood, Riskulus, He Did and Preëminent.

Wright Is Hero.

Jocky Wright, who came to Santa Anita from the Hialeah meeting in Florida a couple weeks ago, drew $1,750 from the track, besides his usual split of 10 per cent. Time Supply won $10,000 for second place, and his trainer, C. A. Roles, drew $2,500. Time Supply's jocky, Luther, got $750. Rosemont's take for third place was $2,500.

Much of the today's glory goes to Jocky Wright, who came from Florida just for the big stakes at Santa Anita. He was runnerup to Charley Stevenson for the American jocky honors last season. Baroni brought him to California last month and then sold his contract to Joseph E. Widener. Wright is a blond 23 year old, known for for his slam bang ability to push his mount through at the finish.

OSHKOSH STARS WIN.

Oshkosh, Wis., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The Oshkosh All Stars beat the Firestone Tires of Akron tonight, 38 to 33 in a basketball game.

Santa Anita Handicap Chart

Times, :22 3-5, :46, 1:10 4-5, 1:37 4-5, 2:04 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Top Row, $14.80 straight, $5.40 place, $4.80 show; Time Supply, $4.20 place, $4.00 show; Rosemont, $0.40 show. Winner, b. h., 5, by Peanuts-Too High. Owner, A. A. Baroni. Trainer, A. A. Baroni. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

TOP ROW worked his way up on the inside after going a half mile and took a short lead in the stretch after crossing in front of TIME SUPPLY, WHOPPER and ROSEMONT, and stood a hard drive gamely to win. TIME SUPPLY also made his move the last half mile and, showing an exceptionally fine effort, might have won but for interference. ROSEMONT was always close up and showed a splendid effort despite meeting with stretch interference. AZUCAR was badly outrun to the last quarter, but was gaining at end. WHOPPER raced forwardly but was done after suffering in the jam in the stretch. HOWARD made up much ground. DISCOVERY was bumped at start, raced on the outside all the way and, although making a brief move on the back stretch, was never a serious contender. HE DID, PREEMINENT and SINGING WOOD tired badly.

Time, 1:17 1-5 [new track record]. Two dollar mutuels paid: Reaping, $18.00 straight, $6.40 place, $4.10 show; Lady Higloss, $3.30 place, $2.50 show; Spixi, $3.80 show. Winner, br. g., 3, by Sickle-Duches Lace. Owner, J. E. Widener. Trainer, P. Coyne. Start good. Won galloping; place driving.
REAPING broke alertly, opened long lead in first quarter mile, drew away in stretch and was only galloping at end. LADY HIGLOSS was hard ridden all the way and had no excuse. SPIXI away well, showed good speed and held on gamely. MARTIN BARTON came from far back. INDIANTOWN was kept on the outside all the way.

SECOND RACE—Three furlongs. Two year olds. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

GOLDEY F broke fast, showed good speed and stood long drive gamely. ODDESA GIRL moved up fast in final furlong, swerved over to inside, blocking PERLETTE, then drew away and was a fast going second. PERLETTE might have won, but was blocked in stretch and boy forced to take up abruptly. COURT SCANDAL swerved to the inside rail just after the break and ran straight down on rail. CANDLELIGHT had no mishap. FRISCO KID lacked speed.

THIRD RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Three year olds and up. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

LAUGHING SUN away well, followed pace to the stretch, where he took lead, drew away and won nicely in hand. POLISH BEAU was sent to the front with a rush, displayed good speed and held on gamely. BRANNON was hard ridden all through stretch. COEQUEL ran a disgraceful race, being outrun from the first jump. ZUNI flash of speed. VOTE BOY stopped.

BREVITY ran as if much the best of the field. He was sent to the front going into first turn, opened a wide gap in run down back stretch and, rated along drew away easily at end. COLUMBIANA under restraint in early part, closed gamely and was a fast going second. DNIEPER was rated along in second place to the stretch where he tired. BRIGHT PLUMAGE on the outside all the way, ran good race for first time out.

FIFTH RACE—Mile and one-eighth. Three year olds and up. Purse, $5,000 added. Net value to winner, $4,470; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250.

Time, 1:49 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Sablin, $5.30 straight, $3.20 place, $3.30 show; Corinto, $3.70 place, $5.70 show; Nectarine, $5.70 show. Winner, b. g., 4, by Display-Flamante. Owner, E. F. Seagram. Trainer, F. Gilpin. Start good. Won easily; place driving.
SABLIN away well, but was allowed to rate back of the early pace for six furlongs, began to move up around the turn, took lead entering stretch, and won nicely in hand. CORINTO suffered a lot of interference when he attempted to go up on inside. He was in close quarters the last half mile. NECTARINE got away fast, showed speed around first turn, was then allowed to drop back and, taken very wide the rest of the way, tired in final drive. CHANCE RAY was rushed into lead, showed good speed for a mile, then tired. MANTAGNA closed a big gap. STAND PAT well up for five furlongs, then stopped and was being eased up at finish.

Time, 2:01. Two dollar mutuels paid: Polo Bar, $21.00 straight, $9.00 place, $6.00 show; El Puma, $4.30 place, $3.10 show; Eudes, $3.50 show. Winner, b. h., 7, by Durbar II.-Parco. Owner, Miss A. Doris. Trainer, H. L. Campbell. Start bad. Won easily; place same.
POLO BAR, well handled, began to close ground turning into stretch, assumed lead a furlong out, and won nicely in hand. EL PUMA worked his way up and finished fast. EUDES made his bid turning out of backstretch, but faltered in final furlong. CAPT. JERRY showed good speed, but weakened badly. MIXED PARTY broke sideways and ducked to the outside rail, but quickly recovered and ran into a contending position, then tired, and was eased up at end.

Society Folk, Movie Actors See Big Race

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Arcadia, Cal., Feb. 22.—No less glittering than the sudden sun, gilding the infield for the first time in two weeks, was the splendor of today's turnout of society sables and movie satins, conspicuous among the 50,000 who gathered for Santa Anita handicap day at the Santa Anita track.

A gentle south wind coaxed the hovering, hazy rain clouds back behind the Sierra Madre mountains, a short distance to the north of the racing oval, and held back a misty precipitation until late in the afternoon. Thus spring fashions got their long awaited chance to appear before appreciative thousands.

The track began to fill up at 9 o'clock this morning. By post time for the first race at 1 p. m. the vantage points of the Turf club balcony and the ranks of wicker chairs on the brick walk of the clubhouse presented distinction in every square yard.

Robert Lehman Attends.

Among easterners was the party of Robert Lehman, international banker and one of the directors of the David Selznick motion pictures. Mr. Lehman is a brother of the governor of New York. In his party were Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Schwartz, owners of the famous steeplechaser, Jack Horner, winner of the 1926 Grand National at Aintree, England; Thomas Hitchcock, international polo star, and Mrs. Hitchcock, niece of Andrew Mellon; Maj. Rex Benson of London, banker and sportsman, and M. L. Schwartz, brother of Banker A. C. Schwartz. The Jock Whitneys and the David Selznicks were hosts to Mr. Lehman's party.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Small of Detroit were present. Capt. and Mrs. E. G. Fleming of Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Alger Jr. of Detroit attended. Mrs. Alger Jr. was in a navy suit and wearing orchids. Mr. Alger is owner of Azucar, last year's winner. Also present was Mrs. Frederick Alger Sr. of Detroit.

Chicagoans See Races.

Among Chicagoans at the track were Mr. and Mrs. George Mercy and Mr. Charles B. Morse.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt had as his guests Horace Kelland of New York, Mrs. William Irving Hollingsworth Jr., and Miss Gloria Baker, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Emerson.

Prescott W. Scott was entertaining Lord and Lady Lionel Tennyson. Dwight Whiting had as his guests Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Lytle, John A. Bullard, Willard Keith, George N. Whiting, Herbert Kron, Victor Ford Collins, and Eugene Hill-Smith.

Movie Actors Present.

There probably wasn't a picture star left in Hollywood today, for the film folk take their horse racing very seriously. Among owners of race horses at the track were Bing Crosby, Joe E. Brown, Dave Butler, Raoul Walsh, Al Jolson, Clark Gable, Leo McCarry, John Cromwell, and Leon Gordon.

As associate members of the Turf club Ray Griffith, Jane Darwell, Warner Baxter, Walt Disney, Basil Rathbone, Richard Arlen, Fred Astaire, Pat O'Brien, Cedric Gibbons [husband of Dolores Del Rio], Cecil DeMille, Robert Leonard, Norman Taurog, Jack Conway, Kay Francis, Charley Ruggles, Gene Markey, Claudette Colbert, James Gleason, Ann Sothern, and Frank Borzage brought lively parties.

One of the larger parties was that of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil De Mille, including Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Calvin [Cecilia De Mille], Katherine De Mille, and Erik Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harper [Constance Garland], Mr. and Mrs. John De Mille, and Mrs. Oliver Grismer. The De Mille boxes adjoined that of Hal Roach, president of the track, and his party.

Harold Lloyds Visit Track.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd came back from Palm Springs for the big race. Mrs. Lloyd was in a blue tailored suit that she just got from Paris, dark blue hat with blue grosgrain ribbon, and a mink coat.

George Burns and Gracie Allen were present. Gracie wore a gray tweed suit, black fedora type felt hat with silver buckle in front, black shoes, black blouse, and caracul coat.

Barbara Stanwyck Attends.

Barbara Stanwyck looked striking in cape ensemble of gray wool, the cape trimmed with large pompons of matching sweater wool.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Penner came up from Palm Springs. Her outfit consisted of beige sports suit, with brown belt; beige felt hat, mink coat.

Top Row's Owner Under Indictment on Dope Charge

A. A. Baroni, owner of Top Row, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap yesterday, is under federal indictment in Chicago on a charge of violating the narcotic laws.

Federal officials yesterday said they did not know when his case would be called, but that it probably would be tried some time during the coming summer. Baroni is at liberty on bond.

Baroni was arrested along with a half dozen horse owners and trainers by federal agents at the Arlington Park track in Chicago late in July, 1934. They were charged with using narcotics to stimulate their horses.

Only one of the cases have been tried, that of Jack Howard, Kentucky horseman. It resulted in a conviction.

Federal agents yesterday were of the opinion that Baroni's case would be the next called.

LEAFS SEEK TO CONVINCE HAWKS FANS ARE WRONG

Toronto Ready to Prove They're Still Tough.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, an efficient troupe of young Canadians who have long been known as a hocky player's hocky team throughout the National league, will invade the Chicago Stadium this evening in an effort to squelch an ugly rumor that has been seeping through the league's grapevine of late.

This dastardly canard has it that the Leafs can be beaten. That may not sound like an impossibility, but time was when it was a large evening's work even to tie the lads from Toronto, so workmanlike were they about their chores. They were verily, a machine, the offensive cogs of which were geared to the highest point, with a stout defense for a chassis that would stand miles of punishment.

Leafs Like to Adjust Figures.

But, alas, cry the Leafs' detractors, such are the evils of the machine age. They murmur that Toronto still has a spanking good machine, but it's not what it used to be, and the official statistics of the league have conspired with them to strengthen the suspicion. It is with a view to adjusting those figures and silencing these rumors that the Leafs will skate onto the Stadium ice tonight with a fervent desire to run the Hawks into that ice.

The Leafs will have plenty of reason for wishing to whip the Hawks as soundly as they can, for the Chicagoans have taken more than one laurel away from them at this point in the campaign.

Then There's That Kid Line.

There is the matter of their famous kid line of Charley Conacher, Joe Primeau and Harvey Jackson. Until injuries separated them earlier, they had, in six and one-half seasons 813 points. This left them not far short of the Rangers' line of the Cooks and Frank Boucher, who counted 1,081 in the nine and one-half campaigns they played together before Lester Patrick broke them up.

Even as it was once customary for the Leafs to be leading the league by half dozen games, so was it the thing for Conacher or Jackson to be out in front of all individual scorers. In four seasons, Conacher led the league twice, and Jackson twice.

What About That Blackhawk Line?

The current standings, however, reveal a different story. There is the matter of the best scoring line in the league. No longer is it the Conacher-Primeau-Jackson trio, but a threesome composed of Blackhawks—Doc Romnes, Paul Thompson and Mush March. The Chicago line is now pacing the entire league with an aggregate of 82 points. Add to that the fact that Romnes now holds the individual lead in the American section, and you can understand why the Leafs are slightly riled. Jackson hadn't scored a goal in 21 games up to last night.

Still another grievance is the matter of goalies. In the Toronto nets this evening will be that paragon of nonchalance, old George Hainsworth. George is getting on somewhat, and he hasn't had exactly the best season of his career this year, having already allowed 33 goals as of last Thursday eve. The other end of the ice will have the standout rookie of the year, Mike Karakas, now second in the race for the Vezina trophy.

The Hawks, providing Johnny Gottselig and Art Wiebe, both injured, are available, will be more than ready for the Leafs. The Chicagoans now trail the leading Detroit club by a game and a half. A victory for the Hawks and a defeat for the Wings against the Americans at Detroit tonight would bring the local team half a game from the American section lead.

SOX REACH CAMP TODAY; PICK UP STRATTON, WYATT

Squad Is Ready for First Drill at Pasadena.

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The first contingent of White Sox will reach its training base at Pasadena, Cal., tomorrow morning and by afternoon the pitchers, catchers and a few infielders who have played 500 rhummy across the country for the last two days expect to engage in their first drill.

No definite word of tomorrow's schedule was available on the Sox special, Manager Jimmy Dykes having preceded the squad to camp via boat from New York, but it was not expected he would allow the athletes to waste any time once they arrived at their coast headquarters.

In addition to Dykes, the squad, which has been in charge of Coach Billy Webb and Traveling Secretary Joe Barry, will be met by Outfielder Mule Haas, who accompanied Dykes on the boat trip through the Panama Canal.

Stratton Trails Squad.

The squad was increased this morning by the addition of Monty Stratton and Whitlow Wyatt, who were picked up at El Paso, Tex. Wyatt boarded the special, but Stratton had trouble with his reservation and was forced to make the remainder of the trip on the second section, missing out on the rhummy games, which have occupied the players since they entrained at Chicago Thursday night.

Each member of the party is anxious to start work, although only one is faced with a strenuous schedule of conditioning. He is Tony Piet, the Chicago boy who came back to the big leagues last year to play some excellent second base for the Sox. Piet's plight is voluntary. Spring training has been a hardship for Piet since he arrived in organized baseball and each spring he has quit camp dried out and tired. This year he purposely put on about 14 pounds, bringing his weight to 195, giving him something to work on when the rigid drills are started in another week. He hopes by this scheme to be at playing weight, full of fire and ready for midseason performances on opening day.

Webb Is Enthusiastic.

Reports of a favorable change in the weather at Pasadena and Los Angeles, which have been subjected to rains and cloudiness the last week, heartened the squad and were particularly gratifying to Coach Webb, who has been fidgetty and restless since the departure from Chicago. He has rookie trouble. Webb, a veteran in baseball, believes the Sox have some of the outstanding young prospects in the major leagues on their roster and is anxious to get them into action to confirm his opinion.

He is particularly interested in four Chicago boys, Pitchers Russell Evans and Ira Hutchinson, Catcher George Caithammer and Infielder Charles Uhas. This quartet, he thinks, will develop enough in the early weeks of the season to be of real value to the Sox in the championship campaign. If they meet Webb's expectations, they undoubtly will be the difference between a first and second division berth for the south siders. Webb's enthusiasm is making an impression, for as a rule he evinces little concern over rookies until they have established themselves.

more than average extent was Lon Warneke. In yesterday's photographic workout Lon did a little mild tossing which meant nothing especially. Today he really put something on the ball. There was widespread jubilation in camp when Lon announced he felt perfectly normal.

Rookie Ford Pleases the Boss.

Manager Grimm continued to look upon Gene Ford, last year's captain at the University of Iowa, as one of his best prospects. Ford, who played for Peoria after leaving Iowa, did not have an impressive record in his first professional job. Grimm has thrown out all statistics, however, and thinks he has a comer in this big Iowa farm boy.

What had become known as the Great Hack Trunk Mystery was solved shortly after noon today. Stanley Hack came to camp six days ahead of the squad with one of the most impressive retinues that ever joined up with a ball outfit. With Stan were Mrs. Hack, their infant son, Stanley Camfield Hack Jr., Stanley Jr.'s nurse, Mrs. Hack's maid and the family's cocker spaniel, Splinters II. [Splinters I. was slain by a ruthless motorist.]

But getting back to the Great Trunk Mystery: While the Hack entourage was en route to Los Angeles from Sacramento a thief stole Mrs. Hack's purse. In it were the claim checks for the four personal Hack trunks. Stanley and the missus did not think about the checks until time to turn them over to Baggage Master Andy Lotshaw when the squad reached Los Angeles yesterday morning.

All Ends Well.

Then it was found the trunks had been claimed. Imagine the distress of the elaborate Hack party having to live out of a hand satchel for two days. And how happy Stan was when Los Angeles police phoned today they had recovered the property.

In the interest of churchgoing, tomorrow's practice will not start till noon. The news reel gents, busy at Santa Anita today, will be over for their show tomorrow.

Table Tennis Tips

[This is the tenth of a series of weekly articles on table tennis by Coleman Clark, former national champion, present western doubles champion and authority on this sport. Readers are invited to send contributions and address questions to the conductor of the column, care Chicago Tribune, Tribune Square, Chicago.]

BY COLEMAN CLARK.

We have noticed that many novices use an entirely wrong stance. The beginner makes the mistake of standing usually in a position both awkward and unnatural. Isn't it strange how we lose our natural balance or equilibrium when we start playing games, and yet how important it is! Beginners, for some reason or other, generally stand too near the table, tense and strained. In such a pose good playing is impossible.

Stand 18 Inches Back.

To be concrete let us take a position one and one-half feet behind the table, and squarely facing it so that the whole table can be covered. Stand so you can with equal facility play forehand or backhand as the ball comes to your right or your left. Let the experts take liberties with the stance and let them play far back from the table. Applaud their brilliant smashing shots, but do not attempt this kind of advanced play until you have learned control and the close to the table half-volley games which will make you tough to beat even if you have little else.

Service Overemphasized.

It is our opinion that too much stress is placed on the serve. Of course, more than one type of delivery is necessary as is a certain amount of placement and change of pace. We may feel that time is wasted in devoting hours to perfecting trick serves and those of excessive spin. As a matter of fact, a good player rarely misses a serve of any kind and generally merely attempts to place the ball into play. Bear in mind, too, that table tennis is a game where points are more often won through errors than from aces. Moreover, trick serves are not easy to control.

Service Return Important.

We believe that it is far more important to practice on returning serves than in delivering them. The competitor who is capable of returning any sort of service is respected. The safest way to return service is generally to "push" or half volley it back. Drives of service are dangerous, but chops less so. The chop is satisfactory if it has sufficient underspin on it; otherwise it is too easily smashed by the server.

League Gossip.

The standing of the Chicago Industrial league, played each week at the Stay and Play club, 168 W. Monroe street follows:

| | W. | L. |
|---|---|---|
| M. O. T. A. | 5 | 0 |
| Flexible Lacing | 4 | 1 |
| Diversey Corp. | 4 | 2 |
| Santa Fe R. R. | 3 | 2 |
| Harlan T. T. | 2 | 2 |
| Reid Murdoch | 2½ | 3 |
| Acme Steel Co. | 1½ | 4 |
| Station WJJD | 0 | 3 |

The Commonwealth Edison company and the Peoples Gas company have opened league competition at the Stay and Play club each Tuesday and Monday night respectively. A hundred enthusiasts participate. There will be an Inter league event Wednesday evening March 25, in which leading teams from all leagues in the city will be invited to play.

Here and There.

Abbott Nelson is singles champion of the Glencoe Table Tennis club. In the semi-finals he defeated Dan Kreer and took the measure of Judson Cross in the finals. The biggest surprise on the local season was the capturing of the Illinois State tourney by Leslie Lowry, Chicago south sider. The recent defeat of Viktor Barna, world's champion in the semifinals of the English Tournament by Hagenauer of France who in turn was beaten in the finals by Ehrlich of Poland comes as a shock but not a surprise. Barna did not fare well against Bellak and Szabados in a recent tour of England. Barna's superb form, we believe has suffered since his playing arm was broken last summer.

100 LAP AUTO SWEEPSTAKES HEADS CARD

A 100 lap sweepstakes will be the chief event tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, when the leading auto racers of the central states compete. The 100 lap grind will be divided into five heats of 20 laps instead of a straightaway 100 lap merry-go-round.

At present Jimmy Snyder, Ronnie Householder and Wally Zale of Chicago; Pat Warren and Curly Mills of Los Angeles, Tony Willman of Milwaukee, and Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis are ruling the auto race situation in Chicago. These drivers have piled up their advantage primarily on driving skill and the speed of their motors. Under the new racing plan endurance of both driver and durability of his automobile will be the deciding factor, officials believe.

A driver must complete all five heats and wind up the 100 laps of driving to share in the purse money.

NO BENCH FOR TERRY; HE WILL PLAY 1ST BASE

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The Giants, first of the three local baseball clubs to break their winter schackles, headed south tonight, for their Pensacola, Fla., training camp on the heels of an announcement by Manager Bill Terry, who is already at the camp, that he isn't going to come in out of the hot sun this summer, after all. When the Giants yesterday reclaimed Sam Leslie from Brooklyn, it was freely predicted Terry would jump at the chance to become a bench manager.

INDIANS GO SOUTH.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 22.—[U. P.]—The Cleveland Indians' pitchers and catchers left tonight for New Orleans, where on Monday they will start drill under Steve O'Neil, beginning his first full season as manager. Infielders and outfielders will report on March 1. Johnny Allen, the ex-Yankee traded for Monte Pearson during the winter did not accompany the squad. He is still negotiating with the club over salary and if he doesn't report at New Orleans tomorrow he will be classified officially as a holdout. Among catchers making the trip is Billy Sullivan, former White Sox, purchased from Cincinnati.

NO. 13 FOR HARRIS.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Stanley [Bucky] Harris, accompanied by half dozen rookies, left tonight for the Senators' training camp at Orlando, Fla., where on Monday he starts his 13th season as a major league manager. His chief experiment at Orlando will be an attempt to fit Cecil Travis at short and Buddy Lewis, the Chattanooga rookie, at third base in his infield.

MEN!
DON'T MISS THIS CHANCE TO WIN $12,000
IN CASH PRIZES

Do you like a good cigar? Then step up to the nearest cigar counter and enjoy the one that pleases more smokers than any other cigar in America. Yes, we mean Bayuk PHILLIES. And do it now! Because there's a big prize contest open to smokers.

Some smoker who has tried PHILLIES is going to win $2,500. It might as well be you. And there are 82 other big cash prizes. The smallest of them is a check for $50. This time the women and youngsters are out! This is a contest for men only. And if there was ever a simpler, easier contest we've never heard about it.

HERE'S WHAT TO DO

1. Write us—in not more than 100 words—why you like the Bayuk PHILLIES Cigar. (Your dealer will assist you in preparing your entry and give you all necessary information.)
2. Send us three PHILLIES Cigar bands—or three pencil drawings of the band.
3. Give name and address of dealer from whom you bought the cigars.
4. Mail your entry to Contest Editor, Bayuk Cigars Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.
5. Prizes will be awarded for what you say—not how you say it.

Send in as many entries as you please. But each entry must be accompanied by three PHILLIES bands, or drawings of the band. All entries must be in the mail before midnight, April 10th.

HERE ARE THE PRIZES FOR SMOKERS

|---|---|
| FIRST PRIZE | $2,500.00 |
| SECOND PRIZE | $1,000.00 |
| THIRD PRIZE | $500.00 |
| 80 PRIZES OF | $50.00 EACH |

In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

Maybe you don't "go in for contests," Well, here's one that's different. It takes no particular skill. Every man has an equal start. The college professor has no better chance than the man who works with his hands. Just tell us in plain, every-day words why you like PHILLIES. The prize winning entries will not necessarily be the cleverest or written in the best English. It's what you say—not how you say it—that will count.

Don't miss a chance at the easiest $2,500 a man ever received! Drop in any store where they sell cigars. Enjoy PHILLIES today! When you have saved three bands, send us that prize winning letter, enclosing the three bands or three drawings of the bands.

DEALERS' CASH PRIZES

| | |
|---|---|
| FIRST PRIZE | $1,250.00 |
| SECOND PRIZE | $500.00 |
| THIRD PRIZE | $250.00 |
| 80 PRIZES OF | $25.00 EACH |

MR. CIGAR DEALER: Can you use one of these big cash prizes for dealers? Want to increase your chances of winning one? Ask the salesman who supplies you with PHILLIES how you can do it.

There's another prize you can't help winning. And that is a lot of new steady customers for America's largest-selling cigar.

Bayuk

TWO MARKS FALL IN WINDY CITY MAJOR LEAGUE

G. and W. Team Hits High Game of 1,165.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Pins act extremely stubborn in the Windy City Major league as a rule, but they have to fall some time. That's what happened at the last session, when both high series and high game fell before the accurate shooting of two of the organization's leading teams.

First the G. & W. Distillery team, led by Jerry Peck, crashed through with a count of 1,165, that established new high game for the year. While reports of this lofty total were circulating about the premises the O'Keefe Coals were firing away at high team series. By winding up with a 1,020 game after having 1,077 and 1,095 the O'Keefes accomplished their objective with 3,192.

Against such shooting the Mineralites, who have been close up in the league race all season, were helpless and absorbed three defeats. This dropped them five games behind the pace setting O'Keefes, but between these first and third place teams are the dangerous Balzek Tailors, who trail the O'Keefes by only one game. While setting the new high series record the O'Keefes had every man over the 600 mark.

North End League.

Three 700 series featured the rolling in the North End Traveling league. George Notz toppled 725, while the Schamberger Schlitz five crashed through with 3,223 to sweep their series with the Westers. Joe Sinke contributed 720 to the league leading Birk Brothers' 3,150 total, which buried the Michelobs, and Joe Gratz's 713 series helped the Goldammer Milfords to a 3,115 total and two victories over the Samuelson's Arcades. Tomorrow night's schedule:

Fox De Luxe at Idle Hour, 7 p. m.; Michelobs vs. Roosevelts at Gold Coast, 9 p. m.; Samuelsons vs. Westers at Bryn Mawr, 7 p. m.; Schambergers vs. Birks at Willow, 7 p. m.; Milfords vs. Reeds at Lincoln Square, 7 p. m.

On North Side Alleys.

A total of 3,033, high series for the week, enabled the Budweisers to win two games and stay on the heels of the Fuller Press quintet, which also scored two victories, in the Gold Coast Major league. Johnny Johansen collected a 679 series and Wally Daglow picked up a 259 game, which helped the Roosevelt Brewing team sweep their series. . . . Stanley Woznicki paced the Chicago Junior Traveling league with a 650 series. Red Barak helped himself to 641; George Dawson shot 637 and Pat Panzek 621. George Winger remained atop the individual standing with an average of 195, and the Neumann Tailors led the teams with 44 won and 25 lost.

On South Side Alleys.

Bill Lenzen is leading the All-Star Individual league at White City with 310 points, accumulated while winning 39 games and losing 26. Augmented by several postponed series, the regular schedule for this afternoon will be:

Al Rankin vs. Eli Maricich; Harry Halgren vs. Lee Hile; Tom Chyzy vs. Eddie Zajac; Ad Plunge vs. Joe Wilman; Wally Freitag vs. Sykes Thoma; Bill Lenzen vs. Jim Waterson.

Harry Sherman found the pocket and clicked with a 672 series that led the Woodlawn House league. Louis Kobza and Al Hess tied at 647. Then came Frank Brown, 642; George Bernstein, 632; Ed Lang, 627; Ed Gibson, 619, and Les Hannblom, 606. . . . Led by J. Arvia, the Thompson Undertakers shot 927, high for the season in the Stevenson & Schalk Mixed league.

Randolph League.

Every member of the Boyle Motor Products exceeded the 600 mark, but that brought the team only one victory in a match with None-Better Ice Cream. The Boyles, with Thoma getting 634, Devito 621, Lippe 651, W. Freitag 622, and Lenzen 652, easily won the first game with 1,125. Then games of 1,015 and 1,040 were worthless because the None-Betters clicked with 1,065 and 1,046. The leading Mineralites turned back the strong Mary Ann team in two out of three games and increased their first place margin as the Birk Brothers took it on the chin in two out of three games with Wagner & Hanson. High individual series of the week went to Notz of None-Better with 683.

About the Women.

Shooting will be resumed tonight in the Crocombe All-Star league at the Woodlawn alleys after a lapse of a week occasioned by the state women's tournament. The schedule:

Tess Morris vs. Dorothy Burmeister; Mabel Cummings vs. Nellie Rynberk; Edith Kirg vs. Agnes Pitelka; Mae Stone vs. Carrie Enders; Agnes Crocombe vs. Fritzi Trettin; Cecelia Leary vs. May Davison; Bess Fender vs. Dorothy Morross; Ann Burke vs. Alberta Burton.

Mary Fechtmeyer reports many good scores for the Pioneer Arcade. In the Major league Lee Schultz collected 601; Mary Butler, 591; Mary Fechtmeyer, 580; Marie Matkin, 575; Joe Limbach, 561, and Adeline Waddell, 555. Hilma Krueger, aided by a 256 game, topped the Senior league with 620. Next were Joe Limbach, 613; Gertrude Peterson, 571; Lillian Olsen, 553; Clara Hartwig, 540; Hattie Michaelis, 535, and Ann Flint, 535. The Junior league was led by Betty Prestein with 535, followed by Thelma Francois, 534; Bernice Kranz, 512; Isabel Wirth, 512; Birdie Sweeney, 507, and Grace Sobey, 507. . . . Bee Hockstadter missed 600 by six pins in leading the Bruck Major league. Gerta Johnson shot 584; Kitty Gebler, 575; Elinore Bergin, 571; Mary Gebauer, 559; Margaret Lucksinger, 557; Celia Rosecrans, 543, and Pearl Ammon, 541. . . . At Stevenson & Schalk's, Iola Bonash had two 200 games as she shot a 561 series. Florence Quigley had 540 and Minnie Fox 539.

Hold Western Boston Terrier Show Today

More than 100 Boston terriers, including 18 champions, are entered in the 36th annual specialty show of the Western Boston Terrier club which is being held today in the Exhibition hall for the Sherman hotel.

Included among the entries is Yankee Boys High Stepper, owned by P. J. Shannon, Chicago. This dog was reserve winner of the specialty show held by the Boston Terrier Club of New York early this month. Champion Hagerty of Westchester's Son, the Chicago-owned Boston terrier which won the best of breed award at the famous Westminster dog show in Madison Square Garden recently, was originally entered in today's show, but has been scratched because of illness. The dog is owned by Mrs. Amy B. Lane.

The judge will be Vincent G. Perry, London, Ont., Canada. Perry, a newspaper man, has written a book on the Boston terrier, and is well known in Canada and the United States as a judge of the breed.

The show opens at 10 o'clock this morning, with the best dog in the show scheduled to be picked about 10 o'clock tonight.

path. They proved in the Golden Gloves tournaments at Oklahoma City, Kansas City, and Sioux City that they don't need a tomahawk to fell an opponent.

If He's Seven Feet Tall—Run!

2. Make a very abject apology if your argument happens to be with a boy who looks to be about seven feet high, is about six inches in circumference and has the general contour of a string bean. More than likely he will turn out to be the flyweight champion from Cleveland.

3. Steer clear of all altercations with boys who even faintly resemble the heavyweight from Grand Rapids. If he doesn't weight 313 pounds, don't get too flippant, for he must have beaten a guy who did.

Beware of This Crooner.

4. Don't be caught off guard if you hear a voice with a tear in it crooning softly. He would sound perfectly harmless, but then again he might be Nate Bolden the middleweight champion from Chicago's north side who is a crooner when not fighting.

5. Funny thing to be warning fight fans against music. But, fact is, every boy who comes here from Cincinnati qualified for the Tournament of Champions in the Cincinnati Music hall. Just hanging around the place might have taught 'em a few tunes.

6. Don't get smart with any group you see, shivering in the lake breezes. They might be the champions from the old south representing the Nashville Tennessean.

7. If you want to get into trouble in a hurry, ask any red faced Norseman you encounter if he wants to shovel the snow off your sidewalks. Ten to one he will be one of the eight boys who dug themselves out of the snow at Wisconsin Rapids in order to get here for the Tournament of Champions.

8. Generally speaking though, just keep your mouth shut and save the wise cracks until you're sitting in your reserved seat at Chicago Stadium tomorrow night and are sure that the fellow siting next to you is just as innocent a bystander as you are.

Northwestern U. Fencers Turn Back Purdue, 11 to 6

Northwestern university's fencing team defeated Purdue, 11 to 6, at the Northwestern Faculty club in Evanston yesterday. The Boilermakers captured five of nine foil matches. The Wildcats came back in the epee bouts to win, 3 to 1, and take the lead, 7 to 6. The Purple dominated all four of the sabre contests to register their first Big Ten victory.

Winter Olympic Games Close Review of Week's Sports

The Olympic flame died away from the hills above the twin villages of Garmisch and Partenkirchen in the Bavarian Alps last Sunday after burning continuously for eleven days and brought the cessation of the 11th Olympic games until next August. A crowd of 120,000 which packed the ski stadium for the final ceremonies of the winter events created such a jam at the gates that several persons were severely injured in the crush that attended the departure of Reichsfuehrer Hitler and other Nazi dignitaries from the scene.

The final event, a hocky game between the United States and Canada, like so many others in which they compete, was a defeat for the athletes of the United States, who gained only one first place in the eleven days of competition. The one championship was in the two man bobsled event.

Norway with a team of athletes born and reared among ice and snow had little trouble running away with the team championship, 10 first places out of 21 events going a long way toward piling up its score of 146 points. Germany was second with 117. The United States finished fifth with 35½. The final team standing:

| | Points. | | Points. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Norway | 146 | France | 11 |
| Germany | 117 | Canada | 9 |
| Sweden | 49 | Czechoslovak. | 7 |
| Finland | 41 | Hungary | 7 |
| U. S. | 35½ | Belgium | 5 |
| Switzerland | 30 | Japan | 3 |
| Austria | 29½ | Italy | 3 |
| Great Britain | 16 | Poland | 2 |

The list of champions follows:

BOB SLEDDING.

FOUR MAN—Switzerland [Pierre Musy].

TWO MAN—United States [Ivan Brown and Alan Washbond] [x].

Hawks Entrench in Second Place.

The Chicago Blackhawks, with a record of no defeats in three games but with two ties, entrenched themselves a little stronger in second place in the American division of the National Hocky league during the last week, only a game and a half behind the leading Detroit Red Wings. The week's scores:

SUNDAY.

Chicago, 4; Boston, 2.
Montreal Canadiens, 1; New York Rangers, 1.

TUESDAY.

Chicago, 3; Canadiens, 3.
Detroit, 2; Boston, 1.
Montreal Maroons, 8; New York Americans, 8.

THURSDAY.

Chicago, 1; New York Rangers, 1.
Toronto, 2; Canadiens, 1.

Cubs and Sox Leave for Camps.

Though snow and ice still covered the ground and temperatures flirted with the zero mark, there was a hint of spring in the air as major league baseball teams started their annual journeys to training camps. The Chicago [illegible] with all players except Augie [illegible] duly signed for the season, le[illegible] Catalina Island on Tuesday, arrived there Friday, and immediately started work for the battery squad, with the infielders and outfielders to follow this week.

The White Sox, with only Zeke Bonura, Luke Appling, and Minter Hayes unsigned, set out for Pasadena Thursday. They will start training workouts today.

To the St. Louis Cardinals' worries over Paul Dean's refusal to sign his contract was added the perennial problem of bringing into the fold his elder brother, Dizzy, the star of the brother act. Dizzy last Monday announced that he had rejected the Cardinal's offer of $18,500 a year and followed it up with a statement that even if he did sign, he would never pitch another ball to Catcher Virgil Davis, whom he blamed for losing several games in which he worked last season. With Catcher Bill DeLancey incapacitated, Cardinal officials were trying to find some replacement that would please Dizzy.

Thomas S. Shibe, 70 years old, president of the Philadelphia Athletics since 1922, died last Sunday at a Philadelphia hospital after a long illness. He had been connected with the club as an officer ever since its founding by his father, the late Benjamin F. Shibe, in 1901. When his father died, Mr. Shibe succeeded to the presidency.

Toledo university on Tuesday announced the appointment of Dr. Clarence W. Spears, recently deposed as football coach at Wisconsin in the Badgers' athletic cleanup, as athletic director and football coach at an annual salary of $4,100.

Billy Celebron of Rockford, a Golden Gloves champion of three years ago, established himself as the topnotch contender for Barney Ross' world welterweight title on Wednesday by stopping Harry Dublinsky in the eighth round of their fight at the Cicero Stadium.

Shamrocks and Windsors Play for 2d Time

A continuation of the international rivalry that began and ended last month in a 3 to 3 tie overtime game will be resumed this afternoon at the Chicago Stadium when the C. Y. O. Shamrocks clash again with the Windsor Motors of Canada.

Windsor was the first out of town team to face the Shamrocks on their home ice. Victory for Windsor was turned into a tie with only a half minute left to play when Eddie Janelle on an assist from Tony Beda pounded the puck into the Windsor net in 19 minutes and 30 seconds of the final period. Neither team was able to break the 3 to 3 deadlock in the extra overtime session.

In retrospect the Windsor Motors-C. Y. O. Shamrock match stands out as the most hectic and roughest encounter of the series. Two Shamrocks were forced from the game with injuries. Wilbur Savela, leading point maker, suffered a spine injury, while Jerry De Mocko, big defense man, played most of the game with a broken nose.

Penalties against both clubs were handed out freely by Referees Donnie McFadyen and Tommy Cook of the Blackhawks. Clem Loughlin, manager of the Hawks, will name another pair of his players to handle this afternoon's contest. Lineup:

| WINDSOR MOTORS. | | C.Y.O.SHAMROCKS. |
|---|---|---|
| Frank Durham | Goal | Clem Poulin |
| Con Cornellier | L. D. | Eddie Janelle |
| Wayne Koski | R. D. | "Burr" Spreitzer |
| Vern Trottier | C | Floyd Murphy |
| Joe Simard | R. W. | Matt Glad |
| Art Chartier | L. W. | Roland Conacher |

McAvoy Without Opponent as Kiernan Becomes Ill

New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Jock McAvoy, British middleweight and light heavyweight champion, who was to have fought a 10 round bout with Jack Kiernan of Long Branch, N. J., here today, found himself without an opponent when Kiernan telegraphed he was ill. Attempts by fight promoters to substitute Red Finnigan of Utica, N. Y., failed when the Massachusetts boxing commission said "No." Its decision disappointed 2,500 fans.

HUGHES MEETS ST. CYR TODAY IN K. OF C. PLAY

Santa Maria, Loyola H.-P. Top South Section.

The Knights of Columbus basketball league will present one of its best cards of the season this afternoon and night, with close contests expected in west and south divisions.

Hughes and St. Cyr, who fought it out for the first round title in the west division, again will clash at St. Philip's gymnasium, Jackson boulevard and Kedzie avenue. Both are fighting to stay in the runner-up position behind Carroll. Damen and Cardinal, also battling to stay in the race, meet in another game.

Santa Maria vs. Loyola-Hyde Park tops the south division schedule at St. Rita's gymnasium, 63d street and Oakley avenue. McHale vs. Englewood also brings together two old rivals and two more of the leading teams.

The second round will end in a couple of weeks, with the winner of the first half of the schedule playing the winner of the second for the divisional titles. Quigley took the south section title and St. Cyr the west for the first round. Schedules:

SOUTH DIVISION.

[7 p. m., St. Rita's gymnasium.]
Perez vs. Aquinas.
McHale vs. Englewood.
Calumet vs. Dowling.
Santa Maria vs. Loyola-Hyde Park.

WEST DIVISION.

[2 p. m., St. Philip's gymnasium.]
Damen vs. Cardinal.
Setters vs. Barry.
Carroll vs. Lafayette.
Hughes vs. St. Cyr.

be presented to the Chicago team scoring the most points on March 6. The C. Y. O. is defending champion.

Golden Gloves to Champions.

Diamond studded gloves are the champions' awards. Emerald studded silver gloves will be presented to the runner-up, while ruby studded bronze gloves are the awards for the eight alternates chosen on the intercity team.

The Barney Ross sportsmanship trophy and the Joe Louis sportsmanship trophy will be presented Wednesday night to the welterweight and heavyweight, respectively, in the Tournament of Champions judged the most outstanding for conduct and attitude.

Golden Gloves has produced many of the best boxers of this decade. It is not the purpose of Golden Gloves or the purpose of the National A. A. U. tournaments to encourage professional boxing, but if an amateur boxer decides he has a professional future his experiences in these tournaments, under proper conditions, insure him advantages over others.

Louis Champion in 1934.

Joe Louis, now internationally recognized as the greatest heavyweight since the days of Dempsey and Tunney, won a golden glove in 1934.

Max Marek, 175 pound champion, winner of intercity and international honors, who defeated Joe Louis in the National A. A. U. tournament in 1933; Leo Rodak, the only amateur ever to win three golden gloves; Al Nettlow of Detroit, Golden Gloves champion in 1934 and 1935; Billy Treest, 1934 middleweight champion, now one of the nation's best 175 pounders, and Lorenzo Pack, 1935 heavyweight title holder, for whom Jack Kearns is seeking a match with Louis, are only a few of the boys who have carried on successfully in the professional ring.

Beat New York Four Times.

As amateurs these boxers helped defeat New York four times. They helped whip the amateur champions of France, Ireland, Poland, and Italy, and tied Germany, four bouts to four.

SPARTA AGAIN TO MEET MILLERS IN POSTPONED GAME

The Sparta Garden City soccer team, Chicago professional champions, and the Ben Millers of St. Louis, who were scheduled to play a national challenge cup match six weeks ago, but which has been postponed every week since, will take place today at the Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, at 2:30 p. m. If Sparta wins today's game the team will oppose the Chicago Olympias in its next match. Today's game will be preceded by a contest between the Lawndale Rangers and the Odd Fellows at 1 p. m.

The Wilsons, who defeated the Ravenswood Hearts last week in an amateur cup match, meet the Moravska Orlices today in a fourth round game. The contest starts at 2:30 o'clock and will be played at 59th and Paulina streets.

ED WHITE AND ARMY AVIATOR REACH GOLF FINAL

Houston, Tex., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Ed White, national intercollegiate champion, and Lieut. Ken Rogers, an army aviator who took up golf five years ago, shot their way into the final of the Houston Country club invitational golf tournament today.

White, University of Texas senior, eliminated Freddie Haas, New Orleans, La., state champion and former southern title holder, one up in 20 holes.

The 36 hole final will be played tomorrow.

HERE ARE A FEW TIPS ON HOW TO SAVE GASOLINE

1. Starting unnecessarily often.
2. Driving with choke on.
3. Trampling on the accelerator.
4. Too much second gear driving.
5. Accelerating on hills.
6. Fast driving against wind.
7. Sustained high speed.
8. Idling motor.
9. Too fast on slippery roads.

The importance of these factors was discovered in experiments at the General Motors proving ground at Milford, Mich. The tests were conducted under the supervision of B. H. Hanibal, vice president and chief engineer of the Pontiac Motor company. Eight makes of cars were used.

Speed Costs Money.

At 20 miles an hour the best mileage delivered by any of the eight makes was 24 miles a gallon. At 70 miles an hour none of the test cars did better than 13.9 miles an hour. This indicated that the 70 mile an hour driver pays almost twice as much for fuel as does the slow driver.

The engineer observers further reported as follows:

"Every time you start you use enough gas to drive a half mile. The remedy is to look ahead for signal lights, move into them at reduced speeds, and glide through on the green instead of slamming on the brakes and then having to shift through the three gears.

"Every time you drive a mile with the choke on you use enough gas to drive three miles.

"Every time you push the accelerator down to the floor you waste up to 60 per cent of your fuel. Accelerate gradually and save gas.

"Every time you drive in second with the accelerator down to the floor you waste upward of 70 per cent. To save gas, don't drive above 25 miles an hour in second and accelerate gently.

Uniform Speed on Hills.

"In driving up a grade or hill you decrease gas economy 25 to 50 per cent. To save it, don't accelerate on a hill, but drive at a uniform speed in high gear.

"When you drive at your normal rate into a wind your gas economy drops 10 to 20 per cent. To save it, reduce your normal speed.

"In addition to its danger high speed driving wastes gas. At 50 you can go 25 to 30 per cent farther on the same amount than at 70.

"On slippery pavements the more skidding you do the more gas you use. Reduce speed until you have sustained traction on both rear wheels. It's not only safer, but cheaper, too.

"If only half the drivers in the United States would follow enough of these recommendations to effect a 10 per cent reduction in their annual fuel consumption the saving would amount to $90,000,000."

VOICE OF TRAFIC

MAROONED ON OUTER DRIVE.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—The outer drive is a wonderful boulevard, a great comfort and convenience to motorists, but in stormy, cold weather, as we have lately experienced, it is exceedingly dangerous to drive along the outer drive, as there is absolutely no protection to the motorists in case of an accident, shortage of fuel or other unavoidable mishaps. He is absolutely stranded, as though in the desert, without a telephone connection with the police or fire departments.

The undersigned has lately observed a number of cars left in the middle of the drive with apparently no immediate relief. During the cold spell, you could sit in the car and freeze to death, unless you would be fortunate enough to find some good Samaritan who would come to your rescue.

It seems to me that the commissioners ought to provide for such emergencies by having a man in the control of the drive in an automobile, or establishing telephone communication with the outside world. Otherwise, people will be compelled in cold, stormy and rainy weather to abandon the drive and seek other streets where they can get relief in the event of an accident.

WILLIAM CHONES.

MORE SAND NEEDED.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Driving has been very hazardous for the past two months because of the condition of street intersections, where no precaution has been taken by the city or park boards to safeguard the public.

Motorists would like to know if it is possible for the city to use a few dollars of the vehicle tax money [that it was in such a hurry to collect] to sprinkle ashes or sand at stop streets and dangerous intersections. The motorists alone are not responsible for the accidents that occur.

R. G. LIPPERT.

ILLY TIMED LIGHTS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—On Cicero avenue, from North avenue to Fullerton avenue, a distance of one mile, there are five "stop and go" trafic standards, one every other block. These lights are so arranged and timed that a motorist can start at either Fullerton or North and make a run through the mile of trafic lights if he speeds it up to 45 or 50 miles per hour. Why can't the timing of these lights be so arranged that a motorist can go through at a sane speed?

At Palmer and Cicero avenues the trafic standards are timed 30 seconds for Palmer and 30 seconds for Cicero, about 40 autos use Cicero against one for Palmer. Why should trafic congest at one point for 30 seconds to permit the passing of one auto?

Some of the city trafic experts could do wonders in the preventing of accidents and congestions which cause accidents through a study of the timing of trafic standards throughout the city so as to reduce speed and congestion.

MOTORISTS CAN MAKE DEDUCTION ON INCOME TAX

Motor Club Explains What to Take Off.

BY HAL FOUST.

Automobile owners can save a bit on their federal income taxes by taking full advantage of those car expenses that can be deducted from gross income in computing the tax. The deadline for filing returns is March 15.

The Chicago Motor club advises that the following items may be deducted by owners of all motor vehicles whether used for pleasure or business:

License fees, city vehicle tax, personal property tax, and state gasoline taxes in most states including Illinois and Indiana, and drivers' license fees.

Losses from Damages.

Losses caused by damages to the automobile, provided the damage has not resulted from the willful act or the willful negligence of the owner and that the owner has not been recompensed for his loss by insurance or other means.

Losses caused by destruction of property and not compensated for by insurance unless the loss has been due to the willful act or willful negligence of the owner.

Interest paid on money borrowed to purchase the automobile.

Additional items that are deductible by owners of cars used solely for business are as follows:

All premiums on fire, burglary and like insurance policies.

Damages paid in settlement of a personal injury claim resulting from an automobile accident and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, provided that the car was being used for business purposes at the time of the accident.

Depreciation Deductible.

Cost of gasoline, repairs, and other operating and maintenance expenses, including depreciation. Depreciation is usually figured at 25 per cent per year of the original purchase price. On a car used partly for business and partly for pleasure, these costs are deductible only to the extent of its use for business purposes.

For example, on a car used 25 per cent of the time for business the owner may deduct 25 per cent of the operating expenses. There is no fixed method for measuring the percentage of use for business or pleasure, but one acceptable standard is the time the car has been employed for each purpose. Mileage is probably another acceptable standard.

In regard to insurance premiums on cars used only partly for business, a proper proportion of this cost is deductible according to the rule for operation and maintenance deductions.

Motor club dues are deductible as a business expense only when the membership is maintained solely for business purposes.

The law allows no deduction for the money spent to buy an automobile, whether for business or pleasure. The purchase payment is considered a capital expenditure and is subject to the claim for depreciation if the vehicle is for business purposes.

NEWS AND VIEWS

To drive with maximum safety on icy streets, partly deflate your tires and make all steering changes, starts, and stops, gradually. These suggestions for safe driving, under conditions such as many motorists have faced lately, were broadcast recently by Chevrolet Motor company to all its dealers and service stations in northern territories because of the numerous trafic mishaps that have been caused by slippery streets

"One of the greatest single precautionary measures to take in driving a car on icy streets," said the bulletin, "is to reduce the pressure of the tires. If tires are hard, they form a positive menace, since they cause the wheels to bounce off the road surface and to lose traction and steering effect.

"Soft tires, with air pressure lower than is normal for regular use, safeguard cars on icy streets because they not only eliminate bouncing, but, even more important, present a much larger area of contact with the road surface. A soft tire, because it sinks into every depression, gains a foothold where a hard tire would not have much more grip than a ski that slides over the hollows and bumps."

Buick domestic retail deliveries for January set a new high for any corresponding period since 1929, W. F. Hufstader, general sales manager, announced last week. The January deliveries totaled 7,038 units. That compares with 3,747 in the corresponding period of 1935, which is a gain of 3,291 units or 88 per cent.

A nation-wide search for the most faithful Studebaker owner in the United States was launched last Monday when civic and business leaders of South Bend gathered to honor the company's eighty-fourth anniversary. The search will be conducted in the manner of a contest. The winner will be given the first Studebaker to come off the assembly lines during the corporation's eighty-fifth year. Production schedules indicate that this car will be a Dictator St. Regis custom sedan.

"We are anxious to reward the Studebaker owner who has been most loyal for the greatest number of years," said Paul G. Hoffman, president. "We are seeking the man or woman who has the best record of continuous ownership of active Studebaker automobiles over the longest period of time. When we say active automobiles we mean that the automobiles shall have been driven at least 5,000 miles each year."

Today special trains carrying Cadillac merit men from all sections of the United States will converge on Edgewater Park, Miss., where factory executives will play host at a vacation meeting which will include attendance at the New Orleans Mardi Gras.

The Chicago sales organization helped to swell the national membership to a new high this year, having ten men whose outstanding achievements for 1935 are being rewarded with this holiday in the sunny south.

"Since the inception of the Cadillac merit men, the Chicago branch has never had as many members as were enrolled this year" said Victor C. P. [illegible] general manager.

ORSATTI RETIRES FROM BASEBALL FOR MOVIE JOB

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Ernie Orsatti, former St. Louis Cardinal outfielder, telegraphed the Post-Dispatch today from Los Angeles he was retiring from baseball.

Orsatti was transferred this winter from the Cards to their Rochester farm in the International league. He was not effective last season either at the bat or afield.

In his telegram Orsatti said he was now associated with his brother, Frank Orsatti, as "artists' representatives" in Hollywood.

Review of the Week: Chicago: The Nation: The World:

Foreign

Rings of Steel.

A month ago Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, announced a mutual assistance pact between Great Britain, France, Greece, Turkey, and Jugo-Slavia, the latter drawing in Rumania and Czechoslovakia. This was aimed at Italy.

Two weeks ago Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin began angling for pact between Rumania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Jugo-Slavia guaranteeing military aid to Austria. This was aimed at Germany.

Last week Germany and Italy acted to break these diplomatic "rings of steel." The diplomatic front shifted from Paris and London to Berlin and Rome. This gave the impression that Adolf Hitler, the Nazi leader, and Benito Mussolini, the Fascist leader, hitherto with little in common, were ready to stand side by side against common oppressors. [See War.]

Political observers saw a new triple entente in the making. This would revive the old entente which was shattered when Italy refused to fight in the world war on the side of Germany and Austria-Hungary. The new possibility was a treaty among Germany, Italy, and Austria, with Hungary drawn in through agreements with Austria.

The French goal is to replace Italy with Russia as a guardian of Austrian independence. Fascist Italy has been opposed to Nazi ambitions in Austria. But the speculation was that Italy would call on Germany to guarantee Austrian independence. Trade concessions were anticipated.

The official German press decried Great Britain's huge rearmament plan, France's negotiations with Russia and Czechoslovakia, and Russia's increased Baltic sea fleet as a "monstrous defense machinery."

Poland meanwhile was dealing with Berlin. A spokesman in Warsaw said that the French-Russian pact, now awaiting official French approval, left Poland's nonaggression agreements with Germany and Russia in jeopardy. Since Poland lies between them, both Germany and Russia want to turn Poland against the other.

An official Warsaw newspaper called on Poland to arm itself, because both Germany and Russia are building up huge war machines. Germany's disposition of its $15,000,000 Polish corridor railroad debt is expected to influence forthcoming agreements. Russia's $28,000,000 debt to Poland was another factor. The Poles last week demanded it be paid in gold.

War.

Everything was going Mussolini's way last week—from appearances. Immediately after the Italian dictator apparently ordered his armies to take Ethiopia by June the report came that Marshal Pietro Badoglio's northern Italian army had won a six day battle, gained 300 square miles of territory, and opened the way to the interior. Mussolini ordered big celebrations to offset growing dissension among war burdened Italians. He used the opportunity to put through a $122,000,000 war appropriation.

Badoglio's "big push" took place on Feb. 10-15, according to war dispatches to Rome. The objective was Amba Aradam, a flat topped mountain about 20 miles south of Makale, hub of the Tembien area battles. The estimated 80,000 troops of Ras Mulugheta, Ethiopian minister of war, occupied Amba Aradam and blocked the route through the mountains to Addis Ababa. The projected offensive of Ras Kassa and Ras Seyoum in the Tembien sector was said to have provoked the Italians to besiege Amba Aradam.

The Black Shirt and Fascist "Alpini" white troops, 65,000 in all, flanked the plateau. After six days of rain, artillery bombardment, air bombing, and infantry attacks, the two flanks stormed the plateau, and Ras Mulugheta's khaki clad regulars were put to flight. The casualties were set at 20,000 Ethiopians and 1,500 Italians, dead and wounded. That was the Italian story. Mulugheta admitted only "strategic retreat" and losses of about 400.

Rome reported that Badoglio was continuing the march south with his eye on the good road from Lake Ashanghi to Addis Ababa. Between, however, was another great mountain fortress, Amba Alaji. Addis Ababa protested that the Italians were attacking civilians with mustard gas. Heavy rain preserved quiet on the southern front.

Observers declared that Mussolini wants the capture of the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railway in Ethiopia before the June rains set in. Then he would be able to demand better terms of peace than those offered in the Hoare-Laval plan. Rome commentators said Emperor Haile Selassie had asked for a league of nations' protectorate over Ethiopia. By conquest Mussolini could demand much more. [See main news section.]

Not only the shift of Great Britain's attention to Japanese imperialism strengthened Mussolini's case. [See Asia.] Through some leak in London state offices, an Italian newspaper was able to divulge the secret report on British interests in Ethiopia made by Sir John Maffey last July. This said, in brief, that "no vital interests" obliged Britain to resist an Italian conquest of Ethiopia. The chief exception was that Britain should safeguard the source of the Blue Nile's fertility, Lake Tsana and tributaries. Mussolini had claimed that British opposition was selfish, but the report did give him a chance to shift blame for the European war scare.

Meanwhile European diplomats are waiting anxiously the outcome of tomorrow's parliamentary debate on Great Britain's future foreign policy. Should she apply oil sanctions and defy Mussolini or should she encourage peace negotiations between Il Duce and Ethiopia? It was difficult to forecast which position Great Britain would take. [See main news section.]

Asia.

Great Britain's imperialistic eye turned last week toward Japan. Disputes over the border between Manchukuo, Japan's puppet kingdom, and Outer Mongolia, controled by Russia, have grown in violence. Another Russo-Japanese war is feared.

Last week Lieut. Gen. Sugiyama, vice chief of staf in Tokio, obtained the mikado's permission to send 10,000 soldiers to Manchukuo. This was the first time since the Russo-Japanese war in 1904 that the important First division has been ordered into Manchuria. Japanese officers reported that Russia had over 200,000 troops and 800 planes on the Soviet-Manchukuo border.

A Moscow newspaper announced officially that Russia had rejected Japan's proposal of a joint commission to reëstablish the disputed frontier. It said the boundary was already clearly fixed by treaty.

Great Britain is worried about its Chinese trade. Japanese industries, especially textile mills, are underselling the Britons not only in northern China but in India. Great Britain at one time encouraged Japanese expansion but now it cannot meet the competition.

The Japanese propose to dig a canal across the Malay peninsula on Siamese territory to shorten by 1,000 miles their trade route to the Bay of Bengal.

All this, plus Britain's suspicion of an alliance between Germany and Japan, was reflected in the British cabinet's discussion of its billion and a half dollar rearmament program. Japan and not Italy, it was said, was necessitating the remodeling of the empire's defenses.

In Japan, meanwhile, Admiral Keisuke Okada, the premier, won the first national election in four years when the government party alliance received 240 seats in the house of representatives. The 466 representatives are the only elective officers in Japan. The government opposition party, Seiyukai, lost its control, winning only 174 seats. The proletarian bloc, opposed to a warlike government, gained some power but not enough to assure a change of policy. [See main news section.]

Strange

To prove he was a stranger, H. G. Helmle, a Chicagoan, appearing in Los Angeles Trafic court, drew a pair of earmuffs from his pocket. "You're a stranger, all right, and so your fine is only $2," said the judge.

Norman Hillier, a New York beauty expert, told a beauty congress in Seattle that women should stand on their heads both before and after brushing their hair. It brings blood to the scalp, he explained.

Because she spanked her little stepdaughter with a hot frying pan, Mrs. Mary Higuera of Los Angeles was sentenced to six months in jail.

Mrs. Cora Squires of Kalamazoo, Mich., announced she would run against her husband, Emory Squires, for township assessor. He is now assessor. "But I do all the work," she says.

Five prisoners in the Gibson county jail at Princeton, Ind., drank up a quantity of confiscated liquor that was to have been used as evidence.

Edward Schultz, 41 years old, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was killed at Minersville, Pa., when an automobile tire that he was inflating exploded in his face.

When Lord Linlithgow, viceroy designate of India, leaves for Delhi next month he will take with him 60 suits besides his uniforms. The huge wardrobe is necessary because of the varying climates in India.

Attorney Charles M. Bush of Kansas City, Mo., tried for 45 minutes to get his wife on the telephone, but all he got was a busy signal. He sent her a telegram asking her to please hang up.

Two weeks ago, Policeman Alexander Jezierski, Baltimore, shot and captured an escaped theater lion. Last week he choked a mad dog to death. "And I like animals," he said.

TVA.

New Dealers for a change last week did not think so poorly of the United States Supreme court. Reason: The court on Monday gave them a limited victory on one phase of the Tennessee Valley act. [See Business Review.]

In an eight to one decision read by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, the court held that the government has the authority to sell surplus electricity generated at the Muscle Shoals-Wilson dam. This dam is only one of many contemplated in the TVA. The court expressly withheld opinion on the legality of these other dams and on the TVA itself as a whole.

The plea of stockholders of the Alabama Power company, who instituted the suit, that the government would be competing with private industry if it could sell electricity to the public was waived by the eight affirming justices. But Justice James Clark McReynolds, the sole dissenter, considered this argument. If the TVA is legal, he asserted, there is nothing to prevent the government from entering into all kinds of business in competition with private industry.

New Dealers from President Roosevelt down were elated over the decision. It was reported later that they were so encouraged they now plan other TVA projects all over the country. [See map on next page for present setup.] One immediate result was to lessen demands to curb the court's power. In fact, one bill to strangle the court was withdrawn by Representative Joseph P. Monaghan, a Montana Democrat.

Agitation against the court began when it wrecked the NRA last May. All told, the New Deal has won only two out of seven important cases—the TVA and the gold clause cases. Here is how the justices have voted in those cases:

Hughes for the gold clause, railway pension, and TVA cases and against the hot oil, moratorium, NRA and AAA cases; Brandeis for the gold clause, railway pension, AAA and TVA cases, and against the others. McReynolds against all of them; Van Devanter, Butler, and Sutherland against all but the TVA case; Roberts against all but the gold clause and TVA cases; Stone for all but the oil, moratorium, and NRA cases, and Cardozo for all but the moratorium and NRA cases.

AAA.

After a furious battle, the house on Friday passed the administration's new farm bill by a vote of 267 to 97. This bill, similar to that passed by the senate on Feb. 15, is designed to create forty-eight little AAAs, one in each state, to take the place of the big AAA, which was outlawed.

The saving of soil by not planting crops is the plan's most important provision. Farmers who reduce crops will be rewarded with federal easy money, but the money will not come directly from Washington. Instead, it will be parceled out to the states and handed out by them.

Financing will take $500,000,000 of the taxpayers' money every year. How the money will be raised has not been revealed by the White House. However, Representative William B. Bankhead of Alabama said Thursday that the plan would be given to congress this week. He said the money would not be raised by new income taxes but probably by new farm product taxes—probably a form of the illegal AAA processing taxes.

During the week Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace received more criticism for his recent remark that the Supreme court's order to refund all impounded processing taxes was "probably the greatest legalized steal in history." Representative Allen T. Treadway declared Monday he ought to resign if he hasn't decency enough to apologize. On Thursday Wallace sent a report to Senator George W. Norris on the tax refund. In this he didn't say the refund was the "greatest steal," but that it was "in the nature of an outright gift of public money to a small group that is not entitled to it."

Neutrality.

The house on Monday and the senate on Tuesday passed resolutions extending the present neutrality law, with amendments, to May 1, 1937. Otherwise the law would have died next Saturday.

All this was done without the presence of Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota's young and handsome senator. Nye, as chairman of the munitions committee, has an obsession—peace. If he's not fighting in the senate for ways and means to keep peace, he's lecturing in various cities for it—and gets paid for his lectures.

Nye lectured in Minneapolis Monday night. He was still there Tuesday morning. Weather was bad for flying. Senate leaders realized this. They also realized they could get the neutrality resolution passed easier with Nye in Minneapolis than with Nye in Washington. He would want too many amendments attached to the resolution. The senate leaders set the vote for that day. Nye heard about it. He hurried to Washington by plane. He hurried to the senate, but arrived too late to stop the vote; not one of his amendments had been approved.

Disappointed, Nye said he would fight for a stricter neutrality law as recommended by his munitions committee. Two days later his committee ended its inquiry into world war finance. Nye said the committee report would recommend foolproof neutrality and profitless war profits. The report probably will try to show that America was drawn into the war by trade relations with the allies.

Coughlin.

The house's best show this session was presented early in the week with Representative John J. O'Connor, New York Democrat, and the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, in featured rôles.

Father Coughlin started it with his Sunday radio speech when he called O'Connor a "servant of the money changers." He charged him, as chairman of the house rules committee, with blocking the Frazier-Lemke inflation bill. He said O'Connor ought to resign.

O'Connor, who heard the broadcast, sent him a telegram telling him he was a disgrace to the church. O'Connor is a Catholic. He invited Father Coughlin to Washington, threatening to "kick him all the way from the capitol to the White House."

In the house next day, Representative Martin L. Sweeney of Ohio announced that Father Coughlin would appear in Washington shortly to accept O'Connor's dare. This set O'Connor off again. He repeated his kick threat in a statement that Coughlin ought not be in politics, that "every decent Catholic in America is ashamed of him." He charged him with profiting in silver, with trying to run congress.

O'Connor continued his fight on Coughlin on Tuesday, but apologized for his threat to kick him through Washington. "The remark was undignified," he explained. Representative Patrick J. Boland, a Catholic, also assailed Coughlin, calling him a Judas who "would betray America for a handful of silver." Representative Sweeney, a Catholic, defended Coughlin, saying, "We need some one to raise his voice against Wall street and the crooked politicians." Father Coughlin meanwhile said nothing. He remained at the Shrine of the Little Flower, which he built, at Royal Oak, Mich.

Works.

Although second among the states in payment of income taxes, Illinois was twenty-first in allotments under the New Deal relief system. Other central west states fared as poorly. This was revealed in a report on relief, WPA and PWA allotments sent to congress by the President Friday.

The relief figures show that Nevada got $1,179 for every person on relief and California got $354, to name two of the more favored states. Illinois got only $210. California was alloted $72,817,522 in WPA funds against $67,637,536 for Illinois. And $38,607,811 in PWA funds went to California against $33,074,071 for Illinois.

Capitol Notes.

A woman visitor in the house gallery, trying to hear the debate on the Townsend plan investigation resolution Wednesday, called to gossiping congressmen on the floor to "shush." The house later called Dr. Francis E. Townsend, the plan's sponsor, a quack and voted a quiz into his plan.

President Roosevelt was initiated into the Order of the Knights of Pythias Wednesday. On Friday he declared himself in favor of a bill to bring all postmasters under civil service. At present, as in the past, they are appointed. The President left the capital yesterday on a trip that will take him to Philadelphia, Cambridge, Mass., and Hyde Park, N. Y. He will make a five minute radio address from Hyde Park today.

Col. Joseph I. McMullen, legal adviser to the war department for 15 years, was found guilty of two charges of dishonorable conduct by an army court martial Thursday. He was sentenced to be reduced to rank lowest among officers of his grade, to be reprimanded, and to be fined $3,600 in pay. The court convicted him of accepting two round trip railroad tickets from Washington to California from a civilian interested in war department clothing contracts.

"Sonny Boy."

"Sonny Boy," 3 years old, remained as a ward of Judge Rudolph F. Desort of the Superior court last week after a second dramatic hearing of a fight for possession of the child. Miss Margaret Mann, 24 years old, of Evanston, asserts "Sonny Boy" is Reginald Arthur Mann, her child. She refuses to name the father. Dr. Gordon Mordoff of Wilmette insists the child is Gordon Mordoff III., his child. The dispute began two weeks ago when Miss Mann charged [illegible] Mordoff with kidnaping after he [illegible]sed to give her the child. She [illegible] the boy was born to her in [illegible]nt's orphanage in 1932 and [illegible]arded with the doctor's wife[illegible] Mordoff died Feb. 10. Judge [illegible] took jurisdiction of the pa[illegible] battle because Mrs. Mordoff [illegible] had sued in his court for a [illegible] maintenance, making the c[illegible] ward. Dr. Mordoff decla[illegible] "Sonny Boy" was born to [illegible] Minneapolis in 1932. He [illegible] the time. A doc[illegible]livered Miss Mann's child a[illegible] anesthetist testified the [illegible] to Miss Mann. Mrs. [illegible] Fairchild, sister of Mrs. Mordoff, testified the child was not Mrs. Mordoff's. Judge Desort continued the case until next Thursday for further testimony. Meanwhile, "Sonny Boy," who has been thrilled by the packed courtroom, remained in Dr. Mordoff's custody.

Weather.

Prof. Harold B. Ward, Northwestern university meteorologist, said in effect last week that no one knows what causes the weather. Forecaster C. A. Donnel agreed with him, then began adding up new Chicago records. The 32 day period which ended Thursday was the coldest since the weather bureau was [illegible] in 1871. The mean temperature was 5.6 degrees above zero and on 32 days it was at zero or lower. The winter of 1892-'93 held the previous 32 day record with an average of [illegible]. Tuesday, with a low of 14 below, was the coldest Feb. 18 and Wednesday, with a minimum of 7 below, was the coldest Feb. 19 on record. The all time mark of 25 days of zero since Dec. 1 was also equaled Wednesday. The previous periods were in 187[illegible]-'75 and 1884-'85. [See business review.]

More records depend on this week's temperatures. The winter of 1935-'36 will be the coldest in history if February finishes as it started. The average daily record of 18.7 degrees for December, January, and February was set in 1903-'04. This winter's average was 17.8 up to last week. This month may become the coldest February. The average for the first 22 days was 8.2, against 14.7 in 1875.

The unprecedented cold threatened to freeze over Lake Michigan between Chicago and the Michigan shore for the first time in history. The coast guard reported only five miles of open water.

Rising temperatures at the end of last week offered an obstacle to more records. [See Chicago weather week and main news section.]

Restitution.

Charles S. Winslow, 59 years old, suspended principal of the Lake View Evening High school, admitted from the witness stand in Criminal court last Tuesday that he had used $9,945.82 of the school's tuition funds to meet family doctor bills and home mortgage payments. Then he arose, took a handful of bills from one pocket, fished 82 cents from another and declared, "Gentlemen, I have here the money to make restitution."

Judge John L. Lewe ruled that repayment of the money had nothing to do with the embezzlement charge. After the session, however, the board of education's auditor accepted the money, which had been raised largely through contributions of teachers.

More drama ended the trial on Wednesday. The jury found Winslow guilty but "urgently" recommended a suspended sentence. Winslow and his friends appeared surprised by the verdict.

The jury's attempt to favor Winslow was prevented, however, by the embezzlement statute. It precludes probation in cases involving more than $199. Judge Lewe will hear the defense's motion for a new trial March 4. Winslow's main hope in escaping from one to ten years in prison is a suspended sentence under a new conviction of embezzling less than $199.

Drake Echoes.

Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, head of the county Criminal court behavior clinic, last week reported that Oscar M. Hartzell, high chief of the Drake estate swindle, was a paranoiac. Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan heard Hartzell described as a man suffering delusions of grandeur and persecution. Then he ordered Hartzell back to Leavenworth penitentiary to await sentencing until July 17 upon his latest mail fraud conviction. Judge Sullivan then imposed sentences of a year and a day upon each of the six others convicted in the recent trial of 41 defendants. The six were Canfield Hartzell, brother of Oscar; Otto G. Yant, Joseph Hauber, Delmar C. Short, Lester E. Ohmart and Emil R. Rochel. The cases of A. R. Gregory and Mrs. Minnie D. Hintz were dismissed. Declared the judge: "A child of 6 years old should know there is no such thing as the Drake estate."

City Notes.

A fire starting when no one was aboard Wednesday night destroyed the Showboat Sam, which was operated as a gambling boat three miles out in Lake Michigan last summer. The boat was moored in the Chicago river east of the Michigan avenue bridge. The overheating of a stove while the watchman was absent might have caused the blaze, a fire marshal said. It was difficult to determine the owner. Joseph Lucas paid a gambling fine as the owner last summer after police raided the boat. Sam Zito appeared to have been the previous owner. A Milwaukee company was said to have acquired the boat later through a mortgage default. The Showboat Sam was built three years ago in Milwaukee as the Cotton Blossom for use during the World's Fair.

County Clerk Michael J. Flynn last week called upon the Circuit court to assume jurisdiction of the $250,950 left in the tax redemption fund after Robert M. Sweitzer left the clerk's office in December, 1934. Flynn asked the court to allocate the fund. Audits showing that Sweitzer was a half million dollars short, principally in this fund, led to his ousting from his subsequent elective office as county treasurer. He was acquitted of criminal intent and is now suing to regain office and being sued for the shortage. Flynn asked that the court allocate the fund between 250 municipalities with total claims of $590,950. Flynn said any reduction of the $340,000 difference depended on the suit against Sweitzer's bonding company.

News-Names

In the opinion of Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, this is a pretty good world. So he said in New York Tuesday while celebrating his 74th birthday. But as to war and armaments—they will be with us always, he said.

Here is more about "The Music Goes 'Round and Around": In New York Tuesday William Harold [Red] Hodgson, who says he wrote the piece, filed suit to keep Edward Farley, Michael Riley, Rockwell-O'Keefe, Inc., the Select Music Publications, Inc., and Columbia Pictures corporation from publishing and selling copies of the song.

The Roosevelt family increased last week. A daughter was born Sunday to Mrs. James Roosevelt, wife of the eldest son of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The younger Roosevelts have one other daughter, Sara Delano, 4 years old. The new child will be named Kate.

William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to Russia, resumed his diplomatic duties last week after his return to Moscow from a long vacation home. Members of the foreign diplomatic corps welcomed him back.

A divorce suit was filed in Los Angeles Monday by Mrs. Elsie Louise Gatty against Harold Gatty, companion of the late Wiley Post on his first 'round the world flight. Among the complaints cited against Gatty by his wife was that he preferred hotel life to home.

A fine of $235,082 was imposed on William Fox, former motion picture producer, by Federal Judge William Bondy in New York Thursday. A warant for his arrest was issued. The fine, one of the largest in judicial history, was assessed to cover a judgment in that amount held by the Capital company for rental on a theater in San Francisco.

The United States Supreme court has been asked to settle the custody of Gloria Vanderbilt, 11 years old, heiress to $4,000,000. This was disclosed in New York Thursday. The child is in custody of her mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, weekends and in custody of her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the rest of the time.

Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt, widow of President Theodore Roosevelt, was reported improved Friday in the North Country Community hospital at Glen Cove, L. I., following removal of a plaster cast from a fractured hip.

Little hope was held yesterday for the life of Lee Collins, 78 years old, of Munfordville, Ky., who was stricken with a heart attack. He is the father of Floyd Collins, young cave explorer, who was trapped in Sand cave, near Cave City, Ky., by a rockfall in January, 1925. He died after seventeen days' entombment.

A default divorce was granted at Reno Tuesday to Lillian Frances Kenton from Duncan McMartin, heir to a Canadian gold mining fortune. She is a cigaret advertising model, and her beauty is known from coast to coast.

FINANCE-SPORTS

Reviews of the week in finance and general business and also sports are to be found in the finance and sports sections.

Politics

Cold weather apparently chilled national political activities last week. Leaders on both sides stayed close to the fireside. But here and there speakers and writers had their say against and about the Roosevelt New Deal.

The weightiest whack of the week against Roosevelt was delivered by H. L. Mencken, author and editor, in an article in the current issue of the American Mercury, released on Thursday.

Mencken calls Roosevelt the "boldest and most preposterous practitioner" of political quackery in modern times. He blames him for the New Deal's "dreadful burlesque of civilized government," and for the waste of billions of dollars. He charges him with piling up a debt that will take generations to wipe out. He accuses him of breaking promises and appointing worthless officials. In conclusion, he says:

"The greatest President since Hoover has carried on his job with an ingratiating grin upon his face, like that of a snake oil vendor at a village carnival, and he has exhibited precisely the same sense of responsibility."

In Washington, President Roosevelt and his campaign manager, Postmaster General James A. Farley, conferred over the approaching campaign. The President was perplexed for a time about what to do in California, where the Democratic delegates are split up among the regular Democrats, the Sinclair EPIC followers, and the Townsendites. He finally indorsed a group mostly made up of McAdoo men. New York's delegates also were a problem. Several of them—among them Al Smith—are sworn foes of the New Deal.

In New York Sunday, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university urged the Republican party to present a sound and sensible program. If it does not do so it will die, he warned. The next day the New York state committee named a delegation to the national convention. Representative Hamilton Fish fought the selection, implying it was "old guard" in makeup. He pointed out that not one delegate was under 50, not one a war veteran, and not one a Young Republican.

On the Republican front, only Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas cut any ice. They are heading the parade of Republican presidential candidates. Illinois headquarters for Borah were opened at the Congress hotel in Chicago on Monday. Borah's managers are preparing to fight hard for the Illinois delegation. Landon's managers also indicated a fight in the state. A straw vote among county precinct committeemen and party workers in Lee county gave Landon a 2 to 1 vote.

In the Illinois political field, Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for governor, was indorsed by the executive committee of the Lake county Republican central committee. Later the Cook county organization supporting him drew up a county slate headed with the name of Harry S. Ditchburne for state's attorney. Ditchburne is an experienced prosecutor, and has the approval as a lawyer of the Chicago Bar association. As the week progressed more candidates announced themselves for state offices. State Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield filed for auditor, Mayor John W. Kapp Jr. of Springfield filed for secretary of state, and Clarence F. Buck of Monmouth filed for treasurer.

Gov. Henry Horner, meanwhile, on Thursday began drafting a state ticket of his own. He announced that he would support Attorney John E. Cassidy of Peoria for lieutenant governor against John Stelle. Horner later announced he would also support Homer M. Adams of Urbana for auditor and Joseph T. Spiker of Chicago for treasurer.

The Illinois Republican state central committee, meeting in Mattoon Thursday, voted to hold its 1936 convention at Peoria on May 1. Decatur, Champaign-Urbana, Springfield and Bushnell had sought the convention.

Ogden L. Mills, former secretary of the treasury, states in his book, "Liberalism Fights On," published Tuesday, that "all the elements of a great explosion" have been gathered together under the New Deal.

Former Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, speaking in Frederick, Md., Tuesday, said that to adopt New Deal measures as permanent policies "would be a pretty radical step to take."

Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, Dixie Democrat and foe of President Roosevelt, thinks that the Liberty league, also a foe of the President, ought to help him—Talmadge—with contributions. "I haven't got a penny from the league," he complained.

Senator Elmer A. Benson announced his candidacy Tuesday for governor of Minnesota on the Farmer-Labor ticket. Benson is filling the unexpired term of Senator Thomas D. Schall, killed by an automobile two months ago. Gov. Floyd B. Olson is expected to run for the regular vacancy.

Education

Dean William F. Zimmerman of Midland college, Fremont, Neb., made a long study of what boy and girl students talk about on campuses. He reported his findings at a seminar of the United Lutheran board of education in Chicago. The college girl's main thoughts, he said, concerned the doings of her coed friends. The college boy's main thoughts, he said, concerned his studies. Neither showed much interest in public affairs, he discovered.

A new method of teaching social science is being employed at Crane Technical High school, Chicago. Its principal feature is the use of current history as mirrored by newspapers and magazines, thus making the study alive with vital, moving events.

Northwestern university purchased the residence of Maj. Lenox R. Lohr at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Colfax street, Evanston, for $35,000. This gives the university complete ownership of six blocks of frontage on the west side of Sheridan road. Maj. Lohr, former manager of A Century of Progress, is now head of the National Broadcasting company.

McGill university, Montreal, Que., has reduced its deficit for the present session. The present deficit is estimated at $146,000, which is about $100,000 less than that of the previous year.

Willard E. Givens of Oakland, Cal., secretary of the National Education association, announced in Chicago that his association is planning to ask congress to appropriate 300 million dollars for support of schools in the United States.

Liggett

A Minneapolis jury found Isadore [Kid Cann] Blumenfeld, former bootlegger, not guilty Tuesday night of the murder of Walter W. Liggett, crusading newspaper editor. He had been identified by Liggett's widow, Edith, and Wesley Andersch as the slayer. In court Blumenfeld called more than 50 alibi witnesses who placed him in a barber shop at the time of the shooting. He also called four Minneapolis policemen who sought to weaken Mrs. Liggett's identification. After the verdict Mrs. Liggett said the policemen lied and that if she could run her own life she would move out of Minneapolis. She charged that the "murder of an enemy of Floyd B. Olson [the governor] is hardly a crime in Minneapolis." She earlier had attributed her husband's death to his war on Olson and on rackets. On Friday she charged that a police department machine gun was used to kill Liggett. Liggett was slain last Dec. 9. Blumenfeld was arrested and identified soon afterward. His trial started Jan. 20.

STEIN LANGUAGE.

Saloon keepers in San Francisco last week got around the state ruling against advertising their business with signs larger than 720 square inches. They merely changed the spelling in obvious cases so that the signs literally did not advertise their business. Thus "Happy Days Beer, 5c." became "Happy Days Pier, 5c." "Big Beer" became "Big Bee." Many taverns and buffets became "Caverns" and "Cuffets." The thirsty were able to read the signs.

Labor

The Australian government last week broke up a seamen's strike by invoking an old licensing law. To work on coastal trade ships, seamen must be licensed. To go on strike they must give up the licenses, otherwise face jail sentence.

Nearly 14,000 men stayed on strike and continued to picket the three big plants of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company in Akron, O., yesterday despite an injunction forbidding picketing. Pickets successfully kept most of the workers from reporting for duty. Company officials asserted that they did not know what the strike was about.

Strikers at the Columbia Enameling and Stamping company in Terre Haute, Ind., won a victory on Monday when the labor relations board ordered the company to dismiss all production employes not employed before the strike last spring, and to reemploy as many strikers as are needed. The rest of the unemployed strikers are to be placed on the preference list. The strike last spring resulted in a two day general strike that paralyzed Terre Haute and led to martial law.

A Minneapolis city council committee on Wednesday temporarily blocked passage of a proposed ordinance to give the mayor and police chief the right to close any business place involved in a labor dispute. The power would be employed, of course, only to maintain peace and order. It was said the measure, if passed, would be directed at the Strutwear Knitting company's strike-bound plant.

Death Fumes

Escaping gas, result either of intense cold or accident, brought death and terror to scattered cities and communities last week. Among them were Utica, N. Y.; Sycamore, East St. Louis, and Belleville, Ill.; Toledo, Detroit, and Omaha.

Utica was hardest hit, although not fatally. An underground gas fire blew up fifteen manhole covers, shot flames 40 feet in the air through the openings, and caused injuries to two persons. Buildings and stores in the downtown area were closed. Commercial loss was heavy. The underground fire was finally put out Wednesday.

In Sycamore, Albert Jackson, his wife, Gladys, and their two young children were killed by gas escaping from a broken main Monday. Steve Tompkaceck, a gas company worker, was overcome next day. The same day the families of Nora Knodle and H. A. Bock were made ill by escaping gas.

The gas menace in the East St. Louis-Belleville area took two more lives Tuesday with the deaths of Frank Singers and his adopted daughter, Lorraine. This raised the toll to four. Sixty-four other persons have been made ill. In Toledo, Wednesday, eight persons were overcome. In Detroit, Sunday, four persons were killed in a suburban gas explosion that destroyed two homes. Frozen gas mains were blamed. A broken main was blamed for the gas deaths in Omaha Monday of August Wahlstrom and his son, Clarence. Gas also caused deaths in Pontiac and Clio, Mich. Two persons were killed and ten overcome at Clio Friday.

Sale of Power by TVA Held Legal

Encouraged by the Supreme court's decision on the Tennessee Valley act, the New Deal revealed last week that it would rush work on projects already under construction and probably create new ones. [See Washington.

The above maps show the scope of TVA. The larger one pictures in detail the principal and costliest project, Norris dam. The inserted map shows other main units, several of which have not even been put in blueprint yet. A summary follows:

Norris dam—To cost $36,600,000, most of which has been spent; the last concrete has been poured.

Norris Town—350 homes built at cost of $1,500,000.

Pickwick Landing—To cost $26,700,000; about $9,000,000 already spent; about one-third completed.

Wheeler dam—To cost $33,800,000; nearly $30,000,000 spent; to be completed this summer.

Guntersville—To cost $29,400,000; work just started.

Chickamauga—To cost $31,600,000; work just started.

Aurora Landing—No estimates; plans not prepared.

Hiwassee—Preliminary cost not to exceed $1,000,000; no site and no design yet.

French Broad—No expenditures contemplated; no designs.

Great areas will be flooded when and if the entire TVA is carried out. No inundation has been completed yet, although water is backing behind Norris and slowly creeping over the town of Loyston.

The total cost of Norris dam and its units will run to $111,000,000, of which $75,000,000 has been spent. As to the ultimate total cost of the TVA, including such projects as Hiwassee, French Broad, Aurora Landing, and others, TVA experts will not even guess.

Flying

V. Shevchenko, Russian flyer, flew over Moscow Tuesday in a two seater plane. On landing, he claimed to have reached an altitude of 35,662 feet, or 6.754 miles.

Prof. Alexander Klemin, aeronautical expert of New York university, told an audience Monday that rocket planes probably would be used in the next big war. "There are possibilities," he said, "of constructing an aerial weapon for destroying the enemy at 200 miles without risking the life of a pilot."

Melbourne, Australia, gave a rousing welcome to Lincoln Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon on their return to civilization Monday. The two were recently rescued by the Discovery II. after they had been lost two months in Antarctica. They were forced to land when their plane ran out of fuel while on a south pole flight.

Here's a chance for inventors to win rewards up to $75,000. All they need do is to invent devices that will promote air efficiency and safety. What are wanted most, according to the federal patent and design board, are: a device that would enable planes to land at a lower speed without slowing their air speed; a new bombing sight for faster modern planes; improved superchargers; better method for braking planes in landing; lighter and more efficient propellers; improved gunsights for airplane machine guns; devices for de-icing propellers and wing tail surfaces; improved cowling, and a new altimeter, especially for low flying.

Damages of $500,000 are sought from the TWA airlines by Henry T. Sharp, movie camera man. He filed suit in Los Angeles on Monday, citing injuries received in the plane crash at Atlanta, Mo., last May 6. Senator Bronson Cutting was killed in that accident.

Lieut. Lawrence C. Westley of the army air corps was killed in a parachute leap from his crippled ship at Beaumont, Tex., on Tuesday. . . . W. S. Barnett, a Randolph field flying cadet, was killed when his plane crashed near Lavernia, Tex., on Wednesday. . . . George L. Culver, president of the Culver Oil company of Gladewater, Tex., and of the Dallas Culver Aircraft, Inc., and Paul Snick, his newly appointed sales manager, were killed when their plane crashed into a street in a Dallas, Tex., suburb on Sunday.

The first projected air mail flight from China to Europe ended in failure several days ago when the plane, a French ship, out of Shanghai, was stopped by fog at Forbayard.

Eight lives were lost and three planes destroyed Wednesday and Thursday in Great Britain's first winter night air maneuvers. A bomber was wrecked on Beacon Hill, Sussex Downs. Another fell into the sea near Le Havre, France. The third fell at Cranwell aerodrome. One hundred and forty-four planes participated in the maneuvers.

Five Japanese naval aviators were killed Thursday in a crash of two planes off Kyusha Island. A week earlier six flyers were killed in maneuvers.

Malcolm MacGregor, squadron leader, world war ace, and long distance flyer, lost his life Wednesday when his plane crashed in a landing at Wellington, New Zealand. He tried to land in a gale.

WAR GAMES.

The greatest peacetime war games ever planned by the war department will be conducted in the midwest late this summer, it was learned Friday. The locale will cover lower Michigan and perhaps touch Illinois and Indiana. Camp Custer, Mich., probably will be the center. It is expected that nearly 45,000 troops—regular army and National Guard—will participate. ●● The war department on Tuesday ordered a general resumption of recruiting to enlist 4,000 men. The Chicago area was allowed 700.

Foreign Notes

The Nazi chamber of culture last week banned all motion pictures of Charlie Chaplin from Germany. A scene from the film "Modern Times," showing Chaplin studying Hitler's picture and mustache, appeared to have angered the Nazis.

Nazi agitation aroused both Sweden and Switzerland. Sweden expelled three Nazi party propagandists. The Nazi leaders demanded the expulsion of three Swedes in retaliation. As a sequel to the slaying of Wilhelm Gustloff, Nazi leader, in Switzerland, the Swiss federal council banned the Nazi central organization.

The persecution of Catholics continued in a new secret police drive against "treasonable activities." Paul Goebbels, minister of propaganda, extended journalism restrictions to Catholic and Protestant church editors, so that they might be arrested for discussing the church-state conflict. The oppositional Protestant leaders met in Prussia without regard for the law against such meetings. Many delegates defied Nazi domination.

Karl Nisselbeck, German born American, was convicted in Munich of "high treason" and sentenced to two years in prison. Nisselbeck was accused of conspiring with Otto Strasser, exiled leader of the anti-Hitler "Black Front." Nisselbeck's defense was ruled out.

Premier Zyndram-Koscialkowski before parliament denounced the communist and nationalist movements in Poland for agitating anti-Jewish riots. The Roman Catholic church in Warsaw added its support to the proposed legislation to abolish the Jews' ritualistic methods of slaughtering animals. The Polish rabbis monopolize the meat trade. A compromise bill now under way would end the monopoly, but permit Jews to use kosher methods.

The Polish government ordered the Methodist Episcopal church, South, to liquidate its large educational society. Illegality was alleged because of use of educational revenue to support missionaries. Two properties worth $400,000 were confiscated in Warsaw. The church intends to fight.

The leftists, founders of the second Spanish republic in 1931, won a general election of parliament last Sunday and 27 were killed in the celebrations throughout the week. At Madrid Premier Manuel Partela, a rightist, resigned in the hope that a leftist cabinet could quiet the vicious rioting throughout Spain. Manuel Azana, veteran left Republican who formed the first government when King Alfonso was overthrown, appointed a cabinet and immediately ordered the release of political prisoners jailed after the leftist revolt in 1934. Release of these prisoners was the main object of the riots. On Friday the parliamentary commission was forced to unconditional release of 34,000. [See main news section.]

Reports of a military coup to prevent leftist control of the government led to the transfer of Gen. Francisco Franco to the Canary Islands. Premier Azana adopted martial law to prevent communist uprisings in some sections. The Reds sacked and burned churches. José Maria Gil Robles, defeated rightist leader, was a supporter of the Catholic church. The defeat of the conservatist government was decisive, but the election gave Azana only 140 deputies out of 475. He must depend on the support of 104 socialists and communists.

The veterans of Paraguay's bitter Chaco war with Bolivia revolted in Asuncion, Paraguay, last week and overthrew the régime of President Eusebio Ayala. Col. Rafael Franco, hero of the jungle war, was called back from exile in Buenos Aires to become provisional president. Col. Franco, governing under army authority, declared that Ayala signed a "treacherous armistice" with Bolivia. He said the peace pact would be respected, however. A La Paz, Bolivia, newspaper called the revolt a "danger not only for Bolivia but for all of the Americas." The revolt of the "liberating army" was accomplished by seizure of the arsenal on the edge of Asuncion. The rebels fired on the city and, when the government's police refused to fight, soon commanded the capital.

The recent revolt in Syria against French control brought the resignation last week of the president of the Syrian republic, Ahmed Ali Bek El-Abed. Count de Martel, French high commissioner, appointed a committee to arbitrate disputes between the French government and the Nationalists, who led the month's rioting. The committee, although non-Nationalist, refused his program and demanded release of all jailed rioters and an independent government. In Paris a committee of military and colonial chiefs met with Premier Albert Sarraut to discuss unrest in France's African colonies. The chamber of deputies was in its traditional uproar, this time over the parade last Sunday of 100,000 anti-Fascists in protest of royalist riots.

The British house of commons was debating more physical and technical education for British children. Lady Nancy Astor declared she would have been better off if she had gone to work when she was 8 years old. After his faction jeered her, James Maxton, Scot Laborite, arose and said the kind of education needed was one providing women of the same spiritual age as Lady Astor. He said she looked 19. Lady Astor was indignant.

Redfern

The American and Brazilian governments launched official inquiries Thursday into reports that Paul Redfern had been found alive in a Brazilian jungle. Redfern, American flyer, disappeared in August, 1927, on a projected solo flight to Rio de Janeiro. Several expeditions are now looking for him. Several days ago Alfred Harred, a reporter at Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, announced that he and Art Williams, former American army pilot, had found Redfern in a wild Indian village in the Tumuc Humac mountains of northeastern Brazil. Williams, in Georgetown, British Guiana, immediately denied the story. He said he didn't even know Harred. Williams has been searching for Redfern.

Sterile Heiress.

Municipal Judge Sylvain J. Lazarus of San Francisco last week took the "intelligence" test which led to the sterilization of Ann Cooper Hewitt, 21 year old heiress. Mrs. Mary S. Scally, city health psychiatrist who had found Miss Hewitt "feeble-minded" on the same test, told the judge, "Your mental age is 12 years." "I thought it was nearer 8," replied the judge. Mrs. Scally and Miss Hewitt were witnesses at the arraignment of Drs. Tilton E. Tillman and Samuel G. Boyd upon charges of mayhem. Both pleaded not guilty. They were ordered to stand trial. Miss Hewitt reasserted that the sterilization, under the guise of an appendicitis operation, was a plot to give her mother, Mrs. Maryon Hewitt, control of a huge trust fund. A mayhem warant for Mrs. Hewitt awaits execution in New York.

Virile at 95.

George Hughes, 95 years old, and his wife, 28, of New Bern, N. C., have been married less than two years. Last summer the young woman bore Hughes a son. The medical profession was startled but his virility was authenticated in a report to the Journal of the American Medical association. Hughes, born in 1840, is a confederate army veteran who lives on his pension. His first wife bore him 16 children. The oldest living is 63. Last week Hughes told a Carolina newspaper editor that he expected to become a father again in May.

Dentists.

Facts and figures of last week's annual convention of the Chicago Dental society:

Mouth cancers, according to one investigation, are responsible for 30 per cent of cancer deaths—Dr. Carroll W. Stuart, University of Illinois oral surgeon.

Dental charts are as good as finger prints for the permanent identification of criminals—W. H. Drane Lester, federal bureau of investigation inspector.

Compulsory dental insurance programs, such as in Russia, would make dentistry a political football and put the least competent in authority—Dr. George Wood Clapp of New York.

Of the 945 students of Hyde Park High school given complete examinations, 96 per cent had an average of 5½ cavities each—Dr. F. Van Minden, secretary of the Mouth Hygiene council of Chicago.

Knowledge.

Dr. Nathan B. Van Etten, speaker of the American Medical association house of delegates, last week keynoted the A. M. A.'s annual congress on medical education. A physician must study the human race as closely as he studies the human body and lack of such teaching has left medical students in ignorance of practical service, said Dr. Van Etten.

Other speakers discussed teaching reforms and Dr. Stanhope Bayne-Jones, dean of the Yale medical school, offered a five point program of instruction, including the social history of medicine, social and medical legislation, medical organization and ethics, conditions in various fields of practice, and new forms of medical practice.

Dr. Charles E. Reed of Chicago said one big factor in the high childbirth mortality of mothers was insufficient training of medical students in deliveries. Dr. George K. Kosmak of New York protested against the wide belief that obstetrics is a surgical specialty, rather than a physiological process normally.

BARED TO WORSE.

The schooner Fleetwood, carrying a group of nudists, started out from Tampa, Fla., for the third time Sunday in search of a Caribbean haven, but bad luck for the third time dogged it. At last reports the Fleetwood was firmly aground on a sand bar about 50 miles south of Boco Grande, Fla.

Crime

Investigation of the slaying of Machine Gun Jack McGurn, Capone gangster, a week ago yesterday, bumped into stone walls last week. McGurn was shot while in the bowling alleys at 805 Milwaukee avenue. Twenty persons were in the place at the time, but police found only three of them. They said they couldn't identify the killers except that they were strangers who followed McGurn and several friends into the place. Police think perhaps McGurn's own companions killed him. They questioned his widow, the former Louise Rolfe. At first she had said she was home in Oak Park when McGurn was killed. She changed her story Monday, saying she was visiting cabarets at the time with Marjorie Swift, 19 years old, granddaughter of the late George B. Swift, former mayor of Chicago. Miss Swift denied this. Search of McGurn's safety deposit vault yielded no clews. McGurn—whose real name was Vincent Gebardi—was buried without pomp Tuesday.

The Michigan Supreme court on Tuesday granted a review to 18 Democratic officials convicted of stealing votes during a Wayne county [Detroit] recount of the 1934 fall election. Among them were Elmer B. O'Hara, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, and State Senator Anthony J. Wilkowski, who are under prison sentences of four to five years each. All were admitted to bail.

New York police on Tuesday arrested Andrew Athanasiades, 29 years old, a metal draftsman, as the alleged writer of extortion letters to Morris Sarnoff demanding $1,000. Sarnoff is a brother of David Sarnoff of the Radio Corporation of America.

The United States Supreme court on Monday set aside the death sentences imposed upon three Mississippi Negroes convicted of murder. Lawyers for the men declared that confessions were obtained from them by hanging one to a tree for a time and whipping the two others while naked. Chief Justice Hughes in reversing the conviction asserted that "the rack and torture may not be substituted for the witness stand."

Tony Calcagno was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell Friday. He stole $38 in the robbery of a restaurant at 600 Blue Island avenue several days before. Frank Savatis, an artist specializing in portrait sketches, was in the restaurant at the time. From memory, he made a sketch of Calcagno that was so good it enabled police to arrest him.

Warden James B. Holohan of San Quentin prison, California, resigned Friday, effective April 1. He said the job was becoming increasingly difficult and his health was poor.

Louis Lipschultz, a brother-in-law of Jack Guzik, former Capone chieftain, was fined $500 in Chicago federal court Friday on his plea of guilty to a charge of failing to file an income tax return for 1927.

The Will county grand jury at Joliet on Friday indicted James Day, young convict, for the murder of Richard Loeb, one of the slayers of Bobby Franks in 1924. During the week the Horner commission investigated charges of privileges and scandals in the Stateville prison where Loeb was killed.

Criminals do not like to commit crimes during cold weather. The detective bureau records showed last week that all crimes in Chicago dropped sharply during the long cold spell. The average of robberies is about 30 a day throughout the year. Since Jan. 22, when the cold siege began, robberies have ranged from six to 28 a day.

A few weeks ago Robert Mahan, 23 years old, was acquitted by a jury at Jenkins, Ky., of a charge that he tortured his infant son to death. His friends advised him to leave the state since the community felt hostile toward him in spite of his acquittal. He left, but returned last Sunday. He appeared at Payne Gap, in the mountains, swaggered into the Freewill Baptist church and began shooting. No one was hurt. Then Mahan disappeared again.

From London, King Edward VIII. has stretched a helping hand to a California convict sentenced to die Feb. 28. This became known last week when Cyril Cane, British consul general at San Francisco, appealed both to Gov. Frank Merriam and to the California Supreme court to commute to life the death sentence of Alexander Mackay, a British subject. Mackay was sentenced to death for kidnaping three guards in the outbreak from San Quentin prison in January, 1935. He pleaded he was in prison for a crime he did not commit, and explained that he tried to escape because he had been kept in prison years after the others sentenced with him had been paroled. The Supreme court on Thursday recommended that Mackay be reprieved. The United States Supreme court is considering a case like his. Its decision will determine his ultimate fate.

A band of Mexican bandits ambushed a pay roll truck outside the village of Hucicila on Sunday, killed six of the guards and escaped with $9,000.

Religion

Fire attacked the German Lutheran church in Dixon, Ill., while the congregation was attending service. Instead of fleeing to safety, the congregation remained inside and prayed with their pastor that the church might be saved from the flames.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the senate munitions committee, who specializes in talking about war, will not address the annual meeting of the Detroit conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Calumet, Mich., in June. The Rev. S. A. Carey, pastor of the Calumet M. E. church, where Nye was to speak, canceled the invitation. He explained that Calumet Methodist leaders did not want political affairs injected into a church meeting. The Methodist Episcopal Preachers association of Detroit disapproved the cancelation. The Rev. Frederick G. Poole, a member of the association, charged that the Calumet and Hecla Copper company owns the property on which the Calumet church stands and influenced the decision to cancel the Nye invitation. [See Neutrality, in Washington.]

Vatican City, Italy, opened its new city jail last week. It has three cells, a modern ventilating system and exercise grounds. Only those violating Vatican City ordinances may be confined in the jail.

Hauptmann

Bruno Richard Hauptmann moved closer to the electric chair last week for the Lindbergh baby murder. He even saw the chair of death.

Events moved swiftly in chronological order. Hauptmann was interviewed again Sunday in his death cell in Trenton, N. J., by Samuel S. Leibowitz, famous New York lawyer. Leibowitz had entered the case informally to help Hauptmann only if Hauptmann would tell the truth. The interview developed nothing; Hauptmann still denied the crime.

On Wednesday Justice Thomas W. Trenchard for the third time in 13 months, sentenced Hauptmann to death. He set the week of March 30 for the execution. That afternoon Leibowitz, accompanied by C. Lloyd Fisher, Hauptmann's chief counsel, interviewed Hauptmann once more.

The meeting was stormy. Hauptmann frequently became angry, then pleading. He maintained innocence, but once admitted "my story sounds pretty weak." Leibowitz, hoping to wrest a confession from him by a psychological maneuver, had Hauptmann look at the death chair. Hauptmann blanched. He shook—but didn't confess. That night Leibowitz withdrew from the case. "I want no further part in it," he said. He indicated his belief that Hauptmann is guilty. Hauptmann's only hope now rests in Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey. Hoffman once granted him a reprieve, but on Friday denied he would grant a second one.

Gov. Hoffman sprung a surprise that night when he asked for the arrest, for questioning, of Millard Whited, Sourland mountain logger, one of the two witnesses who placed Hauptmann on the Lindbergh murder scene. The governor is also investigating the other eyewitness, Amandus Hochmuth. Whited was found in Lambertville, N. J., yesterday and questioned in Trenton by Gov. Hoffman. He was examined in detail about his testimony in court. [See main news section.]

Thayer, John Adams, 75, retired publisher, Westport, Conn., Friday. He once published Everybody's Magazine, Adventure Magazine, and the Smart Set magazine.

HIAWATHA'S HERO.

Henry Jarvis, 50 years old, a former Canadian soldier, became a hero last week. Jarvis lives in a small house on the bank of the Rock river, near Oconomowoc, Wis. While looking for coal on the Milwaukee railroad tracks, he noticed a broken rail. He realized the crack Hiawatha train would be due soon. He ran a mile to the nearest telephone, and notified the train master at Oconomowoc who stopped the Hiawatha.

COMPANIES CUT BOND RATES; PAY SAVING IN TAXES

Investors Get Less Under New Deal.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

How the New Deal program of big federal expenditures and rising taxes is taking income from bondholders and giving it to stockholders, and then taking it from stockholders and giving it to the tax collectors, is graphically shown in corporate financial statements now being made public.

Inflation of the federal debt and consequent expansion of bank deposits has created an artificially "easy" money market in which not only the federal government but corporations, as well, have been able to call in their old bonds and replace them with new bonds bearing lower interest rates. This process, which began about a year ago, has been accentuated during the last few weeks by vast new corporate refunding plans.

Dilemma for Investors.

Investors whose higher interest coupon bonds are being redeemed, unable to buy new bonds yielding similar rates, are given the choice of purchasing bonds returning less—and thereby suffering reductions of from 25 to 40 per cent in their income—or of reinvesting their cash in stocks.

Increasingly, investors, facing that dilemma, are turning in desperation to stocks, despite the speculative risk involved in such a move. This applies not only to individuals with modest capital but to persons of larger means, as well as universities, hospitals, and similar endowed institutions.

The issue was pointed out recently when trustees of Leland Stanford university applied to the court for permission to invest a portion of their funds in common stocks and real estate, instead of exclusively in bonds. The trustees cited the threat of inflation as well as the reduced income on bonds as their reason.

Rising Taxes Offset Savings.

That corporations in calling in their higher coupon bonds and refunding with new bonds paying less interest are gaining only temporary advantage, however, is indicated by the current earnings statements showing a steadily rising trend in taxation.

Thus, the money corporations are saving in lower interest charges is being steadily offset by higher tax bills. It is a triple play—from bondholders to stockholders to tax collectors.

That bondholders' income is continuously diminishing, despite the upturn in business and the tapering of defaults, is strikingly shown in a compilation made by the New York Journal of Commerce, which discloses that estimated interest payments this month throughout the United States will amount to only 229 million dollars, compared with 257 millions in February, 1935. Dividend payments for the month, on the other hand, mount to an estimated 368 millions, compared with 363 millions in February, 1935.

Flood of Bond Refundings.

Meanwhile, the flood of corporate bond refundings continues. The Shell Union Oil company is about to offer 60 million dollars of new 3½ per cent bonds to replace outstanding 5 per cent bonds, meaning a reduction in income for the investors in these bonds of 30 per cent. Pacific Gas and Electric is negotiating for the sale of 90 millions of new bonds, probably at a 3½ per cent rate, to replace outstanding 4½ per cent bonds. These are only two of many such cases.

Consolidated Gas company of New York is reported to be considering a big refunding program to reduce its interest charges. Whatever reduction in its interest costs Consolidated Gas succeeds in making, however, has already been more than offset by its mounting tax load.

Rising Taxes Cut Profit.

This company's annual income statement released last week disclosed that in spite of a gain in gross revenues in 1935 profits were lower than in 1934 because of a 5 million dollar increase in taxes. Tax collectors are already getting more out of Consolidated Gas than its stockholders. Profits available for dividends were less than 34 millions. Taxes were nearly 46 millions.

Commonwealth Edison company is another concern earning more for the tax gatherers than for its owners. Taxes for 1935 were $7.53 per share. Earnings were $6.39.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, one of the first big corporations to take advantage of the "easy" money market to refund its debt, in a statement last week emphasized the fact that taxes paid in 1934 equaled $2.97 per share, compared with earnings of $1.76 per share and dividends of $1.25 per share.

LARGE STOCK MARKET PROFITS

On December 16th we selected TIMKEN DETROIT AXLE as an outstanding bargain stock. It was then selling at 10¾. Since then it has sold above 17. Here, then, is a profit of 59% in two months.

Of course, this is an unusually large gain to make in such a short time, but it demonstrates what can be done if you ferret out cheap stocks quoted at bargain prices.

Such issues are hard to find. We have located another which appears especially promising. Earnings point sharply higher. The stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Its action leads us to believe that it is due for an extensive advance. It may be picked up now for less than $20 a share.

Reserve May Use Power to Check Stocks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—Faced with the possibility of a runaway market and excess bank reserves of $3,040,000,000 that present the danger of the greatest credit inflation in the history of the country, the federal reserve board is expected to vote this week on a use of its vastly increased powers under the New Deal.

During the last week the board discussed the problem of excess reserves from every angle, it was learned. Veiling their discussions with the utmost secrecy, board members described them as merely routine conferences with the staf.

Chairman Marriner S. Eccles and other board members have argued in the past that the idle funds were not of any particular consequence because credit was not being extended in the market.

Future Deflation Feared.

Feeling has grown, however, that if the board should attempt to stem the tide after the banks start lending, the deflationary effect resulting would bring the whole financial community down on the heads of the reserve governors.

The board has the power to double the present reserve requirements, which if carried to the maximum percentage would freeze the excess reserves and prohibit their use by the member banks of the system.

But here the board is between the devil and the deep blue sea. The treasury is faced with a heavy borrowing program to finance the continued New Deal expenditures above income and in addition the cashing of bonds for the veterans' bonus prepayment after June. Reducing the excess reserves decreases the amount of money that might go into government securities as well as jacks up the interest rates.

Gold Influx Boosts Reserves.

The idle reserves have been greatly increased by the inflow of funds from Europe during the last two years.

That the reserve board has seen the danger signals flyin; was disclosed in its February bulletin, out today. The board offered an explanation of its recent action in increasing margin requirements on loans made by brokers and dealers in securities as of Feb. 1.

"Through the use of this instrument it may be possible for the board to exert a restraining influence on the use of credit for speculation in the stock market," the board said, "before it has reached a stage at which the general business and credit situation is unfavorably affected."

INDUSTRY INDEX DIPS, DUE TO CUT IN AUTO OUTPUT

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Drooping under the weight of an unseasonal decline in automobile production, the Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of industrial activity fell to 78.7 from 80.9 a week ago. The index was 76.4 in the same week of 1935.

The index, with seasonally adjusted indices of its components, calculated on the latest statistics and based on 1929-'30 as 100, follows:

| | Latest wk. | Prev. wk. | Year ago. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Composite | 78.7 | 80.9 | 76.4 |
| Automobile | 60.9 | 76.4 | 79.9 |
| Steel Mill | 51.7 | 52.0 | 65.9 |
| Cotton Mfg. | 95.0 | 95.8 | 91.6 |
| Electric Power | *105.8 | 105.5 | 98.7 |
| Home Bldg. | 43.0 | 43.0 | 19.0 |
| Carloadings | *68.5 | 67.9 | 63.2 |

DOHERTY DIRECTOR OF 95 CORPORATIONS; IS PRESIDENT OF 87

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Henry L. Doherty of the Cities Service company holds the distinction of being a director of more corporations than any other individual in the United States. He is a director of ninety-five corporations of which he is president of eighty-seven. John D. Rockefeller Jr. and J. P. Morgan serve on a few boards, most of which are of a philanthropic nature, according to the 1936 edition of Poor's Register of Directors.

Rockefeller is chairman of the Rockefeller Foundation, trustee of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, director of the general educational board, and other charitable enterprises. Morgan serves on the boards of the Ætna Insurance company, U. S. Steel corporation, Pullman company, various church corporations, and the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate company.

Charles Hayden of Hayden, Stone & Co. is a director of fifty-eight corporations engaged in widely diversified fields of activity. Henry and Edsel Ford are shown as having remained close to the automobile industry. Henry Ford is a member of just one corporation, the Ford Motor company, and the younger Ford is president and treasurer of both Ford and Lincoln Motor companies, and a director of two affiliated enterprises.

USE OF FEDERAL CASH FOR POWER PLANT UPHELD

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 22.—[U. P.]—The New Deal's right to allocate funds for a publicly owned power project was upheld today by a federal Appellate court. The court reversed a federal District court's decision in South Carolina restraining the Public Works administration from providing $2,852,000 to build a power plant at Buzzard Roost, S. C. The District court held the public works act constitutional.

The Appellate court in another decision upheld the Baltimore District court in instructing trustees of the American States Public Service company, a holding concern in process of reorganization, not to register with the Securities and Exchange commission, but the Appellate court added that the District court's declaration that the utility holding company act is "unconstitutional in its entirety should be omitted."

HOME BUILDING RISES 170% IN 1935, PERKINS REPORTS

"Compared with 1934, the value of residential building in 811 reporting cities increased 170 per cent," she said. "In these cities dwelling units were provided for 76,515 families compared with less than 30,000 in 1934. There were also pronounced increases in the value of new nonresidential building and of additions, alterations, and repairs."

What 12 Stocks Do Experts Favor?

DURING the past four weeks the stock recommendations of leading financial authorities have centered about 12 issues. The names of these favored stocks and the prices at which they are recommended are given in the current UNITED OPINION Bulletin.

Experience has shown that stocks recommended by three or more financial experts almost invariably show better than average appreciation.

To introduce to you the UNITED OPINION method of stock forecasting—so successful during the past 16 years—we shall be glad to send you without obligation this list of 12 outstanding stocks—a list available through no other source.

Landis Warns Against Excess of Speculation

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Alarm over recent heavy speculation in securities was expressed here today by James M. Landis, chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, before the national alumni association of Princeton university. He warned against excesses which he implied were again present in the markets.

The cure for over market indulgence, he said, can come only through education of the public to a desire for orderly marketing in place of speculative excesses and not through legislative pressure.

"Views With Alarm."

"One sees with concern," he said, "the efforts of traders to outguess events, like court decisions, and the increasing tendency subtly created to induce people to pour their savings into the market with the same helplessness as before."

Landis apparently referred to the huge wave of selling which preceded reading of the Supreme court's decision on the Tennessee Valley authority last Monday, and the subsequent reaction when it was discovered the governement had been upheld.

The 36 year old New Deal securities chief dwelt on the current situation only briefly in the course of an address on the philosophic approach to market regulation.

Calls Laws Impotent.

"The still prevalent conduct of customers' men to encourage activity by irresponsible talk, sometimes merely for the sake of activity, must be met by education of their customers to an understanding of such insinuations to speculate," Landis continued.

"Still too prevalent, as our monthly reports show, is the tendancy of officers and directors to toy with the stock of their own corporations at the expense of their true responsibility of functioning as executives.

"These things are the ways of life that we condemned in the early thirties. But to harry them out of existence by legislative fiat is impossible."

Retail Advertising Exceeds Year Ago in Newspapers

Retail newspaper advertising in the first seven weeks of 1936 gained 2.7 per cent over the same 1935 period, the Advertising Age announced yesterday. Newspapers in 65 major cities carried 96,660,827 lines in the period ended Feb. 15, compared with 94,151,068 lines in the same period last year.

Banks, Markets Close to Honor Washington

Domestic commodity and security markets in the United States closed yesterday in observance of Washington's birthday. Banks also were closed. Business will be resumed tomorrow morning at the regular hours.

SILVER BROKERS REVEAL HOW U.S. 'RIGGED' PRICE

London Dealers Rap Treasury's Policy.

How the United States treasury dominated the world silver market in 1935 and how it suddenly relinquished that domination in the final month of the year are described from the viewpoint of one of the four men who daily fix the price of silver in London, in the annual circular of Pixley & Abell, leading London bullion brokers, which has just been received here. Pixley & Abell is one of four London bullion brokers whose representatives meet each morning to set a price for silver.

In a description of the course of the silver market last year, the firm's circular reveals how the London market became increasingly dependent upon the United States treasury and how messages went back and forth between the London brokers and our treasury during periods of critical developments. It declares that prior to the December collapse of the silver market the treasury had sent orders to London for the purchase of silver and had stipulated the price fixed must not be lower than the limit the treasury was willing to pay.

Charges U. S. Kept Price High.

It is said, the American treasury stated, that if the amount bid for was not enough to hold the price of silver the bid would be increased. By this practice, the London brokers say, the American government "deliberately kept the market high."

Discussing the collapse of the market in December, the London firm says that for weeks prior to Dec. 7 the United States had bought silver steadily. On Monday, Dec. 9, there was the usual substantial amount offered, chiefly from China, but for the first time in months no buying order from the United States treasury had been placed. Fixing of the price was therefore delayed until the brokers could get in touch with our treasury, but "after much negotiation" the treasury eventually took all that was offered at 28¾ pence per ounce, 7-16 penny under the previous day.

U. S. Treasury Halts Buying.

On Dec. 10 there were again no buying orders from the United States treasury. Fixing of the price was again delayed and efforts were made to get the treasury to come in; but this time it refused "to meet the market as a buyer," and it proved impossible to fix a price and no business was transacted.

"On the following day, Dec. 11, the selling pressure was repeated," the London silver brokers say,

"After much delay the United States treasury made a bid of 27½ pence per ounce for only 7½ per cent of the total offered for cash delivery.

"The pressure to sell continued on succeeding days, with the United States treasury the only buyer at progressively lower rates and of only a small proportion of the amounts offered. On two days the treasury refused to buy at all and quotations were purely nominal.

"While the United States treasury was neglecting the London market, the brokers say, it had been buying freely in Bombay. As a result by Dec. 24 the London price was the lowest in the world.

Criticize U. S. Policies.

The London bullion firm discloses a critical attitude toward our treasury's policies. Referring to the action of the treasury in first driving up the price of silver and then allowing it to fall, they say:

"The explanation of this apparent inconsistency has not been revealed by the cryptic utterances of the secretary to the United States treasury, but these would appear to indicate, at any rate, the relinquishment of the desire to bring about international coöperation in the wider use of silver as a monetary basis, for we can think of no nation simple enough to adopt as currency a metal which is at the mercy of a government whose spokesman has announced that its policy as regards silver is 'on a 24 hour basis.'"

BUSINESS NEWS IN REVIEW

Some Railroads Report Improved Earnings—Carriers Disturbed by Added Burdens of Proposed Legislation—Retail Trade Gets Setback—Stocks Climb.

Railroad stockholders, studying better earnings reports for 1935 issued last week, were somewhat encouraged by the improvement shown. In a few reports exceptional gains were recorded, but in others profits declined. In some instances deficits continued to expand. Railroad managements, searching for means to recover business lost to competitors or to stimulate new activity, watched the steadily increasing tax burden with apprehension.

J. J. PELLEY.

John Jeremiah Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, voiced the fears of the industry on Thursday in New York when he told the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers that pending legislation before congress, if passed, will add a billion dollars annually to operating costs of the carriers, or an additional cost of $20 for every carload of freight moved.

Concern.

"Great concern is evidenced about the funded debt of the railroads and the necessity for its reduction," Pelley said. "If the governmental authorities had the same concern about the increase in expense caused by legislative or regulatory action we might believe there would be an end to acts that unnecessarily increase the expense of railroad operation.

"All that can be done will be done by the railroads to reduce operating costs, whether in the direction of unification of terminals, reduction of waste in methods of service, or in other ways. But what advantage accrues to the railroads or shippers if the money saved must be taken out of the cash drawer to pay increased costs of operation resulting from new legislation or regulation which make impossible continued economies for the railroads without adding anything to their safety, service, or revenues?"

Profit.

Outstanding in last week's earnings reports was that of the Pennsylvania, which disclosed its 1935 profit was the best in five years. The Baltimore and Ohio reduced its loss, the Atchison reported a gain in net income, and the New York Central had a small profit compared with a loss in 1934.

Profit of the Northern Pacific was halved, Union Pacific's net income fell, Texas and Pacific had a profit in 1935 and a loss a year earlier, the Milwaukee's deficit climbed from 16 millions in 1934 to 18 millions last year, the Alton reduced its deficit, that of the Atlantic Coast Line increased, profit of the Reading equaled 1934, net of the Louisville and Nashville climbed 50 per cent, and the Rutland reported a larger loss.

Reports for January, 1936, indicated net operating income was equal to or more than 1935, but February is expected to show a sharp increase in costs because of difficult operation brought about by snows and cold, which will cut heavily into earnings for the month.

Business.

The decline in business activity which has been under way for more than a month continued during the week, although the recession was small. Outstanding development was the Supreme court's decision on the Tennessee Valley authority [see Washington: Review section] and its possible effect on the utility industry. New Dealers were jubilant, but business was disappointed because the ruling left many questions unanswered.

Extensive expansion programs which many utilities had planned will be curtailed, business reasoned, until the legality of the holding company act and PWA's financing of municipally operated plants is decided. Nonferrous metal markets, that had been counting on a substantial volume of business from the utilities were openly discouraged.

Cold weather [see City: Review section] failed to affect steel production which touched a new peak for the year at 54½ per cent of plant capacity. Production of electric power decreased less than seasonally and chalked up a new all time record for the particular week. Railroad travel, particularly to the south, was stimulated by the cold weather, but retail trade suffered another setback. A slight gain was shown in Chicago. The middle west made the best showing in retail trade with sales running well above 1935. Industrial indices were curtailed by the closing of many factories yesterday in observance of Washington's birthday.

Stocks.

Despite a bad start on Monday when financial markets were thrown off balance by the TVA decision stocks recovered and closed the week with averages at the highest levels in five years. Monday brought one of the most spectacular wrong guesses in the annals of financial circles. Traders jumped into the market with heavy buying orders when it was announced Chief Justice Hughes had started to read the decision. As it became clear the government had won a victory, utility shares plunged, pulling other sections of the list in their wake, although a subsequent rally carried all but the power and light shares forward again.

Commodities did little. Wheat was steady, corn and cotton a little lower. Butter and eggs sold at the highest levels in six years, but reacted later in the week as the weather moderated and permitted a resumption of shipments to market.

The week marked the first anniversary of the current "bull" market. Observers said its duration, without serious interruption, gives it a record unequalled since 1927. Since the start was made about March 1, 1935,

REACTION IMMINENT?

Stocks have been advancing steadily now for eleven months. Many issues have doubled and tripled in value. Public interest is approaching fever pitch, but uppermost in the minds of experienced traders is the problem of whether to sell now or to hold for higher prices.

Profitable stock trading requires a correct answer to three questions: When to buy, What to buy, WHEN TO SELL. It is not enough to answer accurately one or two. Profits are made only by those who have the correct answers to all three.

In this light consider the record of TECHNIGRAPHICS. Its selections have consistently led the advance. Purchases recommended four years ago as the 'split-up stocks of the future' included Westinghouse, Chrysler, Johns Manville, Aluminum Corp.

A year later came the mining group for gains of sensational proportions. Followed then the aircraft group in 1935. TECHNIGRAPHICS urged the purchase of Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Boeing, Sperry, when they were selling at one-fourth to one-half their present prices.

As late as February 1, TECHNIGRAPHICS recommended the purchase of Virginia-Carolina Chemical, then selling at $5. On February 20 it reached $8 a share, a gain of 60% in 14 market days.

Stock prices have reached what may be critical heights. They may continue to go higher for months to come, or a reaction may wipe out much of the hard-won gains of the long advance.

Now more than ever you need the timely and specific recommendations of TECHNIGRAPHICS, which time and again in the past have enabled clients to take profits at the proper time.

MANY STOCKS ADVANCE ABOVE PEAKS OF 1929

Inflation Factor in Year's Upturn.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

More than 125 stocks on the New York Stock exchange have recently exceeded or are currently selling above the highest prices commanded in 1929 at the peak of the bull market, a study revealed yesterday. More than two-thirds of the issues which have pierced their 1929 highs are preferred shares, but the group includes a number of common stocks.

In addition to the issues that have already broken their 1929 highs there are a number of issues which are selling close to the best prices which they brought in that year. The speculative buying that is currently lifting prices of many issues to new high figures has been under way for nearly a year. The present bull market began about March 1, 1935, and has continued without serious interruption since that time.

Evidence of Inflation.

Evidence of the "inflationary" character of the present bull market is provided by the sensational advance that has occurred in shares of the Homestake Mining company, the oldest and largest gold producing property in the United States. The stock is currently quoted at $530 a share as compared with its 1929 high price of $93 a share and its 1932 low of $110. The devaluation of the dollar and the boost in the price of gold made Homestake the most spectacular market performer of recent years.

The inflation in prices of many stocks has been so great that the traditional yardstick of "10 times earnings" is now as lightly regarded by many persons as it was during the bull market of the nineteen twenties. Many stocks are selling 20 to 30 times earnings, a ratio which even in 1929 was regarded somewhat out of line.

"Fear Buying" Is Factor.

Whether the market advance has been brought about because of inflation fears or in anticipation of business recovery still remains a controversial question. Most authorities agree, however, that "fear buying" has played a large part in the market advance during the last 12 months. It appears a fair assumption that the inflation of prices resulted from a combination of both these influences.

The difficulty of finding profitable employment for investment funds has diverted money into stocks which ordinarily would be put into bonds or other less speculative securities. Corporations have been taking advantage of the cheap money market to refund their bonded debt at lower rates. Investors who were receiving 5 per cent or more on bond holdings are asked to turn in their investments for new bonds yielding 3 to 4 per cent. Facing such a reduction in income in-

Stock prices have advanced 280 per cent from the low point in 1932 as measured by the market averages. The average price of the 50 stocks used in THE TRIBUNE averages stood at 34.43 on July 8, 1932, the market's depression low. By September, 1932, the market had recovered to 71.17, but fell again to 47.35 on Feb. 27, 1933, shortly before the national bank moratorium. Beginning with upturn last spring the market has advanced steadily carrying the average on the 50 stocks to 120.99 last Friday.

SOME CARRIERS REPORT GAIN IN 1935 EARNINGS

Disturbed by Burdens of Proposed Laws.

prices have been fattened by more than 80 per cent.

The dollar was stronger in terms of sterling and gold bloc currencies.

Coal, Autos.

An outstanding development was a rise in bituminous coal output which crossed the 10 billion ton mark for the first time since 1930. Automobile production declined. The total for February is expected to fall short of previous estimates and last February's actual output of 353,781 cars and trucks. Railroad freight trafic increased more than seasonally to 631,347 cars.

Gains.

January trade statistics issued during the week were favorable. Secretary of Labor Perkins reported gains in jobs and pay rolls. Illinois building volume was double last year's. The machine tool industry reported sharp increases over 1935. Cotton consumption by mills was the largest since 1929, although sales of textiles for future delivery fell below expectations. Woolen mills had enough orders on hand to keep going at current levels for 11 weeks. Rubber consumption reached a level attained only three times since 1929. Lumbermen were disappointed to learn that stocks increased a half billion feet during the last half of 1935.

Pepper.

In London on Friday John Howeson, "world tin king," Garabed Bishirgian, Armenian "spice sovereign," and Louis Hardy, a director of one of the three brokerage houses which collapsed as a result of the "pepper crash" in London early in 1935, were sentenced to imprisonment for their part in an attempt to corner the market. The convictions ended a case begun in February, last year. The presiding justice in his charge to the jury, said:

"If you can corner a commodity corner it. There is no law against it. You may think it is not a very nice thing to do, but there is nothing legally wrong about it."

The jury apparently remembered the days early in 1935 when astute financial London was smarting from an overdose of pepper administrated by orientals who outmaneuvered British speculators and precipitated a situation which bought heavy selling of English bonds and threatened a national financial scandal.

Pools, attempting to corner white pepper, peanuts, and shellac markets, overextended themselves and brought financial collapse to several brokerage houses. Native growers of the Dutch East Indies dumped enough white pepper on the London pools to last four years.

Official investigation was immediately launched, eventuating in last week's conviction of the three principals. Garabed was convicted of circulating a prospectus "which he knew to be false with intent to induce persons to become shareholders."

Labor.

Organized labor announced it will oppose the move of Joseph B. Eastman, railroad coördinator, to compel action on certain plans for unification. Labor spokesmen said the move would eliminate 1,000 jobs.

Unfair Practices Act Held Unconstitutional

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—California's unfair practices act, which makes it unlawful for retailers to offer merchandise to the public at less than cost to them plus the cost of doing business, was held unconstitutional and a monopoly threat to all business in an opinion given today in Superior court by Judge Clarence L. Kincaid.

48 Favorable Dividend Changes Voted in Week

The Standard Statistics company yesterday reported that favorable dividend changes last week totaled 48, compared with 26 in the previous week. Unfavorable changes numbered 3 against 2.

NORTHERN TRUST STOCK SOARS TO LEVELS OF 1929

Shares of Other Chicago Banks Also Rise.

A sensational rise of 30 per cent in quotations of Northern Trust company stock during the last week sent the issue to 1929 price levels and was the feature of trading in Chicago bank stocks in the unlisted market.

The bid price pocketed 195 points to close the week at $830. Little stock was actually offered for sale, with stockholders asking $860 a share, $190 more than a week ago. Northern Trust stock reached a high of $1,100 a share in 1929 and sold as low as $750 in that year. The price has not crossed the $650 share mark in six years until this month. Prices now are approximately 45 per cent higher than at the end of 1935.

Demand Rises; Offerings Scarce.

Increased demand and scarcity of offers also sent other loop bank shares up. Bullishness was credited by some to rumors of sizeable recoveries from items previously written off and improved earnings in the last two months. One such unverified rumor had it that the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company will "earn" $12 a share this quarter, including recoveries. Continental stock reached a top of 175 during the week, but reacted to close at 168 bid, 170 asked, for a net gain of 14 for the week or 35 points in the last fortnight. This is the highest quotation since 1931.

First National stock also added 14 more points to its gain of 18 in the previous week, closing at 287 bid, 291 asked, after sales ranging from 273 to a four year high of 296. This also is the best price since 1931.

City National Shares Rise.

Also bid up sharply was City National bank stock. The bid price of 123 was up 18 points, while sellers were asking 13 more at quotations of 128. Harris Trust and Savings bank shares closed up 10 points at 355 bid, 370 asked. American National shares were bid up 5 points to close at 210 bid, 225 asked.

Shares of smaller banks were bid up $1 to $10 a share.

HOGS AND PORK SLUMP AS STORM EMBARGO LIFTS

A break in the cold wave that held the country in its grip for more than a month caused a sharp slump in both hogs and pork as more snowbound farms got stock through to the markets last week. Hogs declined 50 cents to $1 in two days, finishing the week at the lowest levels since Feb. 1. Pork closed steady to $2 lower than a week ago, but both pork and hogs are bringing higher prices than before the storm.

The collapse came in midweek after hogs had soared to the best February prices in six years at the start of the week. Tops soared to $11.20 early in the week, but at the close similar grades of hogs were quoted at $10.35.

Higher prices during the first two days partly offset the later decline so that the average for the six days at $10.60 indicated only 15 cents loss from the preceding week's price. Receipts increased 50 per cent, the six day total being 76,800.

There was an increase of 32 per cent in cattle receipts last week and an erratic set of markets. Prime long fed steers were exceptionally scarce and generally escaped the slashing of prices, occasional lots, in fact, bringing more than a week ago, but unfinished steers were under pressure and closed off 25 to 50 cents, and in extreme instances even more, compared with the highest spots of the preceding week.

Lower priced stock, which have held up best in the last two weeks, closed steady to 25 cents lower.

Sheep men reduced their shipments to market when prices of lambs fell, arrivals for the week at 35,200 being the smallest since early November and 29 per cent under the preceding week. Final quotations were 10 to 25 cents under a week ago and 75 cents to $1 under the peak of the weather market less than two weeks ago. The lamb average for the last six days at $9.85 stands lowest in more than three months.

N. Y. EDISON MAY SELL 55 MILLION ISSUE THIS WEEK

Bonds with Higher Rates to Be Refunded.

The only big bond offering scheduled to become eligible for public sale this week upon expiration of the necessary twenty day period after registration with the Securities and Exchange commission is the $55,000,000 issue of the New York Edison company.

The New York Edison issue will be a first lien and refunding mortgage loan bearing a 3½ per cent coupon and due Oct. 1, 1965. Net proceeds together with treasury funds will be used for retirement at 104 of $30,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds of 1944 and $25,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds of 1951. The new bonds will be eligible for offering next Thursday. The company is a subsidiary of the Consolidated Gas company.

Holland Furnace Stock Offering.

The Holland Furnace company's issue of 32,000 shares of $5 cumulative convertible preferred stock will be offered tomorrow by underwriters headed by F. S. Mosely & Co., and including H. M. Byllesby & Co., Harris, Hall & Co., and Metropolitan St. Louis company. The price will be $102 a share. Of the issue, 10,704 shares are reserved for exchange by holders of present 7 per cent preferred. Proceeds from the remaining shares will be applied to retirement at 102 of unexchanged old preferred stock and redemption of $1,949,000 of 6 per cent debentures at 100¼.

Three other stock issues will become eligible tomorrow. James Talcott, Inc., will do its first public financing with an issue of 30,000 shares of $50 par 5½ per cent cumulative participating preference stock to be offered at $52. F. Eberstadt & Co. is principal underwriter.

Other Stock Issues Planned.

The Rome [N. Y.] Cable corporation seeks to issue 200,000 shares of $5 par common stock at $10 a share. The Mohawk Investment company of Utica, N. Y., is the principal underwriter. The Washington [D. C.] Garden, Inc., seeks to issue 30,000 shares of $25 par preferred and 50,000 shares of $5 par common, to be offered in units of three preferred and one common share at $80 a unit.

The General Finance corporation, Detroit, has an issue of $750,000 of 10 year 5 per cent convertible debentures of 1946 and 197,500 shares of $1 par common stock to become eligible Tuesday. The debentures will be priced at $990 per $1,000. All save 10,000 shares of the common stock, which go to the underwriters, are reserved for conversion privileges.

Sundstrand Machine Tool company of Rockford, Ill., is seeking to issue 25,945 shares of no par common stock, eligible Wednesday, at prices quoted on the Chicago Board of Trade or Chicago Curb exchange, plus commission. McGowen, Cassady & White, principal underwriter, has purchased the shares for offering.

The American Electric Securities corporation seeks to issue 829,962 $1 par participating preferred shares. Administered Fund, Second, Inc., has an issue of 500,000 shares of $1 par common.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Sunday, February 23, 1936.

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Obsolescence, Depreciation, and Progress.

During the last six years corporations have done little toward modernizing their plants. During this period plants and equipment have been depreciating at the same time that development of machinery and plants has progressed.

This has laid the groundwork for activity in one type of industry that has keenly felt the effects of depression—businesses that are known as "heavy industries." These companies manufacture durable goods, such as steel and building materials.

When demand steps up in one branch of this division of industry, it stimulates activity in other branches. In some cities more buildings were wrecked than were constructed during the last few years. A pickup in building is regarded as a distinct possibility. When and if it comes there will be a demand for bricks, steel, lumber, and similar commodities.

This would call for increased activities from producers of these goods. Railroads would have to buy new cars; steel mills would have to modernize and expand, involving the use of still more steel; coal mines would feel the effects of increased production, and workers all along the line would demand improved housing, providing another stimulus to the upward spiral.

Some of the backwash of improved demand for heavy industry goods is already apparent. Large scale modernization and improvement programs are under way with Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, Bethlehem, Inland, Carnegie-Illinois, Jones and Laughlin, and others. Johns-Manville, in the building material industry, recently announced that it was expanding and modernizing plants; General Motors during 1935 set aside more than a million dollars for the same purpose.

During the last few months the railroad equipment business has picked up substantially. This is the result of the pressure of increased traffic, obsolescence of rolling stock, improved financial standing of the roads, and low interest rates.

Early in the year General Electric announced that it was completing plans to sell prefabricated homes, electrically equipped, at prices ranging from $4,000 to $17,000 each. Allied Chemical and Dye is spending a million dollars for a new plant to produce sodium nitrate under a new, improved method. Street car lines have been placing substantial orders for new and improved rolling stock.

These are examples of some typical causes and some typical effects of obsolescence, depreciation, and progress that investors, when considering securities, should take into consideration.

CHICAGO STOCKS SWING WIDELY; UTILITIES FALL

Butler, Mickelberry and Field Prominent.

Unsettled by the Supreme court's Tennessee valley authority decision last Monday, Chicago stock fluctuated widely during the last week, but not many issues showed large net changes except the losses by utilities.

Sudden strength and activity in Mickelberry, Butler Brothers, and Marshall Field eclipsed interest in utilities during the latter half of the week. Butler had 40,000 of its 45,000 share turn-over on Thursday and Friday, and was bid up to a two year high of 10⅝ before closing at 10¼, up 1½ for the week. Mickelberry moved to a new high of 4, up more than a point in the last two weeks. Of 33,000 share volume last week, 27,000 shares changed hands Thursday and Friday. Field spurted to a high of 15½ and closed 2¾ higher for the week at 14⅞ in trade of approximately 22,000 shares.

53 Rise to New Peaks.

Fifty-three issues made new 1936 highs during the week, compared with 62 in the preceding week. Seventy-nine issues advanced, 89 declined, and 20 were unchanged, compared with 99 advances, 69 declines, and 30 unchanged in the preceding week. Total trade was 651,000 shares against 610,000 in the preceding week and 155,000 a year ago.

Cities Service accounted for almost 85,000 shares of the total turnover, reaching 6⅞ in a shortlived rise before the TVA decision was read. It sank to a low of 5⅛ and closed at 5⅞ for a net loss of ⅝.

Utilities Lose Ground.

Edison and Public Service issues dropped 1 to more than 2 points. Central Illinois Public Service closed 3½ lower. Kentucky Utilities preferred issues dropped as much as 4⅝ points. Middle West lost 1 in 16,000 share trade.

Chicago corporation common edged up ⅜ to a new high of 6 in 38,000 share volume. Zenith reached a new top of 17⅛ and reacted to 16⅞, a net gain of ⅝ in weekly sales of 16,000 shares. Masonite continued buoyant, and rose 8½ to 93.

LENTEN DEVOTION TO OPEN THIS WEEK

TRADE LEADERS WELCOME NEW TIME FOR CITY

4 City-Wide Groups Indorse Change.

The Chicago Federation of Business Men's associations and the Chicago Council of Retail Trade association secretaries, both among the most widely representative business groups in the city, last week publicly indorsed the city council ordinance which will bring daylight saving time permanently to Chicago next Sunday.

At the same time, Howard Haylett, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board, made public that body's unanimous support of the time change, and announcement was made of the results of a recent poll of 16 Kiwanis clubs, which showed a majority of members of 11 clubs indorsing the ordinance and a majority in five clubs opposed to it.

Favor Railway Change.

On the issue of railroad conformance to the time change, the federation, the council, and the real estate board aligned themselves with groups and individuals who contend that the railroads should be permitted to follow the city in setting forward their clocks. The Kiwanis poll showed the majority of members of only one club, that of Austin, opposed to the railroads' adoption of eastern time.

The railroad time issue will come up before the interstate commerce commission at a hearing tomorrow in the Morrison hotel. If the change is granted, Chicago will have a uniform year-round time system. If it is denied, the railroads will operate an hour behind the city.

Formal support of the time shift was given by the Chicago Federation of Business Men's associations in the form of a resolution signed by Walter L. Egan, secretary.

Aid to Business.

The resolution stated: "Resolved, that this association go on record in favor of the permanent use of the daylight saving time plan because of the great advantages in economy, in safety, as well as to commerce and to the health of Chicago's people."

The resolution supplemented the private opinion expressed recently by A. H. Krom, president of the federation, who declared that keen national competition in every line of business is alone sufficient reason for Chicagoans to adopt the benefits of "faster" time.

The favorable attitude of the Council of Retail Trade Association secretaries was unqualifiedly expressed by J. C. Amis, council chairman, and the secretaries of the council's affiliated retail organizations.

Board for Uniform Time.

These latter are Charles Kiser of the Retail Meat Dealers of Chicago, James Pulaski, Restaurateurs of Illinois; George Rockwood, the Chicago Furniture association; Adolph Kiser, Northwest Retail Meat Dealers' association, and John Myers, Chicago Retail Druggists' association.

The advantages to home owners of the additional hour of daylight were cited by Mr. Haylett as the basis of the real estate board's action in unanimously approving the time change. The board, he said, favors a uniform time system in Chicago and the general adoption of eastern time throughout the state. The board's views were given formal expression in a resolution adopted by its directors.

Of the 468 members of the Kiwanis clubs who were polled on the adoption of daylight saving time, 290 voted their approval of the council ordinance and 178 disapproved it. Although eight of the 16 clubs did not poll their members on the railroad issue, the combined vote of those that did was 164 to 60 for conformance.

Kiwanis Club Poll.

The Hyde Park and Ravenswood clubs voted unanimously for the change, and the Austin club voted unanimously against it. The number of voters in each instance was: Hyde Park, 54; Ravenswood, 50; Austin, 36.

Other Kiwanis clubs voted on the time change as follows:

North central, 11 for, 9 against; Logan Square, 10 for, 14 against; Northwest Town, 17 for, 10 against; West Side, 19 for, 4 against; Archer Road, 13 for, 5 against; Woodlawn, 27 for, 20 against; Lake View, 38 for, 8 against; Lincoln Park, 6 for, 18 against; Northwest Chicago, 9 for, 31 against; Edison Park, 8 for, 11 against; Grand-Harlem, 17 for, 3 against; North Town, 12 for, 9 against.

The vote of the Englewood club of 96 members was reported on a percentage basis, 60 per cent of the members favoring the change.

The Roseland, North Shore, Mid Town, Chicago Downtown, and Rogers Park clubs did not take a ballot.

Norwood Park Mission Conference Wednesday

The fourteenth annual interchurch missionary conference of Norwood Park will be held Wednesday at the Methodist Episcopal church, Hood and Nickerson avenues. The morning session will begin at 10 o'clock and the afternoon meeting at 1:30 o'clock. The conference is under the direction of the Council of Federated Missionary Societies of Norwood Park, of which Mrs. Roy Hamby is president.

Christ Church to Hold Annual Lenten Series

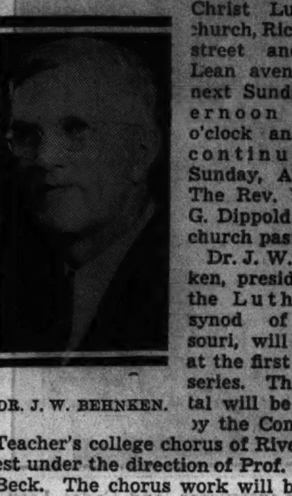
The sixth season of Sunday twilight lenten devotions and sacred recitals will open at Christ Lutheran church, Richmond street and McLean avenue, on next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock and will continue until Sunday, April 5. The Rev. Walter G. Dippold is the church pastor.



DR. J. W. BEHNKEN.

Dr. J. W. Behnken, president of the Lutheran synod of Missouri, will speak at the first of the series. The recital will be given by the Concordia Teacher's college chorus of River Forest under the direction of Prof. Albert Beck. The chorus work will be augmented by several numbers by the Concordia double quartet as well as by violin solos by C. B. Boose. Two organ selections will be played by A. K. Grains.

Dean to Speak March 8.

On Sunday, March 8, the speaker will be Dr. John Fritz, dean of Concordia seminary, St. Louis, Mo. An instrumental quartet will give the music. Miss Trae Ehnborn will play the harp; Miss Ruth Sielaff, the cello; Wilbert Schultz, the violin, and Melvin Schultz, the organ.

The Rev. Ernest Lams, vice president of the Northern Illinois District of the Missouri synod will speak on Sunday, March 15, and the sacred recital will be presented by the Euphonia choir of Christ church with Reinhold Arkebauer as director.

Program by Trio.

An instrumental trio composed of Melvin Schultz organist; Wilbert Schultz, violinist, and Miss Marguerite Westphal, violinist, will play on Sunday, March 22, accompanied by Miss Lenore Nerius, soprano soloist. The lecture will be given by Prof. O. P. Kretzmann, secretary of the International Walther league.

On Sunday, March 29, the Rev. George Beiderwieden, pastor of Bethany Evangelical church, Milwaukee, will speak and the children's chorus of Christ church will sing. The Rev. Hugo Goetz of the Trinity Lutheran church at La Porte, Ind., will speak at the last service on April 5, and the Lutheran symphony orchestra of Chicago directed by Andrew Wendelin will give the music recital. The soloist will be Miss Elfrieda Miller, contralto.

BUSINESS GROUP TO AID GROWTH OF DES PLAINES

Completion of the organization of the Des Plaines Business Men's association was announced recently by the representatives of the 75 concerns included in the membership. Officers are: Frank A. Svoboda Jr., president; C. W. M. Brown Jr., vice president; Murray S. Smith, secretary, and William C. Ziehn, treasurer.

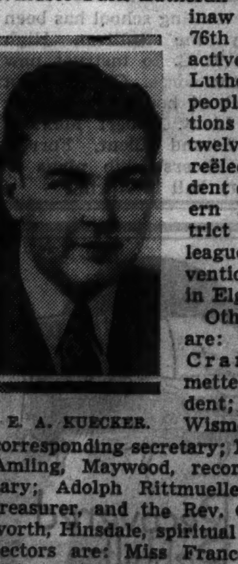
Members of the board are: Mayor George Kinder, Joseph Feulner, Frank Stopper, Walter Spiegler, A. H. Calderwood, A. W. Rieker, A. A. Paroubek, C. C. Johnson, H. C. Sigwalt, P. E. Flaminio, and A. L. Larson.

The objectives outlined at the election meeting include civic promotion of the community; development of the area as a manufacturing center by creating incentives for industries to operate in Des Plaines; representation of the organization on the city council; group sponsorship of advertising activities, and regular sales promotion events.

The first of these events, planned to expand the sphere of influence of the Des Plaines business district to the neighboring communities, will be a series of sales the last two days of the month.

SOUTH SIDE YOUTH NEW DISTRICT HEAD OF WALTHER LEAGUE

Edwin A. Kuecker, member of the Windsor Park Lutheran church, Saginaw avenue and 76th street, and active member of Lutheran young people's organizations for the last twelve years, was reëlected president of the northern Illinois district Walther league at the convention recently in Elgin.



E. A. KUECKER.

Other officers are: George E. Cramer, Wilmette, vice president; Miss Lucille Wismer, Chicago, corresponding secretary; Miss Renate Amling, Maywood, recording secretary; Adolph Rittmueller, Addison, treasurer, and the Rev. C. F. Dankworth, Hinsdale, spiritual adviser. Directors are: Miss Frances Murphy, Chicago; William Zelter, Chicago, and Paul Vetter, Berwyn.

The meeting, which included business sessions, a banquet, and religious service, was attended by more than 1,500 members. The league objective, formulated during the session, is a "declaration of war on spiritual ignorance and lethargy."

They Plan Seventh District Club Institute

NORTHWEST SIDE JOINS IN SCOUT FUND CAMPAIGN

Leader Tells Benefits to Boys in Work.

[PICTURE ON PAGE 2.]

Community leaders of the northwest side are coöperating with the officials of the Chicago Boy Scout council in a campaign to raise $145,000 necessary to continue the work of the council during the year. The program of work includes promotion of existing Cub packs, Scout troops, and Sea Scout ships, and opening of the activities of scouting to hundreds of other northwest side boys of Scout age.

The value of Scout work is shown in a statement by John R. Winterbotham, chairman of the northwest district of the council.

"It costs $7 to provide the Scout program for one boy for one year," he said. "On the northwest side there are 2,683 Boy Scouts, 646 Cubs, and 200 Sea Scouts, grouped into 116 troops, 34 packs, and 16 Sea Scout ships."

670 Attend Camps.

These units are sponsored by a number of religious and civic organizations including Protestant and Catholic churches, Jewish temples and synagogues, American Legion posts, business men's groups, community centers, settlement houses, Y. M. C. A. parks, playgrounds, schools, and boys' clubs.

"Last year 670 boys of the district went to summer camps," he added. "In these outdoor activities the boys slept in tents and cabins, hiked through the woods of the forest preserves acquainting themselves with the identity of birds, animals, and trees, and learned the rudiments of camping.

Guide to Boyhood.

"In this work, now in its 26th year, the Boy Scout movement has come to be recognized as an approved force in American life. It is one of the effective means of developing boys into men of strong character and citizens of sound judgment."

EPIPHANY DRAMA GROUP TO OPEN PLAY TOMORROW

A mystery comedy in three acts, "Marry Before Midnight," will be presented tomorrow and Tuesday nights by the Epiphany Players of Epiphany Evangelical Lutheran church in the church hall, Bradley place and Damen avenue. In the cast are Miss Bertha Jones, George Fyffe, Miss Florence Thompson, Val Bocek, Miss Lillian Both, Charles Kiesling, Henry Hageman, Robert Meyer, Melvin Krumrey, Lawrence Aicher, Fred Dieball and Miss Lily Rudolph.

Logan Charity Group Will Hold Benefit Wednesday

A card party will be given for philanthropic benefit by the Logan Charity league Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Logan Square temple, 3135 Fullerton avenue. Miss Dorothy Rosen is chairman of the party and Miss May LeVant is president of the organization.

New Girl Scout Director Tells Beauties of Orient

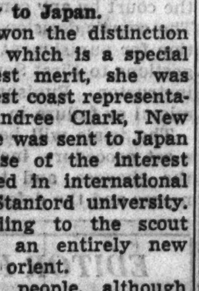
She began her Girl Scout work in New York City at the age of 10, tying knots, distinguishing trees and plants and in other ways following the path of the "tenderfoot." Scouting has since that time constantly remained the avocation of Miss Marie McSpadden who has recently taken her first professional position as northwest side director of the Chicago Girl Scouts.



MISS MARIE McSPADDEN.

Miss McSpadden, whose office is located at Scout headquarters, 35 East Wacker drive, received her M. A. degree at Stanford university just before she came to Chicago. She has specialized in social science and personnel work. She became a second class scout in New York and soon won the highest rank, first class scout, after passing with honor the tests in handicraft, health, and service to the community.

Emissary to Japan.

After she had won the distinction "Golden Eaglet" which is a special award for greatest merit, she was selected as the west coast representative to Camp Andree Clark, New York. In 1934 she was sent to Japan and China because of the interest that she evidenced in international affairs while at Stanford university. This trip, according to the scout leader, gave her an entirely new sympathy for the orient.

"The Japanese people, although there is not one type nor one standard, are on the whole very artistic and most hospitable," she said. "Japan is a beautiful country; it is modernized without being over commercialized."

Miss McSpadden was especially impressed with the thorough cleanliness of the Japanese people. "It is a part of the Buddhist religion to have a spotless home and a clean body. That is the reason guests remove their shoes before entering the home," she explained.

Impressed by Gardens.

Miss McSpadden reveled in the abundance and formality of the Japanese gardens. "No matter how poor" she says, "the family has a bit of plant life—it may be just a tiny improvised garden about a foot square, with little bridges, colorful stones and small pagodas, but it is cared for and guarded."

She was impressed with the work of Toyohiko Kagawa, Japanese evangelist, who recently lectured in Chicago. "This one man has added beauty through his coöperative plans," she says. "He has founded more than 100 public schools, has organized social work in Tokio, organized the Japanese federation of labor and helped to raise 20 million yen for slum clearance."

Believes in Group Work.

"I don't know yet what my plans will be for the northwest girls" reports the new leader, "but I am fascinated with the large territory and the various nationalities." She is planning to teach her scouts the customs of the Japanese tea table, and the Nipponese regard for art and beauty.

The director says that she will attempt to prove her belief in group competition and group coöperation in the dozens of activities which transform the Girl Scouts' difficult job of learning to live usefully and happily into a fascinating game.

CONGREGATIONAL DRAMA LEAGUE PICKS OFFICERS

Organization of a city-wide dramatic society that will unite the interests and talents of Congregational church dramatic groups within the Chicago area was completed last week with election of officers of the Congregational Union Drama league. The league includes representatives of Congregational churches, social centers, and neighborhood houses.

Meetings and rehersals of its productions will be held Friday nights at the league headquarters, 19 South La Salle street. Miss Mildred Benisch, 19 West Delaware place, of the New England Congregational church, is president. Miss Ruth Vidoloff, 1156 South Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, is treasurer; William Stuart Donald, 6150 Cornelia avenue, secretary, and Miss Adella M. Langill, 19 South La Salle street, organization adviser.

Edward Jackson, 546 Wellington avenue, will direct the league's first play, which will be given late in March. Miss Vera Kostoff, 3012 South Springfield avenue, will have charge of costuming.

CONSUMPTIVE AID UNIT IN ALBANY PARK WILL HOLD BENEFIT DANCE

The Albany Park auxiliary of the Chicago Consumptive Aid society will hold its annual dance next Sunday in the Steuben club, 188 West Randolph street. The general chairman is Mrs. Max Nudelman, assisted by Mrs. Frank Perkins, chairman of the ticket committee, and Mrs. Benjamin Bagus, chairman of the program committee. Proceeds will aid completion of the society's new hospital building now being erected on the grounds of the Fox River sanitarium in Batavia.

MRS. MAX NUDELMAN.

Park officials of the northwest side, with more winter expected, have arranged a number of activities to provide recreational and educational diversion for residents of the district, including parties, classes of instruction, athletic contests and preparations for community plays.

Mozart park, 2036 North Avers avenue, will hold progressive game parties for children each Thursday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock. Players scoring the highest and lowest points will receive prizes.

Classes in Indian Lore.

Moses La Mere, member of the Winnebago Indian tribe, will be the instructor of a class in Indian lore at Blackhawk park, Belden and North Lavergne avenues. Classes will be held on Thursdays from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 10 in the evening.

Besides instruction in Indian craft, dancing and archery, social characteristics of the tribe will be discussed. The Winnebago tribe has been a favorite field of investigation for anthropologists conducting researches into the typical features of Indian customs, rituals and tribal laws.

Wrestlers and boxers of Kelvyn park, Wrightwood and North Kostner avenues, will hold an exhibition Thursday evening, March 5, for the benefit of the park senior basketball league. Eight boxing bouts and two wrestling matches are scheduled. Referees will be George Denger and Joseph Martin.

Auditions for Amateurs.

Amateur entertainers of the northwest side will find interest in auditions to be held each Tuesday evening from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. Miss Avis Overfield of the park organization, is in charge. Applications for auditions will be received from singers, musicians and raconteurs.

A series of 20 lessons in the fundamentals of chess will be given at Kosciuszko park, 2732 North Avers avenue, each Thursday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock. Harold Keel, the instructor, plans to organize the graduates of the classes into a chess club.

41st Ward G. O. P. Women Will Convene Tomorrow

The 41st ward woman's Republican organization will meet tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Jefferson Park Congregational church, Giddings street and London avenue. Cards will be played after the business meeting. Mrs. Jenny Dunn is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Edna Kuhl.

St. Ann's Church Circle Will Give Party Tuesday

St. Ann's circle of the Immaculate Conception church of Norwood Park will give a card party and dance on Tuesday evening at the parish hall, 7263 Talcott avenue. The party is being planned by Mrs. Mary Thompson assisted by the social committee.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smith, residents of Chicago for the last 36 years, celebrated their 46th wedding anniversary recently at the home of their son, William R. Smith, 5748 North Maplewood avenue. A daughter, Mrs. Bessie Urbanus, 5648 North Campbell avenue, was present to celebrate the occasion.

Walter Burt Adams, 820 Hamlin street, Evanston, is one of six Illinois artists represented in the 131st annual exhibition of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts which will continue until March 1. Other Illinois artists in the show are Ivan Allbright, Zissily Allbright, Elizabeth Hazeltine, Maurice Friedlander and Eve Garrison. Mr. Adams' canvas is an Evanston scene, the corner of Church street and Benson avenue.

The Chicago Boy Scout council last week awarded the Silver Beaver, symbolic of distinguished service to boyhood, to two north side residents, Frederick M. Atkinson, 1229 Jarvis avenue, and B. A. Colbert, 2740 North Ashland avenue. Mr. Atkinson is the scoutmaster of troop 830, sponsored by St. Paul's Church by the Lake. Mr. Colbert is a member of the executive committee of the northwest district and is associated with troop 72, sponsored by the Holy Name society of St. Bonaventure's church.

A seven and one-half pound baby girl was the present sent to the Lakeview hospital St. Valentine's day morning for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clausius. The parents and the new daughter's brother live at 3927 Frontier street.

From an 11 year old reporter and Tribune follower comes a news item of the cast of a play given in room 206 of the John Hay grade school, 1018 North Laramie avenue. The actors, all seventh graders, who portrayed an episode in the life of two blackfaced radio comedians, were Marshall Guyer, James Rinehart, John V. Fridlund, Jack Newlove, William Monroe, Henry Dullan, Frank Jordan, Edward Richardson and Frank Passerell.

Judge and Mrs. James M. Corcoran, 2235 Asbury avenue, Evanston, returned recently from a trip to Miami Beach, taken as a convalescent jaunt for the judge following his recovery from an attack of pneumonia. Judge Corcoran is now back on the Municipal court bench in Evanston.

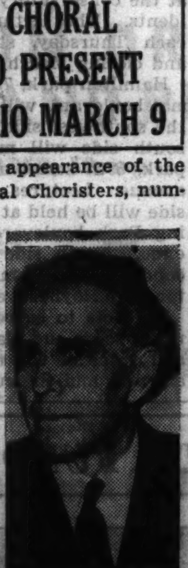
Mrs. George C. Bourgeois, 6144 Olcott avenue, honored the golden wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto E. Casperson, 2046 North Karlov avenue, last night with a dinner and reception at her home. The couple, natives of Oslo, Norway, came to Chicago in 1880. In celebrating his anniversary, Mr. Casperson followed the precedent established by his father who celebrated his 50th wedding anniversary in 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Migatz, 5718 Kenmore avenue, will hold a reception next Sunday at their home honoring the bar mitzvah of their son, Marshall, to be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at the Humboldt Boulevard temple, 1908 Humboldt boulevard.

The Lambda Sigma Rho fraternity, an organization of graduates of Schurz and Roosevelt High schools, will hold its fifth annual dance April 25 at the Three Links hotel, 4740 North Western avenue. Officers of the group are Roy Malecki, president; Otto Leske, vice president; R. W. Grueneberg, secretary, and Russell Wolff, treasurer.

CARDINAL'S CHORAL GROUP TO PRESENT ORATORIO MARCH 9

The first public appearance of the Cardinal's Cathedral Choristers, numbering about 200 students preparing for the priesthood at Quigley Preparatory seminary, will be in Orchestra hall on March 9.



DR. JOHN J. KILLEEN. [Burke & Koretke Photo.]

They will present Pietro Yon's oratorio, "The Triumph of St. Patrick," composed for Romano's poem on the life of Ireland's patron saint. Operatic stars will sing the solos and a symphony orchestra will accompany the ensemble. The concert will be under the baton of the Rev. Dr. Edwin V. Hoover, diocesan director of music, who is the director of the choristers.

A special dress rehersal performance of the oratorio will be given the Saturday morning preceding the concert to afford sisters of the various religious communities of the archdiocese an opportunity to hear it.

Dr. John J. Killeen, well known for his interest in music and particularly in Irish cultural movements, is chairman of the concert committee. Mrs. George D. McLaughlin heads the woman's committee. St. Patrick's church, Adams and Desplaines streets, of which the Rev. Thomas J. Hayes is pastor, will be a beneficiary of the concert.

CITY CHURCHES PLAN RITES FOR ASH WEDNESDAY

All Faiths Will Join in Observance.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Attention of devout Christians of nearly all denominations will begin to focus today on the approach of Ash Wednesday this week. It is the first day of the lenten season, a period covering nearly seven weeks during which pastors will call their congregations to repentance and renunciation of the things of this world, and to more intensive cultivation of spiritual and eternal verities.

Ash Wednesday follows Shrove Tuesday or, as in French, Mardi Gras—"fat Tuesday"—which precedes lenten fastings and self-denials which either are imposed by regulation as in the Catholic church or are voluntarily undertaken in other communions.

Significance of Lent.

The word "lent" is the early English word for spring, and not only refers to the germination of seeds and bursting of buds, but also to the lengthening days until nights and days become of equal length at the time of the vernal or spring equinox.

It is this equinox, together with the first full moon falling thereafter, which sets the first Sunday following these two occurrences as Easter. This year Easter falls on April 12.

While special worship predominates this season, city churches generally have planned courses of special instructions in history and devotional methods. From every Catholic pulpit today the regulations for lent will be published under authority of Cardinal Mundelein.

Methodist Retreat to Open.

The Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday starts a retreat for ministers and laymen in Gary Memorial church at Wheaton, where spiritual strength will be fortified for the citywide evangelistic mission just initiated and to be maintained till Whitsunday, or Pentecost Sunday, on May 31.

All the 209 metropolitan parishes are combined in this mission to unchurched Chicago and to those Methodists who technically have lapsed either by severance or neglect. To accomplish results there will be a correction of membership rolls preparatory to a house to house canvass; preaching missions in every parish throughout lent, and special services during holy week at which those who affirm their faith will be instructed to be received into the church at Pentecost.

Lutheran Services Planned.

The 207 Lutheran congregations of the Missouri synod of the Chicago district all will have mid-week services Wednesday evening and many churches also will have a Sunday afternoon vesper service.

This season marks the combination of the instruction period of junior and adult confirmation classes, and reports indicate that 6,000 new members will be inducted into the Lutheran faith on Palm Sunday, not counting those who may be gathered in through the mission to the unchurched of those communities where Lutheran missions will be conducted through lent.

The metropolitan Lutheran student council, which serves over 2,000 Lutheran students in more than 100 educational institutions within the Chicago area, will hold its fourth annual conference at Thorne hall, McKinlock campus, this afternoon and evening.

"The Christian Student Faces Social Problems," which is the theme of the conference, will be discussed under three phases: war and nationalism, the press and propaganda, and the ethics of capitalism. The speakers will be Dr. Conrad Bergendoff, president of Augustana college, Rock Island; Dr. Mary Markley, vice president of the national educational council, and Prof. Arthur Hillman, national adviser to the Lutheran student association.

Simultaneously with Christians in 50 countries of the world, Protestant women will unite in a world day of prayer, under the auspices of the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation on Friday at the temple, 33 North Clark street. The morning speaker will be Dr. Frank Laubach of the Philippines, and Mrs. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, founder of Palmer Memorial institute, Sedalia, N. C., will speak in the afternoon.

Dr. Sherwood Eddy will speak tomorrow on "The Meaning of the Present World Situation" at the monthly union ministers' meeting at Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street.

The Lutheran keynote to lent will be sounded by the Rev. Joshua Oden, pastor of Irving Park Lutheran church, when, as president of the Chicago Church federation, he will speak at the Thursday midday service on W-G-N, on "What Lent Should Mean at the Present Time."

The Episcopal Church club of Chicago will continue the lenten noon-

BEVERLY HILLS MODERN HOME CLEVERLY BUILT

Combines Economy with Quality Throughout.

Mrs. Bargelt will be glad to answer questions on home building and home remodeling.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

This home, frankly modern, not only because of its style, but because it is a reflection of so many contemporary ideas of living, has just been built in Beverly Hills, Chicago.

It is an admirable solution of the difficult problem of combining economy with fine quality construction and materials. The architect, George Fred Keck, is widely known for his championship of modernism. Instances of his forward looking approach to the problem of house design and building were viewed by thousands at the Century of Progress in 1933 and 1934. He designed the House of Glass, or the Crystal house, and also the House of Tomorrow.

Mr. Keck, who is as obviously at ease with the conservative modern as with the ultramodern, has planned the house to meet the client's preferences and needs.

The house has two floors, deck, and terrace spaces, and an attached garage. Its construction will make air conditioning possible at not too great a cost.

Assures Maximum Sunlight.

The property selected was within the fire limits of Chicago, which required strict adherence to the Chicago building code. In this instance 12 inch brick walls were at the first floor and 9 inch brick walls at the second floor, with a 12 inch poured concrete foundation, and an 8 inch brick wall around the garage. There was also a concrete slab placed over the garage.

The outside dimensions of the house are 32 feet across the front and 30 feet 6 inches deep. These dimensions form approximately a square, which gives one the greatest amount of inclosed space with the least amount of outside wall area—except, of course, a circular house.

The garage and the kitchen are on the north, the entrance on the east, and the combination living-dining room on the east, south, and west. This plan takes advantage of the sunlight, bringing it continuously into the house from early morning until late afternoon.

Feeling of Spaciousness.

The breakfast alcove, convenient to the kitchen, with ample west light, serves as a place to eat many of the home meals. An ideal arrangement for a servantless home. Among other things, it makes it possible to throw the space usually used for the dining room into a combination living room and dining room, 12 feet 4 inches wide by 27 feet 8 inches long.

While the house is small, the entrance to the living room from the wide front door gives a feeling of spaciousness, not always easy to attain with small floor overall.

To the west of the dining room is a terrace, which will later become a covered porch, facing the garden. The living room has a woodburning fireplace and a large, recessed bookcase on the south wall.

Deck May Be Inclosed.

In the kitchen there is a large, double drainboard sink under the window, with cases beneath it. Range and refrigerator are on the opposite walls, with special cases between them, and an ample storage closet. There is added case and cupboard space in the combination breakfast alcove and pantry.

An open stairway with iron rail leads to the second floor from the reception hall. At the head of the stair there is a hallway which gives access to all of the three bedrooms, bathroom, and terrace. Adjoining this hall are also a large linen closet and clothes chute. The terrace, or deck space, is at the moment left open. At a slight expense it can later be inclosed for a large sleeping porch, with glass or screens. Or again it may be inclosed and used for an additional two bedroom suite.

Windows Near Corners.

Wherever it is possible the windows have been placed near the corners of the rooms. This allows long wall areas for a wide selection in the arrangement of furniture. For example, in the large bedroom there are two possible locations for twin beds. In the next bedroom there are three possible locations for twin beds. In the next bedroom there are three possible locations for a double bed. And each of these locations is away from the windows. At the same time the windows are so arranged that they light the room uniformly.

Double pane glass was used throughout the house. This is a modern material which is manufactured by putting two pieces of glass together with a small air space between and sealing the edges. The house was completely weatherstripped and insulated. This makes possible a winter air conditioned house at not too high cost. Later, summer air conditioning can be installed if desired.

The house cost is $7,500.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Wednesday at 2:15 p. m.

For those interested in modernizing with paint three booklets by Louise Bargelt, home building editor of The Tribune, will be of interest and help. They are "Refinishing Furniture," "Refinishing Walls, Floors and Ceilings," and "Refinishing Woodwork." They are 7 cents each by mail, 5 cents each at Tribune Public Service offices, Tribune Tower and 1 South Dearborn street.

INNOVATIONS IN A RESIDENCE

GARDEN LECTURE SERIES OPENS IN PARKS THIS WEEK

George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the Chicago park district, has announced the opening of the 1936 lecture series on gardening, sponsored by the park system.

The course of discussions, to be given in the fieldhouses of four centrally located parks, will be conducted by horticulturalists from the Garfield park conservatory and will be patterned after the service maintained at the conservatory for west side residents. The lectures will be given each Thursday, starting this week and closing March 26.

Hamilton park, 72d street and Normal boulevard, will be the center for the southwest side. Residents of the south side will meet at Bessemer park, 89th street and South Chicago avenue. Lectures for the northwest side will be held at Portage park, Irving Park boulevard and Central avenue. North side meetings will be conducted at Hamlin park, Wellington and Hoyne avenues.

Subjects to be covered are: Perennials; seeds and plants; trees, shrubs, and vines of the region; the use of annuals, and the culture of lawns.

DIRECTING SCOUT FUND DRIVE

LAKE VIEW RIFLE TEAM TAKES 1ST IN AREA CONTEST

Cadet Marksmen Qualify for National Event.

Shooting an amazing score of 3,640 out of a possible 4,000, Lake View High school's R. O. T. C. rifle team Thursday topped all scores in the Sixth corps area match which was concluded last week. The total was 405 points above the second team and better than the highest recorded in the corps meet last year by Rockford High school, Rockford, Ill., which fired 3,619.

Crane, city champions, fired 3,235 to take second place. Lane Tech with 3,147, Roosevelt with 3,116, and Schurz with 3,041 were the only other teams to better the 3,000 mark.

By its record breaking performance Lake View again qualified for the national meet. Scores of teams outside of Chicago in the area including Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin will be computed by Col. Charles A. Thuis, R. O. T. C. officer, and his staf, and the other teams to represent the area will be named.

Shot in 1935 National Meet.

Last year Lake View and Lane Tech represented the Sixth corps in the national meet and finished 31st and 45th, respectively, after Lake View had finished third high in the area.

Steinmetz, a newcomer in corps rifle competition, fired 2,926 to finish sixth. Other scores were: Morgan Park, 2,830; Lindblom, 2,760; Calumet, 2,759; Tilden, 2,673; Fenger, 2,591; Senn, 2,525, and Marshall, 2,093.

Lake View's bid for the national championship rests with a strong, well balanced team. Led by George Evans, who fired 386, just 14 short of perfect, the team averaged 364. Cadet Evans shot 98 out of 100 in prone and 96 kneeling, sitting, and standing.

Scoring of Members Given.

The team's scores were: Evans, 386; John George, 380; Chester Rubin, 376; Ralph Berger, 372; Robert Fisher, 368; Edward Merz, 361; Ward, 358; Robert Skinder, 350; Cosmo Sanguras, 347, and Melvin Muehlman, 342. The firing was witnessed by Capt. R. H. Darrell of the Chicago R. O. T. C. Sergt. Alford D. Lee is instructor.

Crane's scoring was: Edward Wild, 359; Paul Schultz, 351; Rene Barrath, 338; Elmer Foerster, 325; Albert Ubert, 324; Raymond Talacek, 322; Raymond Chap, 320; Edward Stoehr, 305; Raymond Schultz, 303, and Fred Thiele, 288, for a total of 3,235. Crane's firing also was witnessed by Capt. Darrell.

—Senn—

Not to be outdone by the boys of Senn High school, seventeen feminine members of the concert band have organized a cadette R. O. T. C., wear uniforms, and drill every Wednesday, under the direction of Cadette Major Thelma Kaplan. Cadette Private Nada Besant is publicity officer.

The two squads of girls include Cadette Capt. Patsy Darling, Cadette First Lieut. Ruth Kempie, Cadette Second Lieut. Marge De Vore, Cadet Sergeants Doris Scanlon and Mitzie Turk, and Cadette Corporals Virginia Blodgette and Betty De Lange. Cadette Privates Dorothy Boe, Evelyn Wedekin, Deloris Bloston, Phyllis Syndell, June De Baum, Francis Nelson, Margy Mac, Audrey Conely, and Nada Besant.

A court martial board has been organized by the Senn High school R. O. T. C., to promote military courtesy and discipline. The board will be directed by Cadet Major Harold Hall.

Charges against cadets for breaches of discipline may be brought before the court by any commissioned officer. The court's decision and recommendation for punishment are given as suggestions to First Sergt. H. E. Parrett, instructor. Punishment will be dismissal or failure in the course.

The trials will be conducted along a set procedure, including reading of the charges, and testimony by witnesses and the defendant.

EDITOR FOR DAY

MISS BETTY McGEE.

[Doose Photo.]

To Miss Betty McGee has been entrusted the editing of the special "frosh" issue of The De Paulia that will appear Thursday morning on De Paul campus news stands. Once annually the freshmen who have literary aspirations are given full journalistic rein in the city room of the student newspaper. Miss McGee came to De Paul from St. Scholastica academy, where she was editor of the high school paper.

C., the largest high school corps in the world. Cadet Lieutenant Colonel De Michaels has been a member of the unit since September, 1932. He won his commission by passing a difficult examination given to all eligible officers with the highest grade. More than 1,100 students are seeking to take military training at Lane this semester.

7 IN LAKE VIEW CORPS RECEIVE MERIT AWARDS

Graduates Given Rank in Reserves.

Merit awards have been presented to seven cadets of the Lake View High school R. O. T. C. for outstanding work during the last semester and brevet commissions as second lieutenants in the Illinois National Guard have been given 24 graduates by Sergt. Alford D. Lee, instructor.

Cadet Robert Gottner was awarded the officer's efficiency medal and Cadet Sergt. Robert Skinder the noncommissioned officer's medal for efficiency. The recruiting medal was given to Cadet Sergt. Irwyn Kimball. Three received medals for outstanding neatness. They are Cadets John Lundren, Walter Fruland, and Harold Mueshlschlegel. Cadet Capt. Raymond Gaedke received the medal awarded for efficiency in the R. O. T. C. band.

The following cadet officers who have been graduated received appointments in the National Guard: Merton Wilcox, Edward Laursen, Kenneth Ostman, Buford Brooks, Robert Fisher, Raymond Gaedke, Robert Gottner, William Meyers, Joseph O'Dowd, George Barth, Charles Duckworth, Herbert Jahnke, Richard Kennard, David Murray, William Schroeder, Warren Rogers, Jack Stanbaugh, Eugene Van Horn, Arthur Schreyer, William Zimmerman, John Hammond, William Koppe, Melvin Stuller, and Erwin Bodmer.

Military training certificates showing completion of the prescribed course in the R. O. T. C. and qualifying them as either sergeants or corporals in the organized reserves were awarded to the following: Sergeants, Barth, Broks, Fisher, Gottner, Jahnke, Kennard, Laursen, O'Dowd, Schroeder, Van Horn, Wilcox, and Edwin Matthews.

Corporals, Bodmer, Duckworth, Koppe, Meyers, Murray, Rogers, and Stanbaugh.

—Amundsen—

Cadet Major Richard Goslee, former commanding officer and student instructor of the Amundsen High school R. O. T. C., has been appointed coach of the rifle team which will represent the unit in competition against other schools March 25. He will be assisted by Cadet Lieut. Joseph Klasen.

The rifle team to be selected from members of the corps, in its first year of existence, will make a strong bid for honors, according to Sergt. R. E. Prussing, instructor. Cadet Major Harold Dietz is commanding officer of the corps.

—Waller—

Cadet Captain Albert Standish will be commander of the Waller High school R. O. T. C. for the semester with the aid of Cadet First Lieutenant Ernest Beutel, adjutant. George Sachen, Harold Erwood and Harold Nightlinger have been promoted to cadet second lieutenants.

Eight members of the corps have been appointed to the select squad. They are Sam Lombardo, Vito Viscioni, Mike Ried, Alex Nerroth, Michael Caliva, Louis Lombros, John Krier and Martin Ruminoff.

The color guard for the week beginning tomorrow will include Cadets Theodore Kampf, Peter Yonan and Viscioni.

REPORTER

Miss Nada Besant, cadette private, has been appointed publicity officer of the newly organized girls' R. O. T. C. at Senn High school. Two squads of girls drill every Wednesday under the direction of Miss Thelma Kaplan, cadette major.

—Roosevelt—

Assignments and positions of officers of the Roosevelt High school R. O. T. C. for the semester have been announced by Sergt. Joseph V. Ackerman, instructor. All promotions are effective tomorrow.

Cadet Captain Israel Siegel, battalion commander; Cadet Second Lieutenant William Rieck, adjutant; Cadet First Lieutenant Werner Igel, plans and training officer, and Cadet Second Lieutenant Robert Eichenbaum, publicity officer, comprise the battalion staf.

Cadet Second Lieutenant Eichenbaum is acting commander of Company A. Cadet Second Lieutenant Raymond Benziger leads the first platoon and Cadet Sergeant Robert Meek heads the second. Cadet Sergeant George Rubey instructs the recruits.

Cadet First Lieutenant Reeve Loomis commands Company B with Cadet Second Lieutenant Lawrence Duda leading the first platoon and Cadet First Lieutenant Stephen Ronzheimer, the second. Company C is commanded by Cadet First Lieutenant Earl Erickson, the first platoon by Cadet Second Lieutenant Harold Stok, and the second by Cadet Second Lieutenant John Rehder. The recruit instructor is Cadet Second Lieutenant Raymond Isenson.

—Sullivan—

A special recruiting school has been organized by the Sullivan High School R. O. T. C. to instruct new members of the corps. Classes meet daily after school hours directed by Cadet First Lieut. Robert Maxwell and Cadet Second Lieut. Forrest Shaw. The Officers' club plans to hold a military ball in April.

27 CADET UNITS TO VIE MARCH 21 IN SQUAD DRILL

Picked Groups from City Schools to Compete.

Picked squads representing 27 public high school R. O. T. C. units of the city will compete in the annual squad competition March 21, according to Col. William F. Morrison, head of the Chicago R. O. T. C. board. The contest will be held in the 131st Infantry armory, 1600 North Michigan avenue.

Commands of "squads right," and "to the rear, march," will resound through the armory as cadet corporals lead their squads through the prescribed drills. Since last semester these squads have been practicing for the competition.

Privates Only in Squads.

One squad of eight, all cadet privates who never held a superior rank, led by a cadet corporal who never has held a higher rank, will represent each of the units. One alternate corporal and four alternate privates are included in the personnel representing each corps.

Competition for places on the squads was keen, according to reports, as the winning group will be awarded gold medals in addition to a shield emblematic of the championship. Silver and bronze medals will go to the winners of second and third places, respectively.

Grading will be based on appearance, execution of movements by the squad as a unit, and the manual of arms—200 points for the first and 400 for each of the other two, 1,000 being a possible score.

Military Officials to Judge.

The judges will include military officials from outside the Chicago R. O. T. C.

Last year's meet was won by Tilden Tech with a score of 943 1-3, Roosevelt being second with 923. Seventeen squads were represented. Senn received third place honors with 913 1-3 points and Harrison Tech was next with 908 1-3. The lowest score was 835 2-3.

Competition was keen, the scores reveal. In the manual of arms, the best score was 391 while the lowest was 22 points less. With ten more teams entered, this year's meet is expected to be even more closely contested.

10 Minutes for Routine.

Following inspection by the judges, 10 minutes is alloted to complete the squad drill and manual of arms, 40 individual movements. At the end of the time limit, a squad is marked "O" for each movement not completed. All the movements are carried out with rifles.

Led by the cadet corporal out of rank, some of the commands given in squad drill are: Fall out, fall in, open ranks, squad right, left turn, right oblique, to the rear march, as skirmishers with an interval of five paces march, right by file and left front into line.

SCHURZ ALUMNI GROUP WILL GIVE CABARET PARTY

The new officers are planning a cabaret party to be given on Saturday, March 7, at the home of Miss Claudia Partipilo, 5536 Hutchinson street.

Four new members will be introduced at the party. They are Miss Doris Strandberg, Miss Betty Anderson, Oscar Tollstam and George Healey.

—Lake View—

Sergt. Alford D. Lee is expected to return to duty as military instructor at Lake View High school tomorrow after a week's absence following a fall on a slippery sidewalk. Sergt. A. J. Cloutier of the R. O. T. C. supply office acted as instructor during Sergt. Lee's absence.

DISTRICT CLUBS TO STUDY PRESS, RADIO AND FILMS

Institute Tuesday Will Open at 10 A. M.

The silver screen, radio, and the press will make up the trio of topics to be discussed at an institute of the Seventh district of federated women's clubs to be conducted at the Independence Park fieldhouse, Irving Park boulevard and Springfield avenue, on Tuesday from 10:30 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The publicity department, the Park Ridge School for Girls committee, the motion picture and the radio departments will participate.

MRS. FRED LUFKIN.

Mrs. William J. D. Beck, club institute chairman, will preside. The morning session has been planned by Mrs. M. R. de Tolve, publicity chairman, who will introduce Mrs. Fred R. Lufkin, state press chairman, and several local news reporters as speakers.

A history of Park Ridge School for Girls will be given by Mrs. Ruby K. Badger, superintendent of the school. Musical programs will be presented by the girls of the school at both the morning and afternoon sessions.

An original skit by Mrs. Charles R. Holton, state motion picture chairman, dramatizing the making of pictures, will be presented by the following cast: Mrs. H. F. Wolff of the Portage Park club, Mrs. A. Jefferson Smith of the Mayfair club, Mrs. A. C. Hanke of the Irving Park club, Mrs. William Walther of the Irving Park Catholic club, and Mrs. Philip Barry of the Altrui club.

The radio department of which Mrs. J. C. Feddersen is chairman will have for its speaker, Mrs. George Hanly Nippert, state radio chairman.

Irving Park Sorosis.

In celebration of the birthday of George Washington, there will be a colonial tea at the meeting tomorrow afternoon in addition to a patriotic program and the adoption of a new club constitution. Mrs. Adam Fischer will preside over the business meeting and Mrs. Charles H. Harvard will lead the salute to the flag.

The hostesses will be Mrs. Robert Nichol, chairman; Mrs. D. L. Johnson, Mrs. A. P. Wollerman, Mrs. C. W. Gould, Mrs. C. A. Rauschert, Mrs. L. C. Blank.

Albany Park Woman's Club.

In celebration of leap year, the Albany Park Woman's club will hold an informal dancing party and floor show on Saturday at the Ravenswood Masonic temple, 4605 North Paulina street. Dancing will begin with a grand march at 8:30 o'clock.

Proceeds will go to the general federation foundation fund and also for the purchase of a silver service for the club. Mrs. A. C. Christensen is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Ray Benziger, Mrs. William Benziger, Mrs. J. R. Blessing, Mrs. E. J. Boland, Mrs. F. B. Cheever, Mrs. Sam Spitzer, Mrs. George Gerlach, Mrs. Harvey Hay, Mrs. J. C. Hendricks, Mrs. A. J. Hessemer, Mrs. F. E. Matti, Mrs. A. A. Van der Klott.

Altrui Club.

Husbands will be entertained by the members at a dinner at 6:30 o'clock on Thursday evening at the Jefferson Park fieldhouse, Higgins road and Long avenue. After the dinner Mrs. James C. Moreland will introduce members of the Women's City club who will demonstrate the automatic voting machine. The speaker will be Capt. William A. Rogers, fingerprint expert and director of the Juvenile Police Schools of America. His subject will be "Crime on Parade" and finger printing will be illustrated with lantern slides.

Mrs. Murray Henderson, social chairman, will be assisted by the following: Mrs. Milton Meyer, Mrs. Harry Croker, Mrs. Cady Wright, Mrs. Harry Greene, Mrs. Edwin Drath, Mrs. William Meyer, Mrs. James Bentley, Mrs. Arthur Morreen, Mrs. Edwin Huyck, Mrs. Perry Russell, Mrs. Philip Barry, Mrs. Harry Beals, Mrs. James Eshelman, Miss Irene McKeown, Mrs. Ole Jensen, Mrs. Leith Peckham, and Mrs. F. W. Sallet.

Irving Park Woman's Club.

An all day meeting will be held tomorrow beginning at 10:30 o'clock with a morning session by the American citizenship department. Mrs. C. A. Burkhardt, chairman will introduce the speaker, Mrs. E. H. Elwood, whose subject is "Long May It Wave." Luncheon will be served by Mrs. George Croucher and her committee at 12:30 o'clock. Mrs. Howard Evans, program chairman, will present Ray Jerome Binder, dramatic reader, in the afternoon.

Park Ridge Woman's Club.

Reciprocity day, to which members of other clubs in the Seventh district are invited will be observed on Tuesday, March 10. Appearing on the program will be Miss Anne Hoen, reader and Miss Marjorie Coupe, soloist.

Woodstock Woman's Club.

Mrs. Margaret Prescott Faxon of Winnetka will be the guest artist at a meeting of the club tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Woodstock Presbyterian church. Mrs. Faxon will give a book review and a dramatic reading. The meeting has been planned by the literature department of which Mrs. F. W. Schulte is chairman.

Mayfair Woman's Club.

The ways and means committee of which Mrs. John Hardt is chairman, will give a card party tomorrow afternoon at the home of its president, Mrs. Albert J. Smith, 4423 North Kostner avenue.

The annual evening party will be held tomorrow at the Mayfair community house, 4550 Sunnyside avenue, with Mrs. Oliver W. Butts as chairman. Members of the Mayfair Junior club will be guests. Each club member is asked to bring an old photograph of herself and prizes will be given to the person identifying the most pictures. Miss Muriel Smith and Miss Grace Unger will sing a duet, and Miss Irene Elias will entertain with reading.

A Latin quarter party will be held on Thursday evening at the Chopin Park fieldhouse. On the entertainment program there will be Apache dancers, impersonators, and troubadours.

Hostesses will be Miss Mildred Tomchek, Misses Lucille and Esther Schrom, Miss Elynor Beeskow, Miss Mary Vallone, Miss Josephine Nugent, Miss Vivian Mohr, and Mrs. Alger Clark, junior sponsor.

A club institute program will be given by the Junior auxiliary of the Irving Park Catholic Woman's club on Friday evening. Mrs. W. D. Beck will be the guest speaker and will conduct the institute. Other speakers will be Mrs. Harry Quaintance, who will talk on "Public Welfare and Philanthropy in Club Work;" Mrs. Charles Holton, second vice president of the district and state motion picture chairman, on "Motion Pictures in Club Work," and Mrs. John T. Bunting, seventh district motion picture chairman, on "Press and Radio in Club Work."

FUTURE NURSE

Miss Eunice Rae Burgh, 2453 North Francisco street, whose attendance record at Carl Schurz High school was perfect for the entire four years preceding her graduation this January, has returned to the school for a post-graduate course. In September she plans to enter St. Luke's for a nurse's training course.

MUSIC RECITAL

Miss Florence E. Lohrber, 2332 North Spaulding avenue, will appear in a recital of music and dramatic interpretation at Kimball hall on Tuesday evening. Miss Lohrber, a soprano, will be accompanied by Miss Mary Ruth Craven at the piano. The dramatic part of the program will be given by Miss Dolores Morse.

CHARITY LEAGUE DANCE

Mrs. Hanna Zonenblick, 5644 North Christiana avenue, is chairman for the fifteenth anniversary dinner-dance to be given by the Chicago Junior Charity league at the College Inn of the Hotel Sherman Sunday evening, March 15.

FAITHS TO OPEN LENTEN SEASON ON WEDNESDAY

Churches of City Arrange Holy Observance.

day services in the loop which it has sponsored for more than 40 years. These will be held at the Harris theater, continuing until Good Friday. Among the speakers scheduled are Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving of Trinity church, Boston, Mass.; Dr. Chester B. Emerson, formerly a Congregational pastor in Detroit and at present dean of Trinity cathedral, Cleveland, O., and the Rt. Rev. Irving Peake Johnson, bishop of Colorado.

For the benefit of loop businessmen, the Church club has arranged a series of lectures on the general theme, "Christianity in the Modern Scene." Beginning March 10, these will be given by Bishop George Craig Stewart on successive Tuesday evenings at the Hotel Sherman and will concern the interpretation of religion in the light of current problems.

Cardinal Mundelein's regulations distinguish between days of fasting and days which require both fasting and abstinence; on the latter, meat is altogether prohibited, while on the former days one full meal with meat is allowed.

St. Luke's Lutheran church of Park Ridge will celebrate the seventh anniversary of its dedication this morning with a special service conducted by the Rev. Walter D. Spangler, pastor. The choir is under the direction of Clare John Thomas and the soloist will be Miss Marion Fisk who will sing "Open the Gates of the Temple" preceding Bach's choral "Sleepers Wake!"

Albany Park Methodist Episcopal church, Wilson and Albany avenues, will observe Brotherhood day this morning with a sermon by the pastor, the Rev. John M. Schneider, on "The Implication of Brotherhood"; and at the evening forum with an address by Dr. Carl Lyle Steiner on the American constitution.

Irving Park Immanuel Congregational church, Berteau avenue and Troy street, will hold a recognition service this evening, following a parish supper, for the new minister, the Rev. Edgar M. Ross, at which Dr. Albert Buckner Coe of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, will preach on "The Church Persistent."

Portage Park Presbyterian church, of which the Rev. Benjamin H. Kell is pastor, will present its February dinner and entertainment on Friday evening in the basement of the church, Menard and Windsor avenues, sponsored by the Women's association of the parish of which Mrs. Harry H. Herst is secretary.

MAYFAIR GARDEN CLUB WILL HAVE PHOTO CONTEST

Amateur photographers may begin snapping practice pictures in preparation for the final shots that may be submitted in the photographic contest for members of the Garden club of Mayfair. All pictures must be turned in to Mrs. B. W. Robinson, 4922 North Kildare avenue, secretary, before 6 o'clock on June 6.

The winning pictures, which will be chosen by Charles Harris Miller, Chicago photographer, will be exhibited during the club's flower show at the Gompers Park fieldhouse on June 13 and 14.

Pictures must be taken by the entrant in the contest and they may be pictures taken of the entrant's garden or the garden of any other member of the club. If people appear in the picture, the photograph will be disqualified.

John Riva, president of the club, announces that prizes will be given to the three scoring the highest points.

Women of 42d Precinct to Give Party Thursday

The women of the 42d Precinct Improvement club will hold a card party at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Dorothy Valters, 5044 North Menard avenue, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Proceeds will be used for entertainment furnished at the meetings. The club is now seeking to obtain "pull boxes" for the community in the interest of better police protection.

RECENTLY MARRIED

MRS. MARTIN M. SILVERS.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Rath, 2936 Wilson avenue, announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Ida Frances, to Martin M. Silvers, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Silvers, 4826 North Troy street. The wedding took place at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Dr. Felix Mendelsohn read the service.

GOSHEN COLLEGE ALUMNI HERE TO MEET SATURDAY

Dr. Harold S. Bender, dean of Goshen college, Goshen, Ind., will speak on "Hitler's Germany" at the 28th annual banquet of the Chicago branch of the Goshen College Alumni association Saturday evening at 6 o'clock at the Harriet McCormick Y. W. C. A., 1001 North Dearborn street.

DR. HAROLD S. BENDER. [Benditz-Molin Photo.]

Dr. Bender has been a student in Germany in recent years and spent last year at Heidelberg university, Heidelberg, Germany, where he received his doctor's degree in theology.

Officers of the Chicago alumni are Dr. L. E. Blauch, president; Miss Maude Miller, vice president, and Mrs. Laura Smith King, secretary-treasurer.

SUBURBAN SCOUT LEADERS TO MEET IN DES PLAINES

The northwest suburban Boy Scout council will hold its annual program meeting tomorrow evening in the council chambers of the Des Plaines city hall. Present will be Clifford C. Gregg, president of the council, scout leaders, and scouting enthusiasts.

Committees and their chairmen who will be present are: Camping, H. H. Calkins; court of honor, Charles Passmore; cubbing, Walter Floerke; good reading, A. R. Crawford; finance, C. S. Stewart; health and safety, M. H. Howarth; leadership training, E. R. Henderson; senior scouting, Edward H. Stehman; ten year program, W. H. Colman, and parent contact, T. M. Whitson.

Members of district troops are now working in answer to the request of Dr. James E. West, chief Scout executive, that all units coöperate with conservation authorities in providing food for birds kept from their natural supply by the heavy snows.

Northwest Woman's Club to Name Heads Thursday

The Northwest Woman's Improvement and Social club will hold its annual election of officers Thursday afternoon at Riis park fieldhouse, Meade and Fullerton avenues.

CHURCH EDIFICE IN PARK RIDGE SEVEN YEARS OLD

St. Luke's Lutheran church, Park Ridge, will celebrate the seventh anniversary of the dedication of the new church at Prospect avenue and Cedar street, which is known as "The Church Among the Trees in the Heart of Park Ridge" this morning at 11 o'clock. The Rev. Walter D. Spangler, pastor, will talk on "Why the Church Is Dear to Me." Miss Marion Fisk and the choir, under the direction of Clare John Thomas, will sing.

PLEA FOR OGDEN CARRIER REVIVED BY WEST SIDERS

Trolley or Bus Facilities Asked by League.

Street car or bus transportation on Ogden avenue from Lincoln park to Madison street, an improvement sought for the last ten years by many of the community organizations of the near northwest side, is the major point in a civic program outlined at a recent meeting of the West Side Commercial league. Membership of the group includes executives of industries of the district.

S. L. HANSSEN.

The general attitude toward the proposed improvement is expressed by S. L. Hanssen, league president. Immediate action on street car or bus service on Ogden avenue is the first objective of the league, he said.

Cites Need of Improvement.

"Since it started in 1907, the league has furthered the civic interest of the near northwest side, he added. Several projects are practically imperative to the well being of residents and people employed in this section of the city. The Ogden avenue campaign deals with just one of them.

"Ten years ago, the Chicago Plan commission included Ogden avenue transportation as one of its projects. The idea was soon forgotten. The residents of the area have asked us to revive it and see it through to its completion."

Other Officers of League.

Additional league officers are: Fred W. Mathison, vice president; Michael Yanzito, treasurer, and A. G. Lauterback, secretary. The executive committee includes Otto Schulz, Norman P. Schaffer, A. V. Olson, H. O. Watson, Fred Fischer, A. A. Romano, Barney Hecht, Clarence H. Kavanaugh, N. B. Collins, Charles Blazek, Frank Traficanti, Charles Severinghaus, and Magnus C. Knudson.

Remaining points in the group's program are the elevated highway to the northwest side, the Milwaukee avenue subway, and the separation of vehicular and street car trafic on North Ashland avenue.

The organization now includes 300 members. Luncheon meetings are held every month to discuss local and national affairs.

NORTH SHORE SCOUT EMERGENCY CORPS TO PROMOTE DANCE

The North Shore Scout Emergency corps, a first aid unit, sponsored by north and north west side legionnaires, will hold a leap year dance Saturday evening in the Logan Square Legion hall, 3117 Logan boulevard. Funds raised by the dance will be used to purchase first aid equipment. Lawrence Berger, executive officer, has charge of arrangements. His assistants are Philip J. Weinstein, first aid officer, and Harry Ehrensaft, commanding officer. The corps was organized by the Legion sponsors as a unit capable of mobilization on short notice for work in the Chicago area. Its members are older Boy Scouts who maintain their troop activities in addition to their first aid work.

LAWRENCE BERGER.

ST. GERTRUDE'S PARISH TO FETE PASTOR TUESDAY

The Rev. Robert Stoeckel, the new pastor of St. Gertrude's church, 9613 Schiller boulevard, Franklin Park, will be honored at a dinner-dance Tuesday evening in the parish hall. The event is sponsored by the Altar and Rosary society. Members of the committee in charge of arrangements are: Mrs. John McGrath, Mrs. Victor Kinson, Mrs. Adam Conrad, and Mrs. Michael Michalak. The president of the group is Mrs. William McNerney.

THE REV. ROBERT STOECKEL.

EDDIE STANLEY, HELEN WARD ON W-G-N FOLLIES

Lolita Bertling Will Sing with Northerners.

Eddie Stanley will return to the W-G-N Funnybone Follies as master of ceremonies at 4 this afternoon. Stanley appeared two weeks ago and is being brought back in response to many requests. Stanley will be featured with Harold Stokes and the Dance orchestra and a group of soloists in the audience studio.

HELEN WARD.

Helen Ward, young torch singer featured with Benny Goodman's orchestra, George Wald, tenor, Jess Kirkpatrick, the Four Shades of Blue and the Men of Notes, will sing, and Henry Hoople, comedian, and Esther Tarler, mimic, will add their foolery.

At 6:30 tonight, the Pilgrim Baptist Church choir, composed of some of the best colored singers of Chicago, and directed by George A. Gullatt, will be heard on the Evensong program. The Rev. J. C. Austin will deliver the prayer.

Lolita Bertling, soprano, will be the guest soloist with The Northerners at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow. At 9 Tuesday evening Attilio Baggiore and Leola Turner will be the vocal soloists with Henry Weber and the W-G-N concert orchestra.

Harold Stokes will direct another "Mardi Gras of Melody" program at 9:30 Wednesday with the dance orchestra, Sally Jo Nelson, Bob Hanon and the W-G-N vocal ensemble. Dudley Crafts Watson will give a talk.

On Thursday evening the Musical Review will present Henry Weber and the concert orchestra with Emery Darcy and Pauline Clark as the vocal soloists, Philip Kaufman, violinist, as instrumental soloist, and the W-G-N vocal ensemble. Another of the famous series of dramas, "Behind The Camera Lines" will be heard at 9:30 Friday with Charles P. Hughes and June Meredith.

Wallenstein to Devote Entire Time to Radio

Alfred Wallenstein, a member of the board of directors and first cellist of the Philharmonic-Symphony of New York, is resigning from those posts to devote his entire time to radio. He is general musical director of Station WOR, Newark, and his classical musical programs on that station, including "Sinfonietta" and "String Sinfonia," which are heard over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system, have won high praise from music critics and listeners. Wallenstein's resignation from the Philharmonic-Symphony will be effective at the close of the current season.

PEEVES and PERFUME

More letters from listeners. Here's one who puts it in meter and rhyme:

THE LISTENER'S PRAYER.

Oh, lords of the ether, protect me
From crooners, hillbillies, and such,
For these and their fellows have wrecked me—
A little of them is too much.
From amateurs, real and synthetic,
I crave, as your ultimate boon,
A rest. Tell the major magnetic
To transfer his gong to the moon.
And while you are clearing your alleys
Of those who have lingered too long,
Please muzzle the Littles and Vallees
Who call what they mutter a song.

PAT PATTEN, Chicago.

CONCERNING DAYTIME PROGRAMS.

I think the "drammer" situation of our "poor little rich girl" or "unhappy, but purer wife" or the "poor but honest" family, is critically overdone, and there is nothing more aggravating, during the daytime when one is working at home or in a business which does have and permit the use of radio, than to find the stations cluttered with these dramatic episodes, cooking schools, and household hints, to which no one I know listens.

There is a pitiful dearth of good musical hours like Your Hit Parade, Rubinoff, the Contented hour, Grace Moore's Open house, Horace Heidt and his Brigadiers, during the daytime, or returning again to my pet peeve, the early hours Sunday.

MISS STERLING BASS, Chicago.

P. S.—I hate announcers who say "Idear" for idea. Can't some one stop them?

* *

CHEERS FOR CLARK DENNIS.

Have you ever heard Clark Dennis? He really has the smoothest tenor voice I have ever heard. I was a Frank Parker Fan until I heard Mr. Dennis sing. Just watch him. He's going places.

VIOLET STEARNES.

Editor's note—I believe you are right, Miss Stearnes.

NO PEEVES—BUT PERFUME.

Not a peeve in a paperload. . . . I wish Leslie Howard was back on at nights Sundays. . . Not the tops but the whole stratosphere for the Hylton company. . . . Isn't Bing Crosby fine now? He's so natural and unaffected. . . . Heard a splendid program the other night—The Other Americas—more like that please.

MRS. E. J. ROGERS, Chicago.

* *

CALLS ACES THE TOP.

In your air critics poll: I notice Easy Aces aren't even listed in the comedy class. I think they should top the list. I would rather listen to them than Jack Benny any day. Neither is Pat Flanagan listed as a sportscaster or news commentator. Ted Husing and Boake Carter are O. K., but Pat should be listed up there with them.

ISOBEL G. COLLINS, Aurora, Ill.

Editor's note—Perhaps Pat failed to get a higher vote because his work is in the main confined to WBBM. The poll represented all parts of the United States and Canada. It isn't often that Pat is heard on the network.

LISTENING HABITS TO BE CHANGED BY EASTERN TIME

Sponsored Shows to Cut Dance Band Periods.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Chicago's adoption of eastern standard time beginning next Sunday will bring about considerable change in the radio program schedule and in the listening habits of metropolitan listeners.

In the main, network programs will be heard one hour later [by the clock] while a great many local presentations, particularly daytime programs, will be aired at the same hour, by the clock, which will necessitate some adjustment by the schedule makers.

Followers of the big evening network programs will probably find the change in time especially welcome. As it is now the big shows are heard in general from 7 to 10 p. m. Take Thursday night for example: Vallee runs from 7 to 8 [the dinner hour for many] and Bing Crosby from 9 to 10. On CBS Horace Heidt winds up at 9:30. Under the new setup Vallee will be heard from 8 to 9, Heidt would wind up at 10:30 and Crosby at 11.

Thus there would be approximately an hour less on the network stations of the remote control pickups of dance orchestras. Listeners often complain there is too much jazz music on the air evenings. Thus the time change ought to make them happy since it will eliminate approximately an hour of jazz music on most evenings.

Mutual Network Changes.

Mutual network shows will move forward, for the most part, one hour. In some instances this will cause a change in W-G-N's sustaining schedule.

Among the evening MBS programs and the new time are:

"Jeannine in Lilac Time"—7:15 Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. [Now at 6:15.]

"Lone Ranger"—7:30 Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. [Now at 7.]

"Washington Merry Go Round"—7:45 Tuesday and Saturday. [Now at 6:45.]

Ray Perkins' amateur hour—6 Sunday. [New.]

"Famous Jury Trials"—10 on Sunday and Monday. Thus the hocky broadcasts over W-G-N apparently must be dropped Sunday from 9:45 to 10:30.

"Crosley Follies"—10:30 Tuesday.

"Headlight Frolics"—7:45 Thursdays. [Now 6:45.]

"Listen to This"—9:30 Thursday. [Now 8:30.]

Isham Jones Serenade—8:30 Friday. [Now 7:30.]

Music Box Hour—9:30 Fridays. [Now 8:30.]

Sherlock Holmes—10:30 Saturday. [Now 9:30.]

Local Changes for W-G-N.

On the local W-G-N Sunday or evening shows the Northerners will be heard at 9:30 Mondays, new time; the Mardi Gras at 9:30 Tuesday, the Symphonette at 8:45 Thursdays, and "Behind Camera Lines" at 9 Fridays.

Changes at Networks.

There are a number of NBC and CBS programs which will be heard at a new time. [By new time, of course, is meant a period other than merely an hour ahead by the clock.] Amos 'n' Andy, for example, formerly heard at 10 p. m. will be heard at 7 p. m., the early hour at which they have for years broadcast for eastern listeners. This is true also of Myrt and Marge, formerly heard at 10 p. m. They too will do their stint at 7 p. m.

Edison Symphony to Move.

Jack Hylton's program, now heard from 9:30 to 10:30 Sundays, may be moved March 8 to 6 to 7 p. m. Saturday.

At NBC Morgan L. Eastman and the Edison Symphony will move from 9:30 p. m. Sundays to 8:30, the Temple of Song from 1:30 to 4:30, the NBC Cinema Theater from 9:30 to 8:30 Thursdays, and the Saturday Jamboree from 5:45 to 6:35. National Farm and Home Hour will switch from 11:30 a. m. on WCFL to 12:30 on WMAQ. There are many changes in daytime programs but these must be noted later in the listings.

FRED ALLEN SAYS

Dear Larry: I hear George Bernard Shaw got quite upset the other day. He went to a barber shop to have his whiskers trimmed and Tony scissored two of his jokes by mistake. . . . The actor who used to think his face was his fortune was right. Today he's on relief. . . . It isn't nice to brag, but "Town Hall Tonight" broadcasts have been so crowded lately we can't allow amateurs to imitate Kate Smith. . . . I knew a gambler who always went to bed with a penny in his hand. In case he tossed in his sleep. . . . Then there was the Highland Scot whose feet froze to the flooring. He invented skis.

RADIO WARBLERS

Here are your singing friends, "the American Warblers," the singing canaries, heard at 10:45 each Sunday morning with Edna Sellers, W-G-N organist, and Announcer Dick Lawrence. Each Sunday morning this troupe of trained singers is brought to the studios for their unique program.

AIDS AMATEURS

Ray Perkins, master of ceremonies of the National Amateur Night program, which comes to W-G-N and the Mutual Network starting at 5 p. m. today.

LENTEN THEME TO DOMINATE MIDDAY SERVICE

The approach of Lent and its opening on Ash Wednesday has suggested the theme for the W-G-N Midday Service this week. The program is heard at 12:35 daily. The speakers: Monday, Gerald G. Moore, dean, St. Luke's Pro-Cathedral, Evanston; Tuesday, Daniel W. Kurtz, president, Bethany Biblical seminary; Wednesday, Peter O'Brien, prior, the Dominican House of Studies, River Forest; Thursday, Joshua Oden, president, Chicago Church federation; Friday, Samuel A. Goldsmith, general director, Jewish Charities of Chicago; Saturday, Steuart D. White, minister, First Methodist Episcopal church, Downers Grove.

NELSON EDDY TO BE SOLOIST ON RAPEE PROGRAM

Nelson Eddy, baritone star of four musical worlds—opera, radio, motion pictures, and concert—is to be the guest soloist with the 70 piece symphony orchestra under Erno Rapee at 9 tonight over WMAQ-NBC.

For the opening number of the concert, the orchestra will play the symphonic poem by Sibelius, "Finlandia." Eddy has selected Wolff's tender love song, "Du Bist So Jung," and the great baritone solo from Meyerbeer's opera, "L'Africaine"—"Adamastor, Roi Des Vagues Profondes." The orchestra will end the first half of the hour with the "Bacchanale," from "Samson and Delilah," by Saint-Saens.

Two numbers will be sung by Eddy in his second appearance. These will be George Chadwick Stock's "Route Marchin'," a musical setting of one of the late Rudyard Kipling's thrilling poems, and John Alden Carpenter's "Serenade."

Mardi Gras, the colorful festival which has survived since the middle ages, will be explained and described to radio listeners on the Magic Key from New Orleans and Rio de Janeiro at 1 p. m. today over WENR-NBC.

The popular portion of the program will include dance music by Rudy Vallee and songs by Francia White and Gene Raymond, popular Hollywood actor.

Final in Debate Series.

At 2:15 today W-G-N will present the last of a series of Intercollegiate debates, with Alfred Borah and George Hebel representing the Kent College of Law and T. Homer Proctor and John Locher representing the University of Notre Dame.

GYM EXHIBITION TO OPEN MARCH 3 AT GOMPERS PARK

Dances, Sport Matches Will Be Presented.

French dolls will come to life in the Gompers park fieldhouse for a dance feature in the gymnasium exhibition which will be presented on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 3 and 4, under the supervision of A. W. Luchs and Miss Mary Koelling.

The little dolls in fluffy pink organdy will be children of the preschool age dancing classes. Other dance numbers include an Irish jig by the junior girls' class and a jigsaw dance by the girls of high school age.

Archers to Have Match.

The boys will give an indoor hocky demonstration and run relay races. There will be exercises with a single club, a basketball demonstration, and both men's and girls' volley ball games. The archery club, one of the largest on the northwest side, will present a shooting match and following this there will be table tennis matches.

The children in the doll dance are Lou Ann Colburn, Constance Ludwig, Beverly Ann Harris, and Carol Hoenke.

The final feature will be the presentation of a movie taken in North Mayfair which shows scenes of the community. The committee chairmen are E. L. Barr, publicity; Robert Daniels, tickets; A. C. Rochow, door, and Ben Hanson, ushers.

Plan Public Shows.

At a meeting recently of North Mayfair civic group representatives held at the park, a committee on ways and means was appointed to prepare public demonstrations at the fieldhouse during March. The committee is composed of Mrs. R. E. Daniels and Mrs. B. S. Herbert of the Palmer P.-T. A. and F. T. Founds and Sidney Doe of the North Mayfair Improvement association.

McQueen to Give Lowdown on "Funiculi Funicula"

How "Funiculi, Funicula," popularly supposed to be a Neapolitan folk song, originated as a tune to advertise a railroad will be explained by Alexander McQueen in his "Nothing But the Truth" program tomorrow at 10:15 a. m. over W-G-N.

Sunday Club Program.

W-G-N will present the address of Dr. Henry Sloan Coffin, of the Union Theological Seminary, guest speaker on the Chicago Sunday Evening club at 8:30 o'clock tonight from Orchestra hall.

"Life Is a Song"

Charles Previn, musical director, and Earl Lawrence, arranger and pianist, of "Life Is a Song."

RAY PERKINS TO BRING AMATEUR HOUR TO W-G-N

The original network amateur night program, first to become nationally prominent from coast to coast, will switch networks beginning at 5 p. m. today. The same stars, which include Ray Perkins and Arnold Johnson's orchestra, will be heard at the same time its big, enthusiastic audience is accustomed to, over W-G-N and Mutual Broadcasting system and a strong supplementary group of stations.

The show, with Perkins as master of ceremonies and Johnson as musical director, brings a group of carefully picked amateurs to the microphone each Sunday evening. No use is made of the gong or other devices to rout any contestant off the air, as both Perkins and Johnson feel that any amateur they pick is sufficiently good to get on the air and good enough to stay on and show his talents.

CORINNA MURA SINGS TONIGHT WITH WHITEMAN

A spinet, a harpsichord, and other musical instruments in general use two centuries ago will be added to Paul Whiteman's orchestra when he features the music of George Washington's time on his Musical Varieties program at 8:45 tonight over WENR and an NBC network. Whiteman has obtained copies of original eighteenth century dance music manuscripts from government archives in Washington and from museums.

Corinna Mura, lovely singing-guitarist who entertained the President a few weeks ago, will be guest star, offering several Spanish songs to her own accompaniment. Ramona, Durelle, Johnny Hauser, the King's Men, and the Cosmopolitan Male Choir will be heard as usual.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR ELSON ON FLYERS' PROGRAM

"The Midnight Flyers," aired over W-G-N and MBS, tomorrow night will be the scene of a farewell party for Bob Elson, popular sports announcer and the "Flyers" master of ceremonies, and the members of the White Sox players.

This "Flyers" session, held on the eve of the White Sox' departure for their training period, and Elson's jaunt to the west coast to gather training camp news, will be well attended by visiting celebrities of the stage, radio, and sporting world. Will Osborne and his orchestra, the Blackhawk's popular musical crew, will be the hosts of the evening.

Dick Rogers Next Guest on House Party Series

Dick Rogers, tenor soloist with Will Osborne's band at the Blackhawk café, will join the Friendly Neighbor's House party as guest star this week at 10 a. m. daily.

New way to relieve red

CHAPPED HANDS!

New-type non-sticky lotion softens skin in 15 seconds

..makes red hands 5 to 6 shades whiter

HERE is a new, quicker way to relieve chapped hands! A method so far superior to old-style sticky lotions that you can feel the difference the moment you put it on—and see the difference in a few short hours! Women everywhere say it relieves smarting pain in 15 seconds. And it makes red, rough hands 5 to 6 shades whiter overnight.

Velure, developed by Bauer & Black, works with nature to restore the oils that have been dried out. This lotion is absorbed by the skin pores almost instantly—leaves no sticky coating to stain gloves or clothes.

A few drops of Velure have more actual softening value than a whole teaspoonful of many ordinary lotions. End painful chapped hands—without messing with old-fashioned gummy lotions . . . Get a bottle of Bauer & Black Velure Lotion at your druggist today!

TRY THIS "ELBOW TEST"

Rub a few drops of Velure Lotion into the skin of the elbow—the coarsest, roughest skin anywhere on your body. Watch it soften before your very eyes. Compare this elbow with the other, on which you haven't used Velure Lotion. You'll be thrilled!

BAUER & BLACK Velure LOTION

KEEP your complexion lovely! Use Lifebuoy! FEEL how deeply it cleanses! SEE how its gentle action freshens your skin. Lifebuoy is real protection. It's 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps." ("Patch" tests on the skins of hundreds of women prove it!)

Don't take chances!

Heavy clothing and stuffy rooms make "B.O." (body odor) more noticeable. Take this precaution—bathe regularly with Lifebuoy. It makes gobs of purifying lather even in the hardest water. And its own clean scent quickly vanishes as you rinse.

Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau

Try these rich, soapy suds for easier dishwashing, too

"WHAT suds!" you'll say . . . the first time you try Rinso. So thick—so lively—even in hardest water! No wonder just soaking in Rinso suds washes clothes whiter and brighter—safely. No wonder Rinso makes dishwashing, all cleaning easier. The makers of 33 famous washers recommend Rinso for safety and for whiter, brighter clothes. Rinso is all you need in tub or washer—no bar soaps, chips or powders necessary. Rinso is kind to hands.

I'M TESTED AND APPROVED BY GOOD HOUSEKEEPING INSTITUTE

Rinso THE HARD WATER SOAP

THE BIGGEST-SELLING PACKAGE SOAP IN AMERICA

Extra-moist lather gives close shaves in comfort

DOES shaving bother you? Is your beard tough? Your skin tender? Then here's a tip—try Lifebuoy Shaving Cream. Its lather holds 52% more moisture. Soaks toughest whiskers soft. Makes close shaving quick, easy, comfortable. It's decidedly milder than other leading shaving soaps, too. Soothes tender skin.

HIGH SCHOOL P.-T. COUNCIL TO HAVE PARTY THURSDAY

Press Chairmen Also Will Meet This Week.

Kings will reign for an afternoon this week over the northwest side but only at the bridge table. On Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock the annual card party will be held for members of the Chicago High school council of P.-T. A. of districts 23 and 24, at the Briar hotel, 540 West Briar place, under the direction of Mrs. Frederick Brown, council ways and means chairman.

MRS. ROBERT FRANSON.

Scrapbooks, paste pots, and "P.-T. A. in print" will also take the members' attention this week, for on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, Mrs. Robert Franson, publicity chairman for district 23, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, will call a meeting of all local press chairmen at the Stevens hotel. Correct publicity will be discussed and press books prepared for exhibition at the state convention in April. The guests will be Mrs. Charles Clauss, director of district 23, and Mrs. George R. Ives, state publicity chairman.

The publicity chairmen of the Northwest P.-T. A. council will meet at 9:30 o'clock on Tuesday morning in the Newton Bateman school, 4220 North Richmond street. Mrs. S. H. Fray will conduct the meeting which is for the purpose of discussing the year's publicity record books.

The parent education class of the Schubert P.-T. A. will meet at 1:30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon to hear the fourth in a series of lectures by Mrs. Margaret Lund, lecturer and psychologist from the Chicago Association for Child Study. Discipline and its relation to behavior in the life of the modern child is the topic for the lecture and general discussion. Mrs. J. E. Prescoe is the chairman of the class.

The second annual card party of the Washington Smyser P.-T. A. will be held on Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the Ridgemoor club house, 6157 Montrose avenue. Mrs. Eugene Jolly has charge of refreshments and Mrs. Charles Schmidt is chairman of the party. She will be assisted by Mrs. Lillian Follmer, Mrs. Louise Slocum, Mrs. E. D. Krumm, Mrs. C. D. Larsen, Mrs. Fred Moyer, Mrs. Frank Olson, and Mrs. H. J. Kirby.

One of the final founders' day programs will be given by the Funston P.-T. A. at a meeting tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The lighting of the birthday cake will be done by one of the past presidents, Mrs. J. M. McDonnough. Mrs. Edward W. Jackson will speak on "Taking Inventory," and Mrs. Newton Mosser will sing, accompanied by Mrs. George B. Peek.

A visit will be made to a modernized home by the Avondale P.-T. A. on Thursday afternoon. The members are asked to meet at George street and Kedzie avenue at 1 o'clock. After the tour there will be a lecture on housekeeping.

A card party will be held by the Foreman High school P.-T. A. at 4836 Broadway, tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

The executive committee of the Darwin School P.-T. A. will meet in the teacher's rest room of the school on Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Mrs. F. E. Robert, president, will conduct the meeting.

The executive board of the Portage Park Parent-Teacher association will meet on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. George Lessman, 5531 Cullom avenue. The group's legislation and citizenship class under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Osborne will meet on Wednesday afternoon, March 4, at 1:30 o'clock. These meetings will be held on the first Wednesday of each month instead of Wednesday of each week as planned. Mrs. C. O. Curtis is chairman of this project.

Mrs. F. Roscoe Huckin, president of the group, has been appointed general chairman of arrangements of the spring conference of Northwest council which will be held later in March.

A marionette show will be given for the Richard Yates P.-T. A. on Tuesday afternoon and evening through arrangements made by Miss Ruth Larwen, ways and means chairman.

The parent-education group of the Haugan school P.-T. A. will meet on Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the library of the school. Mrs. Abraham Blum, chairman, has obtained Mrs. Harold B. Wile from the Child Study association to discuss "Jealousy."

The nominating committee of the Roosevelt High school P.-T. A. is working on the selection of officers for next term. The following are members of the committee: Mrs. Samuel Narens, Mrs. J. A. Wolf, Mrs. O. J. Olson, Mrs. F. H. Sullivan, and Mrs. J. R. Blessing.

Belding P.-T. A. will hold a card party on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. David Milne, 4248 North Kedvale avenue. Mrs. Milne will accept the reservations.

RECITAL TUESDAY BY MISCHAKOFF AT NORTH PARK

Violinist Third in Series at College.

The concertmaster of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Mischa Mischakoff, will be presented Tuesday evening by the faculty committee on cultural activities at North Park college, 3225 Foster avenue, in the third of a series of concerts and lectures.

MISCHA MISCHAKOFF.

Mischa Mischakoff began his career as a violinist when in 1913 he was graduated from the St. Petersburg conservatory at the age of 16 and received the highest prize offered by the institution, the gold medal, and the Anton Rubenstein prize of 1,200 gold rubles. Following this he became concertmaster of the Petrograd orchestra under Albert Coates, later occupying the same position with the Moscow Grand opera and the Warsaw Philharmonic orchestra.

Family Fled Revolution.

The story of Mischakoff is not altogether a happy one. Upon graduation he toured Europe and before his return to his native land the revolution had driven his family out of Russia. He did not see them again for seven years when he found them in America.

He went into military service at 18 years of age and was placed in the military orchestra. At the close of the war he was drafted as a soloist to play for the working people, for which he received little pay. The greatest compensation was the violin which the bolshevists "drafted" for his use, a Stradivarius made in 1707, once the property of Count Lvov.

In 1923, knowing but a little English and without funds, the young Russian walked the streets of New York. Finally out of 500 musicians, he was selected winner in the competitive trials for a soloist for the stadium concerts of the New York Philharmonic society.

Concertmaster In New York.

The recognition meant success. He was appointed concertmaster of the New York orchestra and later went to Philadelphia to become concertmaster of the orchestra led by Leopold Stokowski.

Following Tuesday evening's concert, next in the North Park series will be a lecture March 3 by John Barton, American editor in Denmark, on "Social Progress in Denmark and Sweden." On March 10, Capt. Irving Johnson, at one time second in command of Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V. will give an illustrated talk, "Circling the Globe in the Yankee." On March 17, the Northwestern university a cappella choir, with Max T. Krone directing, will sing on March 24, J. A. Morrow, journalist, will speak on "The Problems of the Pacific;" on April 14, there will be a concert by Lucile Brogan, harpist; Harold Reever, pianist, and Kathryn Gutekunst, mezzo-contralto. The concluding program will be a lecture, "Crime—What Does It Cost?" by George E. Q. Johnson, on April 21.

GOOD MORNING, BOSS
JINGLE JINGLE
AHA! I GUESSED RIGHT! HE'S PLANNING TO GET AWAY THIS AFTERNOON TO GO SKATING
I'LL FIX HIM!!! HE'S SMART BUT I'M CLEVER
DON'T FORGET YOUR INSTRUCTIONS
LEAVE IT TO US, SIR
AH! THE TRAP IS SET! I'VE GOT MEN STATIONED AT ALL THE DOORS--HE'LL NEVER GET OUT OF THE BUILDING NOW!!
SMITTY, I HAVE TO GO DOWN STAIRS FOR ABOUT AN HOUR--WILL YOU MIND THE OFFICE?
YES SIR!
AH! THERE HE GOES! I KNEW IT
GOLLY! A HALF HOUR IS GONE AND NOT ONE OF THE GUARDS HAVE NOTIFIED ME THAT HE'S BEEN SEEN!!!
THAT KID MUST BE A MAGICIAN!! IT'S IMPOSSIBLE TO GET OUT OF THE BUILDING!!! I GIVE UP--IT'S GOT ME LICKED!!

JACK AND JILL THE LUCKY KIDS
GEE YOU'RE LUCKY TO WIN THAT SWELL PONY
I WASN'T LUCKY I WAS JUST CAREFUL WHEN I COLORED THE PICTURE THAT WON THE CONTEST. IT WAS EASY.
WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO CALL HIM?
I THINK I'LL CALL HIM 'RAINBOW' AFTER THE BRIGHT COLORS OF THE CRAYONS IN THE BLACK CRAYONEX BOX. IF IT WASN'T FOR THEM I DON'T THINK I WOULD HAVE WON. I'M GOING TO HAVE A LOT OF FUN WITH THIS PONY--
YES BUT I CAN BEAT YOUR PONY WITH MY NEW BIKE. MY PRIZE IS BETTER THAN YOURS
IT IS NOT. WHY THIS IS A REAL LIVE PONY THAT DOES WHATEVER I SAY
BUT LOOK! THIS IS A REAL PRIZE I NEVER EXPECTED TO OWN A DOLL AS WONDERFUL AS THIS YOU KIDS DONT KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT. LOOK AT THIS FINE DOG I WON. HE'S PEDIGREED TOO!
LOOK! HERE COMES TEACHER
GOOD MORNING MISS ARMSTRONG
NOW CHILDREN, HOW FOOLISH TO QUARREL ABOUT YOUR PRIZES. I THINK THEY'RE ALL WONDERFUL AND I'M GLAD YOU ENTERED THE CRAYONEX CONTEST. YOUR DRAWINGS WERE ALL GOOD! I WISH ALL MY BOYS AND GIRLS HAD ENTERED THIS WONDERFUL CONTEST
HURRY Boys and Girls YOU CAN STILL WIN!
600 FREE PRIZES
This is your last chance to enter the big Crayonex Contest. You may still win the real, live pony, a bike, a fine doll, a live dog, or any of 600 wonderful prizes. All you need do is color the picture you can get with Crayonex, the bright crayons in the black box.
But you must hurry! The contest closes March 4, 1936.
Remember, this is a real contest; your picture will be judged with those of other children of your own age.
Go to the nearest store that sells crayons. Get a 10c box of Crayonex crayons in the black box, and ask for a picture to color. Then just color the picture as best you can and mail it to Crayonex Contest, Sandusky, Ohio, and maybe you'll win one of the 600 prizes!

WELL! SMARTY! I'M GOING TO WEAR IT - WHETHER YOU LIKE IT OR NOT!
SWISH!
LATER!
WHY, SON - WHAT IS THE MATTER?
PA! DO YOU KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT WIMMIN?
DO I KNOW ABOUT WIMMIN?? WHAT DO YOU THINK I'VE BEEN MARRIED FOR ALL THESE YEARS? JUS' ASK ME ALL ABOUT WIMMIN -- I KNOW ALL TH' ANSWERS!
GEE! THAT'S SWELL - POP!
DID'JA EVER NOTICE THAT WIMMIN' ARE FUNNY -- I MEAN SORTA' SCREWY?
CAN'T YOU BE A BIT MORE SPECIFIC, SON?
A FEM FRIEND ASKS ME HOW I LIKE HER NEW HAT - I SAYS - "IT'S A HONEY!" SHE GETS SORE AN' SAYS - "WHY DON'T YOU GET A MIND OF YOUR OWN? IF YOU DON'T LIKE IT, TELL ME!" I SAYS - "I STILL LIKE IT" - AND SHE BOUNCES OFF SAYIN - "I WEAR IT - IF YOU LIKE IT OR NOT!"
DOES 'AT MAKE SENSE - I AST' YAH?
I'VE HEARD THAT ONE BEFORE - HERE IS WHAT I THINK!
WIMMIN' ARE ARBITRARY CREATURES -- SOMETIMES THEY LIKE A ARGUMENT - AN' THAT'S TH' WAY THEY START -- DON'T ASK ME WHY --! Y'CAN'T FIGGER 'EM!
I HEARD YOU, THOMAS! - AND WILL YOU PERMIT OUR SON TO LEARN ABOUT WOMEN FROM ME - HIS MOTHER!

Doctors find BROMO-SELTZER stops morning-after headaches FASTER than any other remedy they tested!

BESIDES stopping your headache faster, Bromo-Seltzer does other things for you—things many remedies can't do. It quiets an upset stomach, soothes jangled nerves. Reduces the excess lactic acid in your blood which accumulates after unwise eating or drinking.

Whenever you wake up with head aching, system upset, try Bromo-Seltzer. You'll feel fit faster! At drugstores, soda fountains. Keep it in the medicine chest at home.

SHEEP-COUNTING STELLA
SHE COULDN'T SLEEP AT NIGHT
THE FOLLOWING EVENING
IT'S NO USE, FRED -- WE'LL HAVE TO STAY HOME. I'M SIMPLY TOO TIRED TO GO.
BUT STELLA, WHAT WILL THE HARTRAYS THINK? WE'VE GOT TO GO -- FOR BUSINESS REASONS.
IF I COULD ONLY GET JUST ONE NIGHT'S DECENT SLEEP! I LOOK A POSITIVE FRIGHT!
THERE, THERE, HONEY -- YOU CAN SIT OUT MOST OF THE DANCES AND TAKE IT EASY. WE'LL LEAVE EARLY.
LOOK AT FRED JACKSON! THIS IS THE FIFTH DANCE HE'S HAD WITH THAT LITTLE MISS DUVAL.
TALKING ABOUT FRED, DID YOU SEE STELLA TONIGHT? SHE'S AGED 10 YEARS IN THE LAST FEW MONTHS -- LOOKS TERRIBLY HAGGARD AND DRAWN.
POOR THING, THEY SAY IT'S BECAUSE SHE'S BEEN SLEEPING SO POORLY LATELY -- JUST TOSSES AND TURNS EVERY NIGHT.
SLEEPLESS NIGHTS? IT'S A WONDER SOMEONE WOULDN'T TELL HER ABOUT OVALTINE.
GOOD HEAVENS -- THEY'RE TALKING ABOUT ME!
ANOTHER SLEEPLESS NIGHT
THERE'S THE CLOCK STRIKING 3! MY NERVES ARE ALL ON EDGE! ARE FRED AND I REALLY DRIFTING APART? WHY CAN'T I GET SOME SLEEP?
NEXT DAY
FRANCES, TELL ME -- DID YOU EVER HEAR OF ANYTHING CALLED OVALTINE?
OVALTINE? WHY CERTAINLY -- IT'S THAT SWISS FOOD-DRINK THAT HELPS SO MANY PEOPLE GET TO SLEEP AT NIGHT. DOCTOR SIMPLY SWEARS BY IT -- RECOMMENDS IT ALL THE TIME....
...I KNOW DOZENS OF WOMEN WHO MAKE A POINT OF TAKING IT EVERY NIGHT TO HELP THEM SLEEP MORE RESTFULLY. THEY SAY THEY FEEL MUCH FRESHER IN THE MORNING -- AND LOOK LOTS FRESHER, TOO.
WELL, I'LL CERTAINLY GET SOME TODAY.
OVALTINE, PLEASE.
THAT NIGHT -- JUST BEFORE BEDTIME
MM! DELICIOUS!
A FEW MINUTES LATER
NEXT MORNING
GEE, HONEY, YOU LOOK SWEET ENOUGH TO EAT THIS MORNING.
NO USE TALKING, I DO LOOK BETTER... AFTER ALL, I GUESS THERE'S NO BEAUTY TREATMENT LIKE A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP!
SILLY!
LATER
SAY, IS THAT STELLA OVER THERE? SHE LOOKS LIKE A DIFFERENT PERSON!
THERE'S THAT LITTLE MISS DUVAL SITTING OVER THERE ALL ALONE, FRED. YOU REALLY OUGHT TO ASK HER FOR A DANCE.
ISN'T SHE LOVELY?
WHY SHOULD I? I'M ALREADY DANCING WITH THE BEST-LOOKING GIRL IN THIS TOWN! YOU JUST DON'T REALIZE HOW MARVELOUS YOU ARE!
IF YOU AREN'T SLEEPING AS RESTFULLY AS YOU SHOULD, SEND THIS IN AND SEE IF OVALTINE DOESN'T MAKE A DIFFERENCE IN THE WAY YOU SLEEP AND FEEL AND LOOK!
TRADE MARK OVALTINE THE FOOD BEVERAGE
OVALTINE is a delicious pure food concentrate — approved by more than 20,000 physicians and used in 54 different countries today.
It was originally created in Switzerland as a strengthening food for invalids, convalescents, and the aged. Then physicians found that, when it was taken as a hot drink at bedtime, it also proved a remarkable aid to sound and restful sleep.
It is not a medicine in any sense of the word. It is as free of drugs as the bread you eat or the milk you drink. People everywhere who take it regularly as a nightcap report they fall asleep quickly. And awaken mornings, filled with new strength and energy as a result of natural, refreshing sleep.
See for yourself how remarkable Ovaltine is. Get a can at any drug, grocery, or department store today. Or, if your need is not urgent, mail the coupon for a liberal trial supply.
NOTE: If you are overweight, take Ovaltine made with skim milk. And if you cut down on other foods (especially weight-building fats and starches) Ovaltine will provide important vitamins and food elements that help to maintain vitality without adding weight.

STREAKY
by LOY BYRNES
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. Copyright, 1936, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.
I'M SO HAPPY TO HAVE YOU BACK HOME, SON—
IT'S GOOD TO BE HOME, MOM — I'M JUST ABOUT GETTING THAWED OUT NOW
HI STREAKY —HOW'S THE BOY?
HOW IS THE ONE MAN RESCUE PARTY?
IS THIS THE TIMBER WOLF YOU CAUGHT? —HELLO, WOLF YEAH—I'M GOING TO TRAIN HIM TOO—— HE'S PRETTY TAME ALREADY GRRR
MR. MILLIN LEFT THE HOSPITAL TODAY AND WENT HOME
JEANIE'S DAD IS O.K., AND BACK AT WORK.
WHICH ONE OF YOU IS STREAKY ??
HERE HE IS
THE YOUNG MAN YOU SENT FOR, SIR
AH, THAT WILL BE STREAKY— SHOW HIM IN HOW ARE YOU, MR. MILLIN?
FINE LAD, THANKS TO YOU. NOW I WANT TO DO SOMETHING FOR YOU...
...BUT...BUT I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT WORKING IN A BANK
NEVER MIND—I'LL FIND SOMETHING. WE CAN USE A CAPABLE BOY LIKE YOU. SAY NO MORE AND REPORT TO-MORROW

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES MAKE YOU LOSE OUT!

PIMPLES are often a real drawback during the years following the start of adolescence—from about 13 to 25, or even longer.

In these years, important glands develop and final growth takes place. This causes disturbances throughout the body. The skin becomes oversensitive. Waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin—and pimples appear.

Fleischmann's fresh Yeast is often prescribed for the correction of these adolescent pimples. It clears the skin irritants out of your blood. Pimples go!

Eat Fleischmann's Yeast 3 times a day, before meals—plain, or in a little water—until your skin is clear and smooth once more. Start today.

HELP WANTED—MEN.

Salesmen.

SEASONED SERVICE AND SPECIALTY SALESMEN.

The man we want is an experienced specialty or direct advertising salesman having a selling record of which he is proud.

He is between the ages of 30 and 40; not looking for a temporary, clean-up proposition, but an opportunity to make a permanent connection with a strong organization.

We offer an opportunity which seldom appears in these columns, and which assures, on a commission and bonus basis, an earning possibility far above the average.

The product is a service of "Management Messages" in poster form now selling successfully to all kinds of businesses and endorsed by leading corporations. The organization personnel is composed of men highly successful in this line of work.

An officer of this well known Eastern corporation is now interviewing applicants in Chicago. Write, outlining qualifications in full and quick action will be taken. ADDRESS E O 24, TRIBUNE.

SALESMAN WANTED.

ON THE LAKE SHORE
IN EVANSTON.
It's rather nice to live in a house built high on a walled-in terrace where every room is flooded with sunlight and where the views to the north and south are over lawns and into woods, and to the east out over the colorful waters of Lake Michigan. A beautiful secluded spot where you never feel lonesome or isolated, for it is right in the midst of Evanston and only 25 minutes by motor, or train from Chicago's business district. A real retreat for a busy business man who cannot afford to spend much time commuting. 12 rooms, large living rooms, huge porches, garage with living quarters and everything that goes to make up a marvelous home. $250 monthly. You may not believe it, but a pair of cardinal birds nest in the shrubbery and stay the year round. They like it.

Farms Supply Real Livings to Those Who Go After Them

BY BOB BECKER.

Business men who want to invest in farm lands are not only making these investments fairly close to Chicago, but also in other areas of the middle west where tracts of land of various sizes, and suitable for different kinds of farming, are available. As one realtor asserted this week, possibly the successful experiences of some owners who have invested in tracts of land and then specialized on them is an influence behind the trend in farm purchases.

One of the best examples of how a buyer found a small farm of 63 acres and then decided to really work and make the land give him a good living instead of waiting for the government to pay him to keep some of his acreage idle, is that of James Anderson, who lives near a small town downstate. Anderson paid for his farm in one year by intelligent management of his poultry flocks.

Sixty-three Acres for $1,300.

Having some knowledge of the poultry business, he looked around for a small farm. He located a 63 acre tract that was a bargain at $1,300. A little more than a year ago he moved to this farm and established his flock of White Leghorns in two new tile henhouses. During the year ended Sept. 1, 1935, Anderson's pullets had produced $1,751.43 worth of eggs to more than pay for the property he had bought. During 21 weeks of 1935 Anderson's 600 hens averaged 30 dozen eggs a day.

By paying close attention to the housing, feeding, and management of his flock Anderson has been able to do in his line what many other men are doing in other lines on similar small farms. He buys chicks from well bred, disease free flocks and buys them early. He coöperates with the state university's extension service, which gives help to thousands of farmers every year. He feeds his chicks a starting mash recommended by the poultry division of the extension service, and lets them grow to full maturity before going into production.

By this method the pullets do not lay small eggs, which cut the grade and price of those marketed.

Anderson's henhouses are of the newest construction, built of hollow tile. They are sealed inside to insulate against both heat and cold. There is plenty of light and air at all times and frequent cleanings keep the houses in a sanitary condition.

He grades his eggs and ships to a market which offers a premium price for first grade eggs. To maintain a high percentage of such eggs he gathers them at least twice a day and cools them in an egg cellar before grading and packing them.

Anderson's success would indicate that with initiative and careful work a man can not only make a living but a profit, too, on a small farm. And the ideal thing about it, from the standpoint of the man who can afford only a small piece of land, is that no large plot is necessary, providing the owner is careful and wise in his management.

Many Examples Found.

There is no derth of examples of how even a very small plot of land has enabled an owner to "tide over" during the depression, and there are numerous cases of men who are supporting families on tracts of five acres or less.

For example, we know of one man who owns three and three-quarters acres of land in Kendall county, and has supported a family of seven on this small plot. Last summer this landowner raised a small truckload of potatoes, as well as carrots, beets, cabbages, tomatoes, and other common vegetables. The trees in the garden furnished apples, cherries, and other fruits.

By keeping a cow and butchering a few hogs he gets other main food necessities. Naturally he keeps chickens, which supply plenty of eggs for the family's own needs and a surplus to sell. During the summer the grown boys in the family hire out to neighboring farmers to help supply the necessary money with which to pay taxes, buy clothing, and help with the grocery expenses.

AUTOMOBILE LOANS.

Buying a Car?
Here's a Way to Buy on Time and Save Money

Financing charges often take all the joy out of time payments.
Yet terms are a legitimate convenience for the buyer who does not have the ready cash to make his purchase.
Here's a way to "have your cake and eat it, too," as the old saying goes. Borrow from us without collateral the deferred balance necessary to purchase your car. Pay back at low interest rate in convenient monthly installments.

EXAMPLE.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| You want | $100.00 | $300.00 | $500.00 |
| Total cost is | $ 12.08 | $ 23.04 | $ 35.08 |
| Note made for | $112.08 | $323.04 | $535.08 |
| You get in cash | $100.00 | $300.00 | $500.00 |
| You pay back | $112.08 | $323.04 | $535.08 |

You May Borrow on Your Present Car

You may borrow on your present car on the same basis as outlined above.
We offer the same rates and terms on used cars as we do on new cars.

COMMODITY PRICES ERRATIC LAST WEEK; BUTTER AND EGGS RISE

Commodity markets fluctuated in an erratic manner last week. Grains held within narrow limits, although May wheat sold at the highest level since Feb. 7, and corn and oats at the highest level since Jan. 8. Liquidation developed in lard and cotton seed oil with a drop to new lows for the season. Lard sold at the lowest level since November, 1934.

Butter and eggs furnished the sensation in speculative operations during the week, the February deliveries selling at the highest levels since 1930. Rubber futures sold at a new high for the season before reacting on profit taking sales. Hogs were sharply lower, due to larger receipts incident to better weather conditions. Sugar sold within a fraction of the highest prices since trading in the May contract started.

Closing prices for two weeks on a list of representative commodities with the high and low levels of the season, follow:

WHEAT FIRMER AT LIVERPOOL AND WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Wheat futures registered small advances today in listless trading. Prices were ¼ to ⅜ cent higher, with the market reflecting the firmer trend in Liverpool. At the close May wheat was quoted at 83¾ cents bid, July wheat, 84⅝ cents, and October, 83½ cents.

Moderate export buying and light offerings lifted Winnipeg prices. Exports were about 250,000 bushels. The United States continues to take fair quantities of Canadian wheat and this week 837,000 bushels were cleared for consumption, duty paid and put into bonded mills for grinding. United States imports of Canadian wheat for consumption from Aug. 1 to Feb. 21 reached 29,000,000 bushels.

The Liverpool market was quiet and advanced on short covering. Another factor was the firming in Australian offers. Liverpool wheat futures closed with prices converted into United States bushels and money at $4.98, today's exchange rate between banks, as follows: March, 90⅜ cents; May, 90⅞ cents, and July, 92¾ cents.

POOLED COTTON IS SOLD ABOVE 12 CENTS A POUND

Sale of Loan Stocks May Be Opposed.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The cotton producers' pool has sold more than 100,000 bales of cotton since Feb. 12 at more than 12 cents a pound, Agricultural Adjustment administration officials announced today. Open market prices for spot cotton are currently quoted between 11¼ and 11½ cents a pound, but much of the cotton is of premium quality.

The pool owned 642,442 bales of cotton when the sale was opened, and 820,400 bales in cotton futures. Officials said bids had been received for an additional half million bales. Other bids will be accepted, the AAA said, if prices are right and the quality of the remaining cotton is suitable for needs of the bidders.

Selling Plan Opposed.

Officials said the administration may oppose a proposal of Senator Smith [Dem., S. C.] to compel the sale of government held cotton at a rate of 20,000 to 25,000 bales weekly. Action on two bills vitally affecting federal holdings is expected in congress next week.

Smith, who is chairman of the senate agriculture committee, has led a fight to compel the government to take over loan cotton—estimated at 4,500,000 bales—and sell it immediately. The loans, amounting to $200,000,000, were due Feb. 1. The Reconstruction Finance corporation which advanced money for the loans, said advances would be carried until a plan is worked out for disposal of the cotton.

Oscar Johnson, manager of the pool, recently opposed the Smith bill before the senate committee and said this is the first time that producers, coöperative associations, shippers, private merchants, and exchanges have agreed in opposing a measure. Johnson and other AAA officials have insisted it would be sounder economically for the cotton to be sold by individual farmers scattered throughout the country than for it to be taken over and sold in a lump by the government.

Export Total Larger.

Records disclosed yesterday show an upturn in cotton exports. From Aug. 1 to Feb. 14 a total of 4,288,490 bales were sent abroad, compared with 3,045,284 bales for the same period a year ago. Domestic consumption to Jan. 31 this year was 3,007,197 bales, compared to 2,684,647 for the same period a year ago.

AAA officials said the carryover of cotton in the United States on Aug. 1 last year was 7,137,700 bales. To this they added the 10,500,000 bales produced in the 1935 crop, leaving 17,637,700 bales available in the United States this season.

FLOUR DEMAND RISES; STOCKS AT LOW LEVEL

Demand for flour was much heavier last week. Millers again entered the wheat market, buying in large quantities of hedges on previously purchased grain as flour moved into consuming channels.

On the Chicago Board of Trade alone it was said mill buying accounted for about 800,000 bushels of Friday's total trade in wheat futures.

Users of flour have permitted stocks to fall to a low level and are again replenishing supplies. This was emphasized in the recent boost of 10 to 15 cents a barrel in flour prices as demand improved. Most orders are said to be for immediate shipment, although some future booking was reported, particularly in the southwest.

WEEK'S BUTTER IMPORT TOTAL ONLY 5,600 LBS.

Imports of butter at New York decreased sharply this week. The only arrival was 5,600 pounds from Cuba. Small purchases of Argentine butter were reported made for deferred shipments.

Offerings of the New Zealand product were made from London, according to a report by the bureau of agricultural economics, on the basis of 21¾ to 22 cents a pound delivered at New York, with the buyer to pay the import duty of 14 cents a pound.

Recent arrivals from New Zealand have been selling 1½ to 2 cents under domestic butter of comparable quality.

Five Exercises Achieve Grace and Reduction

Dancing Steps Limber the Body, Slenderize Hips, Waist, Thigh, and Leg.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

TODAY, girls, I offer you a few exercises which I suggest be adopted if you are interested in taking the stiffness out of your joints, thereby dropping a few years, both literally and figuratively.

Primarily the exercises were designed to make a better dancer of you. They originated for this purpose from the studio of Arthur Murray, nationally known instructor of the modern dance. They are prescribed for those pupils willing to admit that they could do with more lightness and limberness.

While Adding to Grace, Exercises Also Reduce.

In the process it has been found that as reducing exercises they are hard to beat. Hip rolls, thigh lumpiness, spare tires around waistlines, and fat legs have disappeared with the steady practice of the exercises given here today. That long back step, described in Exercise No. 1, is surprisingly good for hip reduction, and I heartily recommend that you do it around the house whenever you get a chance. Incidentally, in your new dance interpretation of the fox trot, don't "date" yourself with the short, choppy back step. Otherwise you and the old fashioned breast stroke swimmer are of the same vintage.

Why not go in for dancing lessons, even though you never expect to be rushed with dancing dates? It's grand exercise and a fine diversion. I could name a half dozen outstanding women executives and professional women who make and keep their dancing lesson appointments as regularly as they do their hairdressing and manicure appointments. And for the exercise of it!

Exercises Worth Attention If Only for Limbering.

However, if you aren't interested in this angle get yourself limbered up with the exercises recommended here. You do want to develop grace of motion, good balance, and lightness of foot, for these are the secrets of youth.

Second Exercise Gives Grace in Waltz Steps.

Exercise No. 2. One may dance well, Mr. Murray cautions, when taking a forward or backward step, but the side movement frequently acts as a stumbling block. The second step in each waltz measure is a side step, hence the importance of this movement in social dancing. Simply extend one foot to the side and raise it as high as possible. To gain a good sense of equilibrium, keep the body erect. Practice this exercise ten times with one foot and ten with the other. Rise on the toes in carrying the weight. Count like this: Raise foot, 1, 2; lower foot, 3, 4. A grand exercise for leg, thigh, and hip reduction, girls.

This Exercise Limbers Muscles of the Back.

Exercise No. 4. This for back muscles and a better picture on the dance floor. This will make you hold your head up and take the stiffness out of the back. Begin each exercise by standing erect with hands at sides and heels together. Throw arms and head back, with one leg and the other alternating in the back leg throw. Count 1, 2, 3 waltz tempo. Bring feet together only after the third beat.

Exercise No. 5. This is for the stiff kneed dancer. Take a long, forward step with your right foot, and place the weight on that foot. At the same time bend the right knee. With body erect, keep on bending as far down as possible. Rise to natural standing position and repeat, stepping forward with the left foot. This exercise is fairly difficult and is recommended more for the one in exercise condition than for the amateur. For reducing, the four already given will be sufficient.

RECOMMENDED FOR SMALL BUDGETS

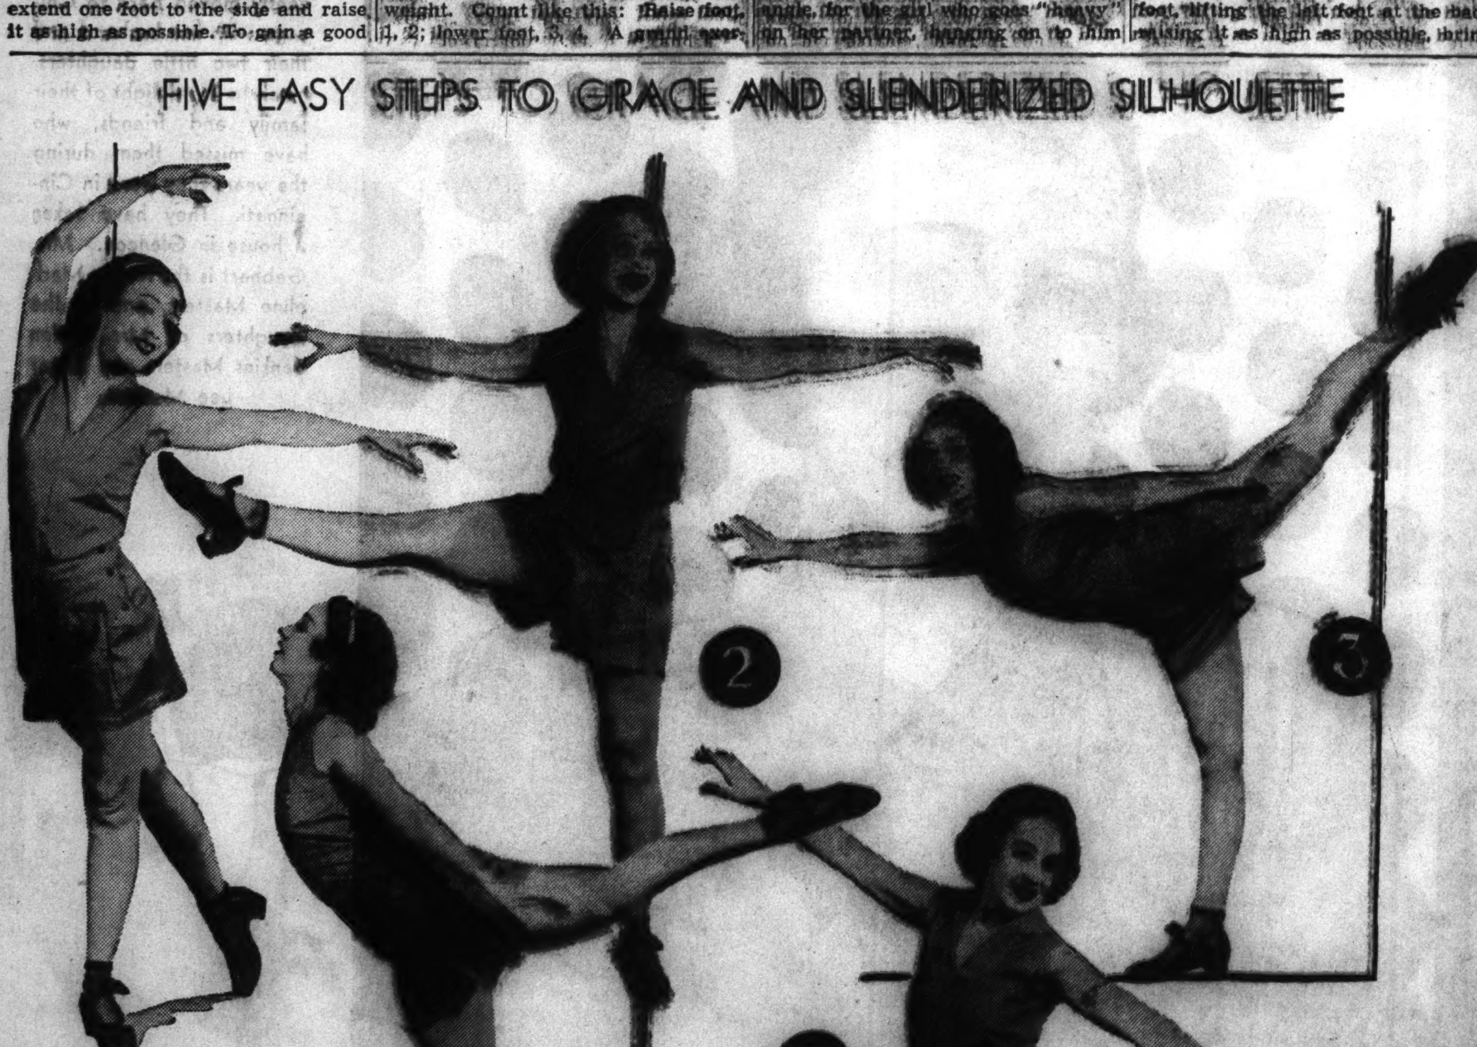
● No. 1: This two jacket suit is perfect for the business woman. It has a dark red skirt and bolero jacket, with a blouse of soft pink and blue print, and it has a red and gray plaid jacket for sports. ● No. 2: This simple afternoon ensemble is made of black satin. The plaited frock has a collar of pale pink to match the pink rose worn on the cape. Mme. Jacques Balsan has a similar ensemble. ● No. 3: A distinguished evening gown of black chiffon, plaited at the front and boasting a draped girdle, is a good choice for the girl who works. She may make it dramatic with a brocade jacket like this. This gown was chosen by the duchess of Westminster.

FIVE EASY STEPS TO GRACE AND SLENDERIZED SILHOUETTE



Five dance steps, illustrated for you by Doris Eaton, stage artist and instructor in a dancing school. The accompanying article describes the exercises in detail. Each is designed for a special purpose, to limber the body, provide grace, and to reduce certain portions of the silhouette. No. 1 is grand for the hips. No. 2 helps to gain grace in waltzing, and provides a sense of equilibrium. No. 3 is for better poise and balance, reduces entire body, and has limbering virtues. No. 4 is for the muscles of the back, and aids in learning to dance with erect carriage. No. 5 is for the stiff kneed dancer. This rather strenuous exercise is recommended for one in exercise condition.

Business Girl Can Be Smart Though Thrifty

Paris Tells How the Trick Is Done; Good Color Basis First Consideration.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special]—The higher the aim, in one sense, the easier it is to dress with distinction, because the real stars of dress prefer a quiet elegance that lasts rather than flashy and eccentric clothes that so easily look cheap or tiresome. The first and most important item in getting together an economical and distinguished spring wardrobe is color. Select one and stick to it pretty consistently for all your daytime clothes. Make this color a wine red or a dark blue, such as Mme. Balsan chooses, or select some such quiet shade.

You'll need a spring coat, and you can get one for about $20. Select a simple, tailored model, copied from the highest style you can get. You may choose a rather short swagger or a long, trim coat.

You'll need a suit to go with your coat. Choose it in the same color, and you can buy it as inexpensively as $15, though, if you can afford it, pay more. Get a really tailored suit, as plain as can be. If you feel that you require feminine softness, you can get it by wearing two big flowers in your lapel, and a soft blouse.

For variety and added distinction, if possible get a second jacket to wear with the skirt of your suit. Select a plaid, checked, or striped jacket, that is sports in type.

One Afternoon Frock Enough for Working Girl.

To wear with your two-in-one suit, choose a plain sweater blouse for it's sports phase. You can get this for as little as $3. Get a gay, printed blouse that will make your suit feminine and dressy, and pay for it, say, $5. Then get a white, tailored blouse and one in pretty color, at $3 each, and you'll have a complete blouse wardrobe for $15. You can cut or add to this according to your budget.

One dressy, afternoon frock is sufficient for the business girl, who, necessarily, spends most of her afternoons on the job. Choose a frock that you can wear under your wool coat for early spring, and either a gay print or a simple, well-cut dark satin dress will be the distinguished choice. Pay from $15 to $20 for this dress. If you can get a small cape in the same material to wear over the dress in late spring, you will have a new ensemble and a smart one. A clever girl can make a cape like this for a few dollars. She can buy it for $5.

One spring office dress to rest the suit is advisable. For this choose a smart, simple, one-color frock, rather tailored in type. It should match your suit and coat in color, or contrast prettily—never violently. This will cost about $15.

Three Pairs of Shoes Necessary for Daintiness.

At least three pairs of shoes are necessary for the daintiness and comfort of your feet. A pair of well cut oxfords should be included, and a pair of simple pumps for change. A pair of more dressy sandals to wear with the afternoon ensemble will assist distinction of appearance. These can be bought for $15.

Two hats are the absolute minimum. One trimmed hat that is tailored enough to wear for sports can be worn with the suit and office dress. Then choose a small hat trimmed with veil or flowers, or both, to wear with the afternoon ensemble and the suit and its printed blouse. A third hat of straw, in gay color or white, is desirable but not necessary. Two hats may be chosen for $10.

Two handbags, one tailored and one dressy, must be included by the aspirant to distinction. These with miscellaneous accessories may be purchased for the sum of $15, or less.

Three Pairs of Gloves, Seven of Stockings Ample.

Three pairs of gloves will be ample. A pair of dark leather gloves to match the suit, a pair of washable fabric gloves, and a pair of gay colored gloves as a bright accessory note. Six dollars will be plenty for the gloves. For stockings to last the entire season, $7 is sufficient, if quality and wear are insisted upon. Too sheer hose are neither elegant nor attractive.

One evening dress, made of sheer, one-color silk or printed material, may be bought for about $15. A clever girl can tie her evening dress to her afternoon frock, and wear the same cape with both, and the same slippers, if she chooses a dark color.

Sketches show how the clothes of the most distinguished women apply to the working girl. No. 1 is a suit worn with a dark red skirt and a red and gray plaid jacket. A second jacket, a new bolero in dark red, with a printed blouse and sash, make this dressy. The others, from wardrobes of the best dressed, are equally suitable.

English Yachting, Racing Await New King's Interest

LONDON — Racing and yachting people have been wondering whether those sports are to receive the same impetus from the new king as they did from George V. It seems doubtful, since King Edward never has taken more than a passing interest in either. However, the late king's stable has been taken over by the earl of Derby, and some racing will be done under the new king's colors, maintaining the same trainers and managers.

As for yachting, it is rumored at Cowes that a fine new cruising motor yacht is being built for the new king, but it is doubtful that he ever will be interested enough in sailing to be seen at the wheel as his father and grandfather were before him.

Woman's City Club to Meet at Civic Forum

Psychopathic Hospital Is to Be Topic at Luncheon Conference Next Friday.

More news of Chicago clubs and club women will be found in the other Society section.

PURSUING its policy of studying the public institutions of Chicago and Cook county, the Woman's City club, at its regular civic forum luncheon Friday, will consider the psychopathic hospital. Dr. Francis J. Gerty, superintendent of the hospital, will talk on the aims, functions, and needs of the institution. Miss Helen Myrick, chairman of the mental hygiene committee, is arranging the program.

In contrasting vein will be Joseph Soravia's talk on "The Arts of Italy" before the club at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Other meetings of the week will be the industrial problems committee luncheon Tuesday, with Miss Elsabelle Goss presiding, and the municipal citizenship committee meeting at 2:15 o'clock Friday, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde.

Immigrants' Protective League to Have Luncheon Thursday.

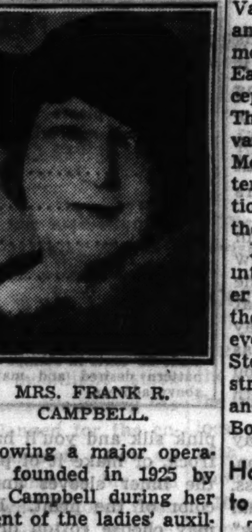
Problems of the immigrant will be discussed at the annual luncheon of the Immigrants' Protective league Thursday noon at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. The Woman's club, the Colonial Dames of America, and the Chicago section, National Council of Jewish Women, will be represented at the meeting.

Miss Grace Abbott, vice president of the league, will introduce as speakers Col. D. W. MacCormack, United States commissioner of immigration and naturalization; Charles P. Schwartz, chairman of the Illinois committee on citizenship and naturalization; and Mrs. Kenneth Rich, director of the league.

Mrs. Ralph W. Webster Is to Preside at Meeting.

Mrs. Walker G. McLaury is general chairman in charge of arrangements for the meeting, at which Mrs. Ralph W. Webster, president of the Chicago Woman's club, will preside.

In the interests of its "first night fund" the Past President's club of Knights Templar Auxiliaries of Illinois will give a card party Thursday in the nurses' home of the Illinois Masonic hospital, 834 West Wellington avenue.



MRS. FRANK R. CAMPBELL.

The fund is designed to provide needy patients with a nurse the first night following a major operation, and was founded in 1925 by Mrs. Frank B. Campbell during her term as president of the ladies' auxiliary of the Chicago commandery of Knights Templar. Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Arthur G. Fink are co-chairmen of the party.

La Rabida Sanitarium Board to Show Fashions.

A preview of spring styles will be afforded members of the women's board of La Rabida Jackson Park sanitarium at the fashion show and card party to be sponsored by the board Tuesday at the South Shore Country club.

Members will model the dresses, which afterward will be distributed among the guests at the party. Mrs. Cops J. Hanley is general chairman of the party, and Mrs. Frederick Wallach Jr. is in charge of models. Other chairmen include Mrs. Robert A. Black, tickets; Mrs. David Vaughn Colbert, hostesses; Mrs. Harry R. Kurrie, cigarets; Mrs. Royal D. Dwight, cards; Mrs. Louis T. Orr, table prizes.

"Mexico Today" will be the subject of a program by Señorita Sofie Del Valle at the third quarterly meeting and luncheon of the Big Sisters tomorrow at the House of Biggs, 50 East Huron street. A half hour reception will precede the luncheon. There will be brief reports from the various committees. Mrs. George V. McIntyre will preside. The Big Sisters will hold their Day of Recollection Wednesday at the Convent of the Cenacle.

Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, will be the principal speaker at the 20th anniversary dinner of the Chicago Urban league Wednesday evening in the grand ballroom of the Steuben club, 188 West Randolph street. There will be annual reports and a program of music. Dr. M. O. Bousfield will preside.

Hotel Women's Association to Celebrate Anniversary.

The 15th birthday anniversary of the Hotel Women's association will be celebrated with a dinner tomorrow evening at the Morrison hotel. A reception will be held in the Cameo room, with dinner afterward in the Terrace Garden. Mrs. Georgia A. Hunt is receiving reservations.

The 1936 fund raising campaign of the Chicago Junior Hadassah will be launched formally this afternoon at a meeting at the Congress hotel. Mrs. Harry Berkman will speak on her recent travels in Palestine and there will be music. Members have pledged one-fourth of the year's quota of $8,500 for this afternoon. Miss Gertrude Raub is chairman of the campaign, with Miss Beverly Tatkin assisting.

The Sara Raff Junior Hias, an auxiliary of the Hebrew Immigrant Aid society, will sponsor its third annual dance today in the Florentine ballroom of the Congress hotel. Proceeds will be used to clothe and shelter the unfortunate. Miss Seems Hesser is chairman of the event.

February

By Eleanor Jewett.

February should be proud, just walk
Around and stick its chest
Way out, it has the loveliest days—
Almost the very best.
Washington's birthday and Lincoln's, too,
And Valentine's day make three,
And my sister has a birthday then,
And my mother has, and me!
And February has an extra day,
Which none of the other months do,
So if it's proud (and I guess it is)
I don't blame it, do you?

Mr. and Mrs. Victor H. Munnecke of Chicago have been spending several days at the Pancoast hotel before joining a Mexican cruise. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace J. Stebbins of Chicago recently arrived at the Pancoast for their annual visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall, who recently arrived from Chicago, are occupying their cabana at the Beach Cabana club. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Fulton of Chicago and their daughter, Miss Margaret Fulton, are seen frequently at the Beach Cabana club, where they are members. They are stopping at the Venetian hotel in Miami for a month's stay.

Fatal Illness of Two Women Stops Rollins 'Publication'

WINTER PARK, FLA. For the first time in the ten years Dr. Hamilton Holt's administration at Rollins college, the annual "publication" of the Rollins animated magazine will not take place. On Sunday of this, Founders' week, this decision was reached by the executive committee of the board of trustees of Rollins college in consultation with members of the administration staf during the serious illness of Mrs. Hamilton Holt and Mrs. Edwin O. Grover, wives of the "editor" and "publisher" respectively. Both women have died since the decision was made.

Mrs. B. R. Coleman entertained at a luncheon yesterday at her home, Porto Bello, here in Winter Park. This is another in the series of parties which she is giving this season. Among the guests were Miss Amy C. Davey, Mrs. John J. Bell, Mrs. Arthur M. Harris, Mrs. L. L. Hackney, Mrs. Sumner Brooks and guest, Mrs. H. M. Sinclair; Miss Grace O. Edwards, Dr. Mary L. Leonard, Mrs. Nancy B. White, Mrs. John Wint, Mrs. Howard W. Showalter, Miss Louella Kountz, Miss Mary Wheeler, Mrs. Miles M. Dawson, Mrs. A. E. Dick, Miss Elizabeth McConnell, Mrs. Halsted Caldwell, Mrs. George Kraft, Mrs. Elmer Johnson, and Mrs. E. A. Coleman.

Among prominent Chicagoans who reserved tables at the Junior Woman's club tea yesterday afternoon were Mrs. Tracy Turner, Mrs. Louise Goss, and Mrs. H. E. Osterling.

Mrs. Louise C. Goss entertained at tea last Saturday afternoon in honor of her daughters, Mrs. Harold Elliot and Mrs. Sam Goss Jr., both of Glencoe.

Arthur Olsen of Glencoe will arrive here Sunday to join his wife, who has been visiting in Winter Park, and together they will return north.

J. A. Moore of Chicago is at the Hamilton hotel. Mrs. Herbert J. Campbell of Chicago is at the Seminole. W. F. Hayes and Miss Lorraine Hayes of Glencoe are returning north after a month's stay at the Alabama hotel.

Mrs. Tracy L. Turner of Chicago is giving a luncheon for twelve guests at the Whistling Kettle tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. W. Halsy of Montclair, N. J., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Tracy L. Turner on Palmer avenue. They are now on their way to Miami Beach.

Pamphlets Teach British How to Act in Gas Attacks

LONDON. The "general purpose committee" of the London county council is distributing pamphlets to householders, giving directions about what to do in case of gas attacks from the air. And again one reads notices regarding water supplies in case of fires from incendiary bombs.

To Americans a war may seem far away, but to the British it seems just around the corner.

After-Theater Menus Specify One Hot Dish

Society Hostesses Share Pet Recipes Preferred for Supper at Late Hours.

By Mary Meade.

IT MAY be a gay supper party following an important opening night. It may be "come back to our house for a bite to eat after the movie." After theater entertaining is providing food for thought for many a clever hostess. Which means, of course, that she frequently has to turn the tables and give thought to food.

The delightful after theater suppers of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Byfield offer a sparkling pattern for any hostess. We begged them to suggest a supper menu, knowing that you'd be as interested as we are in the supper fare of these well known Chicagoans.

Creamed Chicken Flavored with Madeira Wine Is Appetizing.

A steaming chafing dish of creamed chicken, flavored with fine imported Madeira, highlights this suggested menu of the Byfields. Just a dash of the wine, one or two teaspoons for each four or five servings, adds a subtle touch of flavor.

With the chicken, either baked noodles with grated cheese or steamed rice garnished with whole kumquats was suggested. Rolls, toast, and butter—and the main part of this distinctive yet simple menu is completed.

Byfields Offer Interesting Suggestions for Dessert.

For dessert the Byfields offered two decidedly interesting suggestions. One was black cherries with brandy burned over them, served on vanilla ice cream. The cherries are placed in a chafing dish, covered with brandy, and the whole slightly burned. The other was French pancakes, five or six very thin ones, with a heavy, rum flavored caramel sauce.

Miss Peggy Hambleton's after theater suppers are likewise important social calendar events. When we consulted Miss Hambleton for menu suggestions she told us, laughingly: "I never have very much." Pressed for more specific revelations, this young Chicago hostess said she believed in keeping her supper menus definitly simple. One hot dish, sandwiches, and cheese is her suggestion for a satisfactory menu pattern.

Spaghetti Prominent in Miss Hambleton's Supper Menus.

Spaghetti tops the favorites among the hot dishes for Miss Hambleton's supper parties. For cheese she's likely to favor a Bel Paese or an Edam.

Simple, isn't it? And proof that one needn't spend a great deal of money or go to a lot of trouble to entertain successfully after the theater. From our own collection of supper suggestions we're furthering Miss Hambleton's help with a number of ideas for that one hot dish she mentions.

HAM A LA REINE

Blend together four tablespoons of flour and three tablespoons of butter. Combine with two cups of hot evaporated milk and cook slowly, stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Add two cups of diced cooked ham, one-half cup diced pimiento, and one-half cup of sliced sautéd mushrooms. Season with lemon juice, paprika, and Worcestershire, heat thoroughly, and serve in hot toast cases.

SAUSAGES A LA DEEPDENE

SUPPER SPAGHETTI DISH

Cook one pound of broken spaghetti in salted water until tender. Drain. Cut one pound of fresh pork in small cubes and brown in a large skillet. Dice two tart apples and add to the pork. Combine the fried pork and apples with the spaghetti. In the same skillet, brown one-half cup of sliced onion. Add this to the spaghetti mixture, and add one cup of canned tomatoes. Turn into a buttered casserole, sprinkle with a half pound of grated sharp cheese, and bake for one hour in a moderate oven. [An automatic oven control can be set so that this is done as you return from the theater. Otherwise, partly bake in advance and reheat.]

CLAMS A LA NEWBURG

1 pint clams
2 tablespoons butter
Salt, cayenne
3 tablespoons Madeira or sherry
½ cup cream
3 egg yolks

Clean clams, remove soft parts, and chop hard parts finely. Melt the butter, add the chopped clams, seasonings, and wine. Cook for seven minutes over low heat, then add cream and soft parts of clams. Cook two minutes longer, then add slightly beaten egg yolks. Stir over low heat until thickened, and serve at once.

SHRIMPS, LOUISIANA STYLE

¼ cup butter
2 cups cooked whole shrimps
¾ cup finely chopped onion
2 cups hot boiled rice
1½ cups heavy cream
Salt, celery salt, cayenne
3 tablespoons tomato catsup

Lightly brown chopped onion in melted butter. Add shrimps, cooked rice [be sure to rinse and fluff so that the grains will be distinct and dry], and heavy cream. Heat thoroughly and season with salt, celery salt, cayenne, and tomato catsup.

ITALIAN SPAGHETTI SAUCE

4 cups canned tomatoes
2 chopped medium onions
1 chopped green pepper
2 chopped stalks of celery
½ bay leaf
6 whole cloves
Mace
2 teaspoons sugar

Puree the tomatoes and cook with all the other ingredients for thirty minutes. Strain through fine sieve.

Frock with Softly Shirred Shoulderline Is Ideal for Beige and Pale Gray.

By Clotilde.

FASHION smiles on beige and light gray as favored colors for the spring wardrobes of women slim enough to wear them to advantage. The pattern illustrated today, No. 2604, is designed especially for these subtle monotone colors. It has simple lines, with just enough dash to do justice to the delicacy of the shades. You will find that this dress, appropriate as it is for warmer weather, also is a tonic for late winter clothes collections, relieving them of the boredom which undoubtedly envelops them as cold days wend their weary way into the spring calendar.

The skirt is simple and straight, with a narrow gore down the center achieving the necessary width for graceful walking. The bodice presents the chief details of chic, especially in the shoulder line, with the full sleeves, gathered into tight wrist bands, ranking a close second for honors in smartness. The attractive yoke resorts to shirring for grace and femininity. The gathers, arranged perpendicularly, create soft folds horizontally, enriching the neckline with simple grace. The square line of the bodice, below the soft yoke, is flattering in its simplicity, being an admirable foil for the fulness above it.

Silks are best for this model. In case you are looking ahead toward summer, we offer the suggestion that this frock would be tremendously chic in sheer cottons. For warm weather, make this dress with short sleeves.

Style No. 2604 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material.

Jacket-Dress Duet Fashion's Spring Song

Briefest of Taffeta Coats Fits Snugly Over Simple Frock of Thin Wool.

By Rhea Seeger.

DAYTIME clothes for this trying time of the year used to be as difficult to find as a warm breeze heralding spring. But the obliging designers have really worked themselves into a proper spirit these days and sent out to the hungry hordes of appreciative shoppers extremely good looking models . . . models that can be worn right away, with the old fur coat or under a wool fur trimmed affair. They will give you that exciting feel of spring and slimness better than even a suit.

Lots of clever combines of jackets and one piece dresses are hanging about, smart get-to-gethers that are tremendously practical without being dull and dowdy. They are the kind of clothes you wear now and then combined with other extra jackets and dresses the glad day you park the winter wools in mothballs.

Taffeta is rustling about the shops with a smart determination to steal the fashion spotlight again this spring. Nothing makes any one feel half so important as this seductively feminine material. You can swish your way into a levee for a queen wearing taffeta. In fact, you'll feel even smarter than the queen. Again the designers have presented small, fitted jackets of taffeta to top slim, one-piece thin wool dresses and thereby evolved some of the best two piece outfits available. For instance, the brilliant twosome illustrated in sketch C. The navy blue dress slenderizes you by inches. It has a diagonal front closing to the top of the red and blue dotted taffeta, short sleeves, and a narrow band around the narrow hemline of the dress. The same dotted taffeta that trims the dress is used for the long sleeved jacket. And notice that jacket. It is not loose or casual like last year's, but fitted suavely, flared with a peplum, and then puffed discreetly at the top of the sleeves. This outfit goes out under either fur coat or wool coat. It will be the pet ensemble of your spring wardrobe. The taffeta jacket could also do double duty as a dinner jacket. With this outfit is shown a gay new flowered hat, small and piquantly different, with a stalk of hyacinths at the side back.

Sketch A . . . Soft wool is used for a simply tailored two piece outfit. The skirt has a double kick plait. The slipon top has pockets, long sleeves, and a nicely cut neckline, made for all your pet neck scarfs. One striped scarf comes with it, a white and red silk taffeta ascot. The snappy white hat has inky black trim. Another good duet for immediate use as well as for street wear in late spring.

Sketch B . . . Cape costumes bloom fashionably every spring, especially if the cape is of fur. Such a stunning ensemble goes to smart luncheons, matinées, and dinners in town. It is by far the most versatile outfit you can own. In the particular model illustrated light gray wool makes the distinctive high necked dress, with its long fitted sleeves. The cape of gleaming black flat galyak swings around the waistline, fits snugly over the shoulderline, and folds back in front to show the gray dress beneath. With it a hat, the shallow, upturned gray felt sailor, trimmed with a veil of black that ties in a huge bow at the back. This veil slips through two side bands of the brim. This is one of the newest sailors in town.

Sketch D . . . The dress parade suit of sheer wool. A slim, straight skirt is worn with a loose flared back coat that reaches a line well below the hips. A stunning silver fox tuxedo collar worked in diagonal formation is the only contrast. This is the suit you wear with all the newest filmy chiffon blouses, or the exquisitely handmade French blouses trimmed with fine lace and embroidery. With a black chiffon blouse, made with wide, full sleeves and tucked from shoulderline to waist, it becomes the ideal dressy suit for spring and summer.

Sketch E . . . Fine imported sharkskin fabric fashions this dashing suit called "Mutiny on the Bounty" . . . a careful adaptation of the uniforms worn in the film of that name. Again it's gray, an effective iron gray, with wide revers, a snappy collar of gray velvet, and a fitted silhouette with a row of front buttons to keep it smoothly in place. The coat is exceptionally long. Only about four inches of the plain tailored skirt are visible.

BRIGHT, NEW IDEAS IN STREET CLOTHES

● A: This suit of soft wool has a neckline designed to give full display to colorful spring scarves. The skirt is simple, with a double kick plait. ● B: A frock of light gray wool and a cape of black galyak are combined in one of the smartest spring ensembles. The hat is gray felt. ● C: Red and blue dotted taffeta makes a fitted jacket to wear over a simple dress of navy blue wool. ● D: A silver fox tuxedo provides dramatic contrast for this dress parade suit of sheer wool. ● E: Sharkskin fabric fashions a "Mutiny on the Bounty" suit. Gray is the color.

Sensitive Plant Is Theme of Unusual Quilt Design

FARMER'S BAROMETER.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

By Nancy Cabot.

TO RESORT to botanical vernacular, "Farmer's Barometer" is a flower known as anagallis coerulea. It is a highly sensitive plant, heralding the approach of a storm by folding its petals into the position illustrated by the buds placed between the open flower. Blue tinged with purple is the favorite shade for the flower. Rose centers and green leaves create one of the most beautiful of our many applique patterns. Placed on a pale yellow background, "Farmer's Barometer" is an object of most unusual beauty. The finished square measures 21 inches, and only 6 applique and 6 plain blocks are required for the entire quilt. A 12 inch border matching the plain blocks is finished with a narrow one-half inch binding.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower.

Augusta to Climax Pre-Lenten Season with Beaux Art Ball

The social activities of the pre-Lenten season will be climaxed on Shrove Tuesday when the Augusta Art club entertains with its annual Beaux Arts ball at the Bon Air hotel. Mardi gras revelry will prevail during the evening, and prizes will be awarded for the most beautiful and original costumes. Decorations and costumes will carry out the motif of a black and white ball. At midnight a grand march will be held.

AUGUSTA, GA.

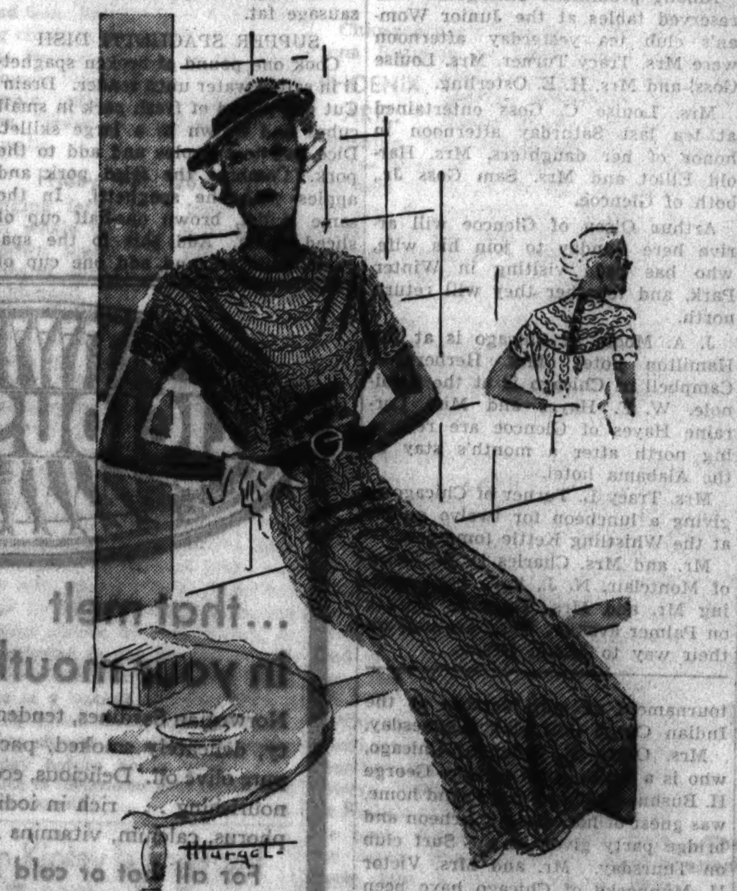
Dr. Williams Lyon Phelps of Yale university will speak Thursday night at the Forest Hills hotel under the auspices of the College club, local chapter of the American association of university women. Dr. Phelps, who, with Mrs. Phelps, is spending several weeks in Augusta at the Forest Hills hotel, will have as his subject "Books." He will also fill the pulpit at the First Baptist church today as is his annual custom.

The Augusta Woman's club is planning "an evening with the Barretts" at the Bon Air hotel for Friday evening. An interesting story of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning will be presented under the auspices of the fine arts department.

A match play handicap for women will be played at the Forest Hills golf course Feb. 24-28. Sixteen players will qualify. A thirty-six hole medal play tournament will be held at the Country club courses. The Augusta Women's Golf association is planning a progressive tournament for Feb. 29 at the Country club. This event will be followed by a flag tournament on March 7 and a Scotch foursome on March 21.

Polo continues to be one of Augusta's greatest sport attractions. Three games were played this week between the local and western teams, who will meet again today. Matches have been arranged with the four from the Atlanta horse guard and that from Camden, S. C.

Color May Be Riotously Used in Simple Knit Frock



By Jean Macdonald.

THIS simple dress derives its major chic from the clever use of the cable stitch in its pattern throughout the dress. Its simplicity makes it an ideal dress in which to emphasize color. The knitter can "go to town" on whatever her favorite hue happens to be, since the color and stitch are the two important considerations in the entire dress.

This frock may be worn for spectator sports, and it is feminine enough for teas, bridge, and luncheons in warm weather. The yoke and tiny cap sleeves give a most flattering line to the figure. The straight line of the skirt speaks for itself, as may be noted in the illustration.

The most fun, however, is in the knitting. This frock is not too easy. The knitter drops stitches on each side of the cable stitch—that is done purposely further to enhance the charm of the ever favorite design.

A Rich Field of Reading Awaits the Adolescent

Mrs. Bevans Lists Books That Both Delight and Broaden Youth Today.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

THE ideal way to give parents a list of books for their children is to make a note after each one of what it's about and its style. For a department like this, which isn't a book review column, that would be so lengthy a process that I've abandoned it. Today, therefore, I'm going to give you names and authors of books most carefully selected to give pleasure to your teen age boy or girl—and at the same time to supply him or her with good literature.

Further comments on this whole subject of reading for pleasure will be omitted today, as we have already devoted several daily articles to it during this last week. We wish to emphasize again, however, that a detailed classification will not be attempted.

Timeliness Suggests Starting with Kipling.

Now we're off.

Timeliness makes us start with Kipling:

"Kim," by Rudyard Kipling.

"Plain Tales from the Hills" and all his short stories, Rudyard Kipling.

"Barrack Room Ballads and Departmental Ditties," by Rudyard Kipling.

An adventure group comes next:

"Moby Dick, or the White Whale" by Herman Melville.

"Falmouth for Orders," by Alan J. Villiers.

"Sea Wolf," by Jack London.

"Voyage of the Martin Connor," by Oswald Kendall.

"Derelict," by Charles Bernard Nordhoff.

"Jim Davis," by John Masefield.

"Captain Blood," by Rafael Sabatini.

"Cappy Ricks," by Peter B. Kyne.

"Greenmouth," by John Buchan.

"Cruise of the Snark," by Jack London.

"Treasure Island," by Robert Louis Stevenson.

"David Balfour," by Robert Louis Stevenson.

"Kidnapped," by Robert Louis Stevenson.

"Porto Bello Gold," by A. D. Howden-Smith.

Many Non-Fiction Books Enthralling.

Now for a few that are not fiction:

"The Native's Return," by Louis Adamic.

"We," by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

"North to the Orient," by Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

"The Promised Land," by Mary Austin.

"Microbe Hunters," by Paul De Kruif.

"Vagabond Journey Around the World," by Harry A. Franck.

"Wilderness," by Rockwell Kent.

"Green Mansions," by William H. Hudson.

"Louisa May Alcott—Her Life, Letters, and Journals," by Ednah Dow Cheney.

"Pilgrim's Progress," by John Bunyan.

"Life of the Bee," by Maurice Maeterlinck.

"Book of Pirates," by Howard Pyle.

"Life with Father," by Clarence Day.

Now for adult novels, including current and modern and "classic:"

"The Bridge of San Luis Rey," by Thornton Wilder.

"Messer Marco Polo," by Donn Byrne.

"Monsieur Beaucaire," by Booth Tarkington.

"The Gentleman from Indiana," by Booth Tarkington.

"Lorna Doone," by Richard B. Blackmore.

"The Count of Monte Cristo," by Alexander Dumas.

"The Three Musketeers," by Alexander Dumas.

"Beau Geste," by Percival Christopher Wren.

"The Blazed Trail," by Stewart Edward White.

Literature of Past Offers Much for Adolescents.

Let's leave definite fiction classification for a few minutes and jot down a variety of titles:

"A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," by Mark Twain.

"Men of Iron," by Howard Pyle.

"The Arabian Nights."

"So Big," by Edna Ferber.

"Cimarron," by Edna Ferber.

"The Scarlet Pimpernel," by Baroness Orczy.

"Scaramouche," by Rafael Sabatini.

"Jalna," by Mazo de la Roche.

"Harbor," by Ernest Poole.

"Babbitt," by Sinclair Lewis.

The works of Charles Dickens and of Charles Reade should not be omitted, but are certainly often strong "slices of life."

Many more books flock to my mind but sometimes there is confusion in numbers, so I will leave the list at that.

Since such a list as this is needed by many for permanent reference, this list has been printed in booklet form. It is called, "Books to Be Read for Pleasure by 'Teen Age Boys and Girls." A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring it to you.

Miss Bevans' column also appears in The Tribune on Monday and every other weekday.

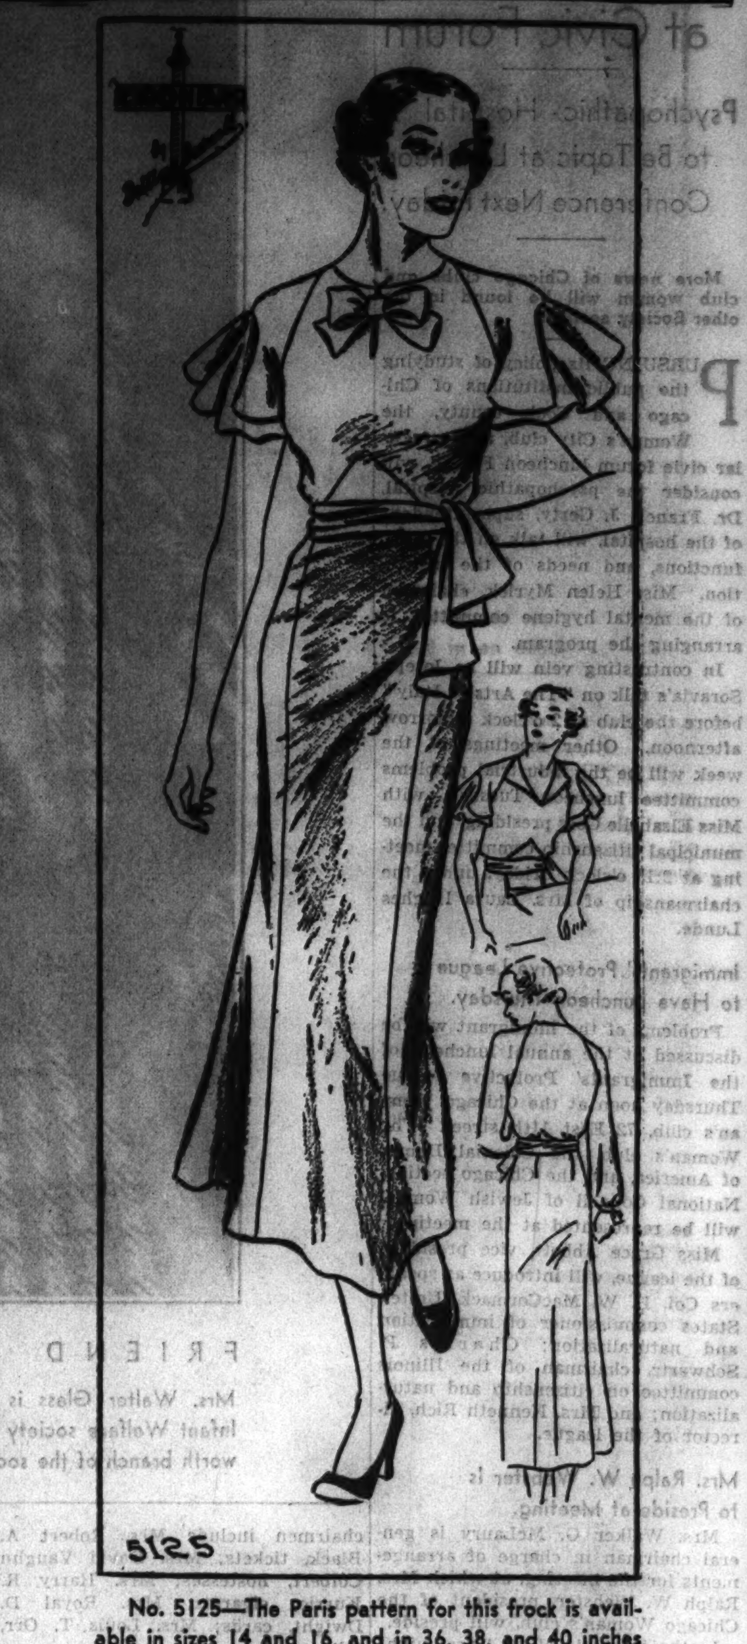
White Touches Embellish Chic Paris Pattern Frock



No. 5125—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS—[Special.]—Paris calls this model Spring 1936 and makes it as fresh and charming as spring itself, with white touches applied in a new way. You can make a dress like this in a few hours at home and look like a million dollars when you wear it.

The white touches are applied in inside, circular sleeves that show through the split, circular outside sleeve, and in the tailored bow that holds the neckline in place. You may prefer to have your neckline open, as shown in the small sketch, and you may have the revers faced with white.

This model, pattern No. 5125, may be worn for sports or for afternoon, for it is chic as an all-occasion dress. The material selected makes it formal or sports. If you need a new "dressy" dress make this of black satin and make the inner sleeves and bow of pink silk and you'll have a stunning frock, or make it of printed silk and the inner sleeves and bow of one color of the print. For sports you may choose cotton or silk, and you will want to use white piqué for the sleeves and bow.

The doctor said it would—

FOR REAL RELIEF OF CONSTIPATION

How to end the laxative habit and help nature re-establish regularity

I Measure-out a cleansing dose of liquid laxative, regulating the amount to suit the age, condition and individual need.

II Tomorrow, take less; let the regular muscular action of the bowels do part of the work—

III Reduce the dose each time, until regularity has been completely restored.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

You can use a liquid laxative at home. And if you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the real secret of relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help when the dosage is repeated. Taking a little less each time, gives the bowels a chance to act of their own accord, until they are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

Once you have experienced this comfort, you will never go back to any form of help that cannot be regulated to suit the need!

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. The action is gentle, but sure. It will relieve any sluggishness or bilious condition due to constipation. It is the very nicest tasting, nicest acting preparation you can buy. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

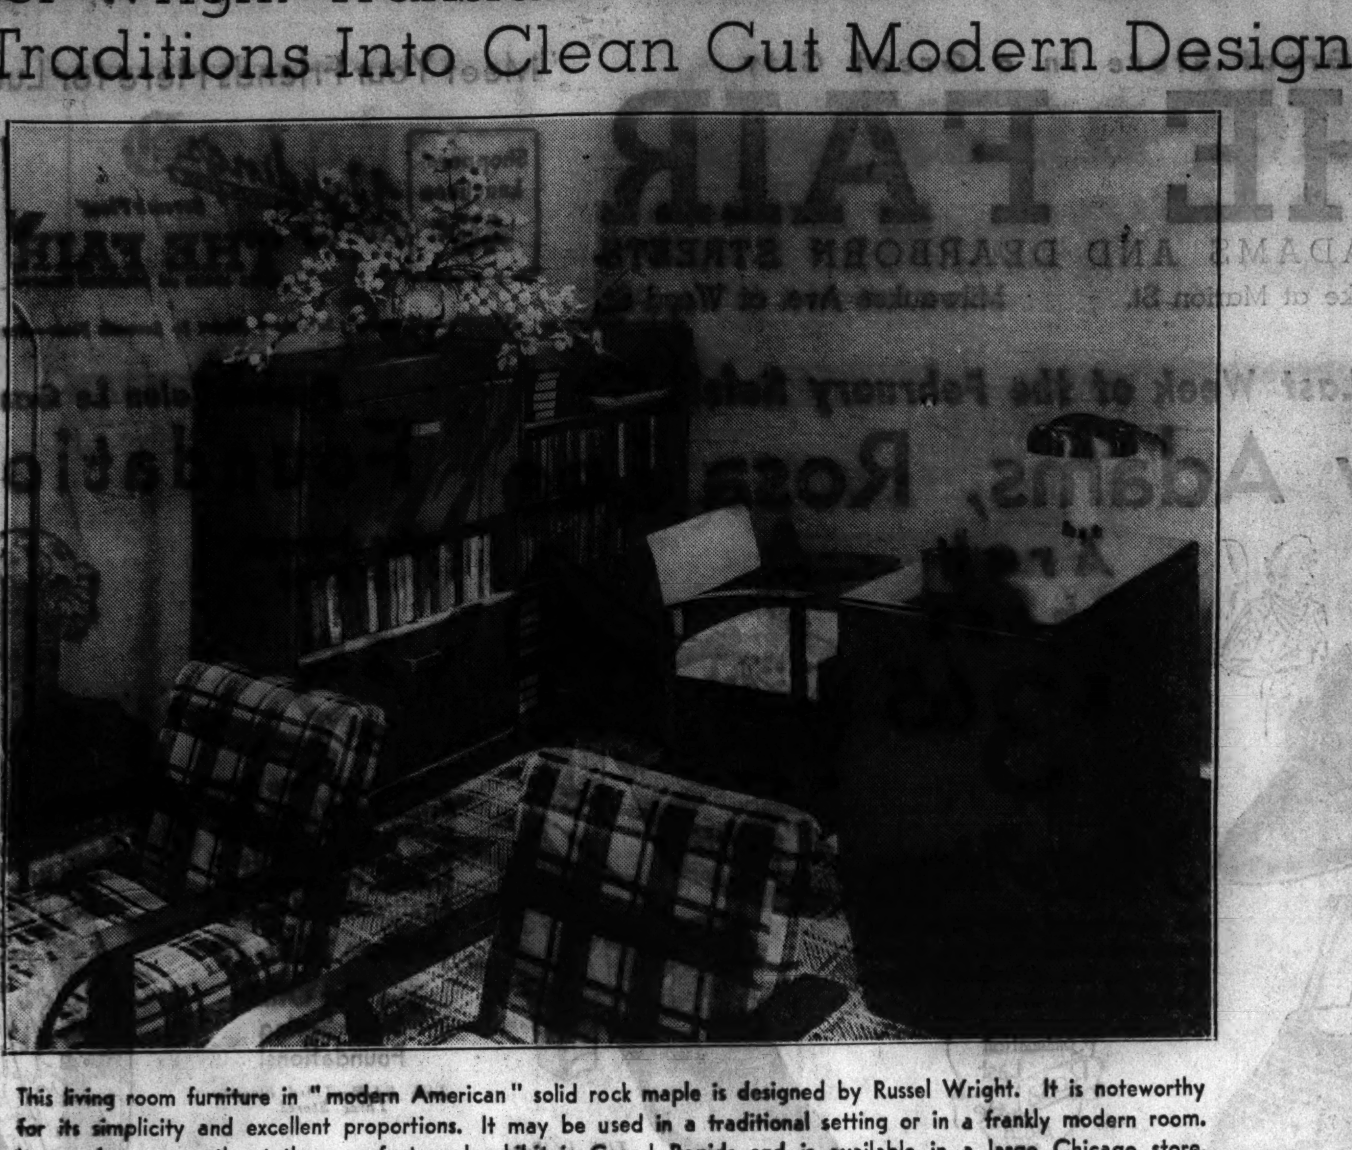
Russel Wright Translates America's Furniture Traditions Into Clean Cut Modern Design



This living room furniture in "modern American" solid rock maple is designed by Russel Wright. It is noteworthy for its simplicity and excellent proportions. It may be used in a traditional setting or in a frankly modern room. It was shown recently at the manufacturers' exhibit in Grand Rapids and is available in a large Chicago store.

His Work Boasts the Same Honesty of Design That Marked Colonial Pieces.

By Edith Weigle.

ONE of the foremost "modern pioneers" in furniture design is Russel Wright, whose recent work in maple has attracted a great deal of attention all over the country. He admires the inherent honesty of design of the early American period, a style determined by the necessities and exigencies of colonial times. Because it furnishes us with a healthy native tradition he believes in building on that foundation and in creating 1936 furniture in the same spirit, if not in the same manner.

He removes all extraneous decoration and carving, reducing forms to the simplest terms, letting proportion, workmanship, the beauty of the wood itself, and a good finish bring dictinction to his modern maple. An eastern manufacturer, for whom his most recent designs have been created, is bringing out this line in two finishes, the usual honey-brown maple tone and a blond or natural, light wood finish. They will be sold in Chicago stores and in other cities throughout the country.

Russel Wright was born in Lebanon, O., in 1904. When he was 17 he went to New York to study sculpture at the Art Students' league. He won the first and second Tiffany prizes for the best war memorial of the year.

At 18 he entered Princeton, where he became identified with the Little theater of the university, producing, directing, and planning costumes and stage sets. During his junior year he left his studies to go to Europe and assist Norman Bel Geddes in his Paris production of "St. Joan."

On returning to New York Mr. Wright worked for a while in the Theater Guild with Lee Simonson, and also with Robert Edmund Jones and Rouben Mamoulian. During this time he started a workshop in which theater properties were produced. In time his ideas of modern furniture and decoration found expression in this shop and New York stores became customers.

Then a small factory was set up and orders came in from all parts of the country. Manufacturers have asked Mr. Wright to design not only furniture but rugs, radios, pianos, wallpaper, and decorative accessories, as well. He is known for "taking aluminum out of the kitchen," making artistic and useful tableware of it.

The photograph today shows a grouping of American modern maple furniture, already referred to. The two pieces on the left wall, one a secretary desk, the other a bookcase, may be used separately or together and with a third piece, a living room chest, not shown. All corners are "cushion edged," and the hardware is copper. The interesting chairs in the foreground are covered in a brown, beige, and off-white plaid fabric.

Besides this living room ensemble, fifty pieces for the bedroom, sunroom, dining room and dinette may also be selected from this line.

In "Beautiful Bedrooms," a booklet by Edith Weigle, suggestions are given for furnishings in the early American, in the colonial mahogany, and in the modern style. Both furniture and drapery fabrics are discussed. Price, 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

Chicagoans Flee to Desert Sunshine of Palm Springs

Palm Springs is the attraction for many Chicagoans escaping the cold of winter to relax in the California desert sunshine.

PALM SPRINGS, CAL.

Outdoor picnic luncheons, scenic mountain drives, moonlight steak rides, and barn dances are among the many diversions planned for the entertainment of vacationists. New arrivals from Chicago include Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Duncan, who motored from Phoenix to Palm Springs; J. R. Murphey and his son, J. R. Murphey Jr.; John Wentworth, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Block and their daughter, Miss Babette Block; Mrs. J. J. Brossard and Kathryn Brossard, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Cooney with Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Iceley, Mr. and Mrs. Melville C. Rothschild and Melville C. Rothschild Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. X. Elrod, Mr. Townsend Netcher, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wright.

Colloquial Speech Is Problem for Radio in England

The committee on spoken English, advising the British Broadcasting company, often has knotty problems to solve. In the agricultural reports, weather reports, and S O S messages, the public must be able to recognize the places mentioned, but with the local pronunciations at great variance with the spelling, it is difficult to know which to choose.

If one lives in Southwick [Northamptonshire] the B. B. C. says "Suthick," but if one lives in Southwick [Sussex or Wiltshire], the B. B. C. pronounces it "Sowthwick." Badgworthy Water [Devon] becomes "Bajjery" [one must assume, with the consent of the natives]. Barholm becomes "Barrom"; Benhall becomes "Bennal"; Bromley [Kent] becomes "Brumley," and Bromley [London, E.] remains Bromley; Debach [Suffolk] becomes "Debbidge," and Mousehole becomes "Mowzol."

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 24.

Frequently begonia plants that are growing in the house are attacked by a fungus which seriously mars the appearance of the leaves. To remedy such a condition one should knock the plant out of the pot and see that the drainage is sufficient to avoid clogged soil. Avoid overpotting. Give maximum light, and as the season advances keep the begonia from the burning sun. Spray it with Bordeaux mixture about every two weeks. The chief object is to keep the plants in a healthy condition—a rule that applies to all house plants.

Tuesday, Feb. 25.

Send for plant and seed catalogs immediately, for all orders should be arranged as soon as possible. Emphasis again is placed on the value of arranging the plans for all kinds of early planting, rearranging shrub and flower beds, collecting the materials that will be used, and doing other necessary work. Plan to grow at least a few of the newer things, such as the new double fragrant nasturtiums, the gaillardia Sun gold, marigold Guinea gold, Dixie sunshine, new phlox Columbia, and a new undercover type of Vinca minor, the trailing periwinkle. New varieties of plants stimulate the gardener's interest in better work and are certain to interest all his friends. Arrange to exhibit a few flowers at local shows.

Wednesday, Feb. 26.

When sowing seeds for early plants be sure to use a sandy soil, screened through a small meshed screen. Cover them only slightly, for many seeds fail to come up when covered too deeply. It is best to sow in rows rather than to sow broadcast, for the soil between rows may be stirred, which aërates the soil. The addition of a little screened leaf mold to the soil improves its qualities as a seedbed. Transplant seedlings when they are small. If allowed to remain too long in the seedbox they are likely to be attacked by a noxious fungus.

Thursday, Feb. 27.

Some roses are well worth growing in the home garden, especially the hybrid perpetuals. A few of the best for this region are Frau Karl Druschki, a large white; Georg Arends, a soft pink; Paul Neyron, the largest rose with a deep rose color; Ulrich Brunner, a cherry crimson, and Gen. Jacqueminot, a crimson. Among climbers are Dr. W. Van Fleet, a pink; Persian yellow, an old-timer that flowers before the leaves appear; Harrison's yellow, and rambler, a crimson. These are excellent for covering walls.

Friday, Feb. 28.

Syringing ferns with tepid water suds of whale oil soap will tend to keep down scales and red spiders. Branches of outdoor shrubs, such as the goldenbell, will force easily at this time. Make a slanting cut and keep the shrubs in deep containers. Sow seeds of Vinca rosea, for they make fine bedding plants. Sow seeds of bedding begonias now. Be careful, when watering, not to wash the fine seeds away. Cover the seedbox with a shaded glass, but give it a bit of air.

Saturday, Feb. 29.

When transplanting succulents such as cacti, aloe, and century plant use a sandy soil. Be sure to have perfect drainage by placing plenty of broken pots, small stones, broken cinders, or other material in the bottom of the pot. Never use a dirty pot, but wash old pots in a bucket of water with a scrubbing brush until they are clean. New pots should be soaked in water for a day before being used.

Glazed Chintz Invades Every Room of House

New Designs Are Delightful at the Windows of Living and Dining Rooms.

"Furnishing Your Home on a Modest Budget," a new booklet by Claire Winslow, tells how to have attractive rooms without running up large bills. It is full of helpful suggestions. Price 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

IT MAY be too early for the first crocus, but it's not too early for the spring crop of blossoming, crisp, fresh chintzes. If you are one of the few women who has not become chintz-minded you'll probably be won over now, for the new patterns and colors AND prices are irresistible.

Remember, too, that glazed chintz can be used in any room in the house. It came out of the bedroom long ago and is at home in dining rooms of any period and in living rooms where simple furniture of the provincial type is used, or where there is handsome mahogany of the 18th century English sort.

The nautical theme is a popular one in 1936 patterns. You see the ship's wheel, the anchor, the twisted rope, and the little replica of the old four masted sailing ships again and again. Youngsters like this salty tang in decoration, and it is a simple matter to build a boy's bedroom around one of these gay chintzes.

"Dolly Varden" Completes Early American Decore.

The pattern you called Nautical is inexpensive and smart. It comes in two shades of blue. We had in mind an interesting bedroom grouping in dark oak for boys, made by a Wisconsin manufacturer, which would be splendid with this chintz, for the beds are double-decker bunks, the chairs and table are shipshape and sturdy, and there is even an oak framed blackboard for the wall, in the top of which is carved a sailor's compass.

Also, you can get another type of bed with this group, one with pirate peg legs, if you please. And to top off, a grand sea chest for stowing away toys and odds and ends. It has hinges that look like old black iron.

To get back to the chintzes. There is one that has a black background, enlivened by tiny white polka dots and little sprays of fields flowers in colors. It is called Dolly Varden and is available in eight different colors, including a light pink ground and a white ground. Because of its small scale design it would be especially nice in a maple dinette or a small early American bedroom. We suggest white dotted Swiss glass curtains to accompany this pretty drapery material.

Formal Designs Used with 18th Century Furniture.

A third chintz is more formal and is in the graceful, decorative spirit of eighteenth century England. It can be at the windows of a dining room in which Herplewhite, Sheraton, Chippendale, or Duncan Phyfe furniture is used, or in a living room done along the same lines. The flowers are in pale beige, yellow, and rose pink with green foliage against a blue ground. The fountain, which gives the design its name, is in gray inside the wreath of flowers. A beautiful fabric such as this can furnish the color scheme for the room, for all that is necessary is to repeat some of its tones in floor covering and upholstery.

Chicagoans Are Hard at Their Golf Strokes in Phoenix

Chicagoans are flocking to the Arizona Biltmore for horseback riding over the western desert, golfing, swimming, and hiking in the inevitable sunshine.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

The beautiful 18 hole golf course lures Mr. and Mrs. T. Samuel Parsons of Evanston, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Henneberry, Nelson L. Buck, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Randall almost daily. Horseback riding is a favorite sport also for Mr. Buck, who with M. H. Karker of Glencoe, covers every trail. Mrs. Karker spends her leisure hours at her cabana at the swimming pool. Miss Francis Hooper and Miss Margaret Donahue find riding their most pleasant diversion.

Horned toad races, a favorite Indian game, were held in the lobby of the hotel Valentine night. Each person selects his favorite toad, names it, and chooses colors for it to wear. The toads are then placed in an arena, and the first toad to cross the line is the champion winner. In the third race Mrs. August Vonglahn's toad came in second, and in the second race Mrs. Charles Renshaw's came in third.

With several other guests Mrs. E. S. Westbrook spent yesterday on the desert studying cacti and other desert flowers. Recently Mr. and Mrs. Francis Neilson entertained at luncheon at the pool. Among their guests were the James Minottos, James McWilliams, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Miss Nora Carney, the Joseph O. Watkinses, the Charles Randalls, and the E. S. Westbrooks.

Young Ohio Girl Chooses Plumbing as Her Career

CLAIMING to be the youngest licensed plumber's assistant in the United States, Miss Nellie Miller, 19 years old, of Gallipolis, O., has started out on a Pacific tour as a "journeyman plumber" to gain experience in various cities.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

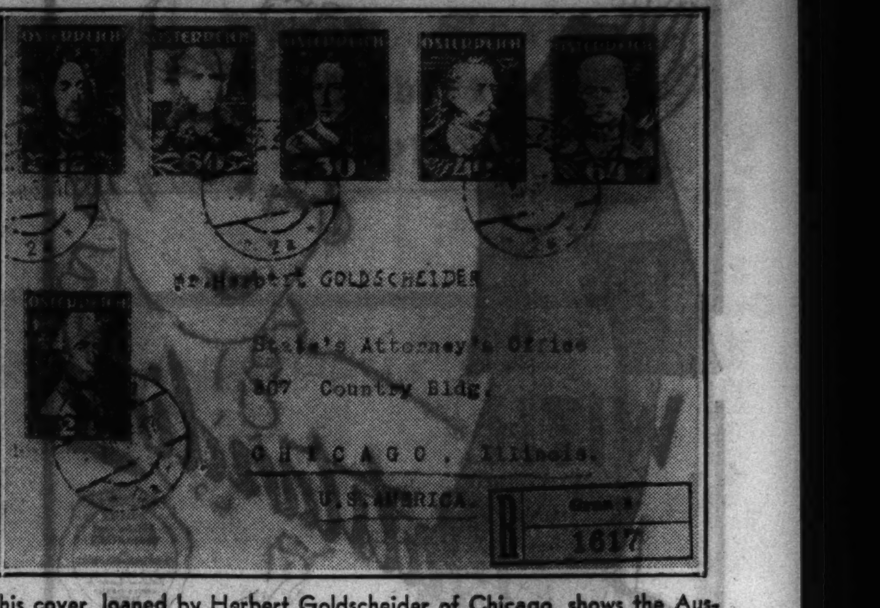
By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



This cover, loaned by Herbert Goldscheider of Chicago, shows the Austrian stamps recently issued to honor the leaders of the old imperial Austrian army and navy. They are described in an adjoining column.

FOLLOWING a custom established in 1922, when the nation issued a beautiful set of engraved stamps in honor of famous musicians, Austria has designed the latest set of semi-postal stamps to honor military and naval leaders of that country. The six values were designed by W. Dachauer and engraved by F. Lorber, and were recess printed from steel plates. As is usual with other Austrian semi-postal issues, the stamps were sold at double face value with the surtax credited to a charitable purpose. The issue, consisting of 70,000 sets, was placed on sale Dec. 1, 1935. The values, colors and subjects are as follows: 12 groschen, sepia, Prince Eugene of Savoy; 24 gr., deep green, Field Marshal Loudon; 30 gr., maroon, Archduke Carl; 40 gr., slate blue, Field Marshal Radetzky; 60 gr., ultramarine, Admiral Tegetthoff, and 64 gr., violet, Field Marshal von Hoetzendorf.

Prince Eugene of Savoy is considered one of the great military geniuses of the world, for, after having been rejected by Louis XIV. of France and Frederick the Great of Prussia on account of his small stature and somewhat effeminate appearance, he was welcomed by Empress Maria Theresa of Austria and ultimately rose to the position of general field marshal of the imperial army. Aside from military duties, he was one of the most cultured men of the time and his "Belvedere," built to house his library and art collections, is one of the show places of Vienna today.

Field Marshal Baron von Loudon enjoys the reputation of having defeated Frederick the Great several times during the seven years' war. Archduke Carl of the House of Hapsburg was responsible for the defeat of Napoleon at Aspern, near Vienna, in 1809.

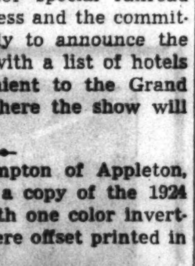
Field Marshal Joseph Count Radetzky was a gallant leader during the period between 1830 and 1848, and is credited with many Italian defeats. Under his guidance the late Emperor Francis Joseph led his regiment into battle. Admiral von Tegetthoff was the founder of the imperial navy of Austria. His most famous achievement was the victory over the Italians near the Isle of Lissa in 1866. Here, with half the number of ships, and these outmoded, he won one of the great naval victories of modern times.

Count Conrad von Hoetzendorff was chief of staf before the world war and became field marshal of the Austro-Hungarian armies upon the outbreak of that conflict. Gen. Foch of France calls him the foremost military figure of the world war.

Following the lead of other international stamp shows, the committee in charge of the Third International Philatelic exhibition, which will be held at New York, May 9 to 17 next, has adopted the shortened title TIPEX. Since there is but one international show each year, collectors all over the world enter their finest material in the competition.

Arrangements for special railroad fares are in progress and the committee expects shortly to announce the details, together with a list of hotels which are convenient to the Grand Central Palace, where the show will be held.

John Ross Frampton of Appleton, Wis., has sent in a copy of the 1924 Christmas seal with one color inverted. These seals were offset printed in red, yellow and blue, and in this copy the red and yellow colors are in the correct relation to each other, while the blue is inverted. In the actual seal the red and yellow appear to be inverted, while in the reproduction the reverse is the case due to the strong copying qualities of the red and yellow pigment. Mr. Frampton states that he had an entire sheet but used all but this copy during the holiday season.



A large number of foreign governments have reserved space for their postal exhibits in connection with the Third International Philatelic exhibition. Those definitely agreeing to exhibit are Great Britain, Canada, Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Liechtenstein, San Marino, and Switzerland. Other countries are expected to take advantage of the opportunity to participate in the show.

In addition to the official governmental display of the United States, the bureau of engraving and printing of the treasury department, which prints all of the stamps and securities of the United States government, will have a demonstration of stamp printing, and the postoffice department will maintain a special postoffice for the sale of stamps to collectors. The honorary patron of the show is President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the committee of honor lists many prominent names including nearly the entire diplomatic corps at Washington.

Stamp Notes.

A second order for 5,000,000 copies of the 25 cent trans-Pacific airmail stamp has been placed with the bureau of engraving and printing. This would seem to put an end to the rumor that this stamp is to be replaced in the near future by a similar stamp without the date "November 1935."

While some of the dominions or colonies may honor the late King George V. with a mourning stamp, it is doubtful if Great Britain will bring out a special stamp or issue. There is no precedent for such a move and the department and printers will be occupied with designs for stamps showing the portrait of Edward VIII. Many of the recently issued Georgian stamps may prove to be good property if the new Edwardian stamps are issued in the near future.

The initial order for bi-colored 16 cent airmail special delivery stamps called for 5,000,000 copies.

A second printing of 10,000,000 Michigan centennial stamps brings the total number to 75,000,000 copies.

Rice's Weekly Stamp News states that the Clipper flights to Manila have been suspended pending improvements to the Clipper engines. Two round trip flights have been made.

Pennsylvania artists have selected the stamps issued by Italian colonies for the Second Colonial Art exhibition at Naples in 1934 as being the most beautiful designs since the world war.

City of Leeds Is Proud of Rating in Ancient Book

The thriving city of Leeds attracts attention to a great monument of conquest. A city is as proud as a peer to be in the "Doomsday Book," the best known and least read of all the works in English. Leeds, with a rateable value of over $17,500,000, points with pride to the fact that in 1086 its value was exactly $35. Its value had, in fact, risen since the Norman conquest, when it was only $30, and the neighboring township of Headingley had fallen from $20 to $1. Bradford, at that time, was worth nothing at all. But Bradford is proud to have been mentioned.

Your Teeth or Your Life!

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

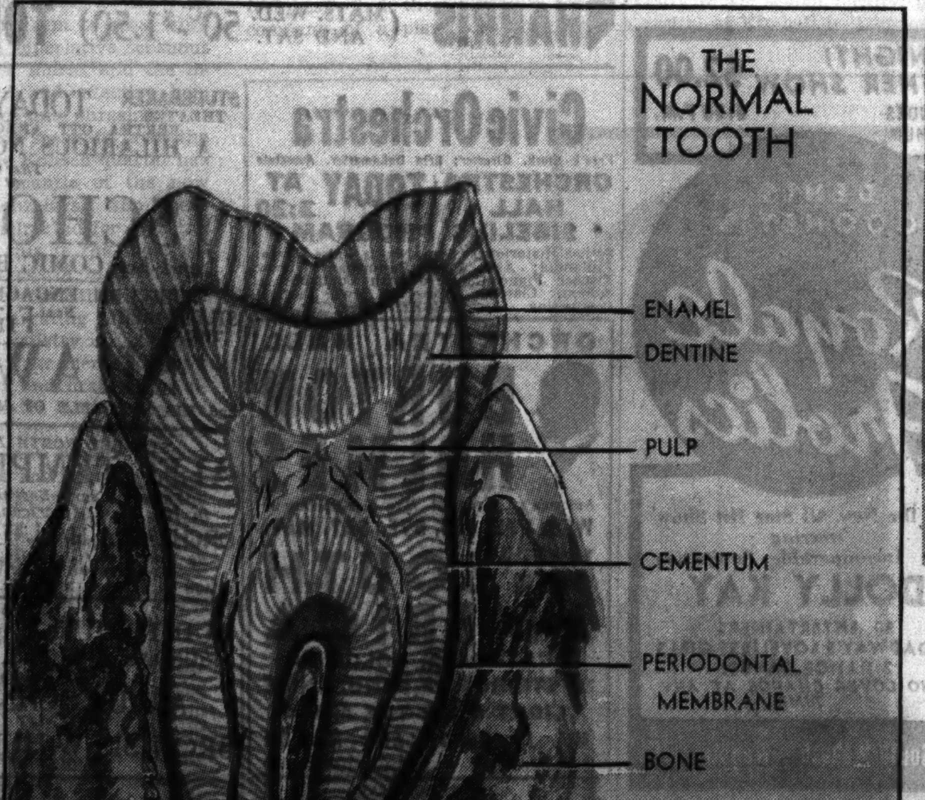
YOUR TEETH or your life!

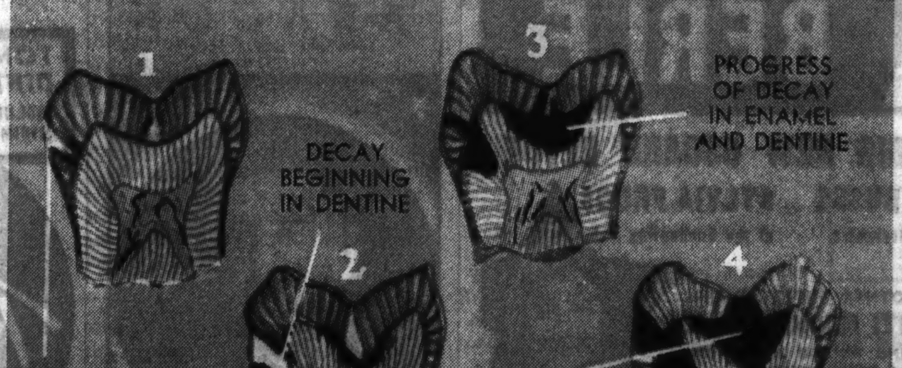
Which is another way of telling you that you must take care of your teeth in order to preserve your health. Neglect of the teeth may bring serious, and possibly fatal, consequences. But taking care of your teeth means more than merely brushing them, though, of course, proper cleaning of them with a brush two or three times a day or oftener is an important part of taking care of your teeth. When one has adhered strictly to the sound rule of approved oral hygiene, including the cleaning of the teeth, and also has eaten proper foods and has taken every precaution to avoid damaging the teeth, he has done about all along the line that lies within his power. From that point on the job belongs to the dentist.

A competent member of the dental profession can save many a tooth from the grip of the forceps. He also can save the appearance of many a mouth. And more important still—he can save many a patient from aches and pains and grave infections in places remote from the teeth. Root end abscesses of the teeth, which may set up painful and damaging infections in other parts of the body, are shown, along with a wealth of other informative details, in the colored illustrations on this page.

Recent widespread publicity given to the announcement by Dr. LeRoy L. Hartman, professor of dental surgery of Columbia university, of his discovery of a new tooth desensitizer which promises to be of great value in painless dentistry, not only has called public attention again to the importance of saving teeth but also has pointed out plainly that advancements still can be made in dentistry. No profession that is based upon science can be said to be perfect, yet in the case of dentistry amazing progress has been made, considering that only 150 years ago dentists probably had less really worthwhile knowledge of the teeth than have average schoolboys of today.

That does not mean, however, that the modern schoolboy is competent to do anything more to his teeth than clean them frequently. He has been warned, as have all others who are not physicians or dentists, that Dr. Hartman's new desensitizer is not a "toothache medicine" to be used in the manner of clove oil and other such remedies. The new desensitizer, in fact, is a compound to be used by the dentist in deadening the pain in a tooth so that a drill can be used in it. It is to take the place, in certain types of work, of novocain, procain, or other anesthetics applied locally. The desensitizer is applied directly [Continued on page eight.]





ABOVE: 1—A small cavity in the enamel. 2—Decay extends to the dentine. 3—Tooth being undermined; surface vacuity may not be large. 4—Bacteria beginning to penetrate dentine.

AT RIGHT: Decay extends to the pulp (nerve) of the tooth. The pulp becomes infected. An abscess develops at the root end. From this focus of infection bacteria are carried to distant parts of the body. The result is general systemic diseases. To prevent this, early care of small cavities is recommended.

'Porgy' Scores Hit as Opera for Drama Fans

Negro Drama Scores Hit in Musical Form

Gershwin's Jazzy Score Sets New Tradition for Story of Catfish Row.

By Charles Collins.

AND so it came to pass, in the bitter heart of Chicago's cruelest winter—the beginning of a new glacial epoch, maybe—that the town went crazy over "Porgy and Bess," an opera for playgoers and a drama for music lovers. This is an interesting occurrence in a city which has been languid and lackluster about the theater arts for several years; perhaps it may be a sign that the stage is reconquering parts of its lost empire.

This is the second week of the engagement at the Erlanger theater and it may be the last, but I suspect that a few days hence the management of the Theater Guild will break down and confess its intention to keep the show here until the box office business begins to slip. In the meantime tickets are scarce, and the Guild's subscribers, who "rate" choice reservations because of their loyalty, form a superior caste, much envied by their nonsubscribing neighbors.

At present "Porgy and Bess" is the cause of much gloating over the bizarre style of George Gershwin, its composer. There is ecstatic talk about his skill in using for operatic purposes a form of music which is learnedly called the "modern American idiom"—the schizophrenic rhythms and monkeyshine harmonics of the jaz bands. He is, indeed, a master at this sort of thing; he has carried it to such a high point of composer's virtuosity that the mandarins of classical music mention his name with awe.

Mamoulian as Porgy" Ringmaster.

When this story about a clutter of picturesque Negroes of the Charleston water front was merely a play called "Porgy," some eight years ago, it inspired a great deal of clamor about its stage director, a young Armenian named Rouben Mamoulian who came into New York theatrical life via Tiflis, Moscow, and Rochester, N. Y. There was profuse O-ing and Ah-ing among the intelligentsia of the drama over the way in which Mamoulian had rigged up "Porgy" for the footlights. He became famous as a dramatic ringmaster, and Hollywood crawled on its knees to offer him its richest gifts.

Mamoulian dressed "Porgy" with every permissible embellishment in the stage director's trade. He had dozens of colored folks in view in the crowd scenes, all specially trained at odd and amusing tricks. He used a setting for Catfish Row which contained about two dozen windows, each with its pair of green lattice shutters; and whenever the inhabitants became excited they retired into their cubicles, slamming the blinds behind them. The result was enough noise for the mob scenes in all the dramas that ever dealt with the French revolution.

Gershwin Sets Catfish Row to Music.

I still shudder when I remember the crashing and banging of the blinds in "Porgy" as they beat out their salvos of applause for the ingenuity of Mamoulian. These nerve racking shutters, with the agitated crowds, the hysteria of the funeral episode, and the fury of the tempest in which the villainous Crown proved himself a hero, often caused me to forget the existence of the central figure in the play—the gentle cripple named Porgy. If the play had not given him a grand bit of murdering by strangulation to perform, he would have been Mamoulianed into obscurity.

Gershwin has added his own special forms of noise to "Porgy and Bess," but the shutters have been happily silenced. They are still visible; they open and close; but they are no longer a racket. The franchise for sound in this production belongs to the composer, and he has not been shy in using it. "Porgy and Bess" is a loud, dynamic exhibition, telling the world that the decrepit stage has not yet lost its pristine vigor of expression.

Tribute to a Forgotten Man.

These remarks may serve to illustrate the fact that the "Porgy" legend is a three layer cake with Theater Guild icing. First there was the play made from a novel; then came the massive Mamoulian stratum of stage direction, and now we are occupied in admiring the Gershwin orchestral deposit, which puts the story knee deep in modernistic and jazzy music.

The story about Porgy and Bess and the fatal ruffian, Crown, with a jaunty limb of Satan called Sportin' Life as an important auxiliary figure, must be a good one to have kept its vitality under all this fancy treatment. It has survived on its own merits, in spite of Mamoulian and Gershwin. It is simple and appealing. It is rich with primitive emotions. It contains tenderness, terror, and heartbreak. It lifts the lives of the lowly Negroes with which it deals into the universal mood of tragedy.

The author of the novel "Porgy," who was also the author of the play, and is now librettist of the opera, is Du Bose Heyward, born in Charleston in 1885. His works: "Carolina Chanson" [with Hervey Allen], 1922; "Skylines and Horizons," 1924; "Porgy" [the novel], 1925; "Angel," 1926; "Mamba's Daughters," 1929; "Half Pint Flask," 1929; "Jasbo Brown and Selected Poems," 1931; "Porgy" [the play, in collaboration with Dorothy Heyward], 1927; "Brass Ankle" [play], 1931.

B'way Premieres

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Two new plays will be added to the Broadway catalog next week. They are:

"Love on the Dole"—Opens Monday at the Shubert. This is an adaptation by Ronald Gow and Walter Greenwood of the latter's novel on English unemployment. It ran for almost a year in London; Wendy Hiller and Alexander Grandisor of the English company; Brandon Peters, Dodson Mitchell, Ann Deighton, Helen Strickland, and Barry Macollorn are in the cast.

"The Postman Always Rings Twice"—Opens Tuesday at the Lyceum. James M. Cain's dramatization of this novel; Richard Barthelmess, Mary Phillips, Joseph Greenwald, Walter Vonnegut, Charles Halton, Dudley Clements, and Mary Holsman have the parts.

Kaufman's 25th.

"First Lady," in which Jane Cowl is now appearing in New York, is the twenty-fifth theatrical production bearing the name of George S. Kaufman to reach the stage. This record has been compressed into sixteen years.

New "American Tragedy."

The Group theater and Milton Shubert will present a new dramatization of Theodore Dreiser's "An American Tragedy," to be known as "The Case of Clyde Griffiths."

Cummins' Band Follows Kay's at 'the Beach'

Empire Room Plans New Revue to Open March 5; Weems Continues.

BERNIE CUMMINS and his orchestra began an engagement in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel last night, succeeding Herbie Kay. The floor show with Cummins' orchestra features the eight Harriette Smith Girls. Bliss, Lewis, and Ash offer tap and soft shoe dances. They were recently with Wayne King on his stage tour. Dorothy Crane is the prima donna.

● March 5 is the date set for the opening of the "Springtime Revue" in the Empire room of the Palmer house. Bob Hall, rimester entertainer, and Manya and Drigo, dance team now appearing in New York, will be starred. Ted Weems' music and the Abbott dancers will continue.

● Harry Sosnik's orchestra has been engaged for an additional four weeks in the Continental room at the Stevens hotel. The engagements of Larry Blake, mimic, and the Two Eileens, dancers, have been extended also. The three nightly floor shows are augmented by song and dance numbers by Ralph Blank, pianist in Sosnik's band, and music by the five piece Dixieland band which Sosnik has developed from members of his orchestra. Larry Blake acts as master of ceremonies. Dale Sherman, Sosnik's songstress; Bob Hanon, tenor and guitarist, and Les Beigle, clarinetist, are also prominent on the bill.

● The Terrace room show in the Hotel Morrison contains: Art Jarrett and his orchestra, featuring Rosalean and Seville, ballroom and novelty dancers who have danced in the Terrace room for months; Rex Weber, singer, formerly of "Americana" and "Hold Your Horses;" the King's Jesters, formerly with Paul Whiteman; Barr and Estes, eccentric dancers; Rudy Baie, master of ceremonies, and the Terrace ballet.

● Will Osborne, now appearing at the Blackhawk with his orchestra, considers the number 13 as a symbol of good luck. His orchestra contains 13 instrumentalists, and his most lucrative contract was signed on the 13th of the month.

● The Trianon-Aragon management announces the engagement of Stan Meyers and his orchestra for the Trianon ballroom, beginning next Tuesday, for a five days' stay in place of Anson Weeks, who will return on Sunday, March 1. Meyers' orchestra has had an engagement of fourteen months in the Morrison hotel's Terrace room. . . . At the Aragon, Freddy Martin and his orchestra are playing nightly, with the exception of Mondays.

● Effie Atherton, comedienne with Jack Hylton's Continental Revue in the Gold Coast room of the Drake, was a star of the British Broadcasting company's programs before joining this troupe. She is the wife of a British film magnate. Other featured entertainers with Hylton are Pat O'Malley, Irish baritone and raconteur; Peggy Dell, from Dublin; Magna Neeld, from Australia; Clive Erard, London composer and specialty singer, and Alec Templeton, blind pianist.

● Five arrangers of music are included in the personnel of Phil Levant's orchestra, now playing in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel. They devote their spare time to making orchestrations of popular tunes to conform to the distinctive style of rhythm played by the band. They are Joe Kovatz, pianist; Herb Arney, bass violinist; Emil Potter, first violinist; Maurie Fox, saxophonist, and Dick Dickson, drummer. George Nelidoff's floor show, "Waltz Time," continues.

● The College Inn of the Hotel Sherman offers outstanding ice skating stars, with George Olsen and Ethel Shutta as floor show stars.

Kolisch Quartet and Schnabel Promise Glorious Week

Each Reaches High Peaks of Genius

String Group Plays with Symphony, Pianist with Bronislaw Huberman.

By Edward Barry.

ALTHOUGH caution is a virtue whose value even the most impulsive journalist will admit, there is no denying the fact that the practice of it imposes occasional limitations of a genuinely vexing sort. With this in mind you can appreciate the rapture of finding that there are two events on the musical horizon this bright morning whose treatment requires no discretion whatever.

Dust off the biggest superlatives and bring the most resounding phrases down from the shelf, for the Kolisch String quartet and Artur Schnabel are coming to town. None of the pleasure of announcing that the first ranks with the finest ensembles of its type in the world, and that the solar system boasts no interpreter of Beethoven's piano music to excel the second is lost in the thought that both of these announcements have been made so long ago and so often since that their news value is a thing of the remote past.

Stock Provides Performance of "London" Symphony.

Here follow six or seven columns of intemperate eulogy which will be omitted in this edition to conserve space and to bring the more impatient readers down to details as quickly as possible. This cautious device will also prevent either of these upstarts singling out some brashly indiscreet phrase to use in soliciting Chautauqua engagements this summer.

The Kolisch quartet plays with the Chicago Symphony orchestra Tuesday afternoon, Thursday evening, and Friday afternoon of this week. The Handel concerto for string quartet and orchestra in the Schönberg transcription is a feature of all three concerts. In addition to this, the visiting foursome will play a Beethoven quartet on Tuesday and a Schubert Thursday and Friday.

Frederick Stock has provided for the quartet's setting a performance of the "London" symphony of Vaughan Williams in the first program and of the Saint-Säens third on the week-end pair.

The Kolisch quartet has been at the top of the European heap for many years, but it was not until 1935 that its members could be induced to cross the seas. There was a brief visit to the United States last year, but the quartet did not get this far west. Its first Chicago appearance took place a few weeks ago at the Arts club, and was followed shortly after by a public concert in the Gold room of the Congress hotel.

World Opinion Says Kolisch Group Inherits Flonzaleys' Mantle.

This last event was remarkable for the number of musicians who came. The glittering concert hall held hundreds of professional men and women that evening drawn from the city's teachers, directors, players, and singers. The Kolisch quartet had become a sort of legend in Chicago, and a knowing audience received its efforts in fervent silence and talked excitedly in little knots during the intermission.

The playing was incredibly fine. The expected virtues of a good string quartet, such as balance and tonal attractiveness, are enough to command respect, but hardly sufficient to cause such a tumult of enthusiasm. The reasons for the latter must be looked for in the impressive scholarship of the men which permits them to play without notes, the superlative sensuous beauty of their music, and the infinitely careful and effective handling of nuance and phrasing.

World opinion seems to favor the notion that the Kolisch quartet has inherited the mantle of the now disbanded Flonzaleys, who were standard of their kind for so many years. Since this is the most exacting of all types of instrumental music, the fact that the ensemble has won such a rating implies the most finished artistry on the part of each of the four men. Rudolph Kolisch, leader and first violin, always arouses extra interest because of his bowing with the left hand. An injury to the fingers of that hand after he had become a first rate violinist necessitated the change. His instrument, of course, is the reverse of the usual, with the E string on the other side.

Schnabel a Sort of Legend in Chicago.

On the third Wednesday of the new year Artur Schnabel climbed onto the stage of Carnegie hall in New York to begin a series of seven piano recitals which were to program all thirty-two of the Beethoven piano sonatas. He finishes them only this week, and Chicago is one of the first cities to benefit by the increased freedom the great pianist will now enjoy.

Schnabel is a sort of a legend here, too, although not in the same sense as the Kolisch people. Most of what we know of him has come from the awed tales of local pianists who have studied with him in Berlin. His interpretations of Schubert and Beethoven have been taught by his disciples in Chicago.

Schnabel, it is true, has played here, but none of our less itinerant citizens can claim genuine familiarity with him.

No, he is not planning the thirty-two sonatas for Chicago. I am afraid that our reputation as a city which flocks to concerts will have to grow considerably before we can hope for anything like this. He is giving a joint recital with Bronislaw Huberman at the Auditorium next Sunday presenting sonatas for violin and piano by Brahms, Beethoven, Mozart, and Schubert in that curious order, and no solos at all.

Chicago Boasts Successful Season of Instrumentalists.

Both Schnabel and Huberman are men in their early fifties, and both have been celebrities since early in the century. Their fame is much greater in Europe than here. Paris heard Huberman eighteen times in a single year. When he was still a boy he played the Brahms concerto in the presence of the formidable old master himself, and there was much weeping and embracing as a result.

With a joint appearance by these two men to add to the city's brilliance Chicago can boast of a rather successful season of great instrumentalists. Kreisler, Milstein, Hoffman, Lhevinne, Rachmaninoff, and Brailowsky have already come and gone; Hess, Zimbalist, Grainger, and Piatigorsky are due in the next few weeks.

Civic Orchestra Plays Sibelius Program.

The Civic Orchestra of Chicago, Eric DeLamarter's famous training ground for orchestral players, offers a program in Orchestra hall this afternoon whose items—all but one—are drawn from the works of Jean Sibelius. The Finnish master's Second symphony, tone poem "Finlandia," and "Scenes Historiques" find themselves in the company of a piano concerto by Irwin Fischer. The composer, a member of the conductor's class of the orchestra for several years, appears as soloist in his own work.

Clarence Evans and this same Irwin Fischer divide the conductor's duties between them today.

Ted Shawn, an immensely successful dancer, is booked for a return engagement at the Studebaker theater next Friday. His men dancers have made a name for themselves on both sides of the Atlantic. A staid London audience is said to have let its enthusiasm run so completely wild that it rose to its feet and shouted, "Come back next year."

Notes of Music and Musicians.

The series of eight chamber music concerts by the Joseffer String quartet goes into its second half today. The time changes from afternoon to evening, but the locale remains the same—the music hall on the eighth floor of the Fine Arts building.

The program is composed of a Schubert and a Haydn quartet, separated by three rhapsodies of Stanley Wilson. Besides Anna Thelma Joseffer, the leader, the members of the quartet are Joseph Brensky, Albert Belsan, and William Hofmeister, playing second violin, viola, and cello, respectively.

Emily Boettcher, a young Chicago pianist and teacher and a member of the Northwestern university music school faculty, plays a recital at Kimball hall tomorrow night. The rarely heard Beethoven sonata, opus 109, is the most difficult of the tasks she has set herself.

Miss Boettcher stands high as accompanist and composer as well as soloist. A ballet of hers is to be presented by the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago this spring.

This paragraph is a reminder that the Grace and Kurt Graff dance recital, treated at some length on last Sunday's music page, is scheduled for this coming Tuesday evening at the Goodman.

An Australian soprano named Constance Neville-Johns sings the same night in Kimball hall. A local pianist, Doris Sale Stevenson, plays her accompaniments and a brace of solos. Miss Neville-Johns has planned a brilliant and difficult program which includes the exquisite "With Verdure Clad" from Haydn's "The Creation"; the imposing fireworks of the Proch variations, some eighteenth century German lieder, and an English group.

Another series of concerts closes Sunday evening when the Temple Emanuel sisterhood presents the Orpheus Male Glee club. The programs in Temple Emanuel this winter have been given by Mischakoff, Sonia Sharnova, and Vitaly Schnee.

A string quartet by Leo Sowerby, distinguished Chicago organist, composer and director, comes to its first performance Wednesday evening when the Amy Neill String quartet plays a concert in Kimball hall. Mozart and Schumann are the other composers represented. The quartet is made up of Stella Roberts, Ethel Schwertzler, and Lois Bichl, in addition to the accomplished violinist who gives the organization its name.

The Armor Tech Musical clubs break with tradition Friday by making their first appearance in any theater concert in Chicago. The Woman's Faculty club of Armour, under the leadership of Mrs. Willard E. Hotchkiss, is sponsoring the affair. Its purpose is to demonstrate publicly the fact that Armour institute, through its chorus and orchestra, offers opportunities to students to round out their interests even during undergraduate years.

The American Conservatory of Music Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Herbert Butler, plays a concert in Murphy Memorial hall, 40 East Erie street, next Sunday afternoon. The soloists are Maryum Horn, soprano, and Marion Skebelsky, violinist. A student conductor, Miriam Bohunek, winner of first place in Mr. Butler's conducting class, will direct the "Meistersinger" prelude that opens the program.

The Chicago String quartet finishes its series of five concerts in the Chicago Woman's club theater next Sunday afternoon. Herman Felber, Leonard Sorkin, Armand Roth, and Theodore Du Moulin, the men who compose the organization, play a quartet of Beethoven, one by Gretchaninoff, and a scherzo by an unfamiliar musician named F. Bridges. The work mentioned second has never before been played in America.

"Fire-Bird" Has Brilliant NewRecording

Improved Sound Production Gives It Greater Opulence of Tone.

By Edward Barry.

BECAUSE of the many improvements that have been made in the mechanics of sound production these last several years the Victor people believe that some of the more successful numbers in their present catalog should be available in new recordings. One of the results of this policy is a release of the suite from Strawinsky's "Fire-Bird" for the Musical Masterpiece series.

A comparison of this version with the old is an excellent way to appreciate the progress that has been made. The comparison is eminently fair, since the orchestra in both is the Philadelphia Symphony.

There is a decided gain in brilliance and opulence of tone and a finer definition of the individual instruments. An especially successful bit is the haunting bassoon solo that opens the berceuse.

Sixth Side Given Over to Szostakowicz Prelude.

Those who are especially enamored of Strawinsky's best qualities—his rhythmic fecundity and his gift for tonal effectiveness—will welcome a recording which emphasizes these qualities by its sharpness and its fidelity. An example of the first is the complex rhythmic scheme of the fire-bird's dance on the first record; of the second, the portentous King Kastchei sequence, with its piling of sound high above the danger line of the older method of recording.

The lyric passages are rich and melting, with the witchery of woodwind exploited to the full. The dance of the princesses and the berceuse mentioned before profit by the clarity and suavity the woodwinds have gained.

The Strawinsky takes five sides. The sixth is given over to a Stokowski transcription of a prelude in A flat by Szostakowicz. [The spelling is Victor's.] It was once a piano piece, although it is inconceivable how it could ever have been made effective on the single instrument.

The great conductor has provided a glittering orchestra dress for a not too alarming example of the style of this young Russian who has become the best publicized composer of the day. The music is eloquent and moving and highly attractive.

Toccata and Fugue Good Medicine for Anti-Bach Section.

The Toccata and Fugue in C Major, transcribed from the Bach original by Busoni and expertly played by Arthur Rubenstein, is a startling demonstration of the skill which the phonograph companies have brought to bear on the knotty problems raised by the piano.

Subtle effects of pedaling, the virile clang of basses, and the lyric, effortless beauty of the instrument's middle register are a joy to any one who remembers vividly enough the matter of fact, plucked impression of early piano recordings. The tone is rich and velvety, worthy of the dignity of the music.

This is a superb work [especially the contemplatively lovely intermezzo that separates the prelude from the fugue] and a wise recording for the anti-Bach section of the populace to hear five times a day until his glory finally dawns. It will not take more than two days at the most. The piece is among the late Victor releases.

Tomford Harris is a Chicago born pianist.

Joe Cook and Frank Buck Are Variety Stars

JOE COOK, with a cast of 50 in "Topsy Turvy," is the star of the stage bill at the Palace theater. "Topsy Turvy" is aimed eventually for a Broadway run. In the cast are Harriette Caperton, Charles Columbus, the Five Jansleys, Rose Kessner, Kay Hamilton, Tarzan, the Three Deweys, Miacahua, Chief Lone Bear, Bill Powers, and a chorus of sixteen girls.

Frank Buck, in person, is the staged attraction offered by the State-Lake this week. He will talk about his exploits in trapping wild animals. Others on the bill are: Kendall, Kapps and Kendall Jr., eccentric dancers; Kirby and Duvall; Lee Murray, in a dance novelty; Cleve, formerly of the "Greenwich Village Follies"; Claire Powell, dancer; Verne Buck, and the State-Lake ballet.

The Chicago theater offers "Winter Cruise," with Ricardo Cortez as its headliner. The bill also presents the Biltmorettes, a dancing trio; Tommy Trent, comedian; the Eight Master Singers; Lucia Diano, opera contralto, and the Chicagoettes, a ballet of 28 girls.

"La Vie Paree," a revue, is the stage bill at the Oriental theater this week. The show contains 90 performers.

The Three Stooges [Howard, Fine, and Howard] are at the Uptown theater this week. The supporting company contains Red Donahue, the Condos Brothers, Mark Fisher, and a ballet.

The Great Gordon.

Max Gordon, impresario, is represented by five hits this season. They are "Dodsworth" and "The Great Waltz" on tour and "Pride and Prejudice," "Jubilee," and "Ethan Frome" in New York.

'Muss 'Em Up' a Roughneck Mystery Film

Police Bring Kidnap-Murderers to Justice by Hardboiled Methods.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD Morning!

"Muss 'em up!"

[New York police commissioner's order to his men as he sends them forth to duty.] And that command, undoubtedly, suggested the title for this movie.

It's a screwy play—a bit hard to follow—but amusing. No effort is made to glorify the police. The picture's only object is, apparently, to furnish the observer with a lot of rough, exciting fun—and in this ambition it succeeds.

The story—somewhat reminiscent of Dashiell Hammett's earlier yarns—is concerned with the finally successful efforts of a hard boiled private detective—Mister Tip O'Neill—and his henchman, "Red" Cable, to line up and give what's coming to those responsible for a kidnaping, a couple of murders, and several minor misdemeanors. . . .

Tip's Employer Maintains a Most Unusual Household.

For some time Tip has been on the pay roll of a curious gentleman, Paul Harding, whose house contains many guns, three pretty women, a male relative who does fancy work and wears a strange, hidden smile, and a preponderance of servants, two of whom are murdered before the picture is far on its way.

A telegram, supposedly from his boss, has brought Tip to Lakeside. Only the boss hadn't sent the telegram. His secretary, Amy Hutchins, had been responsible for the wire. It seems Harding's dog had been shot and that threatening letters, promising Boss Harding the next bullet, have been cluttering the mails. . . .

Preston Foster Never Disappoints His Audience.

Blows and clews follow thick and fast. Something unexpected happens every second. The result is a confusion of events that gets and keeps you pretty much muddled. Too much so. Therein lies the photoplay's fault.

But, heaven be praised, Preston Foster is there as Tip O'Neill—and Preston Foster never lets you down! Alan Mowbray, handsome and impressive, provides what the rôle of Harding needed. Big Boy Williams is all over the piece and is pretty funny at times—and if you're smart, you'll keep your eyes open when Ralph Morgan and Florine McKinney are about. Margaret Callahan, as the secretary, gives a disappointingly ordinary performance.

If you like roughneck mysteries—"Muss 'Em Up" is down your alley.

BitsaBOUTem.

JANET REISENFELD, daughter of the composer and conductor, Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld, appears as a Spanish dancer in Pioneer Pictures full technicolor musical romance, "Dancing Pirate." Following the production she will make a professional dancing tour in Mexico. . . . FRED ASTAIRE recently received a letter from four CCC boys stating that they had broken a mumps quarantine and walked five miles through Ohio snows to see him and GINGER ROGERS in "Top Hat." They risked dishonorable discharge from camp for their escapade. . . . DUDLEY NICHOLS, who wrote the script for RKO's "Mary of Scotland," which featured Katharine Hepburn, won the Distinguished Service medal for sweeping mines from the North sea during the world war. . . . AN INTERESTING EVENING was recently enjoyed by 400 film fans when, in the auditorium of the Dalton school in New York, a group of four early American films, the second in a series designed to trace the evolution of the motion picture art, was presented by the Museum of Modern Art Film library. Beginning with "The New York Hat," a two reel D. W. Griffith opus, vintage 1912, written by Anita Loos [then a schoolgirl], and featuring MARY PICKFORD and LIONEL BARRYMORE, the program ended with the six reel production, "A Fool There Was" [1914], with THEDA BARA, which caused the introduction of the word "vamp" into the dictionary.

Between were sandwiched an early western, "The Fugitive" [formerly "The Taking of Luke McVane"], a Thomas H. Ince two reel production, with WILLIAM S. HART [1916], and a Mack Sennett Keystone comedy [1917] with the cross-eyed comedian, BEN TURPIN. The thumpy piano music was strictly in the period.

"The Fugitive," with Hart, ended tragically, with the hero lying dead surrounded by a circle of dead Indians but still clasping in his hand a rose tossed to him by the pretty dancer Mercedes [ENID MARKEY] back in the town saloon.

The chief feature of "The Clever Dummy" is a wild Keystone pursuit led by Turpin.

See you tomorrow!

JOE COOK GIVES REVUE AT PALACE

Joe Cook, the inventive comedian who has been the star of several Broadway revues, is the chief personality on the stage bill at the Palace theater this week. He offers "Topsy Turvy."

A Visit to Walt Disney's Plant

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—A visit to Walt Disney's plant is almost like a visit to Santa Claus' toy factory at the north pole, with the sole exception that the ice is left out. This is the friendliest of all studios to visit. It's more like a college campus than a studio. Perhaps this is because there are no casting problems in an animated cartoon plant. The problems are all confined to celluloid ladies like Snow White, painted carefully and tested under a camera which is whopped down on her by a huge lever from above.

Employés at the Disney plant now number 300—perhaps twice as many as this time last year. There are no layoffs, sudden "firings," or office politics to disturb the peace of the workers and, as a job with the Disney outfit lasts so long as the worker wants it to, positions are eagerly sought.

Disney, who is constantly discovering new talent and seeking to develop it for the good of his product, maintains an art school across the street from the main "campus." This has become so large that the building across the way had to be taken to accommodate it. Art in its fundamentals is taught. Life classes help future animators discover how to express motion in line most effectively.

Classes in color are not only for students. All artists on the lot are required to attend a certain number of classes. Disney is emphasizing color in his products now. No films are produced in black and white any more. The entire studio force attends classes of one kind or another.

In the life classes animation is studied some time by taking a bit of newsreel of, say, a man walking. This is run slowly, each frame showing the change that in the series produces action. Different types of walks are so analyzed—a hick's walk, a mad walk, a sneak walk, a run walk. Clever pantomimists are brought in sometimes to help in this motion analysis so vital to the animator artist.

Broadway Razzes Divorce in "Co-Respondent Unknown"

Gotham Play Kids Rackets of Divorces

'Co-RespondentUnknown' Mediocre Play Saved by Peggy Conklin

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The collecting of evidence for a statutory decree of divorce is a fairly amusing business in New York. And one of the more successful of the minor rackets, if we are to believe the authors of this week's best comedy, "Co-Respondent Unknown."

The lady engaged puts her pajamas in an overnight bag, meets the gentleman who is to be surprised in her company in the room he has engaged, puts on the pajamas and jumps into an empty bed. The witnesses arrive, giggling nervously, send their host into the next room to get them a drink, peek at the lady in the bed, and retire, still giggling.

Thereupon the lady in bed gets up, resumes her street clothes, and retires to collect $75 from the gentleman's lawyer, who has charged his client $100.

Paid Co-Respondent Begins to Pity Her Employer.

This, it seems, is the way the conspiracy works. And this, according to the lawyer in the play, is the sort of evidence jurists demand and are willing to accept. In the play liberties are taken, naturally. The young lady of the pajamas, being a sympathetic person and maternally minded, is so disturbed when the gentleman in whose divorce interest she is working comes down with a headache as a result of the experience she feels it her duty to break a dancing date with her young man and give up the night to taking care of her employer. . . .

The next morning both the wife who is getting the divorce and the mistress, because of whom she is getting it, arrive at the gentleman's rooms and find him breakfasting with the unknown co-respondent. The situation so angers the mistress that she flounces out in a huff. And this so pleases the wife that she is almost ready to forgive the husband. Which is at least giving a new twist to an old triangle situation.

Peggy Conklin, since her experience as the bundling Puritan of "The Pursuit of Happiness," has been typed as one of the most attractive of bedroom heroines. Therefore it was natural that she should be cast as this co-respondent. Peggy may be said to have the most charmingly disarming bedroom manners of any of the ingénues. A certain naïveté, a touch of adolescent sophistication, a dash of artlessness that keeps the audience wondering whether it is ignorance or guile she is practicing upon the victim of her charm have contributed to her success. The gift of never permitting line or situation to become coarse or offensively brazen has likewise helped. She will, I think, save this otherwise fairly commonplace comedy.

Playing opposite Miss Conklin is James Rennie, who is classified as a smart young economist whom the President has called upon for advice, and if you remember James you will realize that it taxes the imagination to place him in that rôle. However, he fills the romantic demands of the part. Ilka Chase plays the wife and Phyllis Povah the mistress.

Mildred Harris and Harold Goldman are the authors of "Co-Respondent Unknown," and the Mielziner brothers, Jo, the scene designer, and Kenneth McKenna, the actor, are the producers, working in association with John C. Mayer.

Ed Wynn Takes Shot at Play Producing with Sad Results.

The producing bug, on the way to or perhaps coming back from the Mielziners, also took a nip at Ed Wynn, the country's favorite fool. Wynn, too, thought he would like to produce plays. So-o-o, he bought the manuscript of one called "Alice Takat," something from the Hungarian of Szomory, and had it dapted by José Ruben. Last week it reached New York after a week or two in Philadelphia. And next week it goes to the storehouse. Ed is back on the radio making up his losses.

"Alice Takat," which for a little while was called "The Light Behind the Shadow" for some undiscoverable reason, is fairly sound drama, but neither convincing nor interesting and rather heavy with plot. It has to do with what news headliners love to classify as a "mercy killing." Alice of the title is a woman doctor who gives a beloved friend dying of cancer enough morphine to hasten his end.

The overdose being discovered, a young chemist in the hospital in love with Alice insists on taking the blame and is sentenced to ten years in prison. While Alice is waiting for him to get out she becomes involved in a second affair, and this proves a little embarrassing when the noble chemist is pardoned after serving two years. Especially as Alice discovers that she is to bear the hero of the second affair a child. The noble young chemist, however, is still willing to stand by, he being probably the most forgivingest hero of recent seasons. I think it was the strain upon audience credulity that weakened "Alice Takat." Mady Christians played the name part, and a good cast included three old timers in A. G. Andrews, Percy Ames and Kate Mayhew. Mrs. Mayhew, at 83, received nightly ovations. . . .

Margaret Anglin's Admirers Shocked at Change in Her.

It was a flourishing week for weak plays. Margaret Anglin, who has been playing Ivor Novello's "Fresh Fields" west of the Hudson between spells of ineffective dieting, finally induced two of our younger producers, Richard Aldrich and Alfred De Liagre, to bring the piece into New York. If it was her idea, it was, I think, poor judgment on Miss Anglin's part. She has not played in New York, where once she reigned as a queen of emotionalists, in seven years. Her last important local appearances were in the classic drama. In seven years she has taken on the handicap of flesh, and while happily the added weight has not depressed her spirit it has in a way made a different woman of her. The old Anglin loyalists were a bit shocked.

"Fresh Fields" is a sometimes extravagant comedy detailing the adventure of two English gentlewomen who take in house guests from Australia and suffer severely in their pride as a result. It is an entirely artificial affair, and even so sure an art as that of Miss Anglin can help it but little. Also it is one of those distinctly British comedies that demands an English cast if its comedy values are to be preserved. Mary Sargent and a pleasant ingénue from Australia, Agnes Doyle, were in Miss Anglin's company.

SHE'S NOW A "VANITIES" DANCER

Hollywood Happenings

Jeanette MacDonald is comfortably situated in the Neil Hamilton home in Brentwood while Neil is busy making films in England. The white picket fence, the wide lawn, the trim beds of pansies, with begonias and huge ferns and cinerarias, the ivy growing over the Georgian doorway make a lovely setting for the feminine Jeanette, who on the day of our visit came rushing in from fittings for her new film, "San Francisco."

In the charming early American bedroom with its huge wide, balcony four poster, Jeanette took her luncheon, a heavy, large luncheon, full of several kinds of bread and butter. She is in that happy position of being urged to eat plenty to gain some weight.

Out the window in the yard the beautiful turquoise tile swimming pool was proving quite pleasing to a couple of wild ducks belonging to a neighbor boy who keeps them as pets, much to the annoyance of Jeanette, who doesn't enjoy swimming with ducks, though she darkly hinted she thought she could enjoy them in a pot pie.

Problems about hair dressing for the period of the film, about 1908, have arisen. Style history calls for a pompadour well down over the forehead, but as W. S. Van Dyke, the director, thinks Jeanette should show her hair line, there is an impasse. Jeanette plays a lovely young girl who, through chance, comes to the Barbary coast to earn her living as a singer and falls in love with a divekeeper, played by Clark Gable, who has beneath his hardboiled exterior a heart of gold.

Dr. Joel Pressman drove to Fox studio to take his bride, Claudette Colbert, home with him, but she had been dismissed earlier by Director Frank Lloyd. Pressman tried to call the house and tell her his whereabouts but forgot the new secret phone number he had asked for their honeymoon quarters and neither the studio phone girl nor the downtown switchboard of the telephone company would tell it to him. He finally chased all over the lot to locate Frank Lloyd and the latter then had to chase down his own secretary to give Pressman his own phone number. By the time he got it Claudette had grown tired of waiting and had left.

G-MAN HUNT of the Armored Truck Bandits!

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR
FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
U. S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
WASHINGTON, D. C.

January 3, 1936

Mr. Courtney Ryley Cooper,
220 East 42nd Street,
New York, New York.

My dear Ryley:

Congratulations on "Special Squad," your new novel about the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

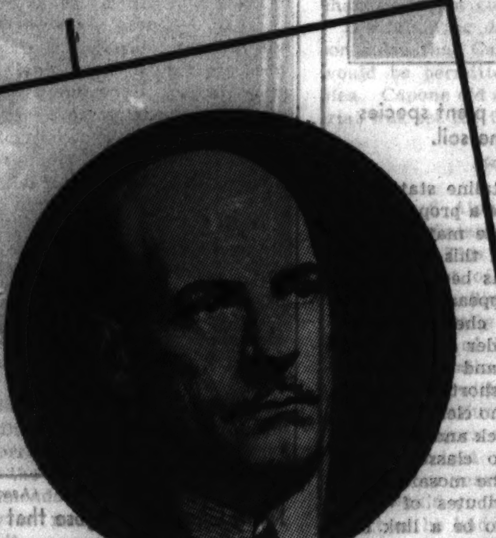
To my mind, authenticity is a prime requisite of the fiction of today, and this is one reason why I have received so much enjoyment from "Special Squad." Certainly no other writing man could have done such a thorough job of depicting the inner workings of this phase of F.B.I. activities, plus, of course, the aims, the achievements and ideals of this Bureau.

As I have remarked before, your long familiarity with this organization, as exemplified in your many authentic writings, is equaled by no other civilian. I am most happy that you have utilized this extensive knowledge in such a thrilling story as "Special Squad."

With kind personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

Edgar Hoover



COURTNEY RYLEY COOPER turned in such a fine performance on "Ten Thousand Public Enemies" that the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate assigned him to write a thrilling G-man story for Tribune readers.

After a year of hard work "Special Squad" was submitted in manuscript form to Head G-man J. Edgar Hoover. Special investigators went to work on the story as they would on an actual case—checking every word of it for inaccuracies and misstatements. The letter at the left testifies to the expert and authentic manner in which "Special Squad" was handled by its author. If you want a true and unbiased picture of the G-man at work, don't miss "Special Squad." Fascinating fiction! Stirring, scientific truth!

The armored truck bandits were making dupes of the G-men! All their jobs were clean, masterfully conceived and performed! They disguised themselves expertly with wigs and grease paint! Used women as lookouts, baby carriages for artillery trucks!

But months of digging through nickname files, prison and fingerprint records, shadowing suspects, running down hundreds of false leads, traveling thousands of miles—were finally rewarded. What clues Sandy Ross, F. B. I. inspector, and his associates discovered, and how they ran them down, make

Virus Links the Living and Dead

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

WHEN we were younger than we are now, and just starting out to accumulate learning, we were taught that all things could be put into three classes—animal, vegetable, or mineral. This is a very good classification. No one would hesitate in choosing the proper category for a horse, a tree, or a brick. But the system is by no means perfect.

For example, just what is the difference between an animal and a vegetable? The most obvious difference that occurs to us is that an animal is free to move about, while a vegetable is fixed in one place. But this distinction does not hold for stationary animals such as the oyster or mobile plants such as seaweed.

We might base our classification upon biochemical grounds. All animals feed upon other living material, while most plants draw their nourishment from the air and the soil. But here again the distinction breaks down. There are quite a number of plant species (the various mushrooms, for example) which are incapable of synthesizing their food from air and minerals, but must live on the organic débris found in the soil.

In short, there is really no clear-cut border line between the animal and vegetable kingdoms. The distinction is merely an arbitrary one based upon structural differences. These differences are quite pronounced between such advanced representatives of the two kingdoms as men and turnips, but they become less apparent among the less highly developed members.

Yeast cells are perhaps the simplest organisms that can still be definitly classified as plants, while the lowest animals probably are certain of the protozoa, such as the organism that causes sleeping sickness. Lower in the scale of life lie most of the bacteria, which appear structurally to be not much more than microscopic particles of jelly. They are usually classified as plants, although there is not much reason for doing so. They are really a border-line group, being too primitive to show any definite characteristic of either class.

Granting, then, that there is no hard and fast line between animals and vegetables, can such a line be found between living organisms and dead, unorganized material? At first thought the distinction seems an easy one to make. Certain properties of living organisms, such as physical and mental activity, are absolutely absent from mineral substances. But then these same attributes are absent, or at least impossible to detect, in the lower forms of life such as the simpler bacteria.

There are, however, two properties present in all living matter—growth and reproduction. The former differs in the case of living beings from the growth of crystals of inorganic substances in that it involves the absorption of food into the organism and its conversion into living protoplasm.

Among the simplest microscopic organisms reproduction appears to be merely a form of growth. The bacterium grows to above a certain optimum size, breaks in two, and then continues growing as two individuals. From this it might appear that nature's original purpose in reproduction was to prevent the growing organism from becoming too large.

Consequently biologists have always accepted growth and reproduction as the criteria of living tissue. Likewise they have been inclined to place all crystaline substances in the inanimate class. Since a crystaline material probably can be dissolved in some solvent and recrystalized, it is hardly likely that it could maintain life processes during such an operation.

Now, the strictly mineral substances, such as salt or granite or sand, are almost invariably crystaline and are quite free from all suspicion of life. Likewise a number of crystaline organic compounds such as sugar are considered lifeless, although they are derived from living matter and are made up of the same chemical elements. But the more complex organic compounds, such as starch and gelatin, tend to approach closer to the composition of living material and to lose their crystaline form and approach the semi-fluid, gelatinous consistency of protoplasm.

The closest approach to living matter made by inanimate substances is shown by certain enzymes. These are proteinlike compounds found in living organisms. They are the catalysts or promoters for a large number of physiological processes.

The enzymes are produced by various body tissues for certain specific biochemical purposes. They can hardly be called alive, since they appear to be incapable of either growth or reproduction. Yet aside from these differences they bear rather striking resemblances to living matter. They can be poisoned by the same kind of poisons that destroy life, and their activity is permanently destroyed by exposure to the same temperatures that kill living matter.

It was observed among the early bacteriological investigators that certain diseases, such as smallpox, were caused by germs that seemed to be too small to be seen. It was also found that the filtration of a serum or a bacterial culture through unglazed porcelain removed all visible organisms, but not these invisible ones. For this reason such an organism as the latter became known as a filterable virus. At first it was believed that the chief difference between a virus and a bacterium was merely one of size. However, subsequent improvements in microscopy and filtration technique have failed to render a virus visible or filterable.

In fact, the only reason for thinking of a virus as a living organism rather than as an inanimate organic poison is the fact that it appears capable of reproduction. Serum may be withdrawn from a guinea pig infected with a virus-borne disease, diluted, and a small part injected into a healthy animal. The latter in turn becomes ill, and its serum is diluted and transferred to a third.

If the virus were incapable of growth and reproduction these successive dilutions and transfers to new animals would eventually make it so dilute as to be harmless. As a matter of fact, however, each new animal becomes just as sick as its predecessors. The only explanation for this is that the virus is capable of growth, at least while in the body of the infected animal.

It has recently been reported that investigators at the Rockefeller institute have succeeded in isolating the actual virus of the plant disease known as the tobacco mosaic. They found it to be not a collection of individual living organisms but a crystaline solid. It will be remembered that the crystaline state has been considered to be a property exclusively of inanimate matter.

The significance of this finding is that a substance has been isolated which has all the appearance of an ordinary inanimate chemical compound but which under certain conditions can grow and apparently reproduce itself. In short, it appears that there is really no clear dividing line between the quick and the dead and that these two classes blend into each other. The mosaic virus shows definite attributes of both classes and seems to be a link between them.

It is rather difficult to predict the practical value of such a discovery. It recalls a similar one made in 1828 by a German chemist, Friedrich Woehler. Prior to that time chemists had accepted a theory that there were two distinct classes of chemical compounds, inorganic and organic. The latter were the compounds present in or obtained from living matter. Since no one had ever sythesized an organic product out of organic material, it was believed that such a synthesis required the presence of the "vital force" of living tissue and therefore could never be attained in laboratory or factory.

Now, such a theory can be rather harmful, since it predicts what cannot be done and thus tends to prevent a thorough checking up on the theory's truth. But in the year mentioned Woehler accidentally found that ammonium cyanate, a compound hitherto recognized as inorganic, was converted into an organic compound, urea, on heating. This finding immediately knocked out any basic difference between organic and inorganic compounds and set a great number of chemists to investigating methods of preparing the former. The result has been the development of organic chemistry into one of the most industrially important branches of applied science.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Training of Dog Is Important to the Owner

DURING the last month we have received an unusual number of requests for information about dog training. Almost all of these inquiries have come from owners who have dogs that are classed among the working breeds. There have been so many calls about how to train a dog, about trainers that know how to handle working breeds, and what a dog should know, that we have decided to hold a little round table discussion on this subject here and now.

Nearly every owner of a dog will agree that a four-footed pet is much more fun around the house, more satisfactory in the home, and a better member of canine society if it has been trained in obedience, but the importance of training a dog goes beyond that. We feel that it really is the duty of an owner to train his dog, because in the majority of cases training means that the dog's life is guided toward good habits and better behavior. Moreover, a trained dog is a happy dog. His mind has been stimulated. He knows how to do things to please his master. The greatest pleasures in the dog's life are pleasing his master and being rewarded for doing what he has been told to do. Training opens the canine pet's life to new activities and more chances to do things for "the boss."

During the last few weeks we have had dog owners ask us about training a dog as a guard for the home, about the age for starting to train a German shepherd, about training that will keep a big dog from jumping up on people and thus making a nuisance of itself, and about the training that will make a dog come when called. All of these problems are covered in a course of schooling such as experienced dog trainers give when they take a representative of the working breeds and put it through a course of lessons. Knowing the pleasure of owning a dog that will obey a command, we have consistently urged dog owners to give their pets a certain amount of training.

Not that one obtains the perfect dog that way. In fact, we don't know where there is a perfect dog. But imagine the satisfaction of being out walking with your dog and being able to handle a situation whereby it is best for your dog to come in to heel. The order is given. The dog heels and stays close to you until ordered away.

Or consider this situation in the home: Your dog has been having a good time playing, possibly with guests. But now it is time for him to lie down and make himself inconspicuous. What a satisfaction to have a dog so obedient that he will go to his corner and stay there on command!

These are two minor examples of the value and satisfaction of obedience training.

Chicagoland owners of Dobermans, German shepherds, Schnauzers, collies, English sheep dogs, and other working breeds are fortunate in having two opportunities to give their dogs training for obedience and manners. First, the operation of amateur training classes where one goes and learns how to train his or her dog by paying a small fee which is just enough to defray expenses of the class. Don't forget this point about the classes—they teach the owner so he can go home and train his dog. The second opportunity is the presence of experienced trainers who know how to train working breeds. And if an owner doesn't want to pursue either of these ways to get his dog trained the final way is to get a good book on how to train a dog to sit, come when called, heel, etc., and then take time every day to give the dog his lessons.

The owners of springer and cocker spaniels also have a way out of their training problems. The training class for owners of springers is the Springer Spaniel Field Trial Club of Illinois. This class, the first of its kind west of New York, is a practical outdoor class where a springer or cocker owner is shown how to train his dog. Having been given the demonstration, he is supposed to go home and follow the lesson. At the next meeting of the class he and his dog get an examination. Those who take the course of lessons are tested on the work of the spaniel, what a hunting spaniel should know, and how to train one. Owners pay a small fee to the club to underwrite the expenses of the classes. Any sum remaining is used to promote the interests of the hunting spaniel in Chicagoland.

A. P. Moecher, 41 Island avenue, Aurora, Ill., secretary of the club, is conducting this spaniel class again this year. He had more than twenty in the class last season. He tells us that this year diplomas will be awarded to springer and cocker owners who at the end of the season have shown their ability to learn how to train a dog. And if the dog knows more than the owner at the end of the school period, the dog, not the owner, will get the diploma. Not a bad idea. And we hope to be present to help give the final exam and see the diplomas handed out!

There is no short cut to obedience and good manners in dogs. It takes patience and training. And the older a dog is, and the longer he has been allowed to do as he pleases, naturally the more difficult it is to get him "untracked." Yet even in such cases it is remarkable how quickly old dogs will make an about-turn when put through a good course of training.

DOG NOTES

What kind of a dog shall I buy? Thousands of prospective purchasers of dogs face this question every year. The Tribune's new "Dog Book" will help solve this problem. This handbook, which covers such important subjects as how to choose a dog, care of the puppy, feeding the pup and the grown dog, housebreaking, and dog ailments, has one whole section devoted to beautiful pictures of many of the more common or interesting breeds, so that the prospective dog purchaser can get a sort of complete bird's-eye view of these breeds.

Accompanying each breed illustration is a short, clean-cut description of the breed, giving its origin, weight, height, color, and general characteristics. The illustrations in this section and in the entire book are the product of a year's work in photographing outstanding representatives of the various breeds.

"The Dog Book," containing 92 pages, is sold by the Tribune public service offices at 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago, and in Tribune Tower. The price is 30 cents by mail. If purchased over the counter the cost is 25 cents.

Sportsmen who are looking forward to owning a fairly well trained hunting dog for the coming autumn hardly need to be reminded that the time to start the training of a young dog is not next September, but right now. You can't take a spaniel, Labrador, setter, Chesapeake, or other hunting dog a few weeks before the opening of a shooting season and train him in time to do any real work for you.

But a young dog, if started now with a trainer, given his lessons daily, and later in the summer worked with gun and game, will have the rudiments of training. Then if given real work in the hunting field next fall it will be on its way to being a real dog.

As a result of the field trials held for retrievers last fall near Barrington, Ill., sportsmen may expect to see more interest in the Chesapeake and Labrador retrievers this year. We have noticed a pretty heavy demand for Labrador puppies in the middle west in recent months. Our black Labrador is going to be working alongside a snow-white clumber next fall if all goes well. Both have the power for water work, so they will have to do their stuff in the duck marshes as well as on land.

"—The More I Admire Dogs," by Robert H. Davis. (D. Appleton-Century company. $1.25. Published Feb. 7, 1936.)

This book, written by a well known New York newspaper man, contains eighteen interesting true dog stories which prove that the author understands dogs and has a real affection for them.

The title of the book is mystifying at first glance, but is really the end of a quotation from a German dog trainer: "The more I see of men, the more I admire dogs."

Numerous canine individuals appear in these eighteen stories, and all of them are worthy of mention, but we believe that the most interesting of them all is Buster, the mongrel who lost a paw in a fight with a cougar. Buster's master was a cougar hunter, and the dog's job was to track the prey, chase it up a tree, and wait for the hunter to shoot it. In one case Buster and a cougar had an unscheduled fight, however, and Buster lost a paw. The rest of the story tells about the master's long journey through the northwestern cougar country, Buster in his pack, and of the dog's eventual recovery after treatment by a veterinarian.

One of the encouraging things about the handling of puppies in many of the kennels that we have visited lately is the policy of these kennels to give the pups distemper serum. Of course, this worth-while method of keeping dogs from contracting distemper costs money. But without doubt both the kennel and the purchaser of a pup are ahead, although the last named naturally must expect to pay a little more for his dog after it has been treated.

Inasmuch as we have lost a number of puppies from distemper (they had not been given serum), we are a firm believer in any worth-while preventive against the deadly malady. And it is sound economy to acquire a pup that has been inoculated. We noticed a few weeks ago that a loop department store which sells dogs had just started on a system of having all pups in the place given distemper serum.

Dog fanciers were intrigued recently by the item in newspapers telling of the incorporation of a champion dog by a boxer kennel in Milwaukee.

The boxer dog, Champion Dorien von Marienhof of Mazelaine, was named sieger (champion) at an international dog show held in Germany in April of 1935. When Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Wagner of Milwaukee bought the dog for $4,000 they decided to incorporate the dog for the amount of the purchase price by selling stock at $1 a share. Since the dog's show ring earnings and stud fees are expected to total into a sizable amount, they are hopeful of splendid dividends for the stockholders.

The popular Boston terrier, long one of the favorites in this country, now is in the spotlight in Chicago. Hundreds of Bostons are on exhibition today in the Hotel Sherman, where the Western Boston Terrier club is holding its thirty-sixth annual specialty show.

The judging is scheduled to start at 10 o'clock this morning and will continue throughout the day, with the best Boston in the show to be picked late tonight. Vincent Perry of London, Ontario, Canada, will pick the winners.

If Boston terrier owners want to see an excellent group of well bred specimens of their favorite breed, this specialty show is the place to see them. There will be scores of young show dogs competing for ribbons in the various classes, and also a number of champions on hand. The majority of local kennels which breed Bostons will be represented in the show, competing with other Boston owners from all over the country.

Capone's Decade of Death

It Was Ended by Publicity

How Justice Caught Up with Boss Criminal

This is the third and concluding article of a series of three on the rise and fall of Al Capone, Chicago's boss criminal.

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

ON JAN. 18, 1929, a big yellow car pulled into the sherif's parking space at the Miami Jocky club race track. A stout man climbed out with two other men and a couple of gayly dressed girls.

As he did so a murmur breezed through the crowd.

"Look! There is Al Capone!"

A policeman hurried over to greet the celebrated visitor.

"Hello, Al."

"Hello," returned the big man, pulling a $10 bill out of a roll he held in his hand.

The policeman pocketed the money, while Capone walked on over to the ticket office, conversing with his friends, occasionally smiling to the crowd.

Just as the group arrived at the main gate a photographer stepped from behind a post and raised his camera.

Capone ducked and covered his face with his hat. The two were members of his bodyguard, who had been instructed to warn him of threatening cameramen.

Capone knew the devastating effect of constant publicity. Already his name was a household word throughout America and civilized Europe, and more and more the responsible citizens of the nation were coming to feel that while Al Capone remained at large there could be no real law and order in the United States. News, relentless and erosive, was crystalizing the forces against him, forces that must inevitably become too much for him, forces that he had good reason to fear.

Two reporters approached the notorious man as soon as he had entered the gate.

"Hello, Mr. Capone. Who's going to win today?"

"Mr. Capone, how long do you expect to be in Florida?"

"Please," protested Al. "Why can't you leave me alone? What have I done? I'm living a peaceful life here in Florida, trying to forget all about Chicago, and I'm blamed in the newspapers for every murder and crime committed in the United States. You've got the wrong man. I haven't got any news for you. All I want is to be left alone. Please, boys."

≈

Thus did Capone attempt to dodge the inevitable. But it was too late. Already he was known as the man who had profited more than any other from prohibition, and the United States department of internal revenue was beginning to collect data about his income, for which he had never paid any tax nor even filed a return.

Al Capone had taken extraordinary precautions to preserve the secrecy of his money affairs. He never legally owned most of his property, for he seldom took title to his acquisitions. He only controled them, while his friends and associates "owned" them. His bank was his front trousers pocket, especially made very deep and ample to hold all he wanted to carry in $100 and $500 bills.

But occasionally even he slipped up—and inch by inch the newspapers and the law closed in.

A sample Capone arrest came on May 8, 1930, when the gang boss was arrested in Miami and held for investigation on the orders of Mayor C. H. Reeder, City Manager Wharton, and Director of Public Safety McCreary. Though somewhat used to such indignities by this time, "the big fellow" was thoroughly enraged.

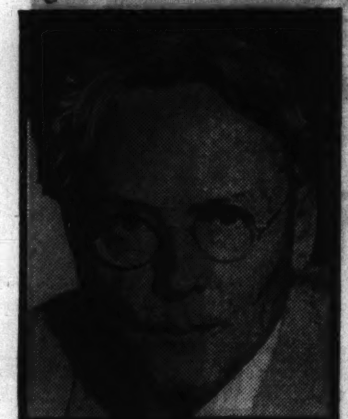
"Who does Reeder think he is?" he roared. "I haven't done anything to deserve being arrested. I'm going to charge Reeder and McCreary with conspiracy. This is the last time they'll do this to me. They've been reading newspapers. All my troubles begin with the newspapers."

A few days later, after he had calmed down somewhat from the brief interruption in his social routine, Capone explained to a noted French reporter sent to interview him:

"It is very simple; when the police do not find the author of a crime they say that it was Al Capone. But I have other things to do than kill people. I have my business. People only imagine that I kill. Sometimes people even write to me to ask me to do crimes in their interest. A big English lady wrote me one day to offer me 20,000 pounds sterling if I would come and spend the week-end at her home and take the occasion to get rid of a bothersome neighbor. . . . Ridiculous. . . . Have a cigar."

On Oct. 6 of the following year, 1931, Al Capone found himself in the most uncomfortable spot he had yet known. That was the day he was taken into custody by the United States marshal at Chicago for income tax evasion, and on which the trial began that was to send him to his present incarceration at Alcatraz. Income tax trials already had proved an almost sure-fire method of putting criminals behind the bars, and Capone knew his chances of escape were slim. For that reason he had been stalling and dodging the issue for more than two years, putting off as long as possible what he feared would be his undoing.

As early as Feb. 17, 1929, before his arrest in Philadelphia for gun-toting, Capone had been served in Florida with a subpena to appear before a federal grand jury in Chicago. He did not choose to comply.



George E. Q. Johnson, U. S. attorney at time of Capone trial.

His prison term in Pennsylvania in 1929 saved him for a while, and his doctor's excuse that his "physical condition is such at this time that it would be dangerous for him to leave the mild climate of southern Florida and go to the city of Chicago" helped for a bit longer. But at last he was forced to come north, and on March 2, 1931, Judge Wilkerson of the United States court in Chicago sentenced him to six months in Cook county jail for "contempt of court." It was while he was free on bond pending appeal from this decision to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals that the income tax trial began.

≈

Attorneys for Capone in this case were Albert Fink and Michael Ahern. Their first move had been to confer with United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, who was to prosecute Capone, and to arrive at an "understanding" with him. The understanding was that if Capone would plead guilty the district attorney would recommend a sentence of two and one-half years at Leavenworth. As the district attorney was known to have conferred in turn with the attorney general and an assistant secretary of the treasury, Fink and Ahern assumed that the government was solidly behind the district attorney and that the judge would therefore, as was customary, follow the district attorney's recommendation to the letter. Up to that time no defendant pleading guilty to income tax evasion had received a sentence of more than two and a half years, so the Capone attorneys felt an added assurance that their client would be dealt with as recommended.

But they did not know Judge Wilkerson.

On July 30 Capone appeared in Judge Wilkerson's court for sentence on his plea of guilty, made six weeks earlier. It was 10 o'clock in the morning. The thick-lipped gang leader was arrogant and assured with the word of his lawyers that "everything is all set." Sitting in his chair, he cast his dark eyes defiantly upon the little judge.

Then Wilkerson spoke:

"The United States district attorney has stated that he wishes to offer suggestions with reference to the judgment to be entered in these cases. The pleas of guilty, I am advised, were entered upon his understanding to make such recommendations. Of course, the court will receive his suggestions and give to them the weight to which the views of counsel for the government are entitled.

"It is always understood, however, that in consenting to receive these suggestions the court does not bind itself to adopt them or to enter judgments in conformity therewith. There can be no exception to this rule. . . ."

The size 19 collar around the throat of the well fed defendant began to wilt a little.

"The court may not now say to the defendant," continued Judge Wilkerson, "that it will enter the judgment suggested by the prosecutor. . . . This defendant must understand that he cannot have an agreement as to the judgment to be entered in the case."

By the afternoon session the great Capone was wiping his brow at frequent intervals, and his calm confidence was replaced by a grumpy attention to his lawyers' desperate attempts to argue Wilkerson into submission.

Said Lawyer Ahern in scandalized tones:

"We were led to believe that the recommendation would be approved by the court. . . . Unless we had been confident that the court would act according to the recommendation agreed upon, the plea of guilty would never have been entered. . . ."

"You have not any doubt," replied the judge, "that I stated the law correctly this morning?"

"If the court would follow the recommendation of the district attorney as made," said Mr. Ahern, "and if we could have the assurance of the court . . ."

"Suppose the court does not agree with that?" snapped Wilkerson.

"Well, then," said Ahern defensively, "that is what I was coming to, if it please the court."

Judge Wilkerson looked squarely at him, then shifted his gaze to the frowning Capone. "Certainly it is an unheard-of thing in a criminal proceeding that anybody, even the court itself, could bind the court to the judgment which is to be entered after the hearing. . . . The court will listen, as I said this morning, to the recommendation of the district attorney. The court will listen to the recommendation of the attorney general. . . . But the thing that the defendant cannot think, must not think, is that in the end the recommendations of the attorney general and of the secretary of the treasury, all considered, the court is bound to enter judgment according to those recommendations. . . .

"There have been some unfortunate things in connection with this case. There have been some publications which were contemptuous in character and tending to bring the administration of justice in the federal court into disrepute. They have even gone so far as to announce in advance what the period of punishment would be.

"It is time for somebody to impress upon this defendant that it is utterly impossible to bargain with a federal court."

The "deal" was off.

The big question in the minds of the worried Fink and Ahern and of their even more worried client now was: Can the guilty plea be changed to not guilty?

The following day Judge Wilkerson ruled that Capone in this case would be permitted to change his plea. Capone did change it, and the trial was set for October.

≈

On Oct. 6 Alphonse Capone, defendant, reëntered Judge Wilkerson's court. This time he knew better what sort of man sat behind the high desk. Since July 31 he had been methodically exercising under the guidance of his head trainer, taking long walks, setting-up drills, and workouts with the gloves in his private gymnasium to make himself fit for the rigors of prison life. He knew he might get as many as three or four years behind the bars, which would go hard with anyone as soft as he had been while living amid the silken luxury of his Palm Island palace.

The trial began. From the start it was clear that the government would have to rely on circumstantial evidence in its contention that Capone had pocketed several hundred thousand dollars at the least between the years 1924 and 1929. Dwight H. Green, able prosecutor who did much of the work of preparing the case as assistant United States attorney, made the opening statement for the government. The defense waived its opening statement. Then the jury, consisting of eleven men from outlying country towns and a twelfth from Chicago, settled back to hear the evidence.

Mr. Green examined one Chester Bragg, an insurance agent, about Capone's interest in the gambling business:

"Describe your first meeting with Capone."

"In 1925 I was with a group from the West Suburban Ministers and Citizens' association on a raid at 4818 West 22d street, Cicero. It was the Saturday of Derby day, in the month of May."

"Did you have any conversation with the defendant?"

"Yes."

"Describe the conversation."

"Well, my job was to watch the front door and keep anybody from going in or out. A big, powerful man tried to get in and finally forced the door open. I got sore and asked him, 'What the hell do you think this is, a party?' and he said: 'Well, it ought to be a party. I'm the owner of this place.'"

"Describe what you saw upstairs."

"There were roulette wheels, pool, billiard, and crap tables, and chuck-a-luck outfits."

Thus, laboriously adding the bits of testimony of many witnesses together, the government showed that Capone not only had claimed ownership of gambling resorts but that these same places were doing a large business, with annual net profits in six figures.

≈

But the thing that nailed Capone more than any other single item was a letter written by a Washington attorney named Lawrence P. Mattingly, whom the gangster had once made his agent in an attempt to settle his income tax liabilities out of court. With a power-of-attorney card signed by Capone, Mattingly gathered information and estimated Capone's income during the years in question. Then he turned over to the department of internal revenue in the federal building in Chicago a statement which concluded with the following incriminating paragraph:

Dwight H. Green, who as assistant district attorney prosecuted Capone.

> Notwithstanding that two of the taxpayer's [Capone's] associates from whom I have sought information with respect to the taxpayer's income insist that his yearly income never exceeded $50,000 in any one year, I am of the opinion that his taxable income for the years 1925 and 1926 might fairly be fixed at not to exceed $26,000 and $40,000 respectively and for the years 1928 and 1929 not to exceed $100,000 per year.
>
> LAWRENCE P. MATTINGLY.

≈

Al Capone had hired Mattingly for his protection, but, through this amazing statement placed in the hands of the government by Capone's own legal agent, his case was lost. Despite a desperate defense based on the theory that what Capone earned by gambling he also lost by gambling, that therefore none of this money was really income, the jury returned a verdict finding the defendant guilty on five counts. The counts were: 1. Felony—attempt to evade and defeat income tax for 1925; income charged, $250,000. 2. Felony—attempt to evade and defeat income tax for 1926; income charged, $195,000. 3. Felony—attempt to evade and defeat income tax for 1927; income charged, $220,000. 4. Misdemeanor—failure to file income tax return for 1928. 5. Misdemeanor—failure to file income tax return for 1929.

A few days after the verdict the prisoner returned to the court to receive sentence.

"Let the defendant step to the bar," said Judge Wilkerson.

Then the judge read out sentences for the five counts: (1) Five years and a fine of $10,000; (2) five years and a fine of $10,000; (3) five years and a fine of $10,000; (4 and 5) one year in the county jail and a fine of $10,000; and all prosecution costs.

Capone was unmoved, but kept his eyes glued on the judge as the sentence was read. The individual sentences were about what he had expected after a guilty verdict. Now he cocked his ears for that lovely word "concurrently."

"The sentences on counts 1 and 2," said Judge Wilkerson, "are to be served concurrently. The sentences on the other counts are to be consecutive and cumulative; that is to say, the sentences on counts 1 and 2 are to be followed by the sentences on counts 3, 4, and 5."

Capone gasped and mopped his brow with a $2.75 handkerchief. That meant eleven years behind the bars and a total payment of $80,000. Capone was led away, black in the face and biting his lips.

At the jail door he snarled to reporters: "It was a blow below the belt, but what can you expect when the whole community is prejudiced against you? I've never heard of anyone getting more than five years for income tax trouble, but when they're prejudiced what can you do even if you've got good lawyers?"

A photographer approached, but Al covered his face.

"Think of my family; please don't take my picture," he said.

Five years later, in 1936, confined beyond all hope of escape inside the walls of Alcatraz federal penitentiary in San Francisco bay, Al Capone's attitude was very different. The man who had once triumphed over all rivals in the great war to reap the fruits of prohibition was applying his qualities to the tribulations of prison life.

≈

In the only complete interview obtained from any Alcatraz prisoner since the federal penitentiary was established there, one of Capone's fellow convicts, one Harry (Boy) Johnson, who recently was pardoned and deported to England, spoke thus:

"Al Capone is the only one who is standing up to the life in Alcatraz. He's the best of them all . . . but I don't think Al will ever get out alive.

"The boys . . . why, they love him. It's the other side—they pick on him all the time. They dock his privileges for almost nothing. Once all he did was to go into his cell to spit . . . but I'll tell all that . . .

"Al has been in the hole four times. . . . God, that hole is awful! It is 'way down in the rock, dark, damp, and gloomy. They just take all the manhood away from you before you get there. You are stripped of everything and shackled like a beast. They keep you that way for four hours—naked and chained. Then they throw your clothes in to you and you stay there about ten days on a diet of bread and water. It turns men crazy.

"The first time Al went was when he was working in the laundry. A fellow threw a towel at him, and Al got mad. He let fly and socked him in the eye. It was a grand smack. That guy's eye went all fluey. The next time there was some food Al didn't want. It is a rule that you have to finish your food. If you don't you forfeit a meal. Al already had forfeited two meals, and then he got a bit fresh with the guard.

"The guards are the toughest of any prison. They have to pay them as high as $9 a day to get them to stay there. They are a bum lot for the most part and take a pleasure in making petty rules which they enforce, as if the jail wasn't enough without adding to it.

"Everything is lousy about Alcatraz except the food. . . . Of course, there are so many guards they have to have good chow. There are forty houses for the screws [guards]. They live like fighting cocks—chicken and what you want. Say, sometimes I used to keep the white meat of chicken back, and I would hide it in a baked potato for Al, or sometimes I used to push it under a mess of vegetables. I'd do anything in the world for that fellow.

"When Al first arrived he was in the laundry, then in the tailor shop. Now he is in charge of the library, and that is one of the best in any jail in the country. There are more than 40,000 books, and as they'll never get onto the code, I don't mind telling you that books form a very important part.

"Magazines are censored, so that every word relating to police or gang stuff is torn out. . . . That is one thing Al Capone gets—all the current magazines, and he passes them out among the other boys. Al is the brightest spirit in the band. It is his one love and his one relaxation.

"You've got to understand that when men are put away like that, put away from every human emotion, they are apt to go right back to their kid days. We think more about our mothers than any women we knew. Al has just written a song about 'Mother,' and it's wonderful. He is going to present it to a society for the betterment of prisoners. Gee, that song just makes us all cry. Al plays it and sings it in a low, soft voice. I can't just remember all the words—you know, I'm still kind of nervous and shy—but I do remember it went something like this:

Mother, as the daylight's fading,
Through the mist I see your smile;
Mother, so the years are passing—
Wait for me a little while.
Though the paths of life are bitter,
Dark the road and long the way,
Mother, you'll be waiting for me
At the break of day.

"It's something like that. We've all sung it so much the words kind of stick. When Al wrote that song he gave the boys something that helps them quite a bit.

"Al has just one thing he loves. He has a banjo mandolin. They say he paid over $350 for it. And he can play and sing any song you want. All his leisure he goes down in the basement and practices. Al has provided almost all the instruments for the band and all the music. That's all he can do. After I formed the baseball team, Al wanted to join. The deputy warden wouldn't let him.

"Al looks well and eats his food. He sleeps pretty good, too. He's counting the days for another three years to pass. He won't get a parole. There's no parole from Alcatraz. And there's no escape. There's a yard all 'round the prison, high walls around that again, and the guards have orders to shoot at sight. High gun towers, and the electric eye. If you could get away you wouldn't make the mainland. The currents are too bad, and you'd be shot down anyway.

"The one thing I'm scared of is when the break comes somebody will put a bullet into the Big Shot. I don't mean one of the boys; he's still the Big Shot to them."

Your Teeth or Your Life!—and What to Do About It

How Hygiene and Dentistry Preserve Health

to the dentine or caries (decay), and great care must be taken to guard against any of it touching the gums or the tongue in order to prevent severe burns.

In the broader sense, the care of the teeth should be undertaken before the individual is born. In other words, the woman expecting a child is advised by the physician in charge of her case not only to see to it that her own teeth are in a healthy condition, but to eat plenty of foods containing vitamins C, D, and A so that her child's teeth may be sound. Vitamin C is found in abundance in orange and tomato juice and in fresh vegetables. Vitamins A and D are prominently present in cod liver oil and the yolks of eggs.

The first of the so-called baby teeth appear in the front of the mouth of the infant usually when he is from five to eight months old. By the time that he is three years old, in most cases, he has all of his temporary teeth—twenty in number. An old time idea was that the temporary teeth required no attention, inasmuch as they were supplanted rather early in life by the permanent teeth. That idea no longer prevails, for it has been discovered that the temporary teeth must be cared for properly in order that the permanent teeth that arrive later will be sound and healthy. Baby teeth should be brushed and watched closely for signs of infection. In order to have the second set of teeth properly developed, the food of the child must be right and the mouth must be free from infection. And the only certain way to control infection is by dental care.

First of the permanent teeth to appear in the mouth of the child are the six-year molars, of which there are four, one on each side of the upper and the lower jaws. These, like the other permanent teeth which follow them in appearance, never are replaced in a natural way. When they go they can be supplanted only by artificial teeth. For that reason the child should be introduced to the dentist's chair early in life, first to make sure that his permanent teeth are erupting properly, and, second, to guarantee that the permanent teeth are free from decay. Frequent visits to the dental offices—twice yearly or oftener—are the best insurance against progress of tooth decay.

Orthodontia is a dental specialty of relatively recent years. The word itself means "straight teeth," and the profession of straightening the teeth is one that employs certain dental experts to the exclusion of all other forms of dentistry. If the child's permanent teeth, because of one fault or another, present a crooked or unsymmetrical appearance, or are too widely or too closely spaced it is the business of the specialist to correct the spacing, and where necessary to straighten them, a process frequently requiring treatment over an extended period. The orthodontist obtains results by the use of wire forms that put pressure on the teeth and gradually cause them to grow straight and in proper spacing. Crooked teeth often cause bad health habits in childhood, and malformed jaws in adults.

The first permanent teeth, as previously mentioned, are known as the six year molars. They appear usually between the fifth and sixth years. After them, usually in the seventh year, appear the first permanent central incisors. Next in appearance, about the eighth year, are the lateral incisors. The first bicuspids arrive most commonly in the ninth year. The second bicuspids follow within a year. The cuspids make their appearance about the eleventh year, and the second permanent molars in the twelfth year. There usually follows a period about four years, more or less, of relative quiescence. Then, usually between the sixteenth and the twenty-second years, appear the third permanent molars. Twenty-one years on an average represents the time required for the development of the full complement of natural teeth, including the deciduous or baby teeth, which disappear to make room for the permanent equipment.

The average person with a fairly sound set of teeth usually experiences nothing more than minor troubles for the first ten years after becoming the possessor of a full array of these natural implements so necessary in chewing his food. Probably until he is 32 or 33 years old he has required little more than the customary dental inspections a couple of times a year, with, perhaps, a few cavities to be filled. In the middle and late thirties tooth decay becomes more extensive, larger fillings and inlays are required, and frequently teeth must be replaced, artificially. When a person has reached the age of 51 he is said to have attained his prime. From that age on the teeth require close attention, because of more rapid deterioration through diminishing physical stamina and diminishing regenerative powers. The various ages given here, it should be borne in mind, are only the average. Some persons go through life to a ripe old age without much trouble from their teeth.

No artificial teeth, in bridge work or in complete sets, are as strong or serviceable as natural teeth. Therefore, it behooves the individual to take the best care possible of the natural teeth that he possesses, whether they be good or bad. It is highly important that teeth be brushed several times a day, preferably after each meal. It has been said that a clean tooth never decays. But, of course, it is impossible to maintain the teeth in a sterile condition. The best any one can do is to keep his teeth comparatively clean.

Acids formed by mouth bacteria gradually eat away the enamel, not on exposed surfaces, where the natural movements of the tongue, lips, and cheeks keep them clean, but in the tiny pits, fissures, and spaces between the teeth. The oftener the teeth are brushed the better chance one has of checking decay at these spots. With all this in mind, one should not overlook the fact that countless numbers of unclean teeth never decay. Some folks just naturally have good, sound teeth, no matter how they neglect them. The safe way, however, is to use every care.

A tooth extraction of three or four generations ago was far from a pleasant experience for the extractee, judging from this photograph, which was posed especially to illustrate an early phase of dentistry. The "doctor" is employing a turn-key for the removal of the tooth.

Why some teeth decay and others do not remains somewhat of a mystery. Obviously one person's teeth are as likely to be attacked by destroying acids as another's, yet some teeth are susceptible to this form of deterioration and others are not. There is evidence to support the theory, however, that it is the chemical composition of the teeth that cause them to succumb to decay or, on the other hand, to continue healthy throughout life. In this connection, it is known that in the young a lack of calcium in the system may be a contributing cause to decay.

Associated with tooth decay frequently are errors in diet. Like the aforementioned unborn child, the adult, too, must eat properly to maintain his teeth in a healthy state. Vitamins are important. Writes Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, in an article on the care of the teeth in the "Modern Home Medical Adviser":

"It is useless to take in large amounts of calcium unless the calcium is assimilated. Apparently phosphorus, the products of certain glands, ultra-violet rays, and the vitamins are involved in the use of calcium by the body and must be taken in diet in order to permit the process to go on satisfactorily.

"Once decay begins, once the enamel of the tooth is broken down, bacteria, constantly present in the mouth, aid the destruction. Chemical changes occur that are disastrous. The most that any one can do is to keep teeth clean by the best methods possible to overcome acids by the use of proper alkaline washes or pastes, and to see that the diet is of the proper nature to keep the teeth in a state of satisfactory nutrition."

As to the manner of cleaning teeth and the brush, and the powder, paste, or liquid to be used in the process, there are conflicting opinions. It is not the purpose of this article to recommend any particular kind of a brush or any special brand of powder or paste, since even dentists do not fully agree on these subjects. They all, however, hold that the tooth brush that is best is the one so constructed that it can reach into the inner surfaces and into the tight spaces between the teeth. They agree, also, that a brush should be thrown away the moment its bristles begin to break off or come out. Cold water should be employed with the brush, and when not in use the brush should be hung up in such a position that its bristles do not touch anything. A brush kept in an airtight or partly airtight container soon deteriorates.

Quaint instruments of torture of the dentists of yesterday. That at the top is a pelican. The other instruments are turn-keys. All were used for twisting aching teeth out of their sockets.

Countless are the kinds of preparations sold for cleaning the teeth, and many are the different types, each manufacturer claiming particular merit for his product. It is much a matter of personal preference as to what paste, powder, or liquid is used, since the most important feature of the cleaning is the lusty wielding of the brush. A good guide to follow, however, is to avoid any preparation that is so soapy as to soften the gums, to avoid any preparation that contains an abrasive that will scratch the enamel, and to discount liberally any claims that this or that preparation will destroy germs in the mouth. Even though a powder or paste could kill all the bacteria upon the teeth, a new flock of these damaging organisms would enter the mouth with the first bite of food taken after the cleaning.

Despite all the brushing that is given to the teeth, they require at more or less frequent intervals a cleaning such as only a dentist can give them. Among some persons this cleaning by the dentist should be as frequent as every three or four months. Among others twice a year is sufficient. It is the cleaning by the dentist that reveals the beginning of decay here and there. Caught in time this decay is represented by minor cavities that can be filled with little drilling and with little inconvenience.

It is the deeper cavities that cause greatest trouble. If the decay has been permitted to enter deeply into the dentine it is necessary to do a great deal of drilling to clean it out for filling. Sometimes it becomes necessary to drill away a sizable part of the tooth and replace the substance removed with a large filling or inlay. It may even be necessary to crown the tooth.

When the dentist's drill enters so deeply that the nerve is exposed or otherwise endangered, the tooth must be devitalized (or the nerve killed). The modern dentist does not look with great favor upon the killing of a nerve, for he knows that the tooth must bear close watching thereafter. In a large proportion of cases in which the nerve is killed the tooth will, sooner or later, become abscessed at the root. In order to guard against a consequence such as this, which is likely in many cases to develop serious attending conditions, the dental surgeon takes frequent X-ray photographs. If he discovers that an abscess has developed he then must decide to treat for abscess or employ the other alternative and remove the tooth. It can be seen how decay in a tooth, if not promptly attended to, can result in an abscess, which may gravely threaten the health.

Although the statement that an abscess may cause anything but typhoid fever and brain tumor may be an exaggeration, it is a fact that there can develop in parts of the body remote from the jaws as a result of an abscessed tooth dangerous ailments and conditions such as cysts, cellulitis, nephritis, iritis, colitis, arthritis, appendicitis, neuritis, or, in fact, inflammation of almost any sort. It is even held that an abscess may affect the blood content itself, leading to a condition similar to anemia.

Many are the cases of ordinary lumbago, so-called rheumatism, or stomach, liver, kidney, heart, or lung trouble that have been traced directly to an abscess at the root of a tooth. There have been cases of blindness attributed to abscesses. Neglect of the teeth may develop conditions that eventually lead to death.

Closely associated with distressing conditions frequently encountered in respect to the teeth are certain diseases that attack the gums. Among these perhaps the best known is pyorrhea, in which there is a formation of pus and a separation of the gum tissue from the roots of the teeth. The blood stream picks up infection such as this and carries it to other parts of the body, often causing secondary disturbances that may take a serious trend.

Pyorrhea and other similar ailments may be insidious in nature. The person thus afflicted may not know his actual condition for some time unless he follows the strict rule of making frequent visits to his dentist. Caught in time, diseases of the gums may present no really grave problem to the dental expert. Allowed to progress, however, they become extremely serious, requiring long periods of treatment to clear them up.

Care of the gums, therefore, is equally as important as care of the teeth if one wishes to guard his health to the greatest degree possible.

Fortunate are the people of today who dwell in civilized lands, where dentistry has been developed to a high degree of efficiency. Doubtless many advances will be made in the profession in the years to come, but it now can be truthfully said that the modern dentist has reached the position from which he is capable of handling any condition or any emergency that may arise.

Those persons who visited A Century of Progress exposition in Chicago and looked with wonder on George Washington's false teeth that were exhibited there, and those who gaze at two of the four illustrations on this page, showing dental instruments of early days and how one of them was used, need not be told how fortunate they are.

To End Annoying Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Big Saving! No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up winter coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and tastes fine.

This home mixture soothes the irritated throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the phlegm and eases the soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its effect in stopping coughs quickly. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

The Secret of Alexander Hamilton and Mrs. Reynolds

Being the Suppressed Confession of the Great Revolutionary Statesman

Adapted by Louise Bargelt

SYNOPSIS

In the preceding instalments of Alexander Hamilton's famous "Confession" the first secretary of the treasury reveals with amazing candor his liaison with Mrs. James Reynolds, a Philadelphia woman of great charm but lowly station. He tells how the affair was discovered by her husband and of the sums of money he was forced to pay the blackmailing Reynolds. He chose this course rather than risk public exposure and possible wreckage of his own career and that of his Federalist party. He finally refused to give any further hush money and thought the affair dropped. Five years later, however, a certain Callender published a pamphlet accusing Hamilton of speculating with public funds. To clear himself of these charges he published his famous confession, which his friends sought to buy up and destroy. Maria Reynolds had dropped from his life, but the affair lived on. This last instalment brings the confession to a close and deals with the tragic events which led to Weehawken hill and the duel with Aaron Burr.

Italics are editor's explanatory notes.

CONCLUSION

EARLY in the summer of 1797 Alexander Hamilton's confession was on the street. Gaping crowds fought for copies of it, and choice morsels were copied and circulated through the country. Shocked puritanical voters devoured the spicy tidbits. Alexander Hamilton had not minced matters in the story of his liaison with the pretty Maria Reynolds, and the pamphlet caused a tremendous sensation. He appealed directly to the people, and his words carried the ring of truth.

I dare appeal [Hamilton wrote] to my immediate fellow citizens of whatever political party for the truth of the assertion that no man ever carried into public life a more unblemished pecuniary reputation than that with which I undertook the office of secretary of the treasury. . . . The charge against me is in connection with one James Reynolds for purposes of improper pecuniary speculation. My real crime is an amorous connection with his wife. . . . Of all the vile attempts which have been made to injure my character that which has been lately revived in No. V. and VI. of the history of the United States for 1796 is the most vile. . . . The Jacobin scandal club return to the charge . . . old calumnies are served up afresh. . . . Even the great and multiplied services of a Washington can secure no exemption. . . . How can I expect to escape? . . . But I desire to obviate the suspicions of the most suspicious. . . . The public will, I trust, excuse this confession. . . .

Hamilton's friends, Fish, Troup, Walcott, Gouverneur Morris, and Rufus King, were all in despair. Washington sent him a present in token of his deep sympathy. The Federalist party stood loyally behind him and declared that no great man had ever done a braver deed. It was not long before his friends had succeeded in buying up almost the entire edition.

But the chink in Hamilton's armor had been discovered and the damage had been done. He had proved himself innocent of speculation with treasury funds, but he had also revealed himself as grievously human!

≋

Maria Reynolds kept in hiding. She had left her husband and was living openly with Clingman now. No one will ever know whether or not she was in collusion with her husband in his blackmailing game. But she had shared in the profits of this five-year-old sin and was willing at last to stay silent.

Hamilton's enemies rejoiced openly. Madame Croix and Aaron Burr were jubilant. Madame Croix was beginning to feel a little avenged for the peremptory way in which Hamilton had broken with her four years before. Aaron Burr had an eye on the presidency in the coming 1800 election and believed that his most deadly enemy had been shorn of his locks.

Hamilton had lost all chance of becoming President, but he still had his fighting spirit. He had no intention of seeing the man he felt to be without scruple or conscience elevated to a position of power. As early as December, 1800, he began a series of violent attacks on Burr, insisting that he was unfit for public office. The following confidential letter to John Rutledge on Jan. 4, 1801, stated Hamilton's opinions of Burr in no uncertain terms:

(Confidential)

Jan. 4th, 1801.

He is in every sense a profligate; a voluptuary in the extreme, with uncommon habits of expense; in his profession extortionate to a proverb; understood to have been guilty of several breaches of probity in his pecuniary transactions. His very friends do not insist upon his integrity.

He is without doubt insolvent for a large deficit. All his visible property is deeply mortgaged, and he is known to owe other large debts for which there is no specific security.

The fair emoluments of any station under our government will not equal his expenses in that station; still less will they suffice to extricate him from his embaressments. He must have recourse to unworthy expedients . . . to projects of gain by means of public moneys; perhaps and probably to enlarge the sphere—a war.

No mortal can tell what his political principles are. He has talked all round the compass. . . . The truth seems to be that he had no plan but that of getting power by any means and keeping it by all means. It is probable that if he has any theory it is that of a simple despotism.

He is of a temper bold enough to think no enterprise too hazardous and sanguine enough to think none too difficult.

Discerning members of all parties agree in ascribing to him an irregular and inordinate ambition. Like Catiline, he is indefatigable in courting the young and the profligate. He knows well the weak sides of human nature and takes care to play in with the passions of all with whom he has intercourse. By natural disposition the haughtiest of men, he is at the same time the most creeping to answer his purposes. . . . He is artful and intriguing to an inconceivable degree. . . . He has constantly courted the popular party. As he can never effect his wish by the aid of good men, he will employ daring scoundrels of every party, and by availing himself of all the bad passions of the society he will in all likelihood attempt an usurpation.

Though possessing infinite art, cunning, and address, he is yet to give proofs of great or solid abilities. From the character of his heart and understanding it is likely that any innovation which he may effect will be such as to serve the turn of his own power . . . not the permanent security and prosperity of the nation.

≋

These were strong words to use in describing a popular candidate for the presidency. He had written another letter to James Bayard, in the same vein, only a few weeks before. Hamilton never believed in letting his opinions of people go unexpressed, no matter how unpleasant they might be. The second letter read:

December, 1800.

Be asured, my dear sir, that this man [Burr] has no principles, public nor private. As a politician his sole spring of action is an inordinate ambition; as an individual he is believed by friends as well as foes to be without probity, and a voluptuary by system, with habits of expense that can be satisfied by no fair expedients. . . . I am sure there are no means too atrocious to be employed by him. . . . Corrupt expedients will be to him a necessary resource. . . . No engagement that can be made with him can be depended upon; while making it he will laugh in his sleeve at the credulity of those with whom he makes it.

A little later he wrote to Gouverneur Morris declaring that Jefferson was much to be preferred as President of the United States:

January, 1801.

It seems nearly ascertained that Jefferson and Burr will come into the house of representatives with equal votes, and there is the probability that the Federal party may prefer the latter. In my opinion a circumstance more ruinous to them or more disastrous to the country could not happen.

Another subject: Jefferson or Burr? The former, beyond a doubt. The latter in my judgment has no principle, public or private; could be bound by no ambition; and for his purpose will use the worst portion of the community as a ladder to climb to permanent power. . . . He is bankrupt beyond redemption, except by the resources which grow out of war and disorder or by a sale to a foreign power or by great speculation. . . . War with Great Brittain would be the immediate instrument. . . . From the elevation of such a man may Heaven preserve the country!

≋

The marvel of the duel is not that Burr challenged Hamilton in 1804, but that he did not challenge him long before.

Burr's fury was out of bounds. He had endured enough from Hamilton. He would demand an apology. On June 18 he sent the following letter to Hamilton:

New York, June 18th, 1804.

Sir,—I send for your perusal a letter signed Charles D. Cooper, which, though apparently published some time ago, has but recently come to my knowledge. Mr. Van Ness, who does me the favor to deliver this, will point out to you that clause of the letter to which I particularly call your attention.

You must perceive, sir, the necessity of a prompt, unqualified acknowledgment or denial of the use of any expression which would warrant the assertion of Dr. Cooper.

I have the honour to be your obedient servant, A. BURR.

Hamilton took two days for deliberation and then answered him, neither denying nor affirming anything:

June 20th, 1804.

Sir,—I have maturely reflected on the substance of your letter of the 18th inst., and the more I have reflected the more I have become convinced that I could not, without manifest impropriety, make the avowal or disavowal which you seem to think necessary. The clause pointed out by Mr. Van Ness is in these terms: "I could detail to you a still more despicable opinion which Mr. Hamilton has expressed of Mr. Burr." To endeavor to discover the meaning of this declaration I was obliged to seek in the antecedent part of the letter for the opinion to which it referred as having been already disclosed. I found it in these words: "General Hamilton and Judge Kent have declared in substance that they looked upon Mr. Burr as a dangerous man and one who ought not to be trusted with the reins of government."

The language of Dr. Cooper plainly implies that he considered this opinion of you, which he attributes to me, as a despicable one; but he affirms that I have expressed some other, more despicable, without, however, mentioning to whom, when, or where. 'Tis evident that the phrase "still more despicable" admits of infinite shades, from very light to very dark. How am I to judge of the degree intended? Or how shall I annex any precise idea to language so indefinite? . . . .

But I forbear further comment on the embaressment to which the requisition you have made naturally leads. The occasion forbids a more ample illustration, though nothing could be more easy than to pursue it.

Repeating that I cannot reconcile it with propriety to make the acknowledgment or denial you desire, I will add that I deem it inadmissible on principle to consent to be interrogated as to the justness of the inferences which may have been drawn by others from whatever I might have said of a political opponent of fifteen years' competition. If there were no other objection to it, this is sufficient, that it would tend to expose my sincerity and delicacy to injurious imputations from every person who may at any time have conceived the import of my expressions differently from what I may have intended to may afterwards recollect. I stand ready to avow or disavow promptly and explicitly any precise or definite opinion which I may be charged with having declared of any gentleman. More than that cannot fitly be expected from me; and especially it cannot reasonably be expected that I shall enter into an explanation upon a basis so vague as that which you have adopted. I trust on more reflection you will see the matter in the same light with me. If not, I can only regret the circumstances and must abide the consequences.

The publication of Dr. Cooper was never seen by me till after the receipt of your letter.

I have the honour to be, &c,

A. HAMILTON.

Burr's answer was flowery but to the point. He wanted definite satisfaction and apology:

New York, June 21st, 1804.

Sir,—Your letter of the 20th inst. has been this day received. Having considered it attentively, I regret to find in it nothing of that sincerity and delicacy which you profess to value.

Political opposition can never absolve gentlemen from the necessity of a rigid adherence to the laws of honour and the rules of decorum. I neither claim such privilege nor indulge it in others. The common sense of mankind affixes to the epithet adopted by Dr. Cooper the idea of dishonour. It has been publically applied to me under the sanction of your name. The question is not whether he has understood the meaning of the word, or has used it according to syntax and with grammatical accuracy, but whether you have authorized this declaration, either directly or by uttering expressions derogatory to my honour.

The time "when" is in your own knowledge, but no way material to me, as the calumny has now first been disclosed so as to become the subject of my notice, and as the effect is present and palpable.

Your letter has furnished me with new reasons for requiring a definite reply.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient A. BURR.

≋

Hamilton refused to yield an inch and threw the blame on Burr for adding to the tensity of the situation.

New York, June 22nd.

Sir,—Your first letter, in a style too peremptory, made a demand in my opinion unprecedented and unwarrantable. My answer, pointing out the embaressment, gave you an opportunity to take a less exceptionable course. You have not chosen to do it, but by your last letter, received this day, containing expressions indecorous and improper, you have increased the difficulties intrinsically incident to the nature of your application.

If by a definite reply you mean the direct avowal or disavowal required in your first letter, I have no other answer to give than that which has already been given. If you mean anything different, admitting of greater latitude, it is requisite you should explain.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient.

ALEX. HAMILTON.

For a week letters went back and forth, but finally Major Pendleton was handling the affair for Hamilton and W. P. Van Ness for Burr. It was Van Ness who delivered Burr's formal challenge to a duel. This missive informed Hamilton that "Colonel Burr deems it useless to offer any proposition except the simple message which I shall now have the honour to deliver."

Hamilton asked for a few days in which to arrange his affairs, and the date was set for July 11; the place, Weehawken Heights.

Hamilton spent the week before the duel apparently in the best of spirits. The secret was well kept, and his friends and family had no inkling of the tragedy ahead. One night he received a strange caller. Gertrude Atherton is the authority for this visit of Madame Croix to Hamilton the week before the duel. It was the former Madame Croix, now Madame Jumel. She had come, she told him, to let him know that "when he died it would be by the hand of her deputy." Her love and her hate had survived for eleven years, and her revenge was soon to be complete. If she had exaggerated her influence over Aaron Burr, at this time one of her best friends, it is certain that she had never allowed him to forget his grievances.

Wherever he went he was pointed out as "the gentleman who had killed Hamilton" and "the man who would have betrayed his country."

The same week Hamilton wrote two letters, one to posterity, which read as follows:

On my expected interview with Colonel Burr I think it proper to make some remarks. . . . I was certainly desirous of avoiding the interview for the most cogent reasons:

(1) My religious and moral principles are strongly opposed to the practice of dueling. . . . (2) My wife and children are extremely dear to me, and my life is of utmost importance to them in various ways. (3) I feel a sense of obligation towards my creditors, who, in case of accident to me, by the forced sale of my property may be in some degree sufferers. (4) I shall hazard much and can possibly gain nothing. . . . (5) I am conscious of no ill will to Colonel Burr, distinct from political opposition, which, I trust, proceeded from pure and upright motives.

I have resolved, if our interview is conducted in the usual manner and it pleases God to give me the opportunity, to reserve and throw away my first fire, and I have thoughts of even reserving my second fire and thus giving a double opportunity to Colonel Burr to pause and reflect.

It is not, however, my intention to enter into any explanations on the ground. . . . To those who, with me, abhorring the practice of dueling, may think that I ought on no account to have added to the number of bad examples, I answer that my relative situation, as well in public as private, enforcing all the considerations which constitute what men of the world denominate honor, imposed on me (as I thought) a peculiar necessity not to decline the call.

The other letter Hamilton addressed to his wife:

July 4th, 10 P. M., 1804.

This letter, my very dear Eliza, will not be delivered to you unless I shall have first terminated my earthly career, to begin, as I humbly hope, from redeeming grace and divine mercy, a happy immortality.

If it had been possible for me to have avoided the interview, my love for you and my precious children would have been alone a decisive motive. But it was not possible without sacrifices which would have rendered me unworthy of your esteem. I need not tell you of the pangs I feel from the idea of quitting you and exposing you to the anguish which I know you would feel. Nor could I dwell on the topic lest it should unmann me.

The consolations of Religion, my beloved, can alone support you; and these you have a right to enjoy. Fly to the bosom of your God and be comforted.

With my last idea I shall cherish the sweet hope of meeting you in a better world.

Adieu, best of wives—best of women.

Embrace all my darling children for me.

Ever yours, A. H.

The seconds published on July 12, the morning after the duel, the only document which represents the agreement of both sides as to the real facts:

Colonel Burr arrived first on the ground, as had been previously agreed; when General Hamilton arrived the parties exchanged salutations and the seconds proceeded to make their arrangements. They measured the distance, tell full paces, and cast lots for the choice of position, as also to determine by whom the word should be given, both of which fell to the second of General Hamilton. They then proceeded to load the pistols in each other's presence, after which the parties took their stations. The gentleman who was to give the word then explained to the parties the rules which were to govern them in firing. . . . He then asked if they were prepared; being answered in the affirmative, he gave the word "Present," as had been agreed on, and both parties presented and fired in succession—the intervening time is not expressed, as the seconds do not agree on that point.

The fire of Colonel Burr took effect, and General Hamilton almost instantly fell. Colonel Burr then advanced towards General Hamilton, with a manner and gesture that appeared to General Hamilton's friend to be expressive of regret, but without speaking turned about and withdrew, being urged from the field by his friend . . . with a view to prevent his being recognized by the surgeon and bargemen, who were then approaching. No further communication took place between the principals, and the barge that carried Colonel Burr returned immediately to the city. We conceive it proper to add that the conduct of the parties in this interview was perfectly proper as suited the occasion.

It was nearly seven in the morning when the boat which carried General Hamilton, his friend, Mr. Pendleton, and the surgeon mutually agreed, Dr. Hosack, reached that part of the Jersey shore called the Weehawk. There they found Mr. Burr and his friend, Mr. Van Ness, who, as I am told, had been employed since their arrival, with coats off, in clearing away the bushes, limbs of trees, etc., so as to make a fair opening. The parties in a few moments were at their allotted situations. When Mr. Pendleton gave the word, Mr. Burr raised his arm slowly, deliberately took his aim, and fired. His ball entered General Hamilton's right side. As soon as the bullet struck him he raised himself on his toes, turned a little to the left (at which moment his pistol went off), and fell on his face. Mr. Pendleton immediately called out for Dr. Hosack, who in running to the spot had to pass Mr. Van Ness and Colonel Burr; but Van Ness had the cool presence of mind to cover his principal with an umbrella, so that Dr. Hosack should not be able to swear that he saw him on the field.

≋

Hamilton had lost his firstborn son in a duel a few years before and held the custom in abhorrence. But not one will ever know for a certainty whether Hamilton threw away his fire, as he said he would do.

The bullet which struck Hamilton killed Burr. Aaron Burr destroyed his greatest enemy, but grief and humiliation followed him to the end of his desperate old age.

As soon as news of the duel reached the public ear a howl of fury arose. Burr was placed under indictment for murder in New Jersey, and another indictment prevented his return to New York. The popularity of dueling had been on the wane for some time. Now it became suddenly an atrocity and a crime.

The rest of Burr's life was a pitiable succession of plottings and failings, vicissitudes and desperate dilemmas. The fantastic Blennerhasset affair a few years later created even more of a furor than the duel. Burr's desire for adventure and visions of power, even empire and conquest, were to prove his undoing. He was arrested and brought to trial for treason. He was charged with preparing a mighty expedition against Mexico, assembling armed youth on poor Blennerhasset's island, nursing secret schemes of secession. These daring followers of his, it was claimed, were all prepared to levy war against the United States! (There were only forty or fifty young men in all, dreaming dreams of founding an empire, perhaps in Mexico, with Colonel Burr Aaron the First, emperor of Mexico, and Blennerhasset, who had been the financier back of the movement, at least the minister to England.) But the public once more was furious at Burr. He was a traitor and had been secretly working for the secession of the southwest from the east! First he had murdered Hamilton; now he was trying to rend the Union asunder! Burr was finally acquitted of the charges against him, but the clamor did not die down. His friends advised him to leave the country, and he fled to Europe under an assumed name.

Four years later he returned, poverty-stricken and broken in spirit. He hung a little tin sign outside the door of a house in the city which had once made him Vice President and started practicing law. Wherever he went he was pointed out as "the gentleman who had killed Hamilton" and "the man who would have betrayed his country." He had always been an actor who knew how to captivate and entrance; but he had lost his wizardry and lived on with life shorn of its adventure and glamor.

≋

One more adventure was his, at 77! He married Madame Jumel. He must still have retained a bit of his reputedly devastating power over the ladies. He won a rich widow, but even in this last adventure failure faced him. He spent his new wife's money too lavishly, and she cast him adrift. He died a wizened little man, declaring toward the end:

"I am not a libertine. I am not a traitor. I am not a murderer. I never broke a promise to a woman in my life. I did not intend to kill Hamilton and did not shoot first. I never got within ten thousand leagues of a wish to break up the United States by a separatist or secessionist movement, though I did hope to establish an empire in Mexico and become its head!"

Dr. Hosack continued the story of Hamilton's last hours:

When called to him, upon his receiving the fatal wound, I found him half sitting on the ground, supported in the arms of Mr. Pendleton. He had at that moment just strength to say, "This is a mortal wound, doctor," when he sunk away and became to all appearances lifeless. . . .

His pulse was not to be felt; his respiration was entirely suspended; and upon laying my hand on his heart I perceived no motion there and considered him irrevocably gone. I observed to Mr. Pendleton that the only chance for his reviving was to get him upon the water. He therefore lifted him up and carried him out of the wood, where the bargemen aided us in conveying him into the boat, which immediately put off. . . . When we had got fifty yards from the shore he breathed, his eyes opened . . . his pulse became more susceptible. . . .

Soon after recovering his sight he happened to cast his eye on the case of pistols. "Take care of that pistol; it is undischarged and still cocked; it may go off and do harm; Pendleton knows [attempting to turn his head towards him] that I did not intend to fire at him." He then closed his eyes and remained calm, without any disposition to speak. . . .

His mind retained all its usual strength and composure. The great source of his anxiety seemed to be in his sympathy with his half-distracted wife and children. "My beloved wife and children" were always his expressions. . . . As a proof of his extraordinary composure of mind, let me add, he alone could calm the grief of the frantic mother. "Remember, Eliza, you are a Christian," were the expressions he uttered in a firm but pathetic voice. At about two o'clock he expired.

Hamilton's death was lamented as a public calamity. The bells tolled in New York till sundown the day he was buried. He had rounded out a great career at 47; a brilliant statesman and genius, with an unquenchable spirit and a deep love of liberty and justice. His desires were few beyond the welfare of his country and the happiness of his loved ones.

What I want in life [he once wrote] is someone to fight, someone to love. Three warm friends, three hot enemies. A sufficiency of delicate food and wine, a West Indian swimming bath. Someone to talk to, someone to make love to. War, Politics, Books, Song, Children, Woman, a Religion. There you have the essence of the millennium; embroider it as you may. A. HAMILTON.

Schoolboy Film Star Honored

Italian Prize to George Breakston

By ROSALIND SHAFFER

Hollywood, Cal.

BEING starred in a first picture and then receiving a prize from the Italian government for his performance in that same picture is the rather unusual experience of George Breakston, boy actor, who made "No Greater Glory" for Columbia last year.

An autographed photo of Il Duce, delivered to George personally by the Italian consul in Los Angeles, gave George tangible evidence of the fact that the international motion picture exposition held in Venice had awarded him the Fascist party's special prize for the most artistic production of the year. Negotiations were started through Columbia studios, which made the film from Ferenc Molnar's "Paul Street Boys," to send George to Italy to receive a trophy, but the sudden outburst of the Ethiopian conflict made the plan unattractive to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Breakston. Hence the autographed photo of Mussolini was dispatched, "to be delivered personally to George Breakston."

Oddly enough, the prize given young Breakston was for his work in a story that illustrates the uselessness of war. Molnar's powerful story tells of two rival gangs of boys who have a battle over a cherished playground, a lumber yard. George, as the young hero, leaves his sickbed, where he is almost delirious with pneumonia, and gives his life to lead his band in defense of its playground. The battle won, the young hero dead, steam shovels arrive to dig foundations for a factory, and the boys lose their playground after all. Strange pacific sentiments to inspire Il Duce and his Fascists with admiration!

Hollywood knows the story of George's rise to fame in his first picture. His mother, Jacqueline Du Val, is a talented millinery designer. At the time that Frank Borzage was looking for a cast for his "No Greater Glory," Jacqueline Du Val was designing hats at Columbia studio. George, who had never worked in films, went to the studio after school on an errand for his mother. The casting director noticed this fair-haired, sensitive-faced boy and thought him the ideal type for which Borzage was looking. He discovered who the youngster was, and it wasn't long until work began, with George playing a starring rôle in his first film.

George Breakston is not ordinary. Chicago audiences who saw the talented youngster last year on the legitimate stage as Puck in Max Reinhardt's "Midsummer Night's Dream" will agree that his talent is not ordinary.

A brief history of George's professional career shows him at nine a nationally known radio star, voted as "prince of radio" and winner of a cup over a national broadcast system by fan vote. This all came about quite unintentionally so far as his family was concerned. He went with a neighbor employed at a broadcast station in New York City, and with her encouragement he "tried out," singing some French songs. He was such a hit that it wasn't long before he was on the air. When his family came to Hollywood he filled a spot on a local broadcast for some time. Then came his accidental call at the studio and his casting in his first film rôle.

George comes of a family that is theatrical on both sides, as well as very blue-blooded, in the strictest sense of the word. In his mother's family, in direct line, he is descended from the distinguished Marquis de Vernon, secretary to Louis XVI. On his father's side, also in direct line, was Beryl Breakston, who received a grand duchy from the Emperor Napoleon for services rendered in the Russian campaign.

George Breakston (left) in a scene from "No Greater Glory," with Lois Wilson and Jimmy Butler. It was for his superb acting in this production that George was honored by Italy and presented with an autographed photograph of Premier Mussolini.

George's mother's grandmother was Marie Le Duc, a member of the great Sarah Bernhardt's company for thirty years; her husband was a famous musical director at the Paris opera. His father's mother, known in the theater as Ann Shaw, played on Broadway for Arnold Daly and Tony Pastor in the gay nineties.

George's father considers himself all American in spite of French and Russian ancestry. He was born in New York, and as an officer of the Seventh infantry, Third division, A. E. F., he was awarded the croix de guerre with palms for gallantry in action. He is well known as a radio writer.

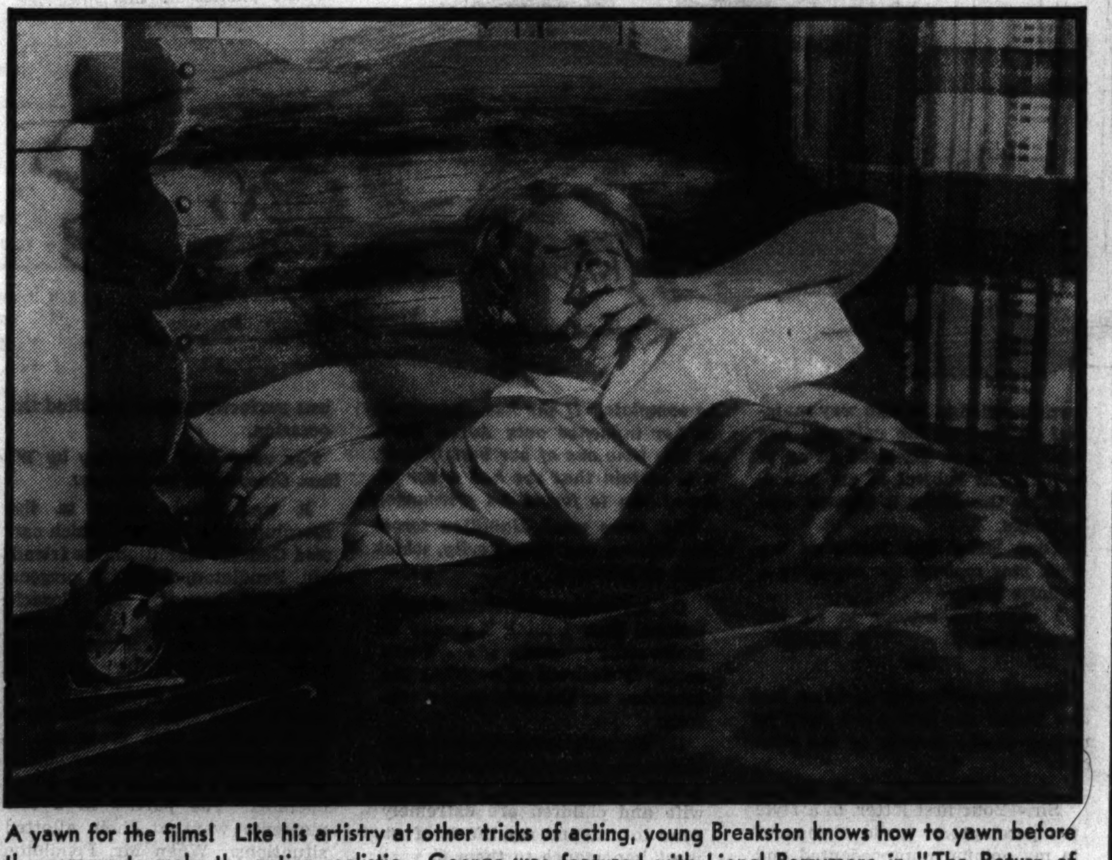
George's very sensible French mother, with her old-world ideas of discipline, sees to it that George makes his bed and does his chores, and no back-talk. His chief mischief-making propensities are mechanical ones. Not long ago an agent at the front door was knocked backward when he pushed the doorbell. The mischievous George, totally without his parents' knowledge, had rigged up a powerful charge to to the push button, which could be switched on and off. A similar charged wire permanently discouraged his dogs from trying to dig out from under the wire-inclosed back yard.

Another visitor, a boy his own age, was surprised to see several nickels and dimes lying on the floor in the hallway. When he tried to pick them up he couldn't get them off the floor. George had used the soldering iron from his workshop to solder tacks to the money, which he then drove into the floor to fool playmates. Such tricks, along with his work on radio receiving and small broadcasting sets, keep George very well occupied when he's not attending the Bancroft Junior High school, which he attends when he's not working in films.

In spite of his success in films, George's ambition is not for a lifetime of acting. He plans to become an engineer, hoping, like his maternal grandfather, to see far and strange places where he can build bridges, construct dams and power houses.

Moviegoers will remember George Breakston for his work in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," as young Pip in "Great Expectations," and a more recent success in "The Return of Peter Grimm." When Mickey Rooney met with an accident during the making of "Midsummer Night's Dream," George, with no screen credit, completed the rôle for him, doing all those dangerous leaps, soarings, and impish scramblings that you see on the screen, in which Mickey's face does not show.

No ordinary juvenile actor is George Breakston, who is remembered by Chicago theatergoers for his characterization of the role of Puck in "Midsummer Night's Dream."



A yawn for the films! Like his artistry at other tricks of acting, young Breakston knows how to yawn before the camera to make the action realistic. George was featured with Lionel Barrymore in "The Return of Peter Grimm."

In a playful mood. George Breakston is a healthy, normal boy in every way, despite the fact that he is a cinema star.

Airplanes and Air Transport

Must Enlarge Airports for Superships

By WAYNE THOMIS

PHOTO-DIAGRAMS and descriptions of surroundings, facilities, and equipment of three more airports from which regularly scheduled air transport planes are flying today are presented here. These fields have been chosen at random from among the thousand-odd airports now used by operators of air lines.

Attention of the air line operators, as explained in the first article about flying fields in the United States, which appeared in this section last Sunday, has been directed particularly toward landing grounds because they have discovered that airports at virtually all the major cities will be unsafe for the new 50-passenger four-motored airplanes being ordered at this time.

These ships, four times as large and considerably faster than the best planes in service on domestic lines today, can be landed at fields with runways 3,000 feet in length, according to engineers who have anticipated their performance. It will not be safe, however, to take these big ships off fields with runways less than 5,000 feet in length, these same flight experts agree.

Therefore, as the air lines already are warning many cities such as Chicago, New York, and Los Angeles, it will be impossible to fly the 50-passenger ships to these centers of population, commerce, and industry, which they were built to serve, unless airports are improved. The series of articles of which this is one shows the fields as they are maintained for flight operations in the Boeing 247D, Douglas DC-2, Electra, Vultee, and Stinson planes of today's major air lines.

Oakland municipal airport, six miles south of Oakland, Cal., on the east side of San Francisco bay, is one of the best flying fields in the United States. The total area of the airport is 845 acres, although only 260 acres have been cleared and prepared for flight operations at this time. It is located on clear, level ground free from obstructions for miles in all directions.

The field is owned by the city of Oakland and operated by the city board of port commissioners. In addition to facilities offered land planes there is a channel connecting the field with San Leandro bay and San Francisco bay, so that it is ideal for flying boat or seaplane operations as well. This latter circumstance is partly responsible for the placing of the landing field in the hands of the port authority.

The entire surface of the operations area is turf, with several hard-surface and partly oiled runways. One of these, an east-west landing strip, is 7,000 feet in length. The others range from 4,000 feet down to 2,500 feet. All the shorter runways were planned so that they can be extended up to 4,000 feet if it becomes necessary.

Climate is such that there are no icing or snow difficulties at Oakland airport. Dense fog occurs on an average of two days a month between July and February. There is light fog an average of three days a month during the same period and one day a month during March to June. Fog which limits flight operations generally occurs during the early morning, rarely continuing past noon.

On this large field the United Air Lines radio specialists for two years have been conducting experiments with a curved radio landing beam. The experiments are conducted in an effort to perfect a safe and accurate method of putting an airplane on the ground in zero-zero ceiling and visibility conditions. While encouraging, these experiments have not yet proved wholly successful.

United Air Lines at this time is the only regularly scheduled operator of air line service on the field. Pan American Airways, now occupying temporary quarters at Alameda airport, may move to Oakland field soon. Like other airports, Oakland field has first-class radio, boundary and landing lights, and beacon equipment. It is a 20-minute taxi ride from mid-Oakland.

The Cincinnati, O., air terminal is Lunken municipal airport, five miles southeast of the city, at an altitude of 490 feet. This 400-acre field, in an "L" shape, is one of the regular stops for both American and Columbia Airlines. The surface is sodded, with hard runways.

Although the winter has been extremely severe, with considerable snow, Lunken field has been consistently free from drifts. When snow has fallen a crew hired by the city has plowed out the runways, so that operations have not been suspended. In recent field reports made to the weather stations operated in conjunction with the federal bureau of air commerce it was stated that less than one-half inch of snow was on the field.

The three main runways are of adequate length. The longest is the north-south landing strip, 3,700 feet. The others are east-west, 3,200 feet, and northeast-southwest, 2,700 feet. American Airlines pilots flying Douglas DC-2 and Vultee airplanes from the field have not complained about the size of runways. Columbia pilots flying Stinson trimotor ships say the length of the strips is adequate.

Department of commerce radio equipment is identical with that installed at other air line terminal fields, and the city government of Cincinnati has provided boundary, flood, and obstruction lights and the usual airport beacon. The administration building is small and needs redecoration. Hangars are in excellent condition. The field is a 20-minute ride from the city.

Two of the major air lines stop at the small but adequate Indianapolis municipal airport, seven miles southwest of the city. This field, at an altitude of 792 feet, is rectangular in shape, being 4,000 feet long by 2,900 feet wide. It is sodded and has three new concrete runways.

Both Transcontinental and Western Air and Eastern Airlines, flying Douglas DC-2 and Lockheed Electra equipment, make this field a regular stop. None of the pilots has complained that the two 2,000-foot runways and the one 1,100-foot runway are too short.

The runways are sufficient in length because the approaches for several thousand feet in all directions are clear of trees, high-tension lines, smokestacks, or gas tanks which would constitute dangerous obstructions. This field, with some additions to its runways, will be safe for flying of the larger, faster airplanes ordered by the air lines for the next two years, pilots report.

Lighting and radio equipment at the airport are standard types approved by the federal bureau of air commerce for fields at which the major air lines halt their ships. The terminal building is small but is new, modern, and excellently maintained. Indianapolis field can be reached after a 20-minute automobile ride from the business district of the city.

The bureau of air commerce is considering the advisability of placing radio and lighting equipment on one of the long runways of the field for instrument approaches in poor visibility.

WILLIAM ERNEST HENLEY, author of "Invictus," was a British poet, critic, and editor. He was born in Gloucester on Aug. 22, 1849, and when a child he contracted tuberculosis, which later necessitated the amputation of a foot. He began writing verses while yet in the early twenties, and in 1877 he went to London for what turned out to be a long and distinguished career as a journalist. His first book of verses was published in 1880. Others followed throughout the years. In 1892 were published three plays, written in collaboration with Robert Louis Stevenson. Henley died July 11, 1903.

INVICTUS

Out of the night that covers me,
Black to the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of Circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud;
Under the bludgeonings of Chance
My head is bloody but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms but the horror of the shade,
And yet the menace of the years
Finds and shall find me unafraid.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate;
I am the captain of my soul.

A New and Deadly Foe Is Added to the Enemies of the Rancho

THE STORY TO DATE

Holly Ripple, who has inherited the beauty of her Spanish mother, returns from boarding school to her father's ranch in New Mexico just before his death. Anticipating an era of cattle rustling and outlawry, Colonel Ripple placed Holly under the care of his trusted foreman, Britt, and ordered him to surround her with the hardest outfit of cowboys he could gather together. In an encounter with horse thieves Holly is saved from the insults of the leader by one of his own men, Renn Frayne, who shoots his master and another man to save her. Holly persuades Frayne, self-admitted outlaw, to ride for her. Holly has carried on the traditional hospitality of the rancho. Malcolm Lascelles, a gambler and adventurer, with whom Holly had regrettably carried on a schoolgirl flirtation in New Orleans, installs himself at the rancho. A yearly fiesta in honor of Holly is soon to be held. Friends and enemies alike are invited. Holly is giving a dinner to her outfit before the party. Lee Taylor, also presuming on a previous acquaintance with Holly, is introduced to Brazos Keene, the youngest and wildest of Holly's cowboys, by Britt, at the trading post saloon.

INSTALMENT VI.

BRITT had no compunctions in turning the stranger over to Brazos. If Taylor was all right, which he certainly did not look, Brazos would grasp it quickly. Britt was getting tired of strangers imposing upon Holly's generous hospitality. Lascelles was still up at the ranch house, to Holly's annoyance and Britt's helpless rage.

"Wal, doggone! Another old beau of our lady's," drawled the devilish Brazos. "Come on, Mr. Taylor, meet the ootfit. . . . Cap, will yu have one on me?"

As Britt shook off the happy Brazos and turned to go out he met Ride 'Em Jackson, the Negro of the outfit, with Bluegrass and Trinidad, two more of his cowboys.

"Boss, we is sho' lookin' fer yo'," declared Jackson.

The red-headed Trinidad and the sharp, eagle-eyed Bluegrass hailed Britt with glad hands, and both gabbled at once.

"You needn't squawk at me," said Britt, producing his roll of bills. "Come over heah."

Repairing to the bunkhouse, Britt jotted down his payments to the men and then figured carefully details of the two cattle drives he would advise Holly to sanction right after her party. The rise in the price of beef was unprecedented, and it had two sides, one of them cardinally serious.

Presently Renn Frayne sauntered in leisurely, thoughtful of brow and smoldering of eye.

"Howdy, cowboy. Whar you been?" asked Britt, closing his account book.

"Didn't you see me trailing you around?" was the laconic answer.

"Nope, I never did."

Ride 'Em Jackson came trudging in to interrupt them. Walking did not appear to be his best method of locomotion. His shiny black face was wet with sweat.

"Hyar I is, boss."

"Set down, Jackson, an' get it off yore chest."

"Yas, suh," he returned with hesitation, rolling his eyes at Frayne. "Howdy, Mars Frayne. How yo' is?"

"Shoot, Jack. I'm able to help Cap bear up under your bad news."

"Boss, dem hosses was gone."

BRITT cursed under his breath, though he had expected no less. It was not the loss of a score and more of good stock so much as verification of the closing in of a net about Don Carlos rancho. Since the Heaver raid all of the Ripple thoroughbreds had been driven into the pastures and corrals. This bunch, of many remaining out on the range, had been left in Cedar Draw, an out-of-the-way place.

"We tracked 'em three days, an' den we gib up," went on the Negro.

"Wal, Jackson, I hope thet's all."

"Yas, suh. But it ain't, suh. I sho' ain't tole yo' nothin' yet. . . . Fust camp we made comin' back Chisum's top ootfit rid down on us. We sho' was scared, boss. But dey wuz friendly. A plumb dozen riders, boss, an' Chisum's top riders. I knowed 'em. I'd rid with dem. Russ Slaughter was haid of dat ootfit. Only ornery Slaughter in all dat Texas familee. . . . Wal, Russ tole 'em dey had quit Chisum. Dey wuz goin' in de cattle game demselves. Russ says: 'Jack, what yo' want to ride fer thirty dollars a month when yo' can git a hundred?' An' I asks Russ how. An' he says here's half a million head of cattle in de country an' no law. Railroad market payin' forty dollars a head an' government buyers givin' ten an' no questions ast. . . . Russ talked till he was red in de face. We sho' didn't want to tro' in wid dem, an' we was sort of flabustered."

"Jack, thet was a fix. How'd you get oot of it?"

"Wal, suh, I says to Russ: 'Yo' knows I's turned ober a new leaf, an' I'll be dawggoned if I'll quit. Missy Ripple has been good to me, an' I sho' gonna stick.' . . . Blue an' Trinidad talked like one man. Dawggone, they did! An' they says, 'I's not gibin' up providin' a husband fer Missy Ripple.' . . . Russ looked ugly an' talked ugly, which I ain't gonna squeal to yo'-all. 'Cept he says, 'Say, if all yo' heah 'boot the little lady is so, dere's a chance fer any hombre to grab dat million.'"

"Jackson, keep yore mouth shut aboot this," replied Britt authoritatively. "Hurry back to Bluegrass an' Trinidad an' tell them my orders air they're not to tell the ootfit."

"Frayne, what you think of thet?" queried Britt, meeting the outlaw's piercing gray eyes.

"It never rains but it pours."

"Slaughter's ootfit will come, shore as Gawd made little apples. They'll use Holly's party as a blind to look over the lay of our cattle. I don't know what could be wuss than their quittin' Chisum. I remember Maxwell tellin' Kurnel Ripple why he was sellin' oot. He knew."

"Now, Renn, I'm lookin' to you fer help. Our problem is to hold these cowboys. Can we do it? What effect will Russ Slaughter's quittin' Chisum have on them?"

"You may pay the penalty of hiring the rifraf of the ranges. They're most all bad, these cowboys, and some of them as bad as Slaughter. I'd say in the ordinary run of things your outfit would break under this deal. Then, of course, you'd suffer an enormous loss, perhaps ruin. It has happened before."

"Renn, thet night at the supper will you have a talk ready fer the boys?" flashed Britt.

"Old timer, you are back to the wall," said Frayne with his rare smile. "I'll do it, Britt. I'll take the hide off these cowboys."

Sunday was a lonesome day for the foreman, who likened himself to an old hen that had lost most of her brood of chickens.

Frayne, Tex and Mex Southard, Santone, Ride 'Em Jackson, and Cherry were around when José called them for meals. But the rest of the outfit had succumbed either to liquor or games of chance, or, according to Santone, to both these failings of cowboys.

On Monday the eastbound caravan pulled out with its wagons about half loaded. The departure of sixty-odd teamsters thinned the ranks of the crowd. But before that day had advanced far the vanguard of visitors to Don Carlos rancho began to arrive. By Tuesday, which was the date for the great fiesta, the ranch house was full of guests from all over the surrounding country.

About noon on Tuesday Britt thought it high time to inaugurate the proposed treatment of cowboys under the influence of liquor.

Brazos Keene and his faithful Laigs had been dead to the world for many hours. They were rudely awakened and hauled out of their bunks.

"Wot you hombres up to?" Brazos bawled furiously. They promptly roped him and carried him out like a lassoed bull.

"Boss, wot ya gonna do?"

"Brazos, you forgot the party tonight."

"No, I didn't, either," he protested. "Me an' Laigs come home early last night."

"Wal, you're too shaky to suit this vigilante ootfit. . . . Pile him in, boys."

"—— —— ——!" roared Brazos. "I'll kill somebody for this."

Laigs Mason was more complaisant.

"Wasser masser?" he asked stupidly, leering around at his captors.

"Wash Brazos raisin' —— hell aboot?"

"Laigs, come oot. We're takin' you on a little hay wagon ride."

Cherokee drove the wagon at a gallop over ground covered with loose bowlders. If cowboys hated anything it was to be jolted. They were bumped and tossed about. When one of them tried to jump or fall out he was promptly thrown back by Frayne and his allies. That ride down to the creek was hard enough even for the sober cowboys who could hold on. Cherry drive down upon a gravel bar to the edge of a green, clear pool about three feet deep.

"Brazos first!" yelled Britt.

They dragged the flaxen-haired cowboy out of the wagon and threw him in. Brazos went under and then bounded up with incredible speed.

"Aggh!" he bellowed. And the shock was so great that upon plunging back he went under again. Floundering and rolling, he got up to wade out like a drenched, shivering dog and as sober as he had ever been in his life.

"Come on, Laigs, take yore medicine," he shouted, bouncing around on the bar.

WHEN they rolled Laigs out upon the gravel he sat up with his solemn blinking eyes beginning to show intelligence.

"Wash thish, boys?"

"Grab hold and swing," called Frayne. Britt and Santone and Skylark laid hold of the cowboy, one to each arm and leg, and they swung him once, twice, three times, then let go. Laigs was small and light. He went far and fell with a tremendous splash. And when he came up like a spouting porpoise his breathless yell was echoed by the ruthless captors. That water must have been as cold as ice water. Laigs made terrific haste to plunge out. When he got ashore he was sober and madder than a wet hen.

"Take those guns," called Frayne as they dragged out the limp Bluegrass.

"Frayne, how's Blue goin' to take this?" queried Britt dubiously. "He's from Kentucky, you know!"

"He'll take it wet," declared Frayne with grim humor. "In with him, boys."

Bluegrass went in like a sack of lead and sank likewise. As he did not immediately burst up with a great splash, Britt yelled frantically for Brazos and Laigs to drag him out.

"S-say, I-I wouldn't wade in thet water even fer you, boss," declared the Texan, laboriously climbing into the wagon.

"Laigs! Pull Blue oot! Rustle!"

Whereupon the obliging Mason plunged in and rescued Bluegrass, pulling him out on the bar, where he presented alarming symptoms of unconsciousness.

"He's all right," declared Frayne. "I'll look after him. He's coming to now. Throw the rest of them in!"

Splash! splash! splash! went the remaining cowboys in succession, and with their bawls of shocked sensibilities and the infernal glee of Skylark and his helpers, they made the welkin ring.

Britt forgot to keep track of Brazos and Laigs. But in a moment more they made their presence known. Brazos lashed the horses and drove them at breakneck speed off the bar and up the slow slope.

"Wait fer us, boss," yelled Brazos from the wagon seat. "We're gonna come back with another load."

"Stop!" yelled Britt in stentorian tones.

"Go to hell, Cappy, you an' your baptisers," shouted Laigs gleefully. "We'll be back."

"Wal, Brazos turned the tables on us; we'll have to walk," declared Britt.

"I'll bet he'll come," said Frayne. "We'll have to wait till Blue recovers."

"Aw, Brazos will be heah pronto. Didn't you see thet devil in his eye? He's shore up to suthin'."

It developed that Bluegrass must have opened his mouth under water and had almost strangled. Frayne rolled him on his face, pounded and pumped his body until signs of life returned. His pale features took on a shade of red and he opened his eyes to stare at the faces bent over him.

"There, you're all right now, Blue," spoke up Britt with relief. "Air you sober?"

"I reckon . . ." He sat up, shivering. "Whose idee was this?"

"Mine," rejoined Britt, fearing the reaction of this hot-blooded Kentuckian.

"He's a liar, Blue," spoke up Frayne with a laugh. "It was my idea. I've seen it worked before. . . . You forgot we were all to be sober for Miss Ripple's fiesta tonight."

"Frayne, I'm holdin' you responsible."

"Sure. But don't be a damn fool, Blue," returned the outlaw easily.

"I'm gonna call you out for this," said Bluegrass doggedly.

"Blue, that'd be a poor return for the favor I've done you."

"Favor! Just what favor, mister?"

"Why, sobering you up. And saving your good name with Miss Ripple. If you get sore I'll have to shoot your arm off—or worse if you get ugly. That would put Miss Ripple against me. I was only working for her, for your good, and for all of us."

"I don't care a damn," yelled Blue, now red in the face. But he did care. "You gotta show me you can beat me to a gun."

"Blue, we took yore guns off, an' you bet we'll keep them," interposed Britt. "Swaller yore medicine, boy."

"Did you duck Brazos?"

"Wal, I should smile we did."

"An' how'd he take it?"

"Yelled murder. But he stole the wagon an' drove off, leavin' us heah to shank it back."

Bluegrass gazed from his partner Trinidad to the other shivering cowboys, and his face began to work.

"Doggone it! Do I look like them?"

"Wuss. You lay in the mud. An' you better let me wipe it off."

"All right. . . . Frayne, I lay down. But I'll play some orful trick on you, by thunder!"

"You're welcome, Blue," replied Frayne heartily. "I knew you were a good fellow. . . . Boys, you all want to take this to heart: If we don't pull together as an outfit, like brothers, like men with their backs to the wall, Miss Ripple will be robbed poor. And we'll be disgraced in our own eyes forever."

Skylark called from the bank, "Brazos's drivin' back hell bent fer election!"

THE cowboys, except Frayne and Blue, trooped behind Britt up the slope, all voicing anticipation. Sure enough, there came the bouncing wagon behind galloping horses and leaving a cloud of dust.

"Wonder who thet son of a gun has got?" demanded Britt with vast curiosity.

"I'll bet ten bucks I know."

"Boys, you can gamble Brazos would figger up suthin' great."

"That hombre always laughs last."

Brazos, whooping, his face like that of a red imp, drove down and, slowing the team, brought them with a fine flourish to a halt on the wide bar. He leaped out. His audience was not slow in reaching the tail end of that wagon. Britt saw Laigs Mason astride a man dressed in black. There was another man in the wagon. Brazos laid hold of his heels and hauled him out, to drop him on the sand like a sack of potatoes. This personage was Lee Taylor, whose visage attested to a debauch.

"Here yu air!" sang out Brazos, and with a remarkable exhibition of strength he lifted Taylor aloft above his head and, giving vent to an Indian yell, threw him into the pool. Whatever the southerner's condition on the moment of hitting the water, it was certain that when he lunged up in a great splash and floundered ashore he was not under the influence of anything but exceedingly cold water.

Blue of visage, shaking as one with the ague, drenched and disheveled, Taylor fronted Britt.

"S-so this is h-h-how you let your ruffianly cowboys treat a gentleman?"

"Only fun, Taylor. An' at thet you needed it," replied Britt dryly.

"Say, who's a ruffian an' who's a gentleman?" queried Brazos menacingly. The diabolical fun in him suffered a blight. Britt quietly pushed Taylor back to the rear.

"Let him up, Laigs!" shouted Brazos.

Britt wheeled in time to see the gambler, Malcolm Lascelles, arise clumsily from the floor of the wagon. His frock coat and flowered vest were spoiled by contact with dust. His wide, flat-crowned sombrero was not in evidence. His handsome face was streaked with dirt and distorted by rage.

Lascelles jumped down, his action proving that his equilibrium was not perfect.

"Britt, what's the meaning of this outrage?" he demanded.

"I don't know, Lascelles. We treated Brazos an' Mason to a duckin'. They stole the wagon an' drove away. Why you're heah I don't savvy, but it wasn't from order of mine."

"Damnable outrage!" fumed Lascelles. "These drunken louts of yours——"

"Take care, Lascelles," interrupted Britt. "I warn you."

"But this range is free. A man has a right to his liberty."

"Shore. But there's no law heah. An' if a man doesn't measure up to what the frontier expects he's liable to lose not only freedom but life."

"You're one with your crew," snarled Lascelles malignantly. "I am Miss Ripple's guest—an old friend—and you dare insult me."

Brazos stepped up. "Boss, I reckon this is my deal," he interposed coolly.

"It shore is, Brazos. But you're sober now. Use your haid."

Laigs Mason edged his ludicrous little misshapen form in beside Brazos. His homely face expressed an untamed and unabatable fidelity to his partner.

"Don't weaken, Brazos. This caird sharp stinks of rum."

"Shet up. Lemme do the talkin' heah," snapped Brazos, and then he fastened those piercing half slits of eyes on the gambler.

"Lascelles, my idee was to duck yu along with yore southern gent friend," said Brazos. "Reckon I don't often explain my action toward any hombre who makes me sore. But I'm tellin' yu. Miss Holly ast us to be sober today. Thet's why Frayne an' Britt hatched up this duckin' idee. Wal, it is a plumb good one, an' I'll be —— —— if I'm gonna let her see yu at her party drunk——"

"I'm not drunk," protested Lascelles.

"Aw, you're a liar. Yu been drunk fer a week. Right now, as Laigs heah swears, yu stink of rum. An' my idee was to give you a cold bath. Gonna take yore medicine?"

"No, you heathen rowdy. Don't you dare lay another hand on me."

"Ah-huh. . . . Wal, my idee grows a little," returned Brazos with a cool insolence that Britt had learned to gauge. "I jest happened to remember how yu fleeced Laigs oot of half a month's wages."

"I did not. My game is square," declared Lascelles stoutly, though he paled slightly. No doubt he had been long enough on the frontier to find out what was meted out to crooked gamblers.

"How about it, Laigs?"

"Pard, I couldn't swear I seen him, 'cause my eyes was pore," admitted Mason frankly. "But Sky seen him hold oot on me, an Ride 'Em seen him, too."

"Boys, is thet so?"

"Yes, it's so," declared Skylark curtly.

THE little Negro rolled his big eyes till the whites showed. He was reluctant. He remembered the southern attitude toward his race. But he was also loyal.

"Brazos, jest how slick Mistah Lascelles is I dunno. But I sho' seen him pull tricks thet Laigs hisself can pull when he's sober."

"Lascelles, now what?"

"You're a Texan. Can you believe a nigger against a white man?"

"You bet yore life—when I know the nigger. Jackson isn't a liar. Cowboys don't lie—when they're in earnest."

"You're as low-down as they are," retorted Lascelles, yielding to a passion that perhaps did not rightly interpret the cowboy's coolness. "That's the last straw—you take a nigger's word to mine. I'll shoot him. And I'll recommend to Miss Ripple that she discharge you."

"Fine. You'll get a long way, especially with thet first bluff," rang out Brazos. Then with incredible rapidity he launched a terrific blow upon Lascelless. Following a sharp, solid crack the gambler fell backward to measure his length in the pool. All save his head went under. In contrast to the others who had been immersed in that icy current, his motions were slow and deliberate. When he strode ashore, his right hand inside his coat, all the cowboys except Laigs sheered to either side of Brazos. Britt himself leaped instinctively out of line. All saw Lascelles' white, supple hand close around something which could only be a gun. Gamblers seldom packed a gun on their hips, but they always had one, or a derringer, up their sleeves or inside the coat, concealed but easy to draw. And there stood Brazos and Laigs, unarmed.

"Look oot!" warned Britt, reaching for his weapon, which he had left on the table in the bunkhouse. The moment was terrible. Out of a clear sky the thunderbolt!

"Lascelles, don't draw!"

Even the maddened gambler stiffened at Frayne's voice. Britt suddenly relaxed with a strong revulsion of feeling and the sweat broke out over his cold skin. And he knew what to expect before he turned. Frayne leaned back against the wagon with a gun leveled low.

"Let go. . . . Come out."

Lascelles' hand dropped limply from under his coat, and with a repulsive face, dirty gray and livid white, he stepped out of the water.

An Open Letter to Rudy Vallee

Dear Rudy: There are many ways in which we are called upon to pay; some of them are related to money, but by no means all. We are often tempted to say we will pay later, in any or all of these ways, in order to postpone the day of reckoning. Such are the temptations which will continue to be with you for the coming several years, so watch the legal angle on everything. It is easier to stay out of trouble than to try to get out of it later. With best wishes.

Acid In Your Blood Kills Health and Pep Kidneys Often to Blame

There is nothing that can so quickly undermine your health, strength, and energy as an excess of Acid in your blood. Every time you move your hand, take a step, or use even the slightest amount of energy, cells are broken down in the body and create Acids. This process goes on even when you are asleep.

Fortunately, nature has provided an automatic method of getting rid of these excess Acids. To get rid of these Acids nature provides that your blood circulate 200 times an hour through 9 million tiny, delicate tubes, or filters, in your Kidneys. It is the function of the Kidneys to filter out these health-destroying Acids, and to purify the blood so that it can take energy and vitality to every part of your body. But if your Kidneys slow down and do not function properly, and remove approximately 3 pints of Acids, Poisons and liquids from your blood every 24 hours, then there is a gradual accumulation of these Acids and Wastes, and slowly but surely your system becomes poisoned, making you feel old before your time, rundown, and worn-out.

Causes Many Ills

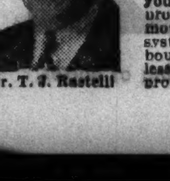
If poorly functioning Kidneys cause you to suffer from Acidity, Getting Up Nights, Nervousness, Leg Pains, Dizziness, Frequent Headaches, Rheumatic Pains, Swollen Joints, Circles Under Eyes, Backache, Loss of Vitality, or Burning, Itching and Smarting, don't waste time worrying and waiting. The natural thing to do is to help your Kidneys with the doctor's special, guaranteed Kidney diuretic prescription called Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex). Cystex works directly on the Kidneys and Bladder, and helps the Kidneys in their function of washing impurities and Acids from the system and in maintaining the purity of the blood. Don't try to overcome Acidity in your blood by taking medicines to offset the Acidity. The only way you can really get rid of the Acidity is by helping your kidneys to function properly and thus remove the Acid from your system. The Acid is bound to stay there, unless the Kidneys function properly.



Dr. T. J. Rastelli

Thousands of druggists and doctors in over 22 different countries throughout the world recommend Cystex for its purity and prompt action as a Kidney diuretic. For instance, Dr. T. J. Rastelli, famous Doctor, Surgeon, and Scientist, of London, says: "Cystex is one of the finest remedies I have ever known in my medical practice. Any doctor will recommend it for its definite benefit in the treatment of many functional Kidney and Bladder disorders. It is safe and harmless." Dr. C. Z. Rendelle, another widely known physician and Medical Examiner, of San Francisco, recently said: "Since the Kidneys purify the blood, the Poisons collect in these organs and must be promptly flushed from the system, otherwise they re-enter the blood stream and create a toxic condition. I can truthfully rcommend the use of Cystex."

Guaranteed to Work

Because of its world-wide and unusual success, Cystex is offered under a written guarantee to do the work to your complete satisfaction in 8 days or money back on return of empty package. Under this written guarantee you can put Cystex to the test and see exactly what it can do in your particular case. You must feel younger, stronger and better than you have in a long time—you must feel that Cystex has done the work thoroughly and completely, or you merely return the empty package and it costs you nothing. You are the sole judge of your own satisfaction. With Cystex there is no long waiting for results, because it is scientifically prepared to act directly on the Kidneys as a diuretic. For that reason most people report a remarkable improvement within the first 48 hours, and complete satisfaction within 8 days. Cystex costs only 3c a dose at druggists, and as the guarantee protects you completely, you should not take chances with cheap inferior or irritating drugs or delay. Telephone your druggist for guaranteed Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex) today.

Millions Celebrate Aga Khan's Jubilee

Race Horse Owner and Holy Man

By LLOYD FANGEL

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

London.

ALL OVER the world more than seventy million people are celebrating this year the golden jubilee of their spiritual leader, with more than 100,000,000 in India alone recognizing him as their political head. During ceremonial fêtes last month tens of thousands were fed at his palace daily; his scented bath water was sprinkled over great masses of his followers, as his holy blessing, and from one end of the world to the other he was proclaimed and worshiped as the direct descendant of the prophet Mohammed.

This man is the Aga Khan, Sultan Mohammed Shah. People know him as a religious chief, a race horse owner, a diplomat, a millionaire. Few people, indeed, have such widely different facets to their lives; few show to such a great extent the meeting of the east and the west, and no other person without temporal authority can claim such international influence, for while the sphere of the Aga Khan's power includes Africa, Arabia, central Asia, and the orient, he has not even an acre to rule over.

He is the spiritual leader of the Ismaili sect, one of the two great divisions of the Mohammedan faith. This is because he is the forty-eighth direct descendant of Fatima, the daughter of Mohammed. Besides the tremendous religious following among the members of this sect, the Aga Khan has, through his championing the problems and troubles of the downtrodden members of others sects and oriental faiths, come to be regarded as the political leader of all Moslems.

Today his headquarters are in India. This is a more or less new development, for his family is Persian and not Indian. It was his grandfather, Aga Khan I., who left Persia, where he had been governor of a province under the shah. The prime minister had demanded unjust revenues from the aga's province, and civil war followed, during which the aga was captured, released, and finally allowed to escape from the country. He fled to Afghanistan and offered his services to the British. who then knew very little about the old man.

After he had settled in Bombay they began to discover things which amazed them, and they took more and more interest in him. They found out that in the outlying parts of India there were considerable communities which not only recognized him as their spiritual chief, but regularly sent him tribute, of their own free will. As time went on it was learned that his followers were to be found in almost every country of the orient, central Asia, the near east, and even Africa, and that all gave him a definite part of their annual incomes or possessions in kind.

Realizing that "such popularity must be deserved," and that such influence might come in very handy, the British showed him all sorts of favors, in order to keep the aga close at hand, where he could be called upon at any time of need.

He finally died during the '80s and was succeeded by his son, who lived but four years, and upon his death the power passed to the present Aga Khan, who was at that time but 8 years old.

His education was carried on in the fashion most suitable to one of his position; to the ancient culture and religious training of the orient was added the knowledge of the western world that would make of him the international—or rather, nonnational—leader necessary to the sect of which he was the hereditary head. His mother, a Persian princess, was stern and Spartan with him, refusing to save him from punishment or reprimands when he had merited them. When one of the boy's tutors hit him overstrongly on one occasion, just as the mother entered the apartment, he fell on his knees and begged her forgiveness. She forgave him immediately, saying, "It is better to have a dead son than an ignoramus," and bade the tutor continue the lesson.

Before he was out of his teens he was called upon to act in his capacity of leader of the sect. When the Hindu-Mohammedan riots broke out in Bombay in 1893, the oriental masses were caught up in a sudden whirlwind of popular unrest, which threatened to become a widespread race war. The aga immediately gave peremptory orders to his followers that they were not to enter into the sanguinary racial quarrel. They obeyed him so faithfully, boy though he was, that they actually sheltered in their own houses Hindus who were apprehensive for their lives.

Thanks to the strenuous exertions of the aga this storm left the Ismailis untouched. Another great crisis faced him when he was just twenty.

A plague broke out in India in 1897. Nothing would induce the ignorant masses to be inoculated with the protective serum. The death roll mounted higher and higher.

The Aga Khan faced social ostracism to induce the people to be inoculated. He called the leaders of his community together, and explained to them the virtues of the hated serum. To their horror, at first, he submitted his own body to the needle in their presence and on several subsequent occasions. By undergoing this operation, and by traveling around to many of the centers of his community he succeeded in breaking down the distrust for Haffkine's inoculation, and a change of opinion was thus brought about so that the people used the serum as one of the chief weapons for fighting the disease themselves.

One of the main reasons for the great trust in the young aga was the fact that the Ismailis knew him to be devout, and a firm believer in their faith. They had seen him beating his breast in public—not breast beating as you may imagine it, but the eastern version.

Hundreds upon hundreds, their bodies bare to the waist, fling their arms out in drill-like, rhythmic unison, and bring them with a deafening clap onto their breasts until the blood flows—and many a time the aga was seen among his followers, in the devout self-chastising crowds, prostrating himself as humbly as the men about him.

So he grew up, more as a prelate than as a prince, and all the time millions of dollars were pouring into his coffers, as tribute from the members of his faith, from those who regarded him as their leader on earth. It came then, as it still comes today, from the small traders all over the world, from those who form a large proportion of the millions of Ismailis in every part of the east. It knew, and knows, no national boundaries.

From the bazars and the factories and the tents and the warehouses, from Zanzibar, from Persia, from what is now Iraq, from Muscat, eastern Arabia, Sind, Syria, Morocco, and even from South Shields on the mouth of the River Tyne in England, the tribute came. It was collected in the orient by local officers called Mukhis, and by the Kamurias, then to be sent to India, to be stored in the Aga hall at Bombay. Each Ismaili sent what he considered most precious—jewels, furs, perfumes, gold, silks.

Even in Egypt the aga had great power, for his direct ancestors were founders of Cairo, the Beni-Fatimite Caliphs—Bene-Fatimite means the sons of Fatima, the daughter of Mohammed.

At the end of the nineteenth century he married his cousin, the Shahzada Begum, who died two years ago in India. This marriage proved childless as well as unhappy and they were soon separated. It is a tenet of the Moselm faith that a man may have three wives, but he must produce an heir, so the Aga Khan came to England and Europe, and began looking about for another wife.

This search was destined to be interrupted soon after his arrival in England by a crisis which again showed the great control he had over all those who recognized him as either their spiritual or their political leader.

A section of his followers had seceded from his authority to the other branch of Mohammedanism, the Sunis, and three of the backsliding Shiahs were murdered by their fellow religionists, those of his sect. Few people realized then how dangerously things were developing. It wanted only a bit more to set thousands of Mohammedans in India at each other's throats in a holy war, and if this came about, then what would happen to India?

Immediately the aga called the leading Shiahs together, excommunicated the murderers, and forbade them burial rights—a terrible, double-barreled curse. Then he made a speech in which he told them that should any Shiah ever again raise his hand in religious killing, he would resign his leadership of the Ismaili Shiahs—which took considerable courage of his own convictions, for with his position went the millions of annual tribute.

The trouble subsided, and the aga began a whirl through the social and diplomatic circles of England and the continent. He carried on the love of race horses that had kept his grandfather happy in India, and built up a fine stud and stable. He bought estates in Ireland, England, and on the Riviera. Already he had his palaces and tremendous estates in India and Persia, so that he soon had a staf of servants numbering well over a thousand, spread about at his different homes.

Then, in 1908, he met and married the Italian princess, Theresa. She had for years lived in London, and had traveled over the continent studying art. Her artistic specialty was scuplture, and she had exhibited at the London Royal academy, and also in Paris, Brussels, and Italy.

Three years later she bore a son, the Aly Khan, who was to be the heir to the position and prestige of the aga. Much was hoped for the future of his son, but as years went by it became more and more evident that his tremendous income, his sophistication, and the ways of the western world gave fair promise of proving him not quite the man for the job.

He was educated in India as well as in England, for the aga thought his son should understand both sides of the Indian question, so that he would be able to carry on the work of ameliorating conditions for the Hindus and Mohammedans. There was much to be learned, in order to understand what should be done among the people of India in their own communities, as well as what might be done to bring them more freedom by means of getting more of a status of equality with the other dominions of the British Empire.

This was what the Aga Khan was fighting for, and he realized that one of the main causes of the Moslem backwardness was the general ignorance of the people. Hoping to raise the standard of education among the masses, he went about throughout India, establishing schools, medical centers, and the like, using much of the great revenue which was coming in to him every year. He personally collected more than $1,000,000 to raise the Mohammedan Anglo-Oriental college at Aligarh to university status, an aim long delayed, which did not come to realization until after the war, in 1920.

In 1906 he had headed the Moslem deputation to Lord Minton, then viceroy of India, which submitted the case for encouraging and guiding abandonment of the studied aloofness of the community from the political life of the country. Of the All-India Moslem thereupon formed he was the president during the first constructive years. His liberality of view, as evidenced by his efforts to abolish the pariahs, or depressed classes, and his support of Indian political aspirations generally gave him great influence among the educated classes as well as with the downtrodden masses.

Beginning with those who had recognized him as their spiritual head, his following increased until there were millions of all faiths who looked to him as their political champion.

He was one of the first Mohammedans of position in India to urge the abolition of the purdah system—by which women of rank were secluded and hidden from the view of strangers. Later, in connection with the Montagu-Chelmsford reforms, he strongly supported the movement for extending the franchise in India to women.

During all this time the Aga Khan had been traveling in Asia, in East and South Africa, and still more frequently in Europe, with most parts of which he is familiar. In Asia and Africa he contacted the large groups of the followers of his faith, and strengthened his control over the entire sect, so that he could depend upon them in any crisis.

In this way he became more than ever a person that the British wished to have on their side, so to speak. His influence, both direct and indirect, did much to promote and maintain good relations between Europe and the east, for his contacts and his education made him understand and appreciate the life and thought of the west as well as that of the east.

It was when war broke out between Turkey and Italy, and also in the Balkans, that the British government turned to him for help. Indian Moslem sentiment was greatly perturbed in respect to Ottoman losses. At the risk of personal unpopularity the Aga Khan assured his followers that there was no question of racial or religious conflict and did much to soothe these feelings and bring to his fellow Moslems a sense of proportion.

At the outbreak of the world war he was traveling among his followers in East Africa. Britain immediately called for his support, and he cabled to the jamats [councils] of the millions of Ismailis within and on the borders of British territories, stressing the obligation to remain loyal to the British crown.

He came directly to London, where Lord Kitchener reserved him for services that he felt no other person could render. When Turkey was drawn into the struggle on the side of Germany, there was much concern as to the effect on the views of the Moslems throughout the empire. The aga immediately issued a stirring manifesto showing that the allies had no overt designs on Islam, and calling upon the Moslems of the empire to remain loyal and faithful to their temporal allegiance. His immediate followers gave whole-hearted support to Britain, and these were most effective in leading other wavering members of Islam over to the side of the allies.

Play, however, had to come into the life of the Aga Khan after the trials of the war. Pleasure he had, as much as his millions in income could pay for, and the newly gained prestige among the British caused his society to be sought for by every one he might have ever hoped for. Though he made a practice of spending four months of the year in India, the rest of the time he watched over his racing stables in France, England, and Ireland, and went from one resort to another.

In 1926 his wife, Princess Theresa, died, and was buried beside her firstborn child in the family vault in Monaco. This infant had died shortly after birth, some time before Aly Khan came into the world.

For three years Aga continued his work, and his pleasure. He took part in the various meetings of the league of nations, and continued fighting for the recognition of India.

Time after time he represented the views of his followers to the other nations at Lausanne, Geneva, and to Great Britain in both London and India. For his strenuous work for the sake of peace a unanimous vote was passed in 1924 by the upper house of British-India, the council of state recommending that the governor general in council convey to the Norwegian parliament the view that "H. H. the Aga Khan is a fit and proper person to be awarded the Nobel peace prize."

In 1929 great excitement was caused by his third marriage. This time he chose a French couturiere, Mlle. Andrée Carron, daughter of a hotel manager from southern France. Imagination and gossip went wild with the Cinderella story, and before long there were so many rumors and trumped up stories about his new bride that it was hard to tell who she was and what she had been. Some had it that she had been a pastry cook, and that the aga had led a long string of turbaned, present-bearing servants into her kitchen after tasting one of her cakes—but the story given out by the aga and his bride was quite different.

He had known her before his second wife, Theresa, died, and had been a "friend of the family" for many years. The fact that they were married in the mairie, or town hall, of Aix-les-Bains, in the French Alps, without pomp and ceremony, surprised every one, for it had been expected that there would be much oriental splendor attached to the wedding.

The new begum—that being the title given to the aga's wife—made a lovely hostess for the lavish entertaining carried on in every country they visited or lived in. She was tall, beautiful, well groomed, and a charming conversationalist. Her presentation at court to the queen of England, in May of 1930, was the topic of conversation for weeks, for she wore a tiara of huge diamonds more magnificent than any seen for many a day in the western world.

The following month the Aga Khan realized one of the ambitions that he had held since childhood. His horse Blenheim won the Derby!

One of the features of the Aga Khan's jubilee was the balancing of his weight, about 220 pounds, against an equal weight of gold—valued at about $75,000. Part of this sum was distributed among the poor.

It's a Poor Day That Doesn't Bring at Least Two Lecturers to Chicago.

By Cousin Eve.

A STRANGE season of snow and more snow. It seems we have a corner in snow, for the winter sport places of Europe lie bare under wintry winds.

At Kitzbuehl in the Austrian Alps, smart winter rendezvous, there is no snow at all. It landed here instead. Political wiseacres, believing in signs and symbols, say these banks of snow mean bumper hay crops; which means that grass roots are flourishing. Under our deep drifts and snowpiles millions upon millions of grass roots are waiting for April days.

Another curious phase of our winter—we are in danger of being talked to death. It is a poor day without two good lecturers. One hundred and sixty-seven lecturers from England alone are swarming over our land. And not one propagandist from us to England!

William Phillips Defends Our Foreign Policy.

Our lion of last week was Hon. William Phillips, assistant secretary of state, a splendid looking, upstanding American type, who remarked that he had been thirty years in the state department. His evening talk created a great flurry last Saturday. He came to address the Foreign Relations council. I was warned to be sure and see him and attend the luncheon in order to admire his extra special good looks, even if his address should not quite prove to be raw meat. "You mean he is 'beautiful but dumb'?" I inquired.

"Not at all," said my well wisher, who went on to say that an assistant secretary of state, whose wife is related to the chief executive, would serve things with conservative sauce.

Clifton Utley and Mary de Coningh, who run these shows, arranged a cocktail party before luncheon, where the men who were to sit at table with the assistant secretary could have a chat. Adlai Stevenson, president of the council, did the honors, and others were Dr. Samuel Harper, Barrett Wendell, Quincy Wright, Gen. Frank McCoy, Harold Amberg, and a dozen more.

America Stands Firm for Open Door in Orient.

Mr. Phillips' talk was, in effect, an answer to William R. Castle, who intimated strongly when he spoke here in December that the United States had no foreign policy. So upon a magic carpet Mr. Phillips whirled us hither and yon. To the five power naval conference in London, which is running now on only four cylinders, Japan having bolted. Their theory of a common upper limit of armament which would cause England, France, Italy, and the U. S. A. to scrap was rejected.

Then we flew to the orient, where the speaker remarked that the tide of nationalism was riding high, and where the United States still is standing for that principle of equal commercial opportunity, the open door in China. From China to Montevideo, where we heard of Secretary of State Hull's successful visit and resultant better feeling among the republics of America. And also of President Roosevelt's recent personal note writing with the central and southern republics in regard to a peace conference among us American peoples.

Next we landed in Russia and heard that the state department had not been pleased with the goings-on of the seventh international at Moscow, which presumably were entirely contrary to the promises of the Soviet union prior to recognition by us.

Phillips Strongly Advocates Trade Agreements.

From here we skipped to trade agreements, which was by far the most interesting part of the address. We already knew that in 1934 the United States had become a creditor nation and that all was not well with our export trade, and that the result would be a much lower standard of life. Trade agreements seem to Mr. Phillips the solution. Offering concessions, abating duties to open our markets, with the most favored nation policy in the offing. Among these are Sweden, Switzerland, Nicaragua, Brazil, Belgium, the Netherlands, Canada, and more in the making.

I found the address highly interesting, and the assistant secretary of state, who has been minister to Belgium, Canada, and Holland, not only handsome but distinguished.

One Stayed and Stayed at Walter Kirk's Tea.

Gen. and Mrs. McCoy invited a few friends who were lunching there to take tea at their residence, 190 East Chestnut street, at 5 o'clock. Mr. Phillips, an old friend, would be there. Among the many lunching, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Ballard and Olive Moore, friends of William Phillips, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Paul Welling, Countess Cardelli, Mrs. William Baum, Mrs. John Crerar, Mrs. David Cooke Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, William P. Sidley, Mrs. Philo Otis.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kirk's large tea at 5 o'clock was in honor of Maj. and Mrs. Melvin Hall. It was one of those parties where you go in for a minute and stay two hours. A great stream of attractive people kept coming in while you reminded yourself that etiquet requires one to leave some time. Yet one kept putting off the evil hour of going until very late.

Mrs. Kirk in black velvet house gown; Mrs. Hall, the tall, charming Josephine Johnson that was, in street costume and hat. Around the fireplace of this white and pale blue living room, the entire chimney piece is paneled in glass, giving a most fascinating effect of moving faces and figures under highly exotic hats. Mrs. Bruce Borland was looking chic and handsome in tailleur; Mrs. James Ward Thorne in green of sea water and foxy furs; Mrs. Joseph Ryerson, too, in green; Mrs. Robert Dunham in black, and several other guests wearing those funny little peaked Chinese hats in bright colors like a beret gone crazy. Mrs. Orville Taylor was under a jade green one.

David Payne Paints Portraits of Rooms.

Betty Field had an interesting young man in her wake—there is always something new under the sun—David Payne, a portrait painter. But not of human beings—of rooms in houses. I was greatly intrigued by the idea, not so much of painting rooms but of finding customers who had rooms they wanted painted. But Mr. Payne said that was easy. Several women in Lake Forest have rooms they want perpetuated—Mrs. Laurance Armour's boudoir and three others whose names I can't seem to remember. While Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson has a Chinese living room, which, as her friends all know, is perfection. Mrs. Kirk's own room deserves to have its portrait painted. The women who were leaving their minks upstairs were speechless over its perfection of taste plus simplicity. Palest sea green, tapis and all, and no cluttering laces at the windows to shut out the vista of the lake, only volets and straight brocade hangings.

I had news some time ago that Alexander Kirk, councilor of embassy at Rome, and his handsome mother, Mrs. James Kirk, would be home in April. The councilor has done ambassadorial duty off and on for many months in Rome without a vacation, and now he means to have one. They have a huge, untenanted house at Georgetown, but they are coming to Chicago, probably with a great retinue of Italian servitors.

Miss Driscoll's Slides Show Art of Korea.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter celebrated Monday the eve of their departure for England by a reception for Friends of China. Their Chinese living room, 1020 Lake Shore drive, had rows of chairs and a screen ready for the pièce de résistance. This was a talk by Miss Lucy Driscoll on what she had seen last summer in Japan, Korea, and China illustrated.

Mrs. William Hale received with Mrs. Carpenter and there was unusual excitement over what Miss Driscoll called "a family party." She is a witty creature, and spoke as she listed of this and that in a most entertaining and artistic way. Her slides were beautiful and she exclaimed herself, ravished with the loveliness of some not seen before. The talk was largely of Korean art being rapidly dug up by the Japanese—a whole Han civilization down in the south. Korea, it seems, is as long as Italy and full of Buddhist temples on mountain tops of infinite magnificence. Of buried tombs, with ante-chambers as crammed with ceremonial beauty as King Tut's tomb in faraway Egypt.

The art of the ancient Chinese is a compelling art—it lives after 4,000 years, vivid, glorious. Ancient carvings of women, tall, gracefully draped in trailing dresses, hair coiffed high, jeweled necklaces, and hands of infinite beauty. Funny little men with such canny faces.

Dared Peiping and Found It Tranquil.

Miss Driscoll heard there were dire doings in Peiping, but she followed Harley McNair's advice to go forward if she heard the worst, and hurried there, finding peace and tranquility. She "lived Chinese" for many months and had friendships with the high literary and artistic world of the old capital. She visited Mrs. Calhoun, and found her temple "the most beautiful house in the world." She called at Col. Isaac Newell's, and his No. 1 boy persisted in showing her the precise spot where John Alden Carpenter's piano stood last spring. It was a grand party, many men present. Mrs. Charles Dempster, Miss Frances Whedon, Mrs. William B. Greenlee, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Harley McNair, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mrs. Paul Welling, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Quincy Wright, and Mrs. Dallas Phemister were among the many.

Hot mulled wine was the stirrup cup that cheered guests on their subzero ways. That same evening Herbert Bradley was the central attraction at the Cercle Français party, chez Mrs. Westover Channon in Astor street. He was to speak, with slides, on the high lights of his three African safaris. Here again were rows of gilt chairs, a receiving party, which included Mrs. Harold Sperling, president of the cercle; Mrs. Channon, and Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick.

Channon's Son a Neighbor of the Duke of Kent.

Over the chimney piece was an English election poster of Harry Channon about a foot square, in green, black, and white, a photograph of the son of the house, who has become British and ran successfully for parliament.

Nearby is a large photograph of Harry's new son and heir, a big eyed baby with tiny, pointed chin, in the arms of his mother, who was Lady Eileen Guinness. This child has just been christened in the Channons' newly done house in Belgrave square, No. 5. The duke and duchess of Kent live at No. 3. Lord Iveagh bought this house for his daughter. It is a fine three story and basement cream stucco with large windows, one of several in the row.

In front are the high trees of the park which hide similar houses of opposite neighbors. At the foot of Belgrave square, in Belgrave place, is a pretty two storied house, bought last year by Mrs. Rosemary Baur Bull, whose husband also has been elected to parliament.

Herbert Bradley's talk I have heard three times, which is high praise for any talk. It points a moral. For after seeing savages galore, lions alive and dead, gorillas in and out of action, pigmies with poisoned arrows, and cannibals yerning for proteins, one always knows that Herbert will wind up by saying that darkest Africa is safer and quieter than Chicago. He even tells of his debate with the cannibal who asks him "Do they kill people in Chicago?"

"I'll say we do," replies Mr. Bradley. Whereupon the cannibal says "And you kill to eat?"

"No," replies Mr. Bradley shamefacedly, "they are killed by those who take their money, their property." This the savage considers unethical, immoral, incomprehensible.

Africa is slipping fast, according to Herbert Bradley. Concrete roads everywhere, and the wild animals dying off. His pictures are fascinating, especially the mountains of Gorilla land. A large crowd flattered Mr. Bradley by its size and enthusiasm. Mrs. René Weiller presided at the supper table, and some of the army set was out. Col. and Mrs. William Graham, Col. and Mrs. Thuis, Mrs. McCoy, Mrs. Arthur Small, Mrs. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. Ralph James, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Miss Mary West, Albert Colfs of Brussels, Mrs. Andrew Sheriff, and Robert Hall McCormick.

Miss Curtis Type of Woman Who Might Occupy White House.

To a dove dinner last week. Expecting a bit of dullness, I was carried away by the brilliancy of Miss Cathrine Curtis of New York, out for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's third Woman congress. Her title is enough to frighten one forever—"National Director of Woman Investors in America." It has, however, nothing to do with stocks and bonds, but with citizenship, freedom, investments of life in our own country.

Many people think Miss Curtis the foremost woman in America. I thought while looking at her that in time to come such a woman might occupy the White House. From New England, she is a splendid Diana and Minerva in one. Tall and upright, with thick bands of dark hair and dark eyes under long, level brows, she has noble features and the poise of a goddess. At one time she owned and operated a ranch in Arizona. Later she produced a movie, "Sky Pilot."

When she speaks every one listens. Miss Curtis has "woman investors" in twenty-eight states of the Union. On Monday she spoke at Mrs. Walter Strong's in Winnetka, where she is visiting. She has also lunched with the Tiffany Blakes and dined with Mrs. Jacob Baur. She will return to Chicago soon.

Ruth Page's Dances a Delightful Recreation.

It was a frigid Friday at the Fortnightly, and one felt agreeably dissipated to be at Ruth Page's matinée of the dance. To be followed by luncheon. It was one of those days when you toss care to the winds, saying, "Heck, I am fed up with being highbrow and all this horrible pother down in Washington—and am going forth to tear up some turf."

The ballroom had an aroma of mothballs from a gorgeous oriental rug loaned for the dance by a nice Armenian. This dance recital was the best thing Ruth Page does. Her pianist played varying accompaniments, and the noted danseuse skipped on in numerous rôles, that of a tight rope walker with her maid; a nou-nou in gray uniform and veil with her nursling; a stunning figure in dark blue tulle skirts fencing with two rapiers. A dying swan act, a gypsy, and other coquetteries where she wore simpering masks and blonde wigs. In private life Ruth Page is the wife of Thomas Fisher.

It was a charming show and I had for neighbors Irene Wilson, out from her home at Westbrook, Conn., for the Schweppe-Armour wedding yesterday in Lake Forest. She is staying with Mrs. Paul Noyes in Scott street, and one heard more funny stories from her at luncheon than one has heard all winter.

Plutocrats Have Too Many Servants for Their Hosts.

It seems that some literary people living on the north shore of Long Island sound, in a small house, went abroad. On their return trip they became great friends with a family of plutocrats, and invited them to the country cottage for the week-end. These gilded guests came from New York by yacht. But alas! the boat was too large and the harbor too small to receive them, so the yacht raced back to the city. Next they came in a defile of magnificent foreign automobiles, full of family and maids, valets, couriers, chauffeurs, lap dogs, but the literary cottage was far too small to accommodate them. So the village was filled with huge men servants leaning against fences, and displeased French maids shrugging their shoulders over the social fantasies of their masters.

Signora Rossetti Agresti, niece of Dante Gabriel Rossetti, arrives in town on Feb. 28 and will visit Mrs. Francis Junkin at Drake Towers. English is her mother tongue and she is a flaming speaker, they say. She will address the Italy-America society here as she did in Washington, counting the Italian ambassador, Augusto Rosso, among her hearers, and his large embassy staf of counts, marcheses, and princes.

JUNIOR LEAGUE STAR

Miss Katherine Daniels, daughter of Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair, is a Smith college alumna and therefore is interested in all the activities of the Smith club here. She also is one of the Chicago Junior League's most talented actresses. Miss Daniels has a tiny little house at Wayne where she spends nearly every week-end.

Yarn Will Make or Mar Lines of Crochet Garment

By Ellen Bruce.

THE success or failure of any crocheted garment depends in part on the common sense of the individual and the yarn saleswoman, and not altogether on the instructions.

The smart summer blouse illustrated today is one of the prime favorites among thoughtful and successful crochet workers because of its beauty when completed. The yoke with the three bands of mesh down the front has all the charm and style of "a little import." To achieve the smartness of the original the crochet workers should use only the yarn mentioned in the instructions or yarns which are known to be interchangeable.

The crochet worker must also be conversant with the terms of crochet work before buying yarn and undertaking a garment which uses a stitch other than the usual single, double, and treble crochet. Last, but not least, a sample of the stitches should be made to determine the gauge and tension of the work done by the individual and to compare her work with the gauge and tension given by the instructions. This homily is occasioned by the disappointment of one crochet worker who complained that her blouse was not as attractive as the illustration. She also mentioned that she used white Germantown for a filet blouse when the instructions definitly stated fine linen or cotton. It is an experience such as this which shows just how careful one must be.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instruction for crocheting the blouse with mesh yoke illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Outstanding Questions of Week Concern a Variety of Common Problems.

Miss Bartlett will be glad to answer questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior. For a personal reply, inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your letter.

By Helen Bartlett.

FOLLOWING are the outstanding questions of the week:

Mr. G. H. writes: "Is it correct to eat chicken with the fingers?"

In the privacy of one's own dining room, perhaps. But certainly never in public or in the presence of guests.

Miss O. N. wants to know: "Do brides wear jewelry?"

The answer is only a little. A simple string of pearls, for instance, would be proper, but the bride should use extreme caution in selecting jewelry to wear on her wedding day. A bridal costume usually is so glamorous that jewelry is superfluous. If the bridegroom presents the bride with a necklace, bracelet, or brooch as a wedding gift, she might wear that.

"My husband and I received a gift from the members of a club to which my husband belongs. This, of course, must be acknowledged. But to whom should the note be sent?"

MRS. K. L.

The "thank-you" note should be addressed to the attention of the secretary of the club. In the body of the letter you can ask this officer to relay your message to all of the members. He will do this by reading the letter publicly at the next business meeting of the organization.

"When sherbet is served with the main course of dinner, what piece of silver is used with it?" Question sent by Mrs. O. T.

This problem always produces a friendly argument among etiquet authorities. So, to avoid active battle, we are forced to say that either the spoon or dinner fork is correct. The logical implement is the spoon, but since the little sherbet cup is not placed on a little saucer when it is served, if a spoon is used there is nothing to be done with it when it is not in use except to leave it standing upright in the sherbet cup. The soiled spoon definitly cannot be rested on the table cloth. We are in sympathy with the point of view that the spoon standing in the cup is decidedly ungraceful. So much so, in fact, that we prefer to vote for the dinner fork as the correct implement.

Two Leading Groups Plan Joint Conference for February, 27, 28, and 29.

More news of Chicago clubs and club women will be found in the other Society section.

By Ruth DeYoung.

WITH the recent sessions of the Third Annual Woman congress still more inspiration than memory, organized women are moving forward this week with education as their keynote. Most important on the calendar is the annual conference of the Progressive Education association to be held next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in the Palmer house, in cooperation with the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education.

The conference will bring an interesting array of speakers to Chicago. The Progressive Education association boasts a membership of 23,000 parents, educators, specialized teachers, clergymen, and laymen. According to Frederick L. Redefer, executive secretary, "progressive education is not a mythology. It is a spirit of work, an approach to or viewpoint in education. It is a belief that the development of the normal interests of the individual precede in importance the imposing of standardized subject matter. It assumes that education grows out of human experiences . . . and it touches all growth from nursery school to university and includes the matured adult. It is not confined to books, systems . . . or classroom methods.

Association Centers Progress in Individuality of Child.

"The association has attempted to help and instruct every one who has contact with the growing, learning child. In the schools it has shown teachers how to adapt material to the individual rather than to adapt the individual to the subject matter. It has shown teachers how to give students freedom, individual interest, confidence, and flexibility, without sacrificing discipline, self-control, and efficiency. It has shown them how to throw away the old rule of 'spare the rod and spoil the child' and still teach the 'three R's.'"

"Growth and Development—the Basis for Educational Programs" is the general subject of the conference this week. On Thursday the program, planned especially by the Association for Child Study and Parent Education, will be given over chiefly to the special interests of parents. Speakers will include Miss Ruth Andrus, chief of the child development and parent education bureau of the University of the State of New York; William E. Blatz of the University of Toronto, whose subject will be "Security vs. Safety"; Percival Symonds of the Teachers college at Columbia university; Burton P. Fowler, headmaster of the Tower Hill school, and Curtis W. Reese of the Abraham Lincoln center.

Actual Development of Child to Be Discussed on Friday.

On Friday the conference will be divided into age groups and sectional meetings, and in each the actual development—emotional, physical and mental—of the child will be discussed. Leading these discussions will be Dr. Wingate Todd of Western Reserve university; Dr. Edward Liss, psychiatrist of New York City; Frank Parker of St. Louis; Harry Giles of Ohio State university; Miss Mary Albright of the same institution; Dr. George J. Mohr of the University of Illinois, and a number of other educators.

At the banquet on Friday evening the speakers will be James B. Conant, president of Harvard university; Dr. William E. Blatz of Toronto, and Prof. John N. Washburne of Syracuse university.

Illinois P.-T. A. to Have Conference on Homemaking.

Another phase of education that vitally affects the child will be discussed Tuesday at the all-day homemaking conference of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers in the Stevens hotel. Mrs. Herbert H. Siddall, state homemaking chairman, will preside and lead a discussion of the article by Emily Newell Blair that recently appeared in the National Parent-Teacher magazine. This article is entitled, "The Home As a Cultural Spiritual Center."

MRS. HERBERT H. SIDDALL.

Dr. Joseph M. Artman, character education chairman of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, will speak to the gathering on "The Need for Character Education in the Home." Mrs. Orville T. Bright, board counselor of the Illinois congress, will speak to the gathering on "The the Home," and in the afternoon Mrs. Wilbur Fribley, secretary of the homemaking section of the American Home Economics association, will discuss "Consumers' Problems." Prudence Penny will bring to the conference hints for homemakers.

Also of educational value will be a safety around the world forum to be held Friday by the woman's safety bureau of the Chicago Motor club at the Congress hotel. Signora Olivia Rossetti Agresti, writer and leader of the Italian woman's movement, will be introduced by Mrs. Willis M. Graham, chairman of the bureau. Hostesses will be Mrs. Charles Severinghaus, president of the German-American Woman's club; Mrs. Samuel Mirabella, president of the Italian Woman's club; Mrs. J. W. Aspley, president of the Daughters of the British Empire, and Mrs. Marco Adrogna.

Mrs. Louise E. Yager, president of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs, has moved her offices from the Chicago Woman's club to the west balcony of the Lyon & Healy company, Wabash avenue at Jackson street. Mrs. Yager is at work on plans for the federation's state convention to be held this spring.

Paris Divorce Mills Grinding More Slowly

Depression Cuts Number of Americans Seeking Quick and Easy Decrees.

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

The French have a penchant for dropping into their old saying, about something in particular or about things in general, that the more any given thing changes the more it remains the same. Well, sometimes that seems to apply and sometimes it doesn't. Possibly that was why it was created to follow the general design of life. We know, for example, that history repeats itself—but always with a difference. Not so many years ago Paris was considered the happy hunting ground of Americans in search of divorce.

Then divorces were granted so quickly and easily that it became a scandal even to the Parisians, who said that a reputation for untying the knot so promptly was hurting the good name of the capital. Be that as it may, there was quite a decline in divorces, caused in part, surely, by the inability of Americans and others to find their way here as easily as in pre-depression days.

Comtesse de Brantes Now Seeking to End Marriage.

Nevertheless the divorce mills do grind. We hear that the former Moira Forbes, daughter of the earl and countess of Granard [Beatrice Mills], who was married a year or so ago to the Comte de Brantes, is seeking a decree. She visited America several times before plunging into the matrimonial sea, although much of her life has been passed on this side. Before her marriage she was reported engaged to an Englishman, if we are not mistaken. She is often here with her parents and takes in the big races, where her mother usually has entries, her racing interests in France being run in partnership with the earl of Derby.

The Comtesse de Brantes is herself an ardent horsewoman and belongs to smart hunting sets on both sides of the channel. Her father, Earl Granard, is to continue to hold under Edward VIII. the posts of master of the horse and master of the household that he has already held under Edward VII. and George V.

Capt. and Mrs. Cartwright Getting Legal Separation.

Capt. and Mrs. Charles Cartwright, who have also figured much in society on both sides of the channel in recent years, are said to have taken steps for a separation, pending an absolute divorce. Mrs. Cartwright, the former Beatrice Benjamin, has an apartment in Paris as well as an establishment in London. She is leaving this week for Monte Carlo. Both she and the Comtesse de Brantes happened to be among the diners these last few days at Maxim's, which was notorious about the turn of the century but is now quite the smart place for dining and supping. As there has been a distinct revival of attendance at the theaters in recent months, many well known Parisians are seen at Maxim's both before and after the play.

American residents of Paris, in addition to private entertainments, are planning these days to go to the Riviera if they want warmth, or to Austria, Germany, and Switzerland for winter sports. A good many are taking in the Olympic skiing and skating competitions at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, near Munich. Others go to Kitzbuehel, and still others to St. Moritz. Mrs. Frank Jay Gould is among those who have left for Garmisch, where she expects to stay until the end of February before returning to her home in the Boulevard Suchet.

Ambassador and Mrs. Jesse I. Straus are spending a fortnight in Vienna and Budapest.

WINTERING IN CHICAGO

Mrs. Frederick A. Poole Jr., one of society's stunning young matrons, is the former Cornelia Fairbanks. She will not go away this winter, but will remain at home on the near north side. Mrs. Poole's Brother-in-law and sister, Count and Countess Visconti, who live in Italy, this winter are omitting their annual trip to Chicago for the first time in several years.

Mary L. Baker Renewing London Social Contacts

LONDON

Mary Landon Baker again is in London enjoying the contacts she has made here on so many other occasions. She usually takes a house when she is in town and always accomplishes some unusual entertaining, but this time she has taken a palatial apartment at Claridge's. Claridge's, more than any other hotel in London, is the temporary home of kings and potentates.

Miss Baker no longer signs the hotel registers as coming from Chicago, but puts down "Venice" as her "home town." She has a palazzio in the Mayfair of Venice and spends a large part of each year there.

At a recent "beauties" ball, Miss Baker was chosen to make the running comment on the beautiful women of history as their impersonations appeared. It was done with skill and charm. The dance was organized by Mrs. Frank Braham, an American woman who has carved for herself an enviable position in London as the organizer of charity affairs.

Among the "beauties" were Mrs. Roland Robinson, daughter of Mrs. Clarence Gasque of Winnetka, and Miss Barbara Lebus, who represented Lola Montez. Miss Lebus is the daughter of Mrs. Herman Lebus, a prominent member of the American Woman's club. Mrs. Charles Sweeny, the English beauty, came as "Miss 1936." She is the wife of the American golfing partner of the new king. Lady Beit and Lady Ward were among the other Americans present.

Contract According to Culbertson

ANSWER: West must shift to trump or diamond lead. A third spade lead would permit the "stripping" of the hand and an eventual throw-in play in clubs. South would ruff, lead a diamond, and ruff a diamond. A heart to dummy and a ruff of the last diamond would eliminate spades and diamonds from the North-South hands. Now the other heart entry in dummy would permit a club finesse to South's eight and would throw West on lead, which would force him to concede the vital trick. Without a third spade lead by West the stripping process cannot be consummated, and two club tricks as well as two spades must be lost.

Keeping Bid Alive Often a Problem

By ELY CULBERTSON

THE most difficult situation in contract confronts a player who must decide whether or not to keep the bidding alive after his left-hand opponent's opening bid has been passed by second and third hands. Of course, if he holds either a very good or a very bad hand there is no problem; in the first case he can bid freely, with the assurance that he alone can defeat a belated game effort by the opponents; in the second case he simply passes.

But the great intermediate class of fair hands, with a sprinkling of honors, gives rise to maddening indecision. Let us analyze a typical example:

Both sides are vulnerable. South deals and bids one spade. West and North pass. It is now up to East to pass and close the bidding or to give both South and West, his own partner, another chance to go places. He holds:

♠ 8 6 ♥ A J 9 5 ♦ K 6 3 2 ♣ Q 10 5

What are the various possibilities involved? They are these:

1. He can pass on the safety-first platform that then no one can go game.

2. He can bid on the assumption that (a) since South did not start with a two bid, he will be unable to contract for game with a passing partner, and (b) that West might have a fair hand but was afraid of a direct overcall to the spade bid, not knowing at that time about North's weak holding. West might easily hold such a hand as:

♠ 9 7 3 2 ♥ K 10 7 4 2 ♦ A 7 ♣ K 4

Certainly he could not "put his neck out" over the opening spade bid with a two-heart overcall—the next hand might be able to double and crucify such a bid. But it is equally certain that he would welcome the opportunity to reënter the bidding, now that the menace of being caught between fires has been removed by North's pass. A heart game for East and West has much better than an even chance of success. Are they supinely to defend against an insignificant one bid? Obviously such a course would be absurd.

Therefore East must take some action to give his partner another chance. And since he has no safe suit to bid, his best device is a take-out double. This is one of the rare situations where he is justified in shading the requirements considerably—down to two honor tricks. But now it becomes vitally important that his partner recognize his dilemma and allow leeway for the possibly shaded double. This is the ticklish part of the situation. East must of necessity base his reopening bid to a large extent on his partner's cards; the partner, therefore, must not bid his own cards to their normally full value! He must mentally set aside some high cards that his partner, on the bidding, was entitled to expect; he should then bid only his "overage." All this may sound paradoxical to inexpert players, but it is the only logical method of handling a very difficult situation.

One of the strangest queries concerning probabilities that has been presented to me for a long time arrived in a recent morning's mail. It was this:

Dear Mr. Culbertson: If the dealer deals himself twelve spades in twelve cards, what are his mathematical chances of getting the thirteenth? Yours very truly,

J. C. D.

I gave the letter to my mathematical-marvel associate. He thought for only a second and answered (very unmathematically):

"Well, the actual odds are 39 to 1 against. But if he was that good with the first twelve, I don't see why he should slip on the thirteenth!"

There is one situation in contract that calls for iron nerve and magnificent will power. I refer to the trap pass.

All the elements of armed conflict are present. The trapper restrains himself from revealing his true strength until the adversary has, more recklessly than bravely, advanced beyond the safety point. Then, and only then, he leaps from passivity to attack. But in order to trap without the concurrent risk of one's superior artillery never actually firing a shot, an intimate knowledge of the adversaries is vital.

West in the hand below risked an almost certain game because he felt sure that his left-hand opponent, regardless of weakness, would never be able to resist the lure of a part score. His strategy was well rewarded.

NORTH
♠ 7 6 5 2
♥ 10 7 3
♦ 10 8 5
♣ K 10 6

WEST
♠ A J 10 9
♥ K Q J
♦ K Q 7
♣ A Q J

EAST
♠ 3
♥ 9 8 5 4
♦ J 6 4 3
♣ 8 7 5 2

SOUTH
♠ K Q 8 4
♥ A 6 2
♦ A 9 2
♣ 9 4 3

The bidding (both sides vulnerable; North-South 60 part score):

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | Pass! | 1 N. T. | Pass |
| Pass | Double | 2 ♠ | Pass |
| Pass | Double (final bid) | | |

The play of the hand offered only one point of interest. West opened the king of hearts, declarer won and led up to the club king. West took the ace, cashed his hearts, and returned the club queen. Dummy won, and at this point declarer foolishly led a trump, playing the queen from his own hand. After that there was no way to avoid losing every other trick except one trump and the diamond ace, for a penalty of four tricks—1,100 points.

Failure to touch trumps might have saved one trick. A diamond lead from dummy instead of the spade, passed into the West hand, might have resulted in two trump tricks instead of one. Unless West won the diamond with an honor he could be kept on lead until he and declarer were both reduced to trumps. Then any play by West would give declarer two tricks, which with the one trick won in each other suit would have reduced the penalty to 800 points.

Each Monday in The Daily Tribune Mr. Culbertson writes a bridge article especially for beginners. Articles for more advanced players on other days.

Today's Questions

Question: I would appreciate your advice as to the correct bidding of the following North and South hands. The actual bidding landed us in five clubs, doubled and redoubled, which was penalized two tricks, vulnerable, for 1,000 points. West, not vulnerable, overcalled the opening club bid with one heart and later rebid hearts.

| SOUTH (dealer) | NORTH |
|---|---|
| ♠ Q x | ♠ A J 10 9 x x x |
| ♥ x | ♥ Q 10 7 |
| ♦ K J x | ♦ x x x |
| ♣ A K Q J x x x | ♣ —— |

Answer: The correct bidding is:

| SOUTH | NORTH |
|---|---|
| 1 club | 1 spade |
| 2 clubs | 2 spades |
| 4 clubs | 4 spades |
| Pass | |

On a heart opening lead by East (the normal lead to his partner's bid) four spades would offer an excellent play.

Question: Will you please give the correct bidding on the following responding hand? This question has caused a great deal of argument among the members of our club.

Dealer bids one club—not vulnerable—and second hand passes. What should the response be on this holding:

♠ x x ♥ Q ♦ K Q x x ♣ A 10 x x x x

Answer: The first response should be one diamond—the best method of sounding out the various possibilities of the final contract. The alternative bid of three clubs is much less informative and wastes a round of bidding.

Stimulating New Facials Designed to Eradicate the Ill Effects of Winter.

WINTER, and it will go down in history that this has been a frightfully wintery winter, is tough on the complexion. What's more, the dryness it induces is, in the long run, tough on contour. Must we chant again that "little lines from dryness spring," and that wrinkles and crinkles and sagging chins follow as inevitably as night follows the day?

That's why we are all for the professional beauty treatment in winter. Its immediate effect is to give the skin the oiling it needs to keep it supple, as well as comfortable, and in the doing it helps the contour cause along more than most women realize.

Treatments Eradicate the Dire Effects of Winter.

Just recently we investigated a treatment given in two salons in Chicago. It was our pleasant job to have a series of them just to see whether they stayed the drying hand of the winds and picked up the weary muscles. We can report that they did. One does wonders when the skin is parched. Two or more pick up the weary face and the sagging chinline in miraculous fashion.

The treatment is one hour of blessed relaxation, with an expert operator giving you gentle molding massage and an oiling such as your skin never gets at home. It begins with the back. In the pretty gray and blue treatment rooms, with lights dim and all alien noise shut out, you relax in a comfortable chair and give yourself up, gladly, to the cause of beauty.

Heated Oil Is Massaged Into the Skin and Relaxes Nerves.

The first step is having a towel wrung out in hot water set flat against the back. This is a good little relaxer in itself. Then some oil is heated and massaged in molding movements that untangle the nerves.

Then, lying flat, your face and neck get the benefit of one of the grandest beauty treatments you'll ever know. A rich oil, slightly heated, is applied to face and neck. This is not removed with tissues. Right over it comes a soap and water cleansing with one of the best of stimulators, a good complexion brush. The soap used is as soft as silk, made of oils and milk. After this, another hot towel, over the face this time. The brows are groomed, and then comes the massage.

On the clean face and neck the operator smears a hot nourishing oil in slathers. Over this comes nourishing cream, also heated. It feels marvelous. The massage is a gentle one. The rich emollients are worked in gently but firmly. The throat is stroked and stroked and stroked until you feel that no possible crinkle could live. Your chin is firmed, your brow soothed, your sagging cheeks cupped up. It's a long session, a heavenly one.

Makeup Makes You Appear as Glamorous as You Wish.

When you are massaged to your heart's content, a heavy eye cream is massaged into the lids and the area beneath. Over this come herbal eye pads, medicated and sweely scented, wrung out in hot water. Then the creamed face and neck are masked with cotton wrung in skin tonic and the chin tied up. You're left alone to sleep and dream.

After the tie-up all the cream is removed, again with wet, hot towels, the skin tonic, bracing and cold, is worked in. Your skin just seethes with well being. And it looks elegant, too, but not as elegant as it will after the makeup, which is the finishing touch of the facial.

This makeup is guaranteed to make you look the way you always wanted to look: Clean skinned, bright eyed, and pretty darn beautiful. Powder base, rouge, powder, shadow, mascara and lipstick, each selected with an artistic eye and a skilful hand. When you sit up in the chair and see yourself in the mirror you see a prettier, peppier woman.

It's a great rite, we'd say, and well worth what it costs. Soul satisfying, of course, but what's even more important, it's a marvelous preserver of your youth and your good looks!

The lily fair and satin smooth skin is more essential in winter than in summer, and harder to achieve. A professional facial stressing generous oiling and gentle massage is one of the best beauty investments for any woman at this time of the year.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in the Chicago Tribune.

London Spring Announced by "Local Color"

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON

Spring comes to London more joyfully than to any place I know, perhaps to compensate for the world's worst winter climate. The lack of sunshine, the constant promise of fog too often fulfilled, the short gray days, all go to make a dull background against which the first crocuses appear with enhanced gayety, and they get a double welcome.

Some people go walking in the Surrey lanes to catch these first signs of spring, but Londoners get their news through the city streets. Slowly along the curbs of the main thoroughfares, the hawkers push their carts of flowers: feathery mimosa, jonquils, narcissus, and tulips of every color and shade. They mustn't stop for more than time to let you gaze in wonder or to buy a bunch. They must keep moving, but what a daring splash of color they make on our drab streets.

With the crocuses in the parks come the children, on foot and on horseback. In Rotten Row, after lunch, is "children's hour." Riding masters appear with their charges, as many as twenty in a group, all of them on the best of terms with their grooms with whom they chat merrily. Little ponies for the small youngsters, correctly dressed in bright yellow coats and caps and beige jodphurs; middle sized ponies for the "aged eights" usually in red riding kit; and lovely little hacks for the 12 year olds in adult black outfits.

The children are taught mostly to ride astride, but when they take up hunting, the girls frequently prefer the greater security of the side saddle.

From early afternoon in Rotten Row to later in Kensington Gardens, standing in the shadow of the French embassy near Albert Gate, one sees the most typical sight in London. At 4 p. m. the park empties itself of children, all going home for tea. Nurses in uniform, nannies in flowing veils, prams, prams, prams stream across Knightsbridge under the fatherly eyes of two "bobbies," who take up their positions to see that the young aristocracy gets across in safety. Not only, one feels, because of their duty.

Spurious Curios Go the Rounds in London Circles

LONDON

Among the spurious curios that are going the rounds here are some bits and pieces supposed to come from the old Elizabeth Barrett Browning home.

No. 50 Wimpole street, the Barretts' home, has been in the hands of the demolition people for some time, and it is rumored that people have stood by to capture bits of wall paper, pieces of fireplaces and woodwork to keep in loving memory of the girl who fled the place.

A talk with the late occupant of No. 50 revealed the fact that no such mementos existed. The mantel piece of the second floor room, supposed to have been occupied by Elizabeth Barrett, had been broken up to make paving stones for the back garden which, in turn, has had built on it a large kitchen and servants' rooms. The walls have been stripped of their paper many times and only on the first floor did two early Victorian mantel pieces remain. Since Elizabeth Barrett described the house as dark and gloomy, and since Tennyson wrote of Wimpole street as "long and unlovely," two stories have been added to the Barrett house and it was the insecurity of these that forced the demolition. Even before we saw the wreckers at work there was nothing but the number to recall the Barretts.

There's New Beauty in Every Bottle of This Amazing, New-Type Shampoo

Totally different from all shampoos in the world, it produces beautifying results never before known

New Softness . . . New Lustre . . . New Allure

It's no wonder women everywhere are raving about this amazing, new liquid shampoo—no wonder one trial converts them for life! For it gives your hair a thrilling new gleam. Yes, actually transforms dull, average-looking hair into a brilliant, glistening halo. And does it in only one single application!

Look at the girl above to see what a difference it will make when you use it! So try it soon—see how beautiful, how radiant your hair really can be!

Just how this unusual shampoo works these miracles is a new scientific secret. It isn't oil, it isn't soap—it isn't anything you've heard of before. Scientists have brought us something brand-new: a shampoo so different that they've patented the process by which it is made. You simply wet your hair, shake on a few drops and instantly you get a glorious, billowy lather in any kind of water—5 times more than soap in the hardest kind of water. Rub it briskly into the hair, rinse once—and you're through.

"What?" you say, "no second rinses, no vinegar or special after-rinses?"

No—not one extra rinse! That's the marvelous part. This wonderful new shampoo, being neither oil nor soap, can't make that gummy, unrinsable film ordinary shampoos leave to cover up natural lustre. So your hair can be always radiant and glamorous, silky and smooth! No more like your former "mousey-looking" head than a diamond is like glass. Even more amazing, any loose dandruff disappears. Your scalp is left clean and tingling with a healthy glow.

Procter & Gamble make this marvel and you can buy it in various size bottles at all drug, department and ten cent stores. Remember—the name is Drene. And if you want your hair to look more beautiful, more alluring than ever before, you'd better try some right away!

Another thing—Drene makes bleached or dyed hair virtually undetectable—gives it a wonderful, soft natural look. And you'll be glad to find it's the most economical shampoo you ever used—one half tablespoonful gives you the finest shampoo you've ever had, at a cost of only a few pennies.

Artist's Wife Charges Want to Modernists

Says Husband's Discriminated Against Because He's Conservative.

By Eleanor Jewett.

"THERE came a voice crying in the wilderness"—I can do no better to put before you a picture of what many of our onmodern artists are facing today han to quote a letter which came in ast week from an artist's wife. The ainter involved is a man of reputaion who has exhibited in many imortant shows, but his work is acaemic. In these times that is nearly quivalent to dealing it a death blow n the eyes of a public confused by odern standards. The letter speaks or itself:

"The place we are living in is one f the old World's Fair buildings. he plumbing is old and poor, no hot vater, no bathtub, two coal stoves o take care of, pay for our own vater, which runs day and night to eep from freezing. The fire goes out t night because of the soft coal we urn. [The difference between the rice of soft and hard coal is just 9.]

rt Institute Exhibit Gives ler Sleepless Night.

"On this morning I am writing I ad spent a sleepless night, which is ot unusual. The Art institute exhiition had opened the day before nd the accounts of the exhibition ept me awake all night thinking f who is who over there, and hether we did so wisely in not choosing to run,' as Mr. Coolidge vould say. Not only do we not subit any more to the Art institute ury but also to other loop exhibiions. Speaking frankly, I am tired f moving pictures.

"This morning, before I sat down o write, the electric wiring in the tudio went wrong. While Mr. Blank vas busy getting me a light in the itchen I was looking after two toves and getting the pipes in the itchen sink and bathroom in workng condition. This was about 8 'clock. An active member of the -K club had invited me to come that ame afternoon to an illustrated lecure on modern art conducted by harles Fabens Kelly of the Art intitute. I had accepted the invitaion more or less for the reason that year ago I had spoken to the same roup.

Can Feel No Pity or Van Gogh.

"After showing on slides the enire galaxy of modern French artists nd making the whimsical assertion hat 'the ladies did not have to like but must keep their minds open to eep young,' the lecturer's grand nale was the pathetic tale of Van ogh. While Mr. Kelly proceeded to lay upon the heartstrings of his auience, I kept wondering why the eath of an artist in an asylum for he insane made him a genius? And he were a genius, was it not ronical that Mr. Kelly mentioned vith pride that today thousands of eople stand in line at a modern art allery to pay their quarters to see ictures which the poor devil of an rtist could not sell for love or noney while he was alive? What neaning is there in creating a god rom a neurotic, or capitalizing upon he sufferings of a madman?

"A lot of things I was thinking re not for publication. But the most itter was that when the pillars of he Art institute, from Mr. Harshe own, preach modern art to various ypes of people they condemn by inerence the work of the able nonnodern artists who today are barely naking a living by the chance sale f a picture. The Chicago Public School Art society used to purchase he work of a living American painter rom the Chicago Artists' exhibition ach year at the Art institute. Mrs. Walter Brewster was appointed presilent and immediately the society bought reproductions of modern paintings. Mr. Kelly and Mr. Rich of the Art institute preach Van Gogh nd the moderns, and the local denand for modern reproductions is ncreased. Reproductions are not heap. Their price would keep many n American painter from the conitions under which he is suffering oday.

Says Institute Has Great nfluence on Chicago Women.

"I blame these men sponsored by he museum for a great deal that is appening in art in Chicago today because the women listen to their alks and though they do not buy the nodern pictures they do not buy the onmodern either, because they are fraid of their own taste.

"To finish off quickly with the end of an artist's wife's day I got home, told Mr. Blank something about the lecture, got dinner huriedly, and then posed for two stulents because the price of a model s more than we can afford at presnt. All winter long I pose on one night a week for three solid hours o that we can make the $3 for ourelves."

It is not easy being an artist nor an artist's wife these days. A few weeks ago I bought a little painting for not much money from a young painter. When I gave him the money his face lit up and he said: "Now I can buy a ton of coal!"

P. W. A. Employs Few Conservatives.

The PWA, about which so much s said, has not bettered the condiions of the nonmodern artist. The conservative painter stands no chance t the regular money given to the modernist. An illustration, which has its funny side, is found in the story of a north shore painter who took Mrs. Robinson [head of the government art work here] a series of sketches for a school library. She had used fairy story themes. "O, no," said Mrs. Robinson, "we can't use those. You see this is an American project and Hans Andersen and Grimm's are, of course, not American." And then, to point the moral, she commissioned a modern painter to decorate a room with modern illustrations for "Alice in Wonderland!" Exactly when "Alice" was naturalized has never been told.

The whole situation would be a grand and glorious farce except that we are dealing with men and women, flesh and blood, with the same needs and wants as our own. To set a fashion arbitrarily for sales or relief is wrong. The Art institute is deliberately cultivating a certain type of art based upon nothing but its unlikeness to accepted standards of craftsmanship. In exhibitions and lectures it is fostering modernism. Abroad, in London and Paris, modern art is dying. A headline the other day said Russia had no more use for modernism. In another ten years good artists and craftsmen over here will no doubt win a hearing again for themselves in the galleries of the municipal museums and the PWA may be dead. Till then the conservative must live!

Critic Urges Purchase of Paintings by Living Artists.

So if any of you see a painting, etching, water color, piece of sculpture or whatnot by a living artist buy it! Your bet is just as good as Mr. Harshe's, Mr. Kelly's, or Mr. Rich's. If a work of art gives you pleasure you can safely make it yours. After all, what are Mr. Harshe and his confrères doing but pleasing themselves in furthering a kind of art that pleases them? You have equal freedom. There is no need for their standards to be yours.

Meanwhile an art lover has been stirred to poetry by a landscape called "The River," by Francis Chapin in the current Artists of Chicago and Vicinity exhibit at the Art institute. "The River" is absolutely futile, but:

Francis Chapin leaves me gapin';
Paint he slurs in little blurs.
They look so queer to me, unless he
Had some reason to be messy.
I studied with him while in school

Francis Chapin has been an instructor in the Art institute school for a number of years. He used to be a good painter with a great deal of talent. The vortex of modernism in which he has dabbled has practically swallowed him. It will take character to pull out of the soft mud in which he is shoulder high.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

Louis Weiner and A. S. Weiner are exhibiting water colors in the Tower Town galleries, 817 Rush street, to March 1.

The gorgeous Inness exhibition in the Findlay galleries will be continued through March 15 in all probability. It is a splendid show.

Paintings by members are in view in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street, to March 1. Edmund Giesbert, Clara MacGowan, and Harrison Becker composed the jury of selection.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

MANY of the babies who made their first appearance during the last year have found it pretty rough going on this old earth and the 1936 newcomers are having an equally difficult time. In spite of the earnest efforts made in their behalf by various child welfare organizations, there still are sickly, undernourished infants, babies who never get a breath of fresh air, toddlers in ragged, unkempt clothing.

Every mother knows that babies must be kept clean and fresh, but with a completely inadequate supply of clothing and the baffling laundry equipment in the homes of most of the poor a large number of the very young set is in a pretty sorry state.

Mrs. J. M. is not on relief because her husband is employed at a small salary. However, when bills for rent and gas and light are paid and coal purchased only a few dollars remain for other items. By the end of March another member will be added to the family and the mother has found it financially impossible to make any arrangements for the newcomer. Her supply of bedding is very small, and the only towel in the house is a single face towel. There is only one small son, 16 months old, who has only one pair of shabby little shoes and one suit of warm underwear. If any reader has additional linen, shoes size 4½, rompers and suits size 6, the article can be put to good use in this household.

F. P. is a young married man living on the north side. He has done all kinds of work, but unfortunately shortly after his marriage he was forced to join the ranks of the unemployed. He and his wife are expecting their first baby within a short time and they are making frantic efforts to prepare for it. So far they have been unable to obtain any clothing for the newcomer and have appealed to me for assistance, for which, I am sure, they will be grateful.

Mrs. D. on the south side writes: "I am forced to come to you for help. I am the mother of three small children. My husband earns a little over $10 per week. My baby Bobby, 6 months old, has been ill in a hospital. He will be home in a few weeks, and since he has had a serious infection I am anxious to have a separate bed for him. I would be so happy if some reader had a discarded child's bed that I could have for him. We've looked in the second hand stores and even the cheapest one available is too expensive for us on our present income."

They Do Things Differently in Quaint Batavia

One Hotel Is So Large That the Bellboy Takes You in a Taxi to Your Room.

By Mason Warner.

BATAVIA, Java, N. E. I.—The tourist in the East Indies sees some odd sights and witnesses peculiar incidents.

While waiting for a taxi at the entrance of the railway station my attention was attracted to a young native mother who was leaning against the wall, nursing a child—not an infant. It was the size of the child that was particularly noticeable. He was at least five years old.

Suddenly he stopped and in a childish treble demanded to be let down. Once on the pavement, he produced a cigaret from his pocket, lit it, puffed it tranquilly for a few minutes, threw the butt at a passing dog, and then clambered, with his mother's lifting assistance, up and back into the folds of her slendang [a loose-fitting, blouse-like, open-front upper garment], and resumed his refreshment.

Guests Take Taxis to Their Rooms.

The Hôtel des Indes in Batavia is probably the largest hotel in the world, and yet its capacity is not more than 600 paying guests. It is built in the style of Dutch hotel architecture that prevails throughout the East Indies. There is one great central building, with office, reading room, lobby, and large dining rooms. The incoming guest registers at the office, but his luggage is not removed from his taxi. One wonders at this at the moment, but the explanation unfolds itself. After you register and the boy is handed your keys, he escorts you back to the taxi and you are driven to your room two or three blocks away.

The sleeping rooms and suites are in six long series of buildings—large, airy, high-ceilinged and equipped [the majority of them] with shower bath. All have bathrooms with a square cement trough and bailing dipper to provide for the British bath in the tropics, which is a scrub, pour, and rinse proposition. One row of sleeping rooms is 600 feet long. It is a nice evening stroll from your room to dinner.

Life Begins at 4:30.

By the exercise of the most rigid supervision over hordes of Malay servants, the hotels are kept spotlessly clean. The little lizards running about the walls help keep the rooms free from flies and mosquitoes, but the problem of ants has not yet been solved—and they are pests.

The hotel buildings form a hollow square surrounding an area equal to six ordinary American city blocks. In the center of the hotel grounds is a deer park, with a stately buck, six does, and a prideful peacock. Near the usual open-air dining room—roofed, but without side walls—are two colossal banyan trees, each with down-growing tendrils measuring 250 to 300 feet in circumference.

Life around Dutch hotels awakens at 4:30 a. m. Breakfast is served from 5 to 9. Tea at 11. Lunch at 1. Tea at 5. Dinner from 8 to 11. Few diners report before 9 p. m. All Java takes a siesta from 2 to 4 p. m., and no matter how pressing your business [nor profitable to him] it is best not to waken a Dutchman from his afternoon sleep. Only silly tourists move about in the heat of the day.

Hens Do Only a Half Day's Work.

The hens of the far east are all malingerers, not one doing more than a half day's work. Their eggs are no larger than an ambitious pigeon's, but in Java breakfast is rounded out with ham, cheese, cold roast beef, dried beef, sausage, fruits, toast, and marmalade, so that one cannot go really hungry.

The method of serving coffee is surprising at first, but the stranger after a few weeks may learn to like the Javan way. The coffee is boiled until it is almost an essence—very thick and very strong. It is served cold in tiny cups, some holding only about two thimblefuls. Then the coffee is poured in a large cup and the cup filled with boiling hot water or milk. Some tourists never do learn to like it.

The most perfect digestive apparatus in the world is subject to strain and stress in Java. The famous gastronomic institution known as "rice tafel" provides sufficient food for a barbaric oriental feast, and the quantities devoured by the Dutchmen in Java at a single sitting are positively amazing.

Like a Snake Dance in a Comic Opera.

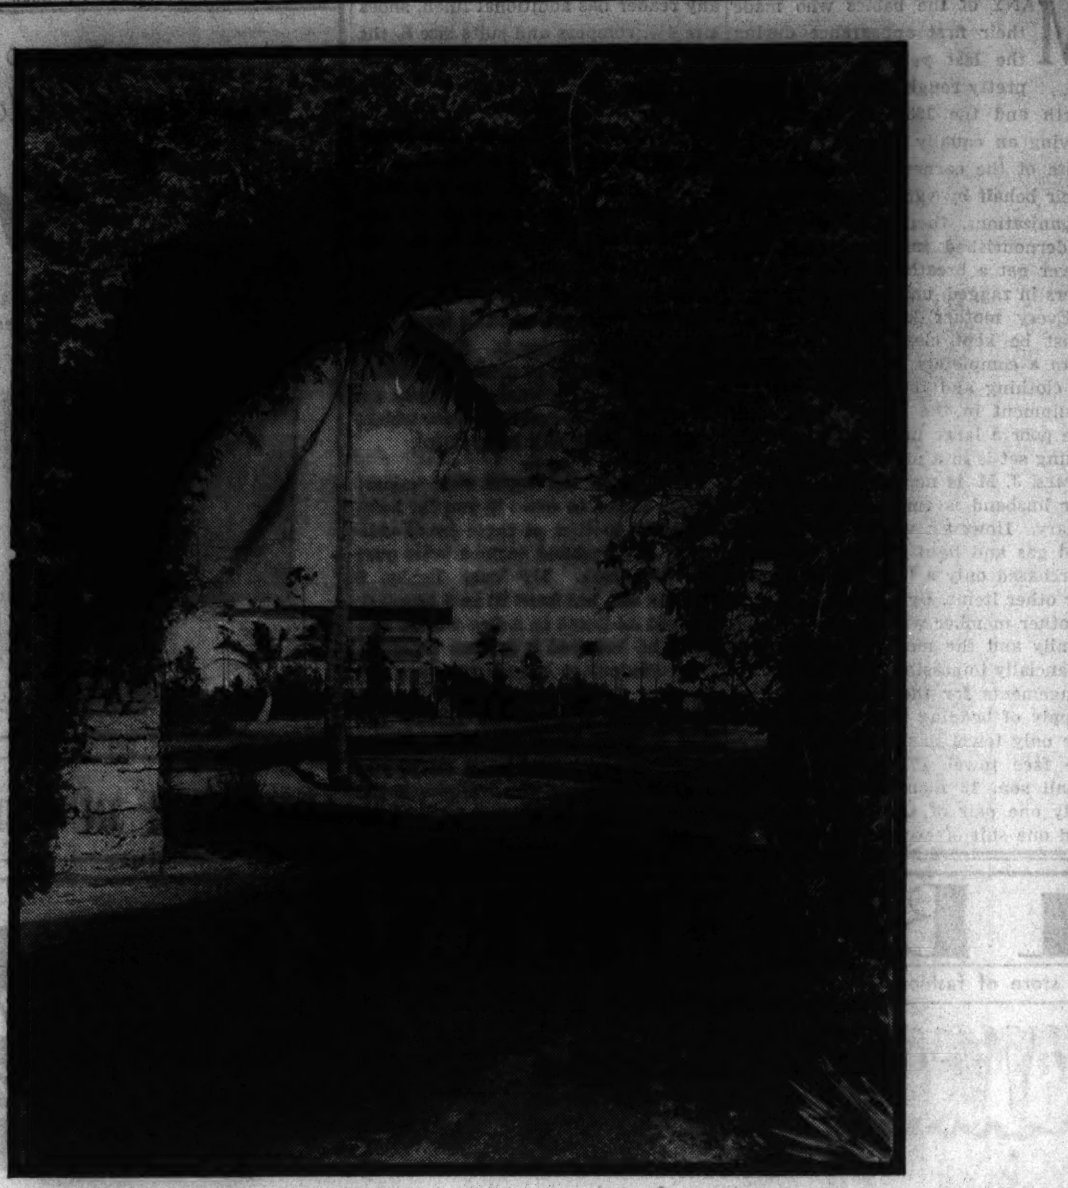
The procession of barefooted waiters who serve the rice tafel is clad in comic opera costumes, gorgeous colored sarongs, spotless white jackets, with small turbans wound tight and tied most jauntily, with ends sticking out like tufted feathers. They do a snake dance from table to table. I have counted 32 waiters serving rice tafel and every one was serving a different food or delicacy. The rice tafel includes beef, pork, mutton, several kinds of fish, lobster, wild fowl and tame poultry, eggs in at least two styles, sausages, half a dozen vegetables, fruits, and—and—well, I didn't recognize all of the different victuals and viands.

You are supposed to attack every one with delight. You are outfitted with an arrangement of knives, forks, spoons and various table cutlery, and two large dishes—one of flat plate and the other a large soup plate. You start with a foundation of rice in the soup plate and help yourself from each offering as the line of waiters passes in review before you. On the ordinary plate you place fowl, fish, lobster, and and other servings that contain bones or other débris. So that leaves the way clear to do justice without interruption to the other foods. One rice tafel a week seems to be the proper thing. After dining for a period of several hours, the true Javan-Dutch retire to their rooms, drink plentifully of gin, and sleep.



A FLORIDA WINTERTIME VISTA

Miami Is Host to South Americans

MIAMI, Fla.—With travel between the Americas gaining rapidly, Miami is playing host this season to more visitors from the southern continent than in any previous year.

Pan-American Airways reports that 5,000 passengers each month are passing through the gates of the international airport here, an increase of 17 per cent over last winter. The trafic in January was 1,000 in excess of the figure for January, 1935.

On the program of sports and social events for the next two weeks is the Widener Challenge Cup race at Hialeah Feb. 29. The first running of this stake holds its place as the second richest gallop of the Florida turf season, a $10,000 purse being offered. Next year the purse will be for $50,000 added—one of the richest in the track world.

The gold cup which goes to the winner was made in England and is more than one hundred years old. Two victories will gain permanent possession.

Outdoors Replaces Red School House

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — While blizzards imprison school children in the north, classes in Coral Gables are being conducted outdoors. The pupils, of elementary and high school grades, study at tables on the lawn, shaded from the sun by brightly striped awnings.

Botany classes find their floral specimens, including red and purple bougainvillea, flame vines, and hibiscus, growing in their study hall. At recess the students pick oranges and grapefruit from the nearest tree.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

WORD comes from Glasgow that a month hence the superliner Queen Mary will leave the River Clyde, where she is being built, and steam around Britain to the King George V. dry dock at Southampton, built especially for her. At the dry dock she will be prepared for her speed trials and for commissioning as the new flagship of the Cunard-White Star fleet. Throughout this period artists, artisans, and mechanics of one sort or another will be kept busy getting the huge ship ready for her maiden voyage, scheduled to begin May 27.

● Already parts of the liner are assuming their final shape. Both the cabin class and tourist class swimming pools are now complete. The main restaurant, the largest ever constructed in a ship, is virtually finished, although the artists are still at work on it and the furniture has not yet been installed.

Some 7,000 men are working aboard the Queen Mary and in the adjoining yards. In other parts of the United Kingdom tens of thousands of men are engaged on such things as thirteen miles of fabrics for draperies and six miles of carpets and rugs. Sixteen thousand pieces of cutlery and tableware and 200,000 pieces of earthenware, china, and glass are under way. It is estimated that since the keel was laid 250,000 men and women have been employed either directly on the ship or in supplying accessories for her.

● The propulsion machinery is installed and has been tested, with the propeller shafts disconnected. Before these tests, weeks were spent in the delicate task of bringing the turbines, engines, and propeller shafting into perfect alignment. Thousands of tons of fuel oil and thousands of gallons of lubricating oil were taken aboard.

Then the 27 great boilers were fired and, cautiously at first, the turbines were "turned over." Further adjustments were made and the turbines were given more "juice," in this case steam under high pressure.

The electrical installation is nearing the finish line. Thousands of miles of cable and seven turbo-generators have been put in place. Aside from the means of propulsion, the ship is to be all-electric.

● Countless loads of furniture, works of art, and rare woods and timbers have been arriving daily to transform the hitherto empty hull into a thing of beauty. Acres of paneling are being placed on the walls of the staterooms and public rooms. Everything is being done on an enormous scale.

Altogether, it looks as if the Queen Mary will succeed in dramatizing the 1936 travel scene, just as the Normandie did last summer.

Honeymooners Take Long Trips in Short Boats

Sailors' Superstition Tabooing Women Is Disproved by Modern Seagoers.

By John Waring Jr.

IT is strange that romance and the sea are traditionally related, while an old sailors' superstition has it that women are taboo aboard ship. The superstition is being disproved by modern young seagoers, many of whom find married life on long voyages in short boats quite happy.

Nearly ten years ago Wade [Red] Woodworth gained fame a second time in sport by winning the 130 mile Albany-to-New York outboard speedboat marathon. Previously he had been a star football player at Northwestern university. Recently he was athletic coach at Morgan Park Military academy. A few days ago Woodworth, now skipper of his own 55 foot yawl, Circe, left with his wife and three children from New Orleans on a long cruise in the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea. The yacht sailed from the Columbia Yacht club in Chicago, and used her auxiliary motor down the Mississippi river.

Another Chicago couple and their family, the Ralph Zimmermans, also of the Columbia Y. C., have been cruising almost a year in the gulf and the Caribbean. Their heavily-built ketch, Zarark, 58 feet long, is now in the Pacific ocean.

On a Three Year Honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leffingwell, who married in Chicago last year with the avowed intention of taking their honeymoon afloat, have started on a three year voyage around the world with several companions. The couple are sailing in an old pilot boat from Portland, Me. Their plans include photographing and sketching the foreign ports as they proceed, and collecting scientific data for the Field museum.

Two American couples, on opposite shores of the country, have made attempts to take long voyages alone in craft so small they are uncomfortable, unsafe, and almost unthinkable. Karl Acton and his wife of Crystal River, Fla., former Chicagoans, have started a projected 20,000 mile passage in a 16 foot open motor boat powered by the same type of outboard motor used by hundreds of American fishermen in local streams and lakes.

The Actons want to get back to Chicago by water, and laughingly claim to have charted the shortest route. In two years, Skipper Acton said, they will have skirted the coast of the Gulf of Mexico, down the Atlantic shore of South America, around Cape Horn, and up the Pacific side as far as the Panama canal. From Panama the route will be through the Caribbean, across to the Mississippi river's mouth, and up the river waterway to Chicago.

Storm Tossed and Nearly Drowned.

More than a year ago Dana Upton Lamb, artist, seaman, and adventurer, built an 18 foot sailing canoe and set out with his bride, Ginger for a dreamed of passage around the world. They left Laguna Beach, near Los Angeles, and sailed down the Pacific shore of Mexico. Packing their entire belongings into the hull of their tiny boat, they hoisted the jib and mainsail and set out through the surf. They expected to beach the Vagabonda, as the boat was named, at night and set up a tent on the beach. But they were upset in storms, nearly drowned, picked up by rum runners, and, sadly disillusioned, had to give up their world honeymoon in a canoe.

But Skipper Lamb counts among his ancestors Richard Henry Dana, who wrote "Two Years Before the mast"; Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor, and Charles Lamb, the essayist of "Water Babies" fame. Coupled with the present Lamb's urge to sail the seas, it is possible they will find a new way to take that honeymoon.

Erling Tambs, adventurous young Norwegian novelist, set out with his wife some years ago on a trip around the world in their 40 foot sailing pilot boat, Teddy. They sailed the boat themselves, but a promising deckhand was born to them at Las Palmas, in the Canary Islands. The baby boy was probably the world's youngest yachtsman, as he went to sea at the age of six weeks.

Would Race Yacht Around the World.

The cutter Teddy sailed three years and 17,000 miles, as far as Australia, where the Tambs won a yacht race across the Tasman sea. They experienced an earthquake while visiting ashore, however, and later their boat was wrecked. Tambs brought another Norwegian sail yacht over here for the Newport to Norway yacht race last summer. His boat was capsized—a rare thing for a sailer—by a hurricane in the Atlantic. Eventually he sailed her back home, and now he is waiting for some yachtsman to accept his challenge of a yacht race around the world, which has never been attempted before.

Probably the best known sailor to honeymoon in a little sailboat is William Albert Robinson, author of "10,000 Leagues Over the Sea," who successfully sailed his 32 footer Svaap around the world. On his return he married Florence Crane of Chicago and took his bride in the Svaap to the Island of Tahiti, in the South seas. Until recently the Robinsons have been living away from city streets, bright lights and politics, in their own native house. They have attained the goal of all youthful married pairs who seem to think that a lone sea voyage in a sailing ship is the only way to take a honeymoon.

Travel Influx to St. Petersburg Breaks Records

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—All records for tourist travel into St. Petersburg have been broken by February's influx by motor, rail, steamship and air. Only last summer's building activity prevented a serious housing shortage.

Emergency trafic measures, double services in downtown churches, capacity theater crowds, and long queues at the tourist cafés and restaurants testify to the fact that this city is the focal point of a southward tourist movement never equaled before.

Today the winter visitors saw the country's leading golf stars in action as the finals of the annual St. Petersburg Open took place on the butterfly course at Lakewood Country club. Among those competing were Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Johnny Revolta, Paul Runyon, Harry Cooper, and Billy Burke.

Filipinos Get Planes.

MANILA.—(AP)—The new commonwealth of the Philippines is to have a fleet of fighting airplanes. Several provinces have each decided to give a plane to the government, the appropriations running up to $15,000 each for fighting ships.

Trains to Florida Thronged During Record Cold Spell

A SURVEY last week of the four railroads operating between Chicago and Florida showed that for the last month they have been jammed with midwesterners in retreat from the all time record cold spell. The business is so heavy this year that the lines are running their "seasonal" trains on a daily basis instead of the thrice a week schedule of last year.

General Passenger Agent E. H. Batchelder of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, which inaugurated a new crack train, the Dixieland, this season as running mate to its year round Dixie Flyer, said yesterday that the passenger trafic over his line since Jan. 1 was 57 per cent better than that of a like period in 1935. Shipment of autos to Florida, spurred by promotion of the idea by all the lines, has increased nearly 100 per cent, with the C. and E. I. carrying as high as fifteen autos a day.

The Illinois Central, which has long specialized in Florida winter business, had a gain of 22 per cent on its Floridan and Seminole from Jan. 2 to Feb. 16, J. V. Lanigan, passenger trafic manager, reported.

Maj. C. E. McCullough, general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines, said there had been a 25 per cent increase for the season in which the Florida Arrow supplements the year round Southland and Flamingo, and that during the sub-zero weather the reservations had topped last year's by about 40 per cent.

"Our Florida trafic has been 30 per cent ahead for the season and 35 per cent better the last two weeks," said L. W. Ollmann, passenger representative for the New York Central system. "It far surpasses that of 1928 and 1929—possibly because many persons in those pre-depression times were taking cruises further afield in the cold months. This year they all seem to be concentrating on Florida, with the result that our Sunbeam and Royal Palm are well filled every day. It is often necessary to run these trains in three or four sections out of Cincinnati, where passengers are picked up from Cleveland, Detroit, and other northern points."

Limousines Vie with Oxcarts in Costa Rica

Americans Are Beginning to Discover a Land That Lives Up to Its Name.

By E. S. Whitman.

THE beauty of Costa Rica is in itself worth a trip to the Caribbean. Purple mountains piled against the sky, white houses flashing on the hillsides, snowy crests of beach gleaming through the lacework of coconut palms, and magnificent panoramas on every hand.

It was Christopher Columbus who discovered this land and named it Costa Rica, which in Spanish means "Rich Coast." That was in September, 1502, and the progressive republic has eminently lived up to its title. Today it is rich in agricultural products, notably bananas, coffee and pineapples. It is a country of many mountains, table lands, valleys, and swiftly rushing rivers. There are vast resources of mineral and timber within its boundaries.

Costa Rica lies only eight steamship cruising days from New York [including stops at Havana and Kingston, Jamacia], and its fine railroads, motor roads, and new hotel in the mountain capital combine to draw thousands of passengers every year.

The Atlantic seaport is Limon and it is here that the traveler's interest is torn between the sloths which swing awkwardly in the park and the giant turtles which weigh four or five hundred pounds apiece and which are impounded in watery corrals in the estuaries nearby.

The Source of Green Turtle Soup.

For little or nothing the local youngsters will dive into the pool and wrestle with the turtles, which register ferocious objection by flapping enormous, razor-sharp flukes. These monsters, which furnish the green turtle soup, are brought north by ship in individual pools of fresh water and are delivered in New York very much alive and kicking.

The rail trip from Port Limon to San José, the mountain capital, is only 100 miles long. But what a hundred miles it is! In the cool of the morning, with the dew still sparkling on the coconut fronds, the parlor cars are whisked along the margin of the shore. Suddenly the line cuts straight into the jungle country and passes through miles of gleaming green banana plants, skirting the Reventazon river and affording spectacular views of water tumbling over the rocks and an ever changing vista of valleys and hills in the distance.

Then, as the train puffs up the grade and works its way up precipitous mountainsides, the whole vast valley land spreads out like a magic carpet many hundreds of feet below. The river now looks like a silver ribbon, threading its way through banana and sugar plantations, only to lose itself at length in the jungle far behind. Finally the Continental divide is reached, an altitude of 5,137 feet above sea level, and the train then drops gradually down to San José, nestled in its mountain plateau.

Limousine vs. Oxcarts.

The capital is a thoroughly modern city, with excellent hotels, well paved streets, an abundance of parks, cathedrals, and interesting examples of Moorish architecture. The modern and the ancient vie with one another in San José. It is not at all unusual to see a limousine challenging a creaking oxcart for the right of way. In the one is seated a beautiful Costa Rican girl with the complexion of a magnolia bloom and dressed in the latest Parisian mode, while before the other, patiently guiding the span of oxen with a stick, plods an Indian, wearing the colorful, typical dress of a century ago.

San José is one of several large thriving cities in this mountain region. There is ancient Cartago, at the foot of Mount Irazu, and there are Turrialba and Heredia. All are in the very heart of Costa Rica's richest coffee country. Motor roads make readily available journeys into these coffee beneficios.

A white race of pure Spanish stock makes up the population of Costa Rica. Less than 8 per cent of the entire population is Indian, and the white aristocrats have a charm about them and an innate feeling of hospitality that make friends for their republic with every shipload of passengers who visit them.

Where Women Are Amazingly Beautiful.

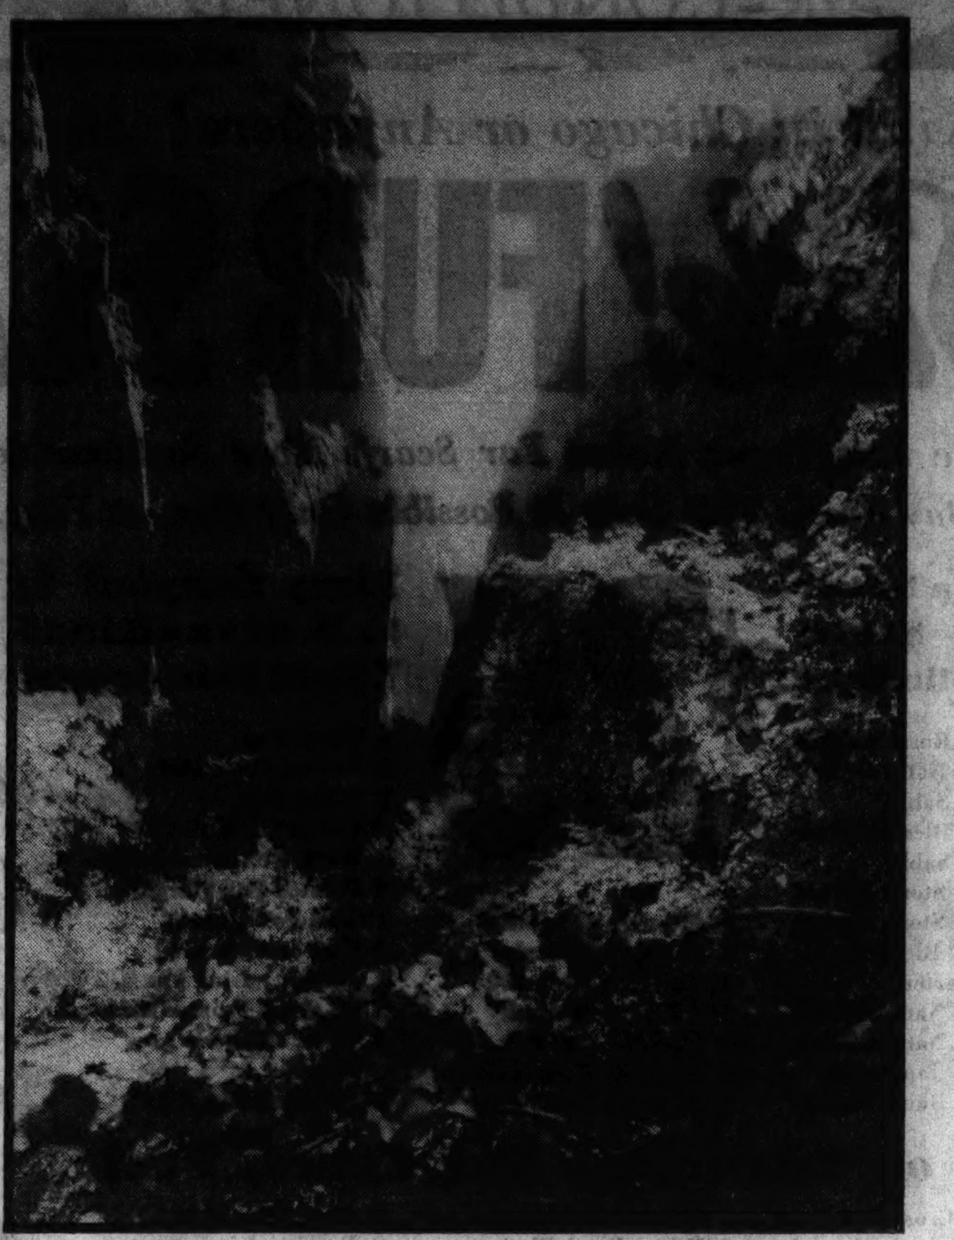
Travelers who have, say, a week at their disposal in the mountain country of Costa Rica should not neglect the northwestern section of the republic. The province of Guanacaste is the principal cattle raising section over whose vast prairies graze many herds of cattle and horses. These are tended by sabaneros, strong, vigorous cowboys. The people of Guanacaste are a happy lot. Cheerful, carefree, fun-loving, and provincial. Their women, as is the case throughout Costa Rica, are astonishingly beautiful. It is here that the guitar and the marimba, the tamborcito, and the hollow gourd filled with grain [they call them maracsa in Havana] supply the music for the fiestas, where native dances are performed by the girls in local costumes and the visitor is regaled with fruits of this rich country. Here the oxcarts, with their gayly patterned, solid wooden wheels, definitly take precedence over the automobile.

Great trimotored planes drum overhead on their regular journeys between the Americas, but the shadow they cast over these people is so transitory that they go virtually unnoticed.

Ocean liners serve Costa Rica every week of the year from the port of New York. Within 17 days the visitors may cruise down to Port Limon, travel up to San José and return. These cruises not only enable the traveler to visit Costa Rica, but also include stops at Havana, Kingston, and the Panama Canal Zone.



WHERE NATURE CREATED A MASTERPIECE

National Parks to Be Depicted in Travel Talk

RANDALL JONES, traveler and explorer, will deliver an illustrated travelogue, "Western Wonderlands of Color," on the seventh floor of the Fair store at 11 a. m. Friday. He will deal particularly with Zion, Bryce Canyon, and Grand Canyon National parks.

RANDALL JONES.

Among America's playgrounds—which last year drew 58,000,000 persons to their varied attractions—those in Utah and Arizona have some of the most spectacular and beautiful scenery. The buffalo and the desperado have vanished from the western scene, and the Indian has lost his savagery, but the stage on which they appeared is still vivid with the settings and stories of the old days.

Zion and Grand canyon were made national parks in 1919, and Bryce canyon in 1928. The colorings of their colossal buttes, rock temples, and chasms provide a breath taking spectacle.

Mr. Jones' lecture is one of a series sponsored by the World Travel institute.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations, to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Are there any Mexican tours that feature such out-of-the-way places as Patzcuaro, Uruapan, and the west coast? —R. H.

Yes. The Raymond-Whitcomb land cruises enter Mexico through Nogales and include those places, as well as Mexico City.

What are some of the attractions of Victoria, B. C.?—C. E.

Its perpetual springtime, its setting of "more English than England," its year-round sports of golf, tennis, fishing, yachting, and lawn bowling, its bridle paths, its beautiful gardens, and its Empress hotel.

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

PERHAPS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—To the Travel Editor: In the travel section of today's TRIBUNE Harold P. Borer, writing about Bermuda, says:

"A favorite bathing place is Elbow beach, while the romantically inclined visit the ruins of the home of Nea, with whom Tom Moore fell in love while he was stationed in St. George's and about whom he wrote the immortal song 'Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms.'"

Is not your writer wrong?

DR. SAMUEL L. WEBER.

Going Somewhere?

A LARGE number of Chicagoland golfers interested in achieving midsummer form early in the spring are planning an excursion to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 3, 4, and 5. The trip will be known as the Chicago District Golf outing and will be sponsored by Stephen A. Williams Jr. and Alvah W. Hale, with the approval of the local association. Joe Davis, recording secretary of the association, is to supervise the tournament. The players will leave Chicago by special train over the New York Central system April 2, and return April 6.

The snow and cold weather have greatly stimulated travel from Chicago to California, John C. Graves, regional trafic manager of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., said yesterday. The showing made the first three weeks of February, Mr. Graves announced, indicated that the month's west bound business on that line's New York-Chicago-Pacific route would establish a new record.

William H. Volbers, former Chicago passenger agent of the Dollar line, has joined the local staf of the American Express company. Mr. Volbers has traveled widely over the five continents and is one of the charter members of the Million Mile Personal Travel and Pleasure club.

Special hotel rates in the principal cities visited by the Great Eastern system have been arranged for bus travelers, Ralph A. L. Bogan, president of the system, announced last week. The savings, he said, will range as high as a dollar a night. This is reported to be the first time that anything of the kind has been attempted by any transportation company.

The winter sports season in the Wisconsin north woods will be extended to March 15. R. Thomson, passenger trafic manager of the Chicago and North Western railway, says the extension is due to the fact that the patronage this season has been unusually heavy. Nearly 150 Chicagoans took the "snow train" Thursday and Friday nights for the week-end at Eagle River.

Paul Rupprecht of the Oak Leaves tours has left on a trip around the world. It is in the nature of an observation trip, to obtain data for tours in the future and to get a line on how the agency's London office is preparing for the summer season in Europe.

Eight cruises for boys have been announced by the American Boy magazine for next summer. Last year 136 youths went on an excursion to Alaska, and the success of the project has led to an enlarged program for this year. The places to be visited include Chicago, the Montana dude ranch country, Seattle, Alaska, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Panama, Havana, New York, and Washington. Coöperating with the magazine are the Burlington, Northern Pacific, Canadian Pucific, Southern Pacific, and Baltimore and Ohio railroads and the Panama Pacific and Alaska Steamship companies.

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

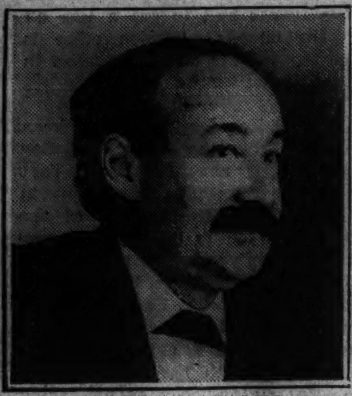
By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, October 20, 1886.

DEAR JULIA: Last night Will went into the Grand Pacific hotel to call on a client who was in town for the day. As he entered the lobby, he said, he felt an atmosphere of excitement among the bellboys, and he wondered what was the matter in that famous hostelry. Just then Mr. John B. Drake, the proprietor, came up and, seeing Will, drew him to the desk and showed him the register, on which, in a fine Italian hand, next to the last name written, was "Moncalieri." It meant nothing to Will, and Mr. Drake explained that it was the assumed name of Prince Louis Napoleon



Charles J. Bonaparte, attorney general in Theodore Roosevelt's cabinet and grandson of Jerome Bonaparte.

Joseph Charles Paul Bonaparte, better known as "Plon Plon." Since the death of the prince imperial, son of Louis Napoleon and Eugenie, the eldest son of "Plon Plon" has been regarded as the pretender to the throne. His name is Victor, after his grandfather, Victor Emanuel of Italy, for, you know, "Plon Plon" married Clotilde, daughter of Victor Emanuel, and she is sister of Humbert.

The royal guest and his companion left France about a year ago for a world tour, and have visited India, China, and Japan. They were successful, they said, in keeping their identity a secret until they reached San Francisco, when American reporters ferreted it out. They seemed to like these reporters, however, saying they were curious, but "always kind."

The young visitors expressed interest in our stockyards strike, Will said, and were highly intelligent about its causes. They were asking about the anarchist trouble, too, and hoped that punishment for the outbreak would deter trouble makers from coming to America, where liberty too often was taken to mean license.

I was wondering if the young prince recalled the fact that he has American relatives. You remember that his grandfather, Jerome Bonaparte, youngest brother of the first Napoleon, sought refuge in America in 1803 and married the beautiful Elizabeth Patterson of Baltimore. To be sure, this American marriage was annulled by Napoleon, who ordered Jerome to marry Catharine of Würtemberg and made him king of Westphalia. After the battle of Waterloo Catharine's father wanted to annul the marriage, but Catharine declared she would share her husband's fortunes to the end.

The prince is going on to Washington tomorrow, I believe. No doubt there will be much entertaining there for him. We call ourselves democratic, but we do love royalty. Don't we? Much love.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Napoleon Joseph Charles Paul Bonaparte, better known as "Plon Plon," died in Rome in 1891.

Charles Joseph Bonaparte, attorney general in Theodore Roosevelt's cabinet, was a grandson of Elizabeth Patterson and Jerome Bonaparte.

In the heart of Eleanor Kinzie, ordained to highest adventure?
Did childhood memories haunt her as a captive among the Indians?
Did she think of the officer's death, which left her a youthful widow?
Or the day when she came with John Kinzie to the cabin beside the river?
Or the horrible massacre when her daughter walked forth to disaster . . .
That day when the troops marched out, with their women and children beside them?
Were these the pictures she saw as she tended her little garden
Or quietly sat with her work while her husband, John Kinzie, fashioned

[Mrs. John Kinzie had an adventurous life. As a child she was a captive for four years among the Seneca Indians. Recovering her, her parents moved to Detroit. Here Eleanor married Col. McKillip, a British officer, by whom she had one child (later Mrs. Helm, who narrowly escaped death during the Fort Dearborn massacre). Col. McKillip was killed before they had been long married, and in 1800 she became the wife of John Kinzie, called "The Silverman" by the Pottawattamies because he made trinkets in which they delighted. During the massacre Mrs. Kinzie escaped to Detroit, but returned with her husband in 1816. Kinzie street commemorates this early Chicago family.]

Palm Beach Has Large Surplus of Bachelors

Hostesses Revel in Unexpected Oversupply of Dinner Partners.

By Nancy Randolph.

PALM BEACH, FLA. For the first time in its recorded history, there's an excess of eligible dinner partners in this resort. This is a well nigh incredible situation. In the past, hostesses have had to go out into the highways and byways with beaters to scare up enough presentable men to squire the lady guests in to dinner.

Attractive women usually have outnumbered men by two to one on the Gold Coast. The situation is almost the reverse this season. The sterner sex, spoiled by too much adulation in the past, is spending its time grousing because there is a scarcity of pretty gals to take walking under tropic palms.

In other seasons hostesses haven't stopped at mayhem to lure to their homes that extra man without whom the dinner party would be a flop. Now they shop about and take their choice.

A. Atwater Kent Jr. Among Most Eligible Young Men.

Dick Hall is here this season, and keeping bachelor hall in an attractive villa. Lytle Hull, Charlie, and Gurnee Munn, Tommy Shevlin, Prince George of Russia, Winkie Brooks, and Earl E. T. Smith are fair game. Homer Smith is occupying his new cottage for the first time this season.

Prince Kyril Scherbatoff's business affairs keep him in Palm Beach throughout the season. Robert Scott, the 20 year old son of Mabel Boll, has been another youthful addition to the party. Even Clarence Gould is now on the waiting list. And Randy Burke and Bill Plankinton are prominently among those present, not to mention Bobby La Branche and Pierre Barbey Jr.

Mabel Boll's tall son is the most unexpected arrival of all because almost nobody knew that Miss Boll had a son. Mabel and young Scott and Mabel's fabulous jewels came to town just in time to fill what would otherwise be many a conversational lull. For they are no passing phenomenon on this gold coast horizon. "Mimsy" has leased the house in Sea Breeze avenue, where she is cozily ensconced with her household and, it is said, burly private detective or two.

Mabel Maintains She Wears Paste Imitation Diamonds.

Just nine years ago, come next Wednesday, Mabel was driven from the French Riviera by fear of a raid on her $1,000,000 collection of gems by a gang of international thieves. Hiring special guards, she made an overnight dash from Nice to Paris to commit her jewels to the safety of a vault.

That experience is supposed to have turned this international beauty cautious over night. But guests at Georgie and Norma Talmadge Jessel's dinner party can't believe her story that she wears paste imitation diamonds in the higher brackets—that is, anything from twenty carats upward.

Everybody who was at the Jessels' labels Mabel's story about the paste gems as just a press handout. Didn't they see with their own eyes a necklace of cabuchon emeralds and headlight diamonds to ransom an emperor?

With these trinkets, Miss Boll wore a simple cotton evening dress of Tahitian print in green and white. This little number was spectacular in its own right. It was made in two pieces that failed to meet in the middle. There was a wrap-around skirt and a short, double breasted mess jacket, with a couple of inches of Mimsy's midriff in between.

Mimsy is really an American, of course. For all she's lived in Paris for years and years, she's really just a girl from Rochester, N. Y.

Delving down in the mysterious past of the Diamond Queen to the depth of two decades ago, there comes to light her marriage to Robert Scott. Which accounts for her 20 year old son.

Here's VERY FAST WAY to "Alkalize" Acid Indigestion Away

Amazingly Fast Relief Now

From "Acid Indigestion," Over-Indulgence, Nausea and Upsets

If you want really quick relief from an upset or painful stomach condition, arising from acidity following over-eating, smoking, unfortunate mixtures of food or stimulants, just try this:

Take: Two teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a full glass of water.

Or — two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets; each of which contains the exact equivalent of a teaspoonful of the liquid form.

This acts almost immediately to alkalize the excess acid in the stomach. Neutralizes the acids that foster headaches, nausea, indigestion pains and upsets. You feel results at once. It's really marvelous.

Thousands of people are learning this about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Finding out that nothing else they have ever tried acts to alkalize the stomach so quickly — eases it so rapidly.

Try it next stomach upset you have. AND — if you are a frequent sufferer from "acid stomach" and indigestion, use it 30 minutes after meals — either the liquid or the tablets. You'll soon forget you have a stomach.

When you buy, see that any box or bottle you accept is clearly marked "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia." A big box of the tablets, to carry with you, costs only 25¢.

"I DROVE MY NEW DODGE Beauty-Winner FROM CHICAGO TO DETROIT ON LESS THAN A TANKFUL OF GAS

...that's better than 19 Miles to the Gallon"

"I USED to think," says Ben Teasdale of Chicago, "that even 13 or 14 miles on a gallon was good gas mileage. But the very first trip I took in my new Dodge 'Beauty Winner', I drove from Chicago to Detroit—287 miles—on less than a tankful of gas... 14¾ gallons, better than 19 miles to the gallon!"

From all over the country, the reports are coming in from owners who, like Mr. Teasdale, say that the big, new, Money-Saving Dodge is giving them record-breaking gas mileage—18 to 24 miles per gallon, with up to 20% savings on oil.

Hailed by famous fashion authorities as the most beautiful car in Dodge history, Dodge gives you genuine hydraulic brakes . . . safety-steel body . . . and safety-beam headlights.

Dodge also gives you the Airglide-Ride . . . Chair-Height seats . . . longer, more flexible springs . . . redistribution of car weight evenly to all four wheels . . . patented Floating Power engine mountings . . . and many other advancements.

And, above all, Dodge gives you the famous Dodge Dependability! For 22 years Dodge engineers and skilled craftsmen have been building dependability into Dodge products. So thorough has been their work that it is not uncommon for Dodge cars to give their owners up to 200,000 and even more miles of service! And today's big, Money-Saving Dodge represents their finest achievement in Dodge Dependability!

See this new Dodge today and prove to yourself how much extra value Dodge—now at new, low prices—gives you for only a few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars!

PERHAPS YOU TOO HAVE BEEN MISSING SOMETHING RARE AND FINE

AIRFLOW
CHRYSLER

EVERY DAY, someone rides for the first time in an Airflow Chrysler, and says in effect, "Why didn't I know about this before? Why didn't someone tell me?"

The fact is, trying to describe the sensation of riding in an Airflow Chrysler is like attempting to interpret a Rembrandt painting to a man who never saw one.

You have to get inside an Airflow Chrysler before you can realize what real roominess in a car can mean.

You have to feel what it's like to ride in a car that floats miraculously over any sort of road or pavement.

Automatic Overdrive is just an interesting mechanical term until you know the magic of sailing along at cruising speeds with the engine loafing . . . until you learn about the big savings that accompany this thrilling new sensation.

The fact is, Airflow brings something so new and delightful to motoring that descriptions just can't convey the idea. Can you afford to buy any new car without finding out at first hand what an Airflow can mean to you? We'll gladly arrange a demonstration.

WHAT DEXTROSE IS—AND WHAT IT MEANS

Dextrose is a sugar, the normal sugar of the human body. From Dextrose comes the energy we need to breath, to walk, to talk... yes, even to think. Dextrose banishes fatigue, balances the wear and repair of the body. In Dextrose is glowing, radiant warmth and food-energy. And of greatest importance, Dextrose is instantly digested—in fact, it is immediately absorbed by the bloodstream without need of digestive effort. Kre-mel is rich in Dextrose!

400 year search solved by American genius

Weird and wonderful contraptions invented by the nations to get "low-temperature smoke"

THE SHAH'S $400,000 HOOKAH. So greatly did Muzaffar-ud-Din, Shah of Persia, prize "low-temperature smoke" that he lavished rubies and emeralds and diamonds of fabulous worth on his state bookah. The bookah chills the smoke by bubbling it through a jar of water. It requires three servants to attend the bookah of an Eastern potentate on state occasions.

THE Persians invented the bookah—the famous water-pipe of the East. Hans, in Holland, puffs a pipe that's almost as long as a man. The Egyptians soak their silk-covered stems with water before each smoke. Even the Dyak in Borneo draws his smoke through a cooling, grass-filled cane.

Are all these nations just trying to be different? Far from it. They are looking for a way to get "low-temperature smoke."

For 400 years, men have known that tobacco enjoyment could be immensely increased if they could find one simple thing—the secret of low-temperature smoking.

Many and strange are the contraptions the nations have tried. But who wants to cart around a bookah? It wouldn't go well on the golf course! And a Dutch pipe might get in your bridge partner's eye!

The Dutchman's "smoke refrigerator."

Now it's done in two short inches

It remained for America to solve the problem—in the short length of a cigarette!

In a self-cooling cigarette—the SUPER-MILD SPUD.

It isn't just another cigarette brand—it's another brand of smoking!

"Low-temperature smoking"—which means many things you've never enjoyed before.

First, SPUD'S gentle menthol process removes every trace of tongue-bite. It's as kind to your throat as a breeze to the desert.

Better still, you can smoke SPUDS clear around the clock—with a mouth as clean and fresh as when you started.

SUPER-MILD SPUD came of seven years' research. It has three things never before combined in a cigarette. Vintage tobaccos—up to 10 years old. Moisture "sealed in the leaf." And menthol! SPUD originated the menthol treatment of tobaccos—and still holds the secret of its effective use.

After centuries of groping, here is the smoke for moderns! Geared to busy lives and healthy appetites. To pack-a-day cigarette habits. People all over America are discovering SUPER-MILD SPUDS and "low-temperature smoke."

THE MODERN AMERICAN'S SPUD. How different from the ponderous contraptions of the past—how much pleasanter, more convenient, more efficient! "Low-temperature smoke" in two short inches—plus the finest vintage tobaccos in the world!
